JAPS LAND 3 FORCES ON JAVA

SEIZURE POWER MADE ABSOLUTE BY HOUSE VOTE

Last Curb on F. D. R. Killed from Bill.

Free Soldiers' Mail

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 [Special].—The proposal of Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] that soldiers, sailors, and marines be granted free mailing privileges was passed in the house today. Considered as a section of the second war powers bill, the proposal was accorded unanimous approval after a limiting amendment had been voted down. As the bill goes back to the senate for concurrence in amendments, unlimited free postage will be granted to members of all the armed forces, whether serving in the United States, the territories, or abroad.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Authority as great as that wielded by the ruler of any nation in the world was voted to President Roosevelt late today when the house unanimously approved the war powers act of 1942.

Rep. A. J. May.

The measure was returned to the senate for action on house amendments. A conference between the two bodies will be held in order to reconcile differences between the bill passed by the senate on Jan. 28 and the version now adopted by the house.

The last restriction upon the President's power to seize the real and personal property of any person in the land was removed by the narrow margin of five house votes. Thus both houses have conferred upon the chief executive unlimited authority to acquire property of all descriptions in furtherance of the war program.

May Leads Fight for Curb.

Rep. Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the military affairs committee, led the fight to retain a provision that the owner of machinery or other equipment in a plant could resist government seizure of such facilities by proving they were essential to the operation of the factory. May lost the battle on a teller vote, 91 to 86.

Thru the secretary of navy, the secretary of war, or any other government officer, the President may seize any real property and all personal property thereon as essential to the prosecution of the war. While this power, in practice, probably will be confined to commercial property, the government may, if it wishes, take over the home of any person and seize any personal property therein. The only exception left in the law is that personal firearms may not be requisitioned, because of the constitutional right of citizens to keep and bear arms.

Two Roads for Recovery.

Owners of seized property can obtain compensation under an agreement with the government, or they may seek "just compensation" in the federal courts.

Two of the 16 sections in the bill were struck out by house action. One of these contained provisions greatly simplifying the procedure permitting aliens who join or are drafted into the armed forces to become naturalized.

The other, stricken at the suggestion of Rep. Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee, would have extended the benefits of the United States employés' compensation commission to air raid wardens and others engaged in civilian defense activities who are injured in the line of duty. More mature consideration is needed for both these sections, members agreed.

Fight on Naturalization.

Rep. Joe Starnes [D., Ala.] led the attack upon the naturalization section. He noted that it waived the requirements that an alien seeking citizenship have at least a limited use of English; the ability to write his name, and other educational tests. Moreover, he noted, it would permit the immigration department to send representatives anywhere in the world

Crews of Subs Tell Success in Jap Waters

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 28 (AP).—American sailors who "hadn't seen the light of day for months" unfolded stories of adventure under the seas today and told of carrying the war right to the enemy's front doorstep" in the far Pacific.

The navy, in a release from the office of the commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, gave its own description of the men as "grinning, triumphant, taciturn," and said that reports indicated their craft torpedoed enemy ships "sometimes almost in view of lookouts at his principal home ports."

Report Wake Deserted.

Submarine men reported Wake Island, which fell to the Japanese Dec. 22 after a two week siege, was "deserted." The date of the submarine inspection of Wake was not given.

The sailors said two enemy destroyers, wrecked and beached during the savage Japanese assault, remained mute testimonial to the heroic defense of the small marine corps and naval garrison on the island.

One submarine battled heavy seas for many days, sank a 5,000 ton freighter in a full gale, eluded destroyers, sank two more ships, and expended its last torpedo on an enemy destroyer.

Once Considered Impossible.

This submarine accounted for 15,000 tons of enemy shipping. The navy said it accomplished "an undertaking which not long ago was thought impracticable if not impossible."

Another American undersea boat was bombed by the enemy so consistently its commander believed an aircraft carrier was in the vicinity. Later, a converted liner of the Yawata Maru, 15,900 ton class, was sighted at an undisclosed port. The submarine dodged an enemy patrol for 48 hours, finally saw the ship leaving its berth and let go with two torpedoes amidships.

When the submarine surfaced shortly afterward, the liner had disappeared.

Light Bulbs Shattered.

A third returning submarine crash dived when it was surprised by an enemy destroyer and survived "terrific attacks" from depth charges which shattered the underwater craft's light bulbs and cracked its paint.

Days later this submarine sank a freighter of the 7,200 ton London Maru class with two direct torpedo hits.

The navy was pleased with the work of one submarine which originally was scheduled to go to the mainland for an overhaul before Christmas. The outbreak of war Dec. 7 changed the plans, and the craft was given an assignment "to the enemy's doorstep and it gave America a Christmas present—a 5,000 ton enemy merchantman."

One submarine commander was gloomy because his boat failed to bag any game. "Three torpedoes, six depth charges—no hits," he reported.

YANKS SELLING GIFT CIGARETS TO THE TOMMIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—American as well as Canadian and other dominion troops in Britain are reselling to British troops "gift" cigarets sent to them duty free from their relatives and friends at home, according to the British customs officials. They have asked the military authorities to curb this practice before it develops into a "racket." Commanding officers have been instructed to take disciplinary action.

Thousands of cigarets arrive daily in this country addressed to soldiers. They are resold at rates varying from 1 shilling [20 cents] to 2 shillings [40 cents] for a packet of 20.

RAF airmen stationed near a town where Canadian troops are billetted say they can get as many cigarets as they want whenever they like.

THIS MAY HELP SOME OF THE BOYS IN NEED OF ALIBIS THIS MORN

There will be a lot of explaining to the little woman this morning when various night workers in the vicinity of Hubbard street, Michigan avenue, and St. Clair street get home.

Practically everybody in the neighborhood was perfumed to an overpowering degree as the result of a peculiar accident. An American Railway express truck, delivering seven 5 gallon cans of basic essence for making fine perfumes, was at a loading platform. One of the cans began to leak, and the dark oil oozed all over the truck, onto the railroad tracks and out over the pavement.

There was a rush by truck drivers, longshoremen, and some printers and pressmen to gather up the precious stuff with sponges, in milk bottles, tin cans, and all sorts of containers. Much of the five gallons intended for a wholesale perfumer was lost. The oil was valued at $1,000 a can.

THRONG PAYING INCOME TAXES SETS A RECORD

The office of the collector of internal revenue remained open until 5:30 yesterday to accommodate the largest throng of income tax payers ever assembled in the United States courthouse. At times the lines of those waiting for assistance in filing returns and paying the tax reached across the entire building from Clark street to Dearborn street.

Daniel J. Conerty, chief field deputy, estimated that more than 8,000 persons were served during the day. From now until the deadline, March 15, the office will remain open every Saturday afternoon until 5:30. Beginning Wednesday the office will be open until 9 p. m. each week night except Saturday.

Jury May Hear Love Letters of Slain Mattingly

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 28.—Charles O. Mattingly's love letters to Caroline Payne may be submitted to the jury trying her on a charge of murdering him, if defense attorneys win a battle they began today.

The letters, a dozen of them, were found in the dark and stately defendant's purse the night Mattingly was shot to death in the presence of his young bride. Bloomington residents who throng the Monroe County court room daily had hoped to hear the letters read by the state, but the prosecutors closed their case without introducing them.

J. Frank Regester and Q. Austin East, the defense attorneys, today demanded that Prosecuting Attorney Sylvan Tackitt and Sheriff Earl Baxter produce the letters. Defense attorneys said they had tried in vain to get them from the prosecutor and sheriff. Special Judge Charles B. Staff indicated he will rule on the demand Monday.

End of 17 Year Romance.

The letters, worn with handling, give a vivid picture of the 17 year romance which terminated when Mattingly jilted Mrs. Payne, and soon afterward married his secretary, Mrs. Lu Rayne Oberholtzer Mattingly.

The first letter, dated in 1928, begins: "Sweetheart." The 10 page billet-doux admonishes Mrs. Payne: "Save me plenty of kisses and all your love."

Most of the letters refer to Mrs. Payne as "Sweetheart," "Baby," or "Honey." One holiday card calls her "My pretty peacock."

The last letter, written in 1939 after Mattingly had broken the romance and begun courting his secretary, is in a different tone. It begins: "Dear Payne—." With it was a check for $2,250, in "appreciation," it says, "for the many fine things you have done for me."

This letter ends: "I believe it would be better for both of us if you will regard a reply to this as unnecessary. It is my sincere hope that you will somehow find peace and happiness." The letter is signed: "Sincerely, Doc."

Kindliness Is Established.

Defense and prosecution lawyers today combined to show that Mrs. Payne was kind to her newspaper carriers. She was a district circulation manager for the Indianapolis News, and as business manager for the Bloomington telephone, directed its carrier boys.

The defense contends that Mrs. Payne, who is pleading insanity as well as not guilty, had a change of personality after an automobile accident preceding the end of the romance. A long line of her former newspaper carriers have testified to her kindliness before the accident.

Tackitt and his deputy, Robert F. McCrea, today sought to draw from the carrier boys the statement that she was kind to them afterward—indeed, always was kind to carrier boys. But most of the witnesses are former carrier boys who haven't worked for her in recent years.

Tell of Her Nervousness.

Many of the defense witnesses have been employés or executives of the telephone. Women employés have testified that they have spent numerous nights in jail with Mrs. Payne since the killing last July 5 because she is too nervous to be left alone.

Groundwork for the defendant's insanity plea was laid today when her physician, Dr. Naomi Dalton, testified that Mrs. Payne is undergoing illness incident to her age. She is in her 40s, but there is a controversy as to whether she is nearer 43 or 46.

CHICAGO HERO

In all issues of tomorrow's paper will appear a reproduction in its original colors of a portrait of Capt. Arthur W. Wermuth, painted especially for The Tribune by Frederic Mizen, Chicago artist and illustrator. Capt. Wermuth, a Chicagoan, has won for himself in the fighting in the Philippines the title of "the one-man army." He has slain 116 Japanese, captured many others, been wounded three times, and decorated for his valor.

MRS. ROOSEVELT THRU HOLDING FEDERAL JOBS

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says she will not take any more government positions while her husband is President.

Asked whether she would be associated with a proposed women's auxiliary air corps, as had been reported, Mrs. Roosevelt said she would not. "I can't take a government position because of my being the President's wife," she added. "I found that out."

Mrs. Roosevelt, who recently resigned as an assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense, gave her comment before boarding a plane for Seattle to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger.

New Zealand Oil Ration to Be Increased Today

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 28.—New Zealanders learned today that an improvement in the oil supply situation will enable the government to permit an increase in the ration starting tomorrow. The government also held out the possibility of further supplies if the position continues satisfactory, it was said.

8 Are Killed, 32 Injured in Jamaica Train Collision

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 28 (AP).—Eight persons were killed and 32 injured in a railway accident 36 miles from here today. A Diesel passenger coach was reported to have run into the rear of a freight train.

KIMMEL, SHORT RETIRED; FACE COURT MARTIAL

Knox Not Anxious for Early Trial.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanders of the navy and army at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese struck on Dec. 7, today were retired subject to trial by court martial at such time as the public interest and safety will permit.

Rear Adm. H. E. Kimmel [top] and Maj. Gen. W. C. Short.

The retirement applications of the two officers, who were charged with dereliction of duty by the board of inquiry into the attack, were approved by the war and navy departments, "without condonation of any offense or prejudice to any further disciplinary action."

$6,000 Retirement Pay.

Short's retirement was made effective today and Kimmel's tomorrow. On the retired list both officers will receive three-quarters pay, or $6,000 a year. They will not receive rent or ration allowances of about $2,000 a year which are accorded officers of their rank and service while on active duty.

At the same time Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox revealed they have ordered the preparation of charges for trial of the two commanders on the basis of the findings of the board of inquiry, headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts of the United States Supreme court.

No Hurry for a Trial.

Knox and Stimson, who have been charged in congress with a share of the responsibility for the success of the attack, made it clear they have no desire for immediate trials of the officers.

Immediate court martial, it has been acknowledged, would settle once and for all the question of responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster which has reverberated about the capital for almost three months.

While members of congress and military observers agree that Kimmel and Short, as charged in the Roberts report, were undoubtedly guilty of failure to have their commands on the alert, they also feel that careful study of the report reveals superiors in the war and navy departments were equally guilty of failure to provide the proper equipment and plans for defense of the Pacific area.

Trial Would Be Secret.

Court martial of the two commanders would not be public, if they were ordered, it was assumed in military circles. Secret sessions would have to be held to guard against release of information which might be of

QUESTIONED ABOUT HIS QUALIFICATIONS, KNOX WON'T TALK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 [Special.]—Members of congress today were chuckling over the disclosure that Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, who has a ready answer for almost any situation, was stopped by a question propounded at a recent secret session of the house military affairs committee.

During the questioning on naval matters, it was disclosed, Knox undertook to defend the present organization of the army, asserting the United States already has a unified command—all departments being subject to direction of President Roosevelt as commander in chief.

"The President is the greatest military strategist of our time," Knox said.

"And what are your qualifications to judge that?" he was asked by a committee member.

Committee members confided that Knox was stumped.

DIGEST OF MAJOR ACTIONS ON ALL FIGHTING FRONTS

Latest developments on all war fronts:

For the first time since June, 1940 there was action in France when British parachute troops, supported by infantry in small boats landed from naval vessels, came down 12 miles north of Le Havre and destroyed a radio station used to warn of the approach of British planes. Fighting a brief battle with the German garrison, the British took the survivors prisoners and escaped to the boats. Altho large numbers of bombers were used to ferry the parachutists across the channel, not a plane was lost and the British Australian casualties were light.

On the Russian front, Moscow reported destruction of a Nazi attempt to reënforce its army on the Staraya Russia front by airborne troops. Anti-aircraft gunners and fighter planes were said to have brought down 38 German aircraft on Friday and seven near Moscow yesterday. The communique reported occupation by the Red troops of a number of localities in several sectors.

Japs Land in Java.

In Libya Australian and South African flyers joined the RAF in a sweep over the stalemated battlefield, and the British reported that sandstorms had lifted and permitted them to shell and disperse axis columns which included tanks.

Japanese troops landed at three points on the island of Java, on both sides of Batavia, the capital. Two other landing fleets were under attack by air forces of the united nations, while at Bantam, 50 miles west of Batavia, the invaders were attacked by allied naval units, and the battle was still under way. These landings followed a naval battle between the allied and Japanese fleets in the Java sea in which the United States navy department announced that the Japanese cruiser Mogami and three destroyers were put out of action, while one American cruiser and five destroyers escaped intact. The navy said 40 transports were in the enemy convoy. It also announced that five Japanese ships had been torpedoed and probably sunk by United States submarines in previous actions.

Aussies Bomb Rabaul.

On the Philippine front, Gen. MacArthur reported that he was holding the positions taken from the Japs in recent surprise counterattacks, and said fighting had died down to patrol actions again.

The Australian air force struck at the Japanese held port of Rabaul, on the island of New Britain, setting large fires and bombing an airdrome. All of northern Australia was declared under military rule.

In Burma the Japs suffered 2,000 casualties in a two day battle for a bridgehead on the Sittang river, and the enemy was massing for a renewed smash toward Rangoon.

Nazi Air Force to Strike Harder Soon, Says Goering

BERLIN, Feb. 28 [from German broadcasts] — (AP). — Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering today issued an order of the day for the seventh anniversary of the founding of the German air force tomorrow in which he promised that "the severe winter will soon be overcome and the German air force will hit the enemy with multiplied force."

BATTLE ALLIED FORCE 50 MILES FROM BATAVIA

U. S. Helps Smash 4 Enemy Ships.

(Maps and picture on pages 2 and 3.)

BATAVIA, Java, March 1 [Sunday] —(AP).—Japanese invasion hordes running the gauntlet of the allied nations' southwest Pacific fleet and air corps landed last night and early today at three places in western and middle Java, last island bastion of the allies in the Netherlands Indies, and immediately came to battle with defending American, Dutch, and Australian forces.

The first Japanese troops, part of a massive invasion force borne by 40 transports, landed last night in the northwest part of Bantam province, only 50 miles west of Batavia, and in Indramayu bay, on the north central coast.

These thrusts, flanking the capital, were followed early this morning by additional landings on an extensive front along the north coast about 19 miles east of Rembang, which is 110 miles northwest of the naval base of Surabaya.

The Indramayu region is only 60 miles northeast of Bandoeng, headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies army. Batavia itself was flanked by the landing there and in northwestern Bantam.

The size of the invading forces was not immediately disclosed. An official Dutch statement said of the landing in the vicinity of Rembang that "a strong fleet" put the Japanese ashore "on an extensive front."

Engaged by Naval Units.

The forces taking part in the Bantam landing were heavily engaged by united nations naval units. Two other sections of the landing fleet were attacked overnight by allied aircraft and it was announced officially that losses were inflicted upon the enemy.

"These bombing attacks are still proceeding," the official announcement added. The announcement said news was lacking immediately on the results of the naval battle off Bantam.

The Batavia correspondent of the official Aneta news agency departed immediately "for the front," indicating, the agency said, that vigorous land action already was under way. It was believed in Batavia that the Rembang region was one scene of such land fighting.

The invaders presumably were landed from the transports in a vast armada protected by Japanese warships which has been in a running battle with United States and allied naval units since Friday night.

U. S. Consul Burns Files.

The landings were announced after the sea-borne invaders had been turned back in their first encounter with the combined striking force of the united nations' southwest Pacific fleet. This battle still raged over the Java sea today.

The staff of the American consulate general burned its files in Batavia today, preparatory to leaving. All American correspondents were also advised to leave the Indies capital, and it was understood that the British consulate gave similar advice to British correspondents.

[The American consulate staff presumably will go to the less exposed inland town of Bandoeng in west central Java, where the Netherlands East Indies army command is located. Most of the foreign correspondents already are in Bandoeng. Batavia is on the northwestern tip of Java and is a likely objective of a Japanese landing attempt.

Four Jap Ships Sunk.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—American fighting ships, with naval units of other united nations, put a Japanese cruiser and three destroyers out of action in what the navy said today was an "initial phase" of the battle for Java.

Moreover, American submarines torpedoed and probably sank five other enemy ships in the western Pacific war theater in previous actions, a navy communique said.

The 8,500 ton Japanese cruiser Mogami, which was driven out of the fight in the Java sea yesterday, was

JAPS LOSE 2,000 IN 2 DAY BATTLE AT BURMA BRIDGE

Massing for New Drive on Rangoon.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Japanese are massing troops for a renewed smash toward Rangoon and the Burma front situation is "very serious," a British commentator acknowledged today.

The Japanese infantry suffered 2,000 casualties in a series of bull like rushes against a small British force holding a bridgehead across the Sittang river, the commentator added.

He admitted that reports the Japanese had cut the road and railroad north of Pegu probably were true, and emphasized the strength of the imminent Japanese onslaught.

Another British force, cut off when the Japanese enveloping movement in the north flanked it, fought its way back to the present lines after days of severe fighting.

Fight for Two Days.

The battle of the bridgehead was a small but gallant action. It was believed that troops of the Duke of Wellington's infantry and the King's Own Yorkshire light infantry participated.

Attacking in greatly superior force, the Japanese battered at the British bridgehead garrison for two days. After sustaining heavy losses, the British withdrew across the river as engineers blew up the bridge.

The commentator said there were no reports of prisoners, indicating all the Japanese 2,000 casualties had been killed or wounded.

Yanks Bag 47 Planes.

Chungking, China, Feb. 28 (AP).—Destruction of 47 Japanese planes and damage to seven others that probably boosted the toll to 54 was credited officially today to American volunteer "Flying Tigers" in two days of action over Rangoon this week.

A communique said a handful of men from the United States flying Curtiss Tomahawk planes had gained the victories, fighting off raids against Burma's capital Tuesday and Wednesday.

It mentioned only one American pilot as missing, and said he was believed to have made a forced landing 20 miles from Rangoon.

JAPAN IS WARNED U. S. MAY ATTACK FROM ALEUTIANS

TOKIO, Feb. 28 [from Japanese broadcasts].—(AP).—The newspaper Nichi Nichi warned today of the possibility of a United States attack upon Japan from the Aleutian Islands. The newspaper referred to "a recent American attempt to attack from a southerly direction."

"This was frustrated by the vigilance of Japanese naval planes which some 100 miles northeast of New Guinea spotted the squadron and damaged an aircraft carrier," the newspaper said.

AUSTRALIA PUTS TEA ON RATIONS; SEIZES SUPPLIES

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 28 (AP).—Tea rationing started in Australia today, and the government requisitioned all supplies held by merchants and traders.

Sen. R. V. Keane, minister of trade and customs, said the restrictions on Australia's staple drink were necessitated by "the interruption of the normal channels of supply." About 8 to 10 weeks' supply is available. The Netherlands East Indies has been Australia's chief tea supplier.

AUSSIES BOMB JAP-HELD ISLAND AND START FIRES

'Flaming Onions' Fail to Halt Them.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Australian air force reported today that it struck at the Japanese held port of Rabaul on the Island of New Britain last night for the second successive night, setting fires that were visible for 30 miles.

Buildings adjoining an airdrome were bombed heavily, a communique said.

"The RAAF encountered intense anti-aircraft fire, including 'flaming onions,' but Japanese fighter planes failed to intercept the RAAF bombers which all returned safely," said the communique.

Declares Military Rule.

CANBERRA, Feb. 28 (AP).—Military rule for the whole Northern Territory of Australia was proclaimed today by Army Minister Francis Forde. Such measures had applied until now only in the extreme northern area centering on the port of Darwin.

At Melbourne, the commonwealth war council was reported continuing its secret deliberations on new offensive strategy in the event of attempted Japanese invasion of Australia.

Maj. Gen. Gordon Bennett, commander of Australian troops in Malaya before the fall of Singapore, arrived in Australia today in a Dutch plane and is expected in Sydney tomorrow.

Japs Report Timor Loot.

TOKIO, Feb. 28 [From Japanese broadcasts] (AP).—Domei [Japanese news agency] said today that 24 trench mortars and 1,500 rifles and machine guns had been captured by Japanese forces in operations on Dutch Timor, off the north coast of Australia.

Japanese parachutists, army, naval, and air forces were reported to have coöperated in the capture of Koepang, the capital, last Sunday.

BRITISH CONTINUE SHIPPING CLOTH TO U. S. TAILORS

British and Australian worsteds and flannels continue to reach the United States despite the war, Henri O'Bryant Jr., Chicago tailor, said yesterday. Wholesalers are notified that cloth is on the way and can be expected within six, eight, and sometimes ten weeks, he said, and generally arrives within that time. Prices are up about 35 cents a yard above those prevailing last year. Yesterday O'Bryant was notified that a shipment which he had been informed previously could be expected within five weeks, had been lost. It was presumed it was being carried on a ship which was torpedoed en route to this country.

'Free French' Admiral Quits Seized Islands in Bomber

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Adm. Emile Muselier, commander of the Free French naval forces which took possession of St. Pierre and Miquelon islands on Christmas Eve, returned to London in a bomber, "Free French" headquarters announced.

EDITOR PREDICTS DOMINION STATUS FOR INDIA SOON

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Abolition of the India office and transfer of its work to the dominions department was predicted today by Alfred Watson, editor of the Statesman.

The well informed editor declared the guiding principle of the government plan for India must be "to give India at once as full a measure of the status of a dominion as is attainable in its absence of an agreed constitution."

Watson said much constructive work already had been done since India has been invited to nominate a member of the war cabinet in London and asked to fill a place on the Pacific war council.

Chinese Women No 'Dolls'; Pledge to Raise War Funds

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 28 (AP).—The choice between being pampered dolls or equality by assuming wartime responsibilities and contributing funds for the fight was offered Chinese women today by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. Women in her audience gave wedding rings and other jewelry and pledged that they would raise a million Chinese dollars.

NAVAL VETERAN SPEAKS TOMORROW.

JAPS START OWN DRIVE TO MOVE OFF WEST COAST

Plan Mass Trek Inland of All of Race.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—Mike M. Masaoka of San Francisco, national secretary and field executive of the Japanese American Citizens league, said today his organization was preparing all Japanese—American and foreign born alike—for an ultimate mass evacuation of the Pacific coast.

Circulars have been sent to key places telling all Japanese to get ready for a movement to some inland location under government supervision and to abandon property in California, Oregon, and Washington.

League Represents 100,000.

Masaoka said the league of 20,000 members represents more than 100,000 Japanese on the Pacific, with property he estimated at $100,000,000. He added the campaign was undertaken voluntarily by the league.

"We are preparing our people," he said, "to move out. We want them to go without bitterness, without rancor, and with the feeling that this can be their contribution to the defense of the United States.

"We want to convince them that it will be patriotic to make this sacrifice, and a sacrifice it will be. We want them to go protesting but one thing—their patriotism to the flag of the United States."

Urges Giving Up Rights.

"Why jeopardize this country or our people by trying to insist on staying, or even by pursuing our legal rights as citizens of this country to contest evacuation?" Masaoka asked, referring in the latter phrase to American born Japanese.

"Naturally our people would leave instantly on orders from the army, but we hope to leave, you might say, before the army sees fit to kick us out.

"We seek to make our people look at this movement as a sort of adventure, such as our fathers and mothers undertook when they came to this country.

"In this respect, we'll have it easier than they did, because we are better equipped than they were, and we will have the benefit of agencies and leaders trained in administering a life in these new surroundings, wherever they may be."

Inland States More Receptive.

Representatives of two counties in Utah invited the government to send up to 3,000 Japanese aliens to work farms on a lease or share crop basis. Gov. Herbert B. Maw, however, has expressed opposition to importation of enemy aliens unless necessary.

Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado said his state was not inviting enemy aliens, but that if the war department considered it essential Colorado would provide temporary quarters for them as "the only patriotic choice open to the state."

Meanwhile Rep. John M. Tolan [D., Cal.], whose house committee is holding a series of west coast hearings on the alien situation, said in Seattle he had been informed that stringent alien evacuation orders were imminent.

NEW ZEALAND TIGHTENS CIVIL DEFENSE RULES

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 28.—New Zealand today rounded out its civil defenses with the creation of food control and fire fighting services. Emergency and regular fire fighters have been brought under a single control.

Food distribution will continue thru the customary channels during an emergency. Stocks are not commandeered and no central depots have been established, but a strict sales control is being exercised to check panic buying and hoarding. If some stores are destroyed, the remaining ones will receive increased supplies. Mobile food fleets are being organized.

Decrees are to be announced soon joining the home guard and the air raid precaution service, National Service Minister Robert Semple disclosed. He said that it is now optional for citizens to enlist in either home defense organization, but that the need for full use of man power made a change necessary.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The Japanese heavy cruiser Kumano, which is of the same class as the Mogami, reported by the United States navy yesterday to have been put out of action in the struggle for Java.

JAPS LAND AT 3 PLACES IN JAVA; 4 SHIPS SMASHED

Six U. S. Vessels Intact After Battle.

One U. S. Cruiser in Battle.

The American units participating with Dutch, British, and Australian naval forces, the communique said, consisted of one heavy cruiser and five destroyers.

Naval records show the Mogami went into service in 1936. Mogami class ships carry a normal complement of 850, have four aircraft launched from two catapaults, are armed with fifteen 6.1 inch guns, eight 5 inch anti-aircraft, and carry twelve 21 inch torpedo tubes. Their deck and side armor is two inches.

The text of the navy communique follows:

"On Feb. 27 a major action occured in which combined Dutch, British, Australian, and United States naval forces engaged a much larger enemy force of combatant vessels covering 40 transports attempting a landing on the north coast of Java.

"From fragmentary reports received at the navy department American naval forces participating in this action consisted of one heavy cruiser and five destroyers. A landing on Java by the enemy was not effected.

Retreat to the North.

"The Japanese heavy cruiser Mogami and three enemy destroyers were put out of action in the attempt. When last seen, enemy transports were retiring to the northward.

"None of our vessels suffered heavy damage in the initial phase of this battle for Java, and our forces are still intact despite the overwhelming superiority in numbers of the enemy naval forces.

"Reports from United States submarines operating in the far east are as follows:

"On Feb. 23, two torpedo hits were effected on one large ship of the enemy.

"On Feb. 24 two torpedo hits were effected on one large enemy auxiliary vessel.

"On Feb. 25, one torpedo hit was effected on an enemy transport and one torpedo hit on a type unknown.

"In addition, date unknown, one of our submarines registered a torpedo hit on an enemy transport.

"All of these ships of the enemy are believed sunk."

Armada Believed Reforming.

BANDOENG, Java, Feb. 28 (AP).—Warships of the united nations flung back today an attempt by a huge fleet of Japanese warships and transports to storm the Surabaya naval base and invade Java.

Battered and scrambled in a night-long battle, the Japanese warships and their train of many transports retreated northward.

The battle began yesterday and the opposing forces still were in contact late this afternoon, but informed united nations sources here said the bulk of the invasion fleet apparently was in the process of reorganizing for a renewed attempt to land troops.

Tell of Losses on Both Sides.

The approach of the Japanese sea force was preceded by repeated air raid alarms at Surabaya, but each time approaching enemy planes were driven off by anti-aircraft fire before any bombs could be dropped.

The Dutch said "several tens of ships," in the continental equivalent to "scores," were in the invaders' strongly protected convoy, first scattered and then pursued by the allied warships.

Invasion Fleet Twice Hit.

Twice before the United States and Dutch fleets have teamed to inflict resounding defeats on the Japanese sea power—in Macassar strait and in the Strait of Lombok off Bali.

In other areas, the communique reported Dutch successes in fighting on the southern Celebes, northeast of Java, in central Sumatra, where the Japanese are attempting to consolidate their positions for an assault on western Java, and on the half Dutch, half Portuguese Island of Timor, east of Java. The Dutch said their troops had inflicted serious losses on the Japanese on Timor.

The war report also told of raids on the port of Batavia and an air-field in western Java.

Massed Battle Holds Spotlight.

But it was the massed battle of Java sea which held the attention of the Dutch and their allies. Of it the Dutch communique said:

"In the afternoon of Feb. 27 a strong Japanese fleet which covered a convoy approaching from the north was attacked in Java sea by an allied squadron.

"In the course of the fighting, which also continued after darkness had fallen, losses were sustained on both sides. The extent of these losses, however, is not yet known because complete reports have not yet been received.

"For the same reason, no review of this naval action can yet be given. The reports received indicate, however, that the convoy, which consisted of tens of ships, retreated to the north in the course of the battle."

"Four Warships Sunk"—Japs.

TOKIO, Feb. 28 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Japanese imperial headquarters asserted today that one united nations cruiser and three destroyers had been sent to the bottom by the Japanese fleet in the battle of the Java sea.

The official announcement said the battle was joined Friday night. It mentioned no Japanese losses. The Japanese news agency, Domei, claimed that a British cruiser of the Exeter type was set afire and put "out of action" in a bombing attack off Batavia.

Three Dutch warships of 3,000 tons were plastered with bomb hits off Batavia and one ship was set afire, the newspaper Nichi Nichi claimed.

The Java sea engagement was the third major clash in Netherlands East Indies waters, and as on both previous occasions the Japanese made first claims of victory.

BRIEF FACTS ON NEW TOWNS AND PLACES IN TODAY'S WAR NEWS

Indramayu bay, site of a Japanese landing yesterday, lies on the north shore of Java about 110 miles east of Batavia. It has been regarded as a dangerous anchorage for large ships, being full of shoals. The small town of Indramayu, 10 miles upriver from the sea, has a connection with the state railroad, leading from the capital to important points on the east half of Java. The terrain about Indramayu is not rugged, the Javanese mountains rising well to the south.

Rembang, where Japanese forces also have landed, is on Java's north coast, about 115 miles west of Suraboya. Sailing directions make use of a red roofed clubhouse as a guide to mariners entering the port, which has a poor harbor. Only a few miles south of the town are mountains. The north line of the railroad is about 10 miles inland. Rembang's population is largely native, only 200 whites normally living there.

The town of Bantain, on the sea coast in the province of the same name where the third landing was effected, is only 50 miles west of Batavia. It has railway connection with the capital.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Lady Astor, American-born member of parliament, was injured today in a fall from the platform at a meeting of the British federation of business and professional women in London. Her injuries were not serious.

PROMOTE KANSAS SAILOR FOR ACTS AT PEARL HARBOR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Eugene Walworth, 21 years old, yeoman third class, has been advanced in rating to yeoman second class, for meritorious action on the United States navy minesweeper Oglala which was lost in the Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor.

The navy said today that Walworth, of Mound Valley, Kas., at the beginning of the attack gathered up correspondence and locked files and drawers containing publications.

Later, when keys to the powder magazine could not be found, he broke the lock on the door with a sledge hammer and passed up ammunition until more help came. He helped remove papers from safes in the coding room and the captain's cabin during heavy strafing from Japanese planes. He also helped, the navy said, in carrying sacks of material to the deck, unloading them onto the dock, and trying to keep the ship upright as she started to turn over.

STRIKE FOES NOW, PARTICULARLY AT SEA, BRITONS CRY

Vigorous War Industry Conscription Asked.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—More vigorous conscription for war industry, closer coördination of the fighting services and prompt offensive action with special attention to sea warfare were demanded today by speakers at several rallies in Britain.

Adm. Sir Roger Keyes, excommander of the commandos, told a Yorkshire audience that "it is about time the government ruled and gave orders—orders which I am sure would be obeyed with relief by every one thruout the country."

Only by firm conscription measures would 100 per cent war effort be achieved, he asserted.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, declared "we must take Germany by the throat and shake the strength out of her; we must start not in 1944 or 1943, but in 1942."

Col. J. J. Llewellin, new minister of aircraft production, told a Welsh national luncheon in London, however, that "we are in for the toughest year of our lives."

The marquess of Zetland in Yorkshire asserted that public opinion had been jolted by "apparent failure on the part of those responsible for the higher direction of the war to grasp the outstanding lesson—the importance of closer coöperation between the fighting services."

Lord Winster in Lancashire, declaring that "all signs point to a sharpening of the war at sea," said repair and construction of war and merchant ships "must be the first priority."

LACK OF NATIVES' SUPPORT COSTS BRITAIN DEARLY

Brings Up the Question: What Will India Do?

Leslie Hore-Belisha.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war minister of Great Britain, stood last week in the house of commons and denounced the colonial administrations of Malaya and Burma.

Why, he asked, was there no native coöperation with the British against the Japanese onslaught that ended in the fall of Singapore? Why has the same noncoöperation marked the Jap drive that now permits them to thunder at the gates of Rangoon?

Hore-Belisha emphasized his questions by references to the magnificent support, both civil and military, accorded Gen. Douglas MacArthur by the Filipinos—even by the savage, bolo wielding Moros. Further emphasis lay in the wholehearted coöperation, both civil and military, given the Dutch by the natives of the East Indies.

Now How About India?

Hore-Belisha's acid comments irritated two sore spots which since the start of the Japanese war have more than embarrassed Great Britain and have been the source of considerable wonderment to Americans. It also has raised the question of what will happen if and when the war reaches India, whose troubles with Britain have been in the newspapers almost as long as there have been newspapers.

The story of what preceded Singapore's fall is just beginning to come out. Native nonsupport there apparently was tantamount to sabotage.

The Batavia, N. E. I., correspondent of the London Times lists it along with strategic weakness and lack of sea and air support as one of the major factors in the disaster. The government, he wrote, had no roots in the lives of the people, with the exception of certain sections of the Chinese community—some of them inspired by China's struggle for survival, others by soviet precept and example.

Civilians Quit Key Posts.

Mass desertions from key posts by civilian labor caused serious military dislocations, the correspondent wrote. At one time, he said, only 800 of the 12,000 civilian laborers employed at the naval base were on duty, forcing troops to leave important duties to unload ships.

Toward the end of the siege, crews of launches and small craft anchored in the bay deserted en masse. This made escape impossible for thousands who might have been evacuated, said the Times.

The London Daily Mail quoted Lady Brooke-Popham, wife of the former British commander in the western Pacific. She reached London from Singapore late in the week.

"The Chinese were magnificent," she declared. "They did all they could to help, but the native Malays were inert."

From other sources it was learned that domestic servants and civilian employés fled by the hundreds. They would not endure the bombings. Jap spies and fifth columnists had no trouble infiltrating the native population in the weeks before the Malay peninsula was overrun.

Strikes and Riots Last Year.

Observers believe the British could have foreseen what was to come in May of last year. Then widespread strikes and riots in the states of Selangor and Negri Sembelan threatened the wartime output of rubber. Military units killed and wounded a number of workers and the incident was forgotten.

Observers believe also the British should have been forewarned by the dissatisfaction in India and Burma, ruled much as was Malaya with its crown colony, four federated and five unfederated states, and one province. London should be able to see, they assert, that in "the British yoke" lies the empire's great peril in the far east.

Inertia and studied indifference to the war is reported to be almost universal in Burma, whose history under British rule—especially during the last dozen years—has been marked by bloody revolts, widespread political disturbances, and a determined fight for self-government. Last September, even after the Jap threat from Indo-China had become an actuality, a great majority of political leaders and the people were exhibiting a significant disinclination to coöperate in the war.

Tax Revolt Not Forgotten.

To do so, they said, would be to coöperate in perpetuation of British domination. They have not forgotten the tax revolt in 1930-'31 by hungry rice farmers in which hundreds were killed, dozens of villages burned, and which culminated in the scandal over the British practice of decapitating slain rebels and displaying their heads for identification.

Burma's leaders still are determined that active coöperation in the war shall be given only after Britain has pledged independence to the country, or at least full autonomy with dominion status. Promises were made in 1932 by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald which resulted in separation from India in 1937, but as late as 1938 there were riots and bloodshed and a disobedience campaign against "British imperialism."

There are persistent reports that the Burmese now feel that if they must be under domination it would be better to submit to a people more nearly their own color and race. At present, their premier, U Saw, is a British prisoner, charged with conspiring with the Japs. He left London in a huff last November after Prime Minister Churchill in a "blunt" interview had refused dominion status for Burma at this time.

Choice Between Devils.

"We would rather trust the devil we know than the devil we don't," Saw stated afterward.

Typical of Burma's lack of sympathy with Britain's war was the tax of 1 per cent it slapped on all lend-lease goods passing over the Burma road.

The tax was lifted after America put pressure on Britain. About this same period a Rangoon newspaper was put under censorship for printing axis propaganda. And Burma is at war!

In India, meanwhile—after 200 years of crown domination—British affairs are approaching a climax. This is the consensus of English, Indian, and American observers. The mother country is having her last chance to retain control of "this most precious jewel of the British crown," they believe.

Two major events have changed the picture there since the last war when India gave 1,500,000 fighting men and 500 million dollars to the British war machine: [1] there has been a great awakening of the people thru the efforts of Mohandas K. Gandhi and [2] England has not fulfilled its freedom promises she made in 1914-'15.

Promise Given by Churchill.

Last week Churchill and the war cabinet again dangled before Indian leaders a promise of dominion status. But these leaders recalled that in 1931 Churchill said: "India never will be granted dominion status except in a purely ceremonious sense . . . in any time which it is reasonable or useful for us to foresee."

With Japanese armies at the gates of Rangoon, only 660 bomber miles from India's great port of Calcutta, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Liberal leader, warned Churchill that if Japan attacks it must be a people's war which cannot be conducted unless India is given self-government.

With Indian jails filled with political prisoners, the Indian National congress is continuing its disobedience campaign with the motto that only a free India will fight for England. Recruiting for the military, incidentally, is reported to be effective only in areas where influence of the congress is lightest. [It is supported by two-thirds of India's 33 million voters.]

Condition in the Indies.

Most Americans are familiar with the self-rule and assured independence of the Philippines which have turned wholeheartedly to support of American arms. And conditions in the Dutch East Indies are much more favorable to the natives than are those of India.

If the Japs had approached the Indies seven years ago the natives might have welcomed them. Since then the thousands of influential Chinese have observed Japan's rape of their homeland and the shrewd Dutch have acted swiftly to make the natives happier. For one thing the title of the land is in the hands of the people [theoretically it is owned by Allah and not by a company].

In India a half caste is considered a native. In the Indies he is looked upon as a white man. Natives can attain high position and there is an approximation of home rule. And they are awake to the Jap peril.

The seduction of Thailand by the Japs is another matter. Tokio began its ardent wooing [of the then Siam] before Jap ruthlessness was disclosed.

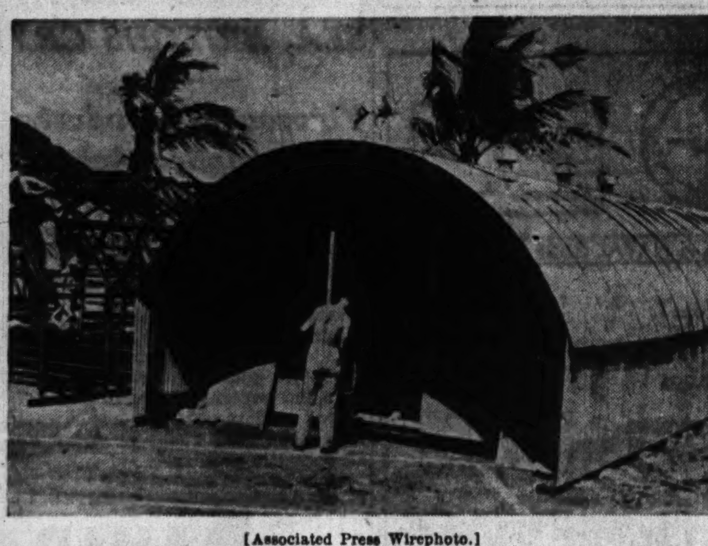
Treaty Signed in 1938.

There were trade treaties and bargains. Japan built submarines and small warships for Siam. Eventually Tokio had driven off occidental trade rivals. In 1938 an open alliance achinted and a treaty of friendship actually was signed.

It is believed that the people genuinely wished to remain neutral and there was a feeling that Thailand would fight any effort at Jap invasion. But after the surrender, the people were reported to feel that the government had done the best thing possible.

A treaty to aid Japan with military, economic, and diplomatic means for 10 years was signed Dec. 21. Last month, however, the Thailand minister in Washington forecast a "free Thai movement" and asserted anti-Japanese feeling among the people again was strong.

Icelandic Huts in Canal Zone



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The same huts that are used in Iceland to keep soldiers warm have been adapted to keep marines cool in the Panama Canal Zone, according to caption on this United States navy photograph. The bare backed men are marines, who are busy erecting the huts.

Walls Insulated

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The same type of hut keeps marines cool in Panama and warm in Iceland.

The navy calls the prefabricated steel houses "Quonset huts" because they are made in Quonset, Rhode Island, and says the huts "look like overgrown oil drums turned on their sides and partially buried."

They are built on a foundation of light steel trusses bolted together. Over this is laid a wooden floor which comes in sections. Between the composition inside walls and the corrugated metal outside walls an insulation wood fiber is spread to give warmth in cold countries and to hold out the heat in the tropics.

When used in the tropics the huts have screened doors and windows at each end, but in the arctic wooden bulkheads are at the ends to keep out the cold. Each hut can accommodate about 25 men, altho in the Canal Zone a smaller number occupies each hut.

ARGENTINA ASKS JAPS TO HALT ATROCITIES TO ENEMY CIVILIANS

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 28.—The Argentine foreign ministry today took up the question of Japanese atrocities in Hongkong, Shanghai, Singapore, and other former British territories now occupied by the Japanese.

Representations were made both in Tokio and to the Japanese embassy here, calling attention to international law covering the treatment of enemy civilians and asked that Japan take adequate steps to humanize the war.

This step followed receipt of reports that many atrocities had occurred in the far east after the entry of Japanese forces, including several cases of indignities suffered by white women. Argentina has assumed the protection of British interests in Japan and Japanese occupied territories and therefore is acting in the capacity of guardian of British interests.

BEAVERBROOK TO RESUME ROLE OF CRITIC: LONDON

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—In the recent cabinet shuffle it was announced that Lord Beaverbrook would return to America. It is now understood that he will not, and it is thought he may return to direct control over his thundering newspapers in the rôle of government critic.

In the last cabinet realignment he lost his position as the government spokesman who had a seat in the war cabinet and it is his thought that his usefulness in America without this authority would be impaired.

The British public is generally convinced that Lord Beaverbrook is the man who, next to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, helped to make the war go. His large following is convinced that he is necessary in any war cabinet. One of his most ardent friends now predicts that within the next six or eight weeks there will be another cabinet reorganization.

PANAMA FACING BOMBER THREAT: COL. M'CORMICK

Attack from Jap Carriers 'Almost Inevitable.'

An attack on the Panama canal by Japanese planes brought within striking distance by carriers is almost inevitable, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, declared last night in a speech on the Chicago Theater of the Air. The program was broadcast by stations W-G-N and W59C and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Obviously, Col. McCormick said, the successful bombing of the Panama locks would be a greater blow to the United States than the sinking of naval ships at Pearl Harbor. He added that a plane carrier, or one of several sent out, might avoid observation in the vast Pacific and get its planes into bombing range.

Col. McCormick expressed the hope that our forces were ample to protect Hawaii and the Alaskan bases; loss of these would be fatal to the United States, he said. Japan, he asserted, recognizes that America is her chief enemy and the only one outside Russia that can attack her in the Pacific.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"With Singapore fallen, and with the Japanese holding the initiative with superiority at sea, in the air, and on land, it is necessary to speculate on their future course of action.

"We can hardly doubt that they will mop up the Dutch islands and pick up their helpless garrisons like birds in a trap.

"When they have done this, there will be three courses of action open to them. The first is to continue to push westward. In the absence of any resistance from the native populations, and there appears to be none excepting in the Philippines, the Japanese can advance at will.

"We have no reason to hope that the military resistance will be more serious than it was in Malaya and Burma.

India Considered Vulnerable.

"All the evidence indicates that the Japs can move into India and, of course, into Ceylon and Madagascar.

"That would be following the line of least resistance.

"On the other hand, they may wish to reduce the white man's country of the western Pacific. That would be the two islands of New Zealand, the island of Tasmania, and Australia. Their populations are divided into four parts, not able to lend assistance to each other.

"North New Zealand has a population of a million; south New Zealand a little more than half as many; Tasmania a quarter of a million; and the mainland of Australia about seven millions.

"Tho easier, it would not seem worth their while to attack the smaller islands and leave Australia alone, while the subjugation of Australia would render the submission of the others inevitable.

"Because of their rapid success against Australian troops in Malaya, the Japanese may think they can duplicate it in Australia. In this I am confident they will find themselves mistaken.

"Instead of being in the mountains of Crete or the jungles of Malaya, the Australians will be in country they know and the kind of country they know. They will be like the Boers in having few, if any, professional officers, but they will, in their own country, be no worse for that. Half trained soldiers are much better defending their own soil than they are anywhere else. It takes regulars of long training to fight well anywhere.

Face Bushwhacking Blows.

"The Japanese will have little trouble in landing on the immense periphery of the Australian continent; and while away from the centers of population may advance rapidly for considerable distances; but they will always be everywhere bushwhacked on the ground and they will meet at least reasonable resistance in the air.

"The Australians can choose their own battlegrounds where, I am sure, their tactics will be aggressive. The Japanese will need a lot of time to subjugate Australia, and they have not unlimited time to spare.

"For the Japanese have another alternative and another problem.

"America is their chief enemy. Except for Russia, with whom the Japs evidently have an understanding, only America can ever attack Japan. Moreover the bitterness of the MacArthur defense in Bataan shows them that we are the most warlike race ever opposed to them.

Hawaii Attack One Possibility.

"Perhaps self-protection will indicate that they should mop up the stepping stones between California and Japan while they still retain dominance at sea. It may very well be that the victors of Singapore will appear shortly before Hawaii.

"We are informed that the island of Oahu is now strongly held. I would be glad to learn that all of the other islands of the group are strongly occupied. I would be glad to learn that a large part of the civilian population has been removed.

"If we hold the Hawaiian islands firmly, we will always have air communication with them, and surface communication can only be harassed by submarines, or interrupted by forays of the Japanese fleet during the anxious months or years that it remains superior to ours.

Vital Bases on Aleutians.

"The holding of our Aleutian bases may prove more difficult, because we cannot garrison them all, and any that fall into Japanese hands will be bases to attack our garrisons.

"However, if we are firmly anchored on the mainland of Alaska, I have no doubt we can hold the Japanese at bay in that sphere of war.

"Whatever the truth may be about the alleged raid over Los Angeles, it seems to me that an attack by an airplane carrier on the Panama canal is almost inevitable. In the vast Pacific a carrier might well avoid observation until it came within bomber range of the canal or one of several might avoid detection.

Loss Would Be Heavy Blow.

"Obviously the successful bombing of the Panama locks would be a greater blow to us than the sinking of the ships at Pearl Harbor; while the capture of Hawaii and the Aleutian Islands would be a fatal loss.

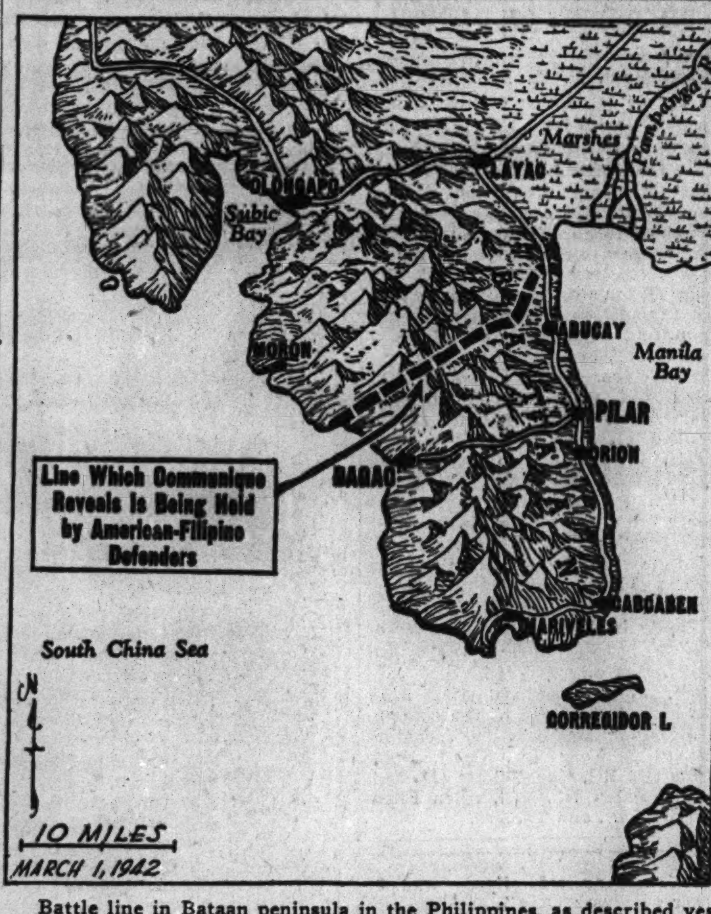
"However, what is plain to me must be plain to any other student of military affairs. I have no doubt that all of these points are adequately guarded, because it is from them we must advance to destroy the treacherous power of Japan."

STAGE NATIVE OPERETTA

The operetta, "My Maryland," with its native theme and locale, was the musical offering on the program, with Marion Claire and John Brownlee singing the starring rôles. Miss Claire was heard in the rôle of Barbara Frietchie, beautiful southern girl who falls in love with a northern officer. Brownlee sang the rôle of the officer, Capt. Trumbull, and Ray Charles, tenor, appeared in the supporting rôle of Jack Negtie, jealous suitor.

The dramatic cast included Kay Campbell as Barbara Frietchie, Hilda Graham, Alice Goodkin, Bret Morrison, Bob Bailey, De Witt McBride, Howard Hoffman, and Willard Waterman. The musical background was provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra directed by Henry Weber, and the chorus directed by Robert Trendler, Kenneth MacGregor produced the show.

MacArthur Holds His Gains



Battle line in Bataan peninsula in the Philippines, as described yesterday in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique. His forces hold approximately 275 miles of territory.

MACARTHUR'S TROOPS HOLD POSITIONS TAKEN IN SURPRISE ATTACK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Patrols from each side cautiously tested out the main battle lines on Bataan peninsula today, but there was little general fighting on that Philippine front.

The war department's communique said that the army of Gen. Douglas MacArthur held the advanced positions they gained by sudden attacks during the week. While these advances had carried the forward positions of the Americans as much as five miles in some instances, the drives did not penetrate the main lines of the enemy.

The communique said "fighting has lessened in Bataan, with operations limited to relatively minor patrol skirmishes."

DEADLINE PASSES AND 4,000 ALIENS FAIL TO REGISTER

The Chicago postoffice, its annex in the federal building, and eight substations thruout the city remained open until midnight last night to receive applications for certificates of identification from enemy aliens. Those who failed to register in the 28 day period ended at midnight face possible internment for the duration of the war. Ernest J. Kruetgen, postmaster, estimated between 4,000 and 6,000 German, Italian, and Japanese aliens in Chicago failed to appear. Thru Friday, 40,738 enemy aliens had registered. The postoffices will receive applications until March 31 for those whose delinquency was not willful.

Costa Rica Asks Argentina Not to Represent Italy

CAPITAL PUZZLED BY REFUSAL TO AID MACARTHUR

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Capitol hill buzzed today with renewed demands for the relief of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his men following word of their counteroffensive against overwhelming odds in the battle for the Philippines.

At the same time congressional circles expressed wonderment over what appears to be a striking difference of opinion between our sweating troops fighting with their backs to the sea on the Bataan peninsula and members of the army and navy high command at their desks more than 8,500 miles from the battle lines.

This difference, it was said, seems to be in the matter or aerial reënforcements. The high command has insisted there is at present no way to send help to the Philippines either by sea or air. It was announced, however, earlier this week that MacArthur's men had started a collection to buy themselves at least one bomber from the United States to aid in their struggle.

13 Billions for Other Fronts.

The men have been waiting for three months for help from their country which has made 13 billion dollars available to foreign governments thru lend-lease to carry on the war against the axis powers.

According to a dispatch direct from Bataan, the Philippine defenders decided to try to buy their own bomber after hearing a radio broadcast reporting that airplane production at home is running to astronomical figures.

Not only are MacArthur's men ready to pay for the bomber, the dispatch stated, but also for gasoline and bombs and the shipping costs incident to its transportation, including wartime bonuses for the sailors on the vessel transporting it.

Passage of the dispatch by the Philippine command was interpreted in many quarters as a rebuke to the army and navy for failure to send aid to the Bataan troops. There have been reports in the past that MacArthur had made several vain appeals for aid.

"Somebody is wrong," commented Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.]. "Either we can or we cannot send help to the Philippines. If we can, why don't we? The generals and admirals in Washington say we can't. But the men out there on the scene, who ought to know something about it, evidently think we can or they wouldn't be offering to buy their own airplane and pay to have it brought to them.

Says We Should Try.

"Certainly if there is even the remotest possibility of relieving those men, we should have the guts to try. We can aid other governments and equip soldiers fighting under other flags; why not our own men? We can send aid to Borneo and Java, why not to the Philippines? Is it because we have given too much away already?"

The shortest and most direct way to send relief to Bataan would be by convoy from Hawaii, according to the experts, but this would certainly bring a clash with the Jap navy. It has also been held possible that some planes might be sent the Philippine general by way of Australia and some points in the East Indies.

There has been no explanation by the high command for failure to utilize this possibility.

WITNESS' STORY OF BRITISH CHUTE RAID NEAR HAVRE

Smash Nazi Radio Unit and Escape by Sea.

[The following eyewitness account of the British parachute and infantry attack upon the French coast was written by a Reuters special correspondent who accompanied the expedition aboard a combined operations ship.]

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—With faces blackened, even to their teeth, the British parachutists who were landed on the French coast at Bruneval, 12 miles north of Le Havre in the early hours of this morning had covered half a mile and were nearly at their objective before a shot was fired at them.

Wing Comm. P. C. Pickard.

Only after the troops had completed the main object of the operation—the destruction of a Nazi radio location unit which served to warn Germans thruout Brittany of the approach of British planes—and were making for the beach where the navy was to embark them did they encounter serious opposition.

Enemy Fire Silenced Quickly.

They overcame and silenced the beach defenses, sent out a signal to naval craft waiting a little offshore and in a matter of minutes were heading across the channel back to England.

[An official admiralty-war office communique said the parachutists inflicted "heavy casualties" in destroying the radio apparatus "despite all efforts of German defense troops." It added that survivors of the Nazi garrison were taken prisoners. This was the first British clash with Nazis in France since the French-German armistice in 1940.]

While they were getting away from the beach the enemy fired down on the parachutists from cliffs but fire from the landing craft quickly silenced them.

One of the parachutists told me they got away just in time.

"The Germans had an armored division about 50 miles away and as we left the beach I saw a column of headlights coming toward us, altho still some distance off," he said.

Our casualties in killed and those who failed to reach the beach were light.

Parachutists Heavily Armed.

Each parachutist was armed with an automatic gun, a knife, and four grenades. Altho every one had been in the army since the war's start they had not been in any action like this.

Fighter plane escorts were commanded by Wing Comm. P. C. Pickard, hero of the documentary British war film, "Target for Tonight," which has been shown thruout the United States.

The combined operation was the climax of weeks of organization, training and waiting—and both the RAF and navy had parts to play which were vital to the success of the raid.

The RAF took the parachutists over, and the navy brought them back while the infantry provided crews which protected the returning boats.

Solve Complex Problems.

The combined operations presented complex problems—the head of the operations described himself as one-third soldier, one-third sailor, and one-third airman—and their three dimensional quality demanded weather conditions which suited all three services.

Parachutists can not drop in high wind, the RAF can not find the right spot without good visibility and the navy must watch the tide.

For some days all those who took part had waited. Training and rehearsals had been completed. Everything was satisfactory and all that was needed were the right conditions.

As each day passed with high wind or thick mist, spirits sank in the wardroom of the ship in which I had lived during the final training rehearsal for parachute troops and light landing craft.

Action Dispels Depression.

Then glumness and depression were rapidly transformed into jubilation when word came round late Friday afternoon: "The job's on tonight."

The sun shone brilliantly from a clear sky when the naval flotilla sailed to the cheers of other craft.

As pastel shades of the sky darkened into night the escorting craft faded into vague shapes, distinguishable only by their wake—a silver streak in the light of the moon.

While the flotilla steamed steadily to the French coast those who were to man landing craft blacked their faces with burnt cork and paraded in the wardroom in sheer high spirits, giving imitations of well known black-face comedians.

We were well within enemy waters when light landing craft left the mothership and went on with their escort. Small dark shapes in a double line, they looked against the moonlit sea like a team of huskies on a trial.

Welsh Sing of Fatherland.

Just before they left, echoing thru the ship came the stirring melody "Land of My Fathers," sung by Welshmen who formed a large part of the soldiers' protection crews.

Small and defenseless the landing craft seemed, yet stowed away within them were guns and ammunition sufficient to deal harshly with either an air or E-boat attack.

Also on board were heavy coats for parachute troops to wear on the way back, bully beef, biscuits, condensed milk, jam, and large reserves of gasoline.

I stood in the bow of our ship and watched the craft slowly merging into the silver grayness of the far distance.

For us on ships it was an anticlimax. We had to wait now until it was all over. But at that very moment all was activity on airdromes in England where parachute troops were climbing into Whitley bombers which were to drop them.

Everything Goes Smoothly.

So excellent were the conditions, so skillful the RAF crews, that all went smoothly. They not only found their small appointed place but found it at exactly the right time.

Dropped from only a few hundred feet, the parachutists landed. In a few minutes all of them were at their exact place, except for one who didn't score a bull's-eye altho he managed to join up later.

When originally asked if he could put parachutists down on that spot an RAF officer had said: "It's a piece of cake." And so it proved to be. All the craft returned to their base.

RAF support of the operations did not end here. As the returning craft neared England in the growing light of dawn a strong fighter cover was given them. In the words of one of the boat's officers, there was "a lane of fighters."

A few hours later all crews of aircraft which had dropped the parachutists came to the ship to await the return of the parachute troops.

Force Has Strong Empire Flavor.

The air force men had a strong empire flavor. Among them were seven Canadians, some New Zealanders, one Australian in the dark blue of the RAAF, Welshmen, and Englishmen.

From beginning to end the operation, which worked out according to plan, took something over two hours.

The officer of the first boat back stated that while his craft was lying offshore waiting for the signal to go in two German destroyers and two E-boats passed on patrol about two miles away well within visibility in the clear moonlight.

Maj. J. D. Frost, the parachutists' commander, is a Scot tho born in Poona.

"Chutists Repulsed"—Nazis.

BERLIN, Feb. 28 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command reported today that British parachute troops overcame weak coastal defenses on the northwest coast of France last night and said they withdrew by sea two hours later "under pressure of German countermeasures."

SAILOR IS FIRST OF U. S. FORCE TO WED IN ICELAND

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Feb. 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—Chester T. Swalm, 23 years old, of Detroit, Mich., a mail clerk attached to the United States naval operating base in Iceland, is the first member of the United States forces here to take an Icelandic bride—blonde and shy Heitha Thorkels, 22.

The sailor met Miss Thorkels at the grocery where she was a clerk after he had spent many weeks at sea. He proposed two months ago, and this week they were married, after they obtained permission of the girl's mother and the United States navy.

Swalm expects to be on shore duty for the duration of the war, but the honeymoon must wait. Naval regulations permit him to see his wife only during leave from camp.

Authorities said more than 25 officers and men of the British army here already had married Iceland girls. The engagements of one United States and two British officers were announced recently.

ONE IRISHMAN TELLS ANOTHER HE'S JUST LAZY

Edward J. Gleason, 42 years old, 606 West 47th place, who said he hasn't worked for six years and isn't sure why, was sent to jail yesterday by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of Circuit court. Gleason is $1,700 in arrears on $6 a week support payments for his wife, Eleanor, and his daughter, Eleanor Ann, 8. The couple were divirced on Aug. 19, 1936.

"Don't tell me an Irishman from back of the Yards can't get a job," Judge Harrington told Gleason. "I'm one of you and I know the district takes care of its own. You're just lazy and it's jail for you, me lad."

Gleason said he has been supported by his 78 year old father who still works. He was ordered confined in the county jail until March 9 when Judge Harrington again will consider his case.

TWO SUBMARINES SINK BRITISH SHIP NEAR DOMINICA

One Crewman Lost; 30 Survivors Rescued.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, Feb. 28 (AP).—The newspaper Nacion reported today that two submarines had sunk the 4,015-ton British steamship MacGregor in the Caribbean, 15 miles off the northern Dominican coast.

The Dominican coast guard was said to have picked up 30 survivors. One crewman was lost.

Saved Alone in Boat.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 28 (AP).—Hugh I. Stewart, carpenter of the torpedoed British tanker La Carriere, reached the Puerto Rican coast last night alone in a lifeboat. When told he was on American soil he gasped "thank God," and fainted.

Another lifeboat, the last missing from the 5,685-ton tanker which sank off Puerto Rico Wednesday, was found washed ashore today—empty except for ship's stores and 11 life preservers. Altogether 24 survivors have reached here.

Rio Hears SOS Calls.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 28 (AP).—Two SOS calls were heard here this morning. One reported an attack on a ship near the Bahamas. The position of the second ship reporting an attack could not be heard clearly.

31 Saved from Tanker.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28 (AP).—Word was received here today that a Montreal crew member of the motor tanker Thalia, torpedoed and shelled to the bottom off the Colombian coast early this week, is safe and sound at the small Colombian port of Uribia.

The Montrealer, Jules Hardy, is believed to have been the only Canadian member of the 42-man crew. A cable from the Panama Transport company said Hardy and 30 other survivors were at Uribia.

Five Ships Sunk, Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 28 [from German broadcasts] (AP).—The German high command claimed today the sinking by U-boats of five ships totalling 32,000 tons in the Atlantic ocean. The area of operations was not given. Two other large ships were damaged by torpedo hits, the communique said.

FARM BLOC SENATORS TO SEEK PEACE WITH PRESIDENT ON PARITY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The senate farm bloc decided today to seek an agreement with President Roosevelt on commodity price policies rather than pressing efforts aimed at forcing the administratiton to let corn, wheat, and cotton prices rise. This about face course was agreed on at a strategy conference which selected a committee of seven to ask Mr. Roosevelt for a conference next week.

In explanation one member of the group told reporters "sometimes a brief retreat brings victory."

While Sen. Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] did not comment himself, other senators predicted he would abondon his attempt to attach a "parity price rider" to the pending $32,000,000,000 war appropriation bill. The measure has been held up in the senate for a week by a dispute over price restrictions. In order to hold down prices, the government has been selling commodities below parity.

Sen. John Bankhead [D., Ala.] was named chairman of the committee. Other members are senators Charles McNary [R., Ore.], Scott Lucas [D., Ill], Guy Gillette [D., Ia.], George Aiken [R., Vt.], Allen Ellender [D., La.], and Thomas.

Bolivian Cabinet Resigns; Congress Elections Near

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Feb. 28 (AP).—The cabinet resigned today in order to leave President Enrique Penaranda free to form a new government which will supervise the approaching congressional elections.

Policeman Falls in River While Rescuing Two Dogs

Two dogs fell into the north branch of the Chicago river at Erie street yesterday and Policeman Peter Di Julio of the Racine avenue station also slipped in while trying to rescue them. Di Julio was pulled out by his partner, Walter Schwass, after the two dogs—a Spitz and a terrier—had been lifted to safety.

GERMAN AERIAL ARMY FLYING TO RUSSIA CRUSHED

Reds Shoot Down Troop and Supply Planes.

MOSCOW, Feb. 28 (AP).—Desperate Nazi attempts to save the trapped 16th army by rushing up air-ferried reënforcements have been frustrated by Russian anti-aircraft gunners and fighter planes, dispatches from the Staraya Russa front declared tonight.

The Russians reported shooting down big German supply and troop planes and capturing prisoners who said they were sent to the front from camps in Germany where they were being trained for the spring offensive.

Tho it did not specify they were transport planes, the midnight Soviet communique listed 38 Nazi aircraft as destroyed on Friday. Seven were reported shot down near Moscow on Saturday.

The communique reported the occupation of "a number of localities" in several sectors, and the sinking of a 5,000 ton German transport by Soviet submarines in the Barents sea, on the Arctic front.

Raid Nazi Base in South.

On the Sea of Azov, in the extreme south, a supplement to the communique said Red marine and infantry units raided an "important sector occupied by the enemy and destroyed two artillery batteries, two mortar batteries, two machine gun nests, and powerful radio stations."

It added that on the Leningrad front, Russian units occupied several strongly fortified German positions, killing 200 enemy officers and men.

Southwest of Moscow, on the front extending thru the Donetz river basin and into the Crimea, the Germans were reported lashing out fiercely in counter attacks.

The Red army acknowledged that at one place in the south the Germans drove a wedge four miles wide and six miles deep into the Russian line, but said Russian counter measures straightened the front and wiped out the assault force.

On the southwestern front the Germans were said to have attempted six successive counter attacks, which were beaten back with heavy Nazi losses.

Tighten Staraya Russa Trap.

Dispatches from the central front, west of Moscow, said two German counter thrusts there failed.

Reports from the Staraya Russa sector said the Russian troops closing tighter on 96,000 or more encircled Germans had routed the defenders of "a large, geographically important fortified settlement."

To the north of the trap Russian guerrillas were said to have imperiled the German positions further by cutting communications lines.

A dispatch from Leningrad said the guerrillas had killed 10,480 Germans, including two generals, in six months. In addition, the dispatch said, they destroyed 700 railroad cars, caused 64 train wrecks, dynamited five railway bridges, and took a heavy toll of German planes, tanks, and automobiles.

Nazis Admit Crimea Attacks.

BERLIN, Feb. 28 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Strong Russian forces supported by tanks and aircraft simultaneously attacked German positions in front of Sevastopol and on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, with fighting still in progress, the German high command said today. Forty enemy tanks were reported destroyed in these actions.

Another strong Russian attack, supported by tanks, was stopped on the Donetz front, the communique said.

PETAIN ACCUSED OF LEAVING HOLE IN FRENCH LINES

Upheld Weak Sedan Sector: Daladier.

RIOM, France, Feb. 28 (AP).—Former Premier Edouard Daladier today charge that Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, now chief of state, was responsible, at least in part, for the lack of fortifications in the Sedan sector, where the main German penetration of French lines came in May, 1940.

Daladier, who was war minister in three cabinets, was visibly more tired as his second day of testimony started in the Riom "war guilt" trial.

Cites Letter by Petain.

In support of his charge against Petain, he quoted from what he said was a letter sent by the marshal as member of the supreme war council to the senate army commission.

Daladier, quoting from memory, said the substance of Petain's statement was that the Meuse river sector north of Sedan was such a strong natural obstacle that it was unnecessary to carry out extensive fortifications.

"The Ardennes [mountains and forests], as they are, are now impenetrable and even if the enemy should engage us there, they would be stopped on the other side," Daladier quoted the marshal as having said.

Army Collapsed in Meuse Sector.

It was in the Meuse sector that Gen. Andre George Corap's army collapsed. Gen. Corap, who has been exonerated by the Vichy government, has announced he would be called as a witness later in the trial.

Altho he appeared tired, Daladier spoke with fire at times, but, unlike yesterday, he sat down between each question, standing only to answer.

AUSSIE, AFRICAN FLYERS RIP AXIS IN LIBYAN RAIDS

British Planes Batter Foe Supply Bases.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 28 (AP).—Australian and South African flyers have joined the British in a destructive sweep over the stalemated Cirenaican battlefield, it was reported today, while royal air force bombers were reported to have blasted axis supply bases at Tripoli and Bengazi.

The heavy air attacks took place Thursday night and yesterday, according to middle east headquarters communiques.

Heavy sandstorms which virtually have paralyzed land and air fighting for a week or more eased, and patrols of both armies stepped up their activities yesterday. The British communique said axis columns which included tanks, were shelled and dispersed.

Set Ship Afire at Tripoli.

The fluid battle positions appeared unchanged from the general line between El Mekili and Tmimi, some 75 miles west of Tobruk.

At Tripoli, in Thursday night's raids, British bombs scored a direct hit on a ship, which was set on fire, and set off several explosions in the harbor. In the attack on Bengazi bombs exploded near two ships and port facilities also were struck.

Axis Air Attacks Reported.

ROME, Feb. 28 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian communique today said axis planes had bombed British troops, motorized columns, and air and naval bases in Libya.

In raids on Malta the war bulletin said a direct hit was observed on a British submarine near Valletta.

[The German communique also told of axis air attacks on British troop concentrations, airdromes, and port installations in Libya, and said five British planes were destroyed on the ground and two were brought down in air combats.]

AEF IN IRELAND ENCOUNTERS NEW SHORTAGE—BEER

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 28 (AP).—American troops in Northern Ireland are commenting dryly on the present shortage of beer, whisky, and gin in Ulster.

Ireland's ban on the export of beer has left the pubs with nothing but sympathy to offer their thirsty customers. Whisky and gin already are short thruout Britain. Many pub owners said they would be out of stock by the week-end and began suggesting street demonstrations to de-

ROBBED IN FRONT OF HOME.

Three bandits forced Robert N. Goldblatt and his wife, Clara, to turn over $298 in currency and jewelry in front of their home at 6313 North Washtenaw avenue early yesterday.

YANKS HEP, HEP IN BELFAST AS THE IRISH CHEER

AEF Gets Adopted by a Mongrel.

BY RICE YAHNER.

WITH THE AEF IN NORTHERN IRELAND, Feb. 28 (AP).—Husky American troops paraded thru Belfast today, helping the citizens of North Ireland inaugurate war savings week during which they hope to raise $22,000,000 to "adopt" an aircraft carrier.

The Irish cheered the parading troops, stepping behind their own band to military marches rather than "Over There" or "Keep the Home Fires Burning," of the last war.

Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, United States commander in Northern Ireland, took their salute beside Prime Minister John Andrews, the lord mayor and other government and city officials.

They're Big Fellows.

The military bearing and smart appearance of the United States troops leading the parade drew cheers from crowds lining the streets.

"They're big fellows," one Irishman said—and they were.

One of the marching men was Private Dick Henke of Hutchinson, Minn., who took a ribbing as a "glamor boy" because his picture appeared in United States and British newspapers as the first private ashore.

When his comrades suggested to Henke that the publicity gave him a choice of Irish girls, Henke replied that he already had a girl in the United States—a brunet in Hutchinson.

"Hawkeye" Adopts Army.

Frisking alongside the marching Americans was "Hawkeye," a mongrel dog that adopted the troops when they landed. Capt. O. H. Kaberle of Waterloo, Ia., said Hawkeye now was a full-fledged member of his unit.

A month's stay in Northern Ireland has improved the Americans' appearance. In addition to strenuous conditioning, the troops find time for sports.

Private Edward Norway of Waterloo, Ia., said the Americans had organized two football teams to show the American game to the Irish, who go for soccer and rugby.

Twenty-five men from one unit are seeking places on a boxing team to meet representatives of the British services.

FEW FOOD SHIPS FAIL TO RELIEVE GREEK FAMINE

Starvation Is Widespread, Witnesses Say.

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 27 [Delayed].—The few food ships sent to Greece by charitable agencies have done little to relieve widespread starvation, according to refugees, who have just arrived from Athens, and informed sources here.

Only 7,500 tons of food from Turkey arrived in Greece before the food ship Kurtulus was sunk on her sixth trip from Istanbul to Piraeus. Intense excitement sweeps the Athens urban district whenever there is a rumor that a new ship is due, even tho there is far too little food to go around.

All Families Suffering.

All Greek families are now suffering from lack of vitamins, teeth are falling out and arthritis is afflicting their joints, one refugee said.

"In Ommonia square," he continued, "sausage vendors were selling sausage for cut rate prices as well as livers and giblets. They were made of dog, cat, and rat meat. The newspapers warn against the purchase of these because of recent epidemics of ptomaine poisoning."

On the "black market," he added, bread now costs 2,500 drachmas per loaf if it is of the German canned variety and 800 drachmas if Italian. [Prewar rate, 150 drachmas to $1.] The Italian loaf is said to be of better quality but the Italians are profiteering less. The dollar in terms of consumers goods is now worth 10 times its preoccupation value. Athens is now full of shops selling the jewels, books, silver, and other valuables of wealthier Athenians who have sold their goods to buy food.

People Dying in Streets.

"The problem of the dead," said the refugee, "is becoming terrible. Greek push cart men in the government service are loading bodies picked up from the streets. Sometimes the bodies are held in a morgue for a while to await identification but often they are merely unloaded in common graves. While walking down a street you may hear a quiet thud which signifies the fainting or the death of a passerby.

"The occupying forces try to cover things up. For example, the Italians daily gather up a few beggars and children, presumably to feed them. They gather them up in what once was the British legation's station wagon—now called the 'Dog Catcher's cart.' However, only a few handsful of food are given out while propaganda movies are taken and most of those gathered up are not fed at all."

CLASH OVER AXIS TIE AS ARGENTINE ELECTION NEARS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 28 (AP).—Spokesmen for three principal parties represented in Argentine congressional elections to be held tomorrow clashed last night on the issue of this country's obligations stemming out of the recent conference of Pan American foreign ministers at Rio de Janiero, Brazil.

Raul Damonte Taborda, Radical leader seeking reëlection, demanded "full sincerity and loyalty" in making effective the Rio convention, which had hemispheric solidarity as its theme.

Adolfo Mugica, director of the campaign of the Conservative coalition, espoused Acting President Ramon S. Castillo's "policy of prudence" in the war.

The Rio conference last month recommended that the Pan American republics break off relations with the axis. Argentina has not.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—Nunnally Johnson, former New York City newspaper man and now writer and producer at Twentieth Century-Fox studios, and his wife, the former actress, Doris Bowden, are parents of a daughter, born yesterday and named Christie. Johnson said they agreed to name their offspring after Christy Mathewson, famed New York Giants pitcher, regardless of sex.

PROHIBITION ENDS IN HAWAII AMID JOY AND SORROW

Bars Hit a Bonanza; Some Doctors Hit.

BY JAN JABULKA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 24 [By Air Mail].—Wartime prohibition, imposed by the military governor on Dec. 7, came to an end in Hawaii today. An order by Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, military governor of Oahu, ended the 10 week drouth for the islands' thousand of soldiers, sailors, marines, defense workers, and civilians.

This does not mean, however, that Honolulu, once a gay night life city, will resume her prewar rôle as the play spot of the Pacific. On the contrary, the blackouts are more rigidly enforced and curfews still in effect.

The return of liquor was a concession to the military personnel and defense workers, who had pleaded for a break in the strenuous schedule imposed in the race to construct, equip, and man the island defenses.

Whisky Ration a Quart a Week.

New regulations governing liquor sales permit each adult to purchase, by ration card, one quart of whisky or one case of beer weekly.

Aliens will be denied ration cards but may buy drinks in public bars. Licenses to sell package goods or conduct bars will not be reissued to aliens. This will eliminate hundreds of alien Japanese tavern keepers, who prior to Dec. 7 held 53 per cent of Oahu's liquor licenses.

To the liquor dealers, with the biggest and lustiest male population in history in their midst, the end of the liquor ban is the equivalent of falling heir to a gold mine.

For three months they have watched with envy and anguish a long line of soldiers, sailors, and their girl friends crowding into the soda fountains because the taverns were padlocked.

Physicians Hit as Ban Ends.

The return of liquor also will cut into a juicy income enjoyed by several physicians who, reminiscent of former prohibition days, issued liquor prescriptions to defense workers to treat fictitious ailments at fancy prices.

Other doctors, curiously, will continue to scan the papers for records of arrests for drunkenness. Heretofore, drunks arrested were given the choice of "10 days in jail, $10 fine, or donate a quart of blood to the blood bank." The Oahu blood bank has been enriched by scores of donors who took the later, less expensive alternative.

As originally framed, this section did not even require that aliens in the armed forces be residents of the United States in order to obtain citizenship rights. This requirement was added by voice vote, but the house nonetheless knocked out the entire section by a vote of 138 to 68.

Procedure Under Fire.

Rep. May attacked the omnibus bill as a "legislative mess of scrambled eggs." By putting a number of varying laws into one bill various committees of the house were prevented from considering and holding hearings on the measures which ordinarily would have been referred to them, he noted. In its omnibus form the bill had to run the gantlet of the judiciary committee only.

Arguing for retention of the guarantee against seizure of essential factory equipment, May declared its removal well may ruin the small business men of the country.

"The administration will go out, put its own price on seized equipment, and no one during wartime is going to sue the government in the courts," he predicted. "And it's the small business man who will be hurt because his business will collapse with the seizure of necessary facilities."

Rep. Clarence E. Hancock [R., N. Y.] won support for an amendment providing that the "fair market value" instead of "just compensation" be the standard for repaying owners of government-seized equipment. The approving vote was 91 to 77.

Another Republican amendment, sponsored by Rep. James W. Wadsworth of New York, was agreed to by voice vote. It provides that 22,350 members of draft boards thruout the nation shall not be included under restrictions of the Hatch act on political activities.

Summary of Provisions.

A summary of the 14 sections of the bill, as passed by the house, follows:

1. Confers on the Interstate Commerce commission regulatory powers over motor carriers which are equivalent to the commission's emergency powers over rail carriers. Chief of these is the power to issue priorities and allocation orders with respect to motor vehicles.

2. Authorizes the President, thru any government official, to seize any real property, with all personal property thereon; compensation to be determined by agreement or in later condemnation proceedings.

3. Provides enforcement machinery for the priorities system. The President is given far reaching powers to require the keeping of records, is authorized to order books and documents inspected, and to make all investigations necessary to uncover violations. Maximum punishment for violators is one year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

4. Amends the federal reserve act to permit federal reserve banks to purchase government securities, up to a total of 5 billion dollars, directly from the treasury instead of in the open market.

"Printing Press Money."

Section 4 has been termed the "printing press money" or "inflation" section because federal reserve banks issue currency against government bonds. With this currency they can buy more bonds, against which more currency can be issued for the purchase of still more bonds, etc.

5. Permits the waiving of navigation inspection laws for the shipment of men and materials during the war.

6. Revokes that section in the original property seizure act which forbids the taking of machinery or equipment essential to the operation of a going plant or business.

7. Amends the Hatch act, which prohibits pernicious political activities, to exclude certain part time officers and part time employés of the government serving in the war program with nominal compensation or without compensation. The exemption does not apply to dollar-a-year men. The house also excluded members of draft boards from operations of the act.

CCC to Guard Duty.

8. Empowers the President to have personnel of the Civilian Conservation corps assigned to guard war industry sites and vital civilian utilities and resources.

9. Provides free postage for members of the armed services serving in the United States as well as overseas.

10. Authorizes the treasury to accept gifts of money, property, or services for a particular war purpose. Existing law precludes the treasury from taking gifts made on special conditions.

11. Changes the existing composition of the 5 cent piece from ¾ copper and ¼ nickel to ½ copper and ½ silver.

There is a serious shortage of Nickel, which is needed in making armor plate for tanks and battleships, machinery bearings, bomb racks, and condenser tubes of boilers on naval vessels. The saving for war purposes will be 870,000 pounds of nickel and 870,000 pounds of copper.

12. Gives the government the right to inspect the plants and audit the records of war contractors and subcontractors.

13. Authorizes special investigations and makes reports of census or statistical matters available to any government agency. The law now forbids the census bureau to distribute such information to other departments.

14. Provides that the bill's provisions shall terminate on Dec. 31, 1944, or at such earlier date as congress may determine by concurrent resolution, which does not need the President's signature.

JR. ACHIEVEMENT WILL CELEBATE 2D ANNIVERSARY

Junior Achievement, which was started in Chicago with one company of 18 boys manufacturing reflecting house numbers, tomorrow will celebrate its second anniversary by outlining plans to become a big business. There are 23 such corporations in the city now and plans call for 100.

The celebration tomorrow will take place at a dinner in the Central YMCA, 19 South La Salle street. Fifty new Junior Achievement leaders will receive certificates of merit.

Each Junior Achievement group is an independent business organization, made up of boys and girls 16 to 21 years old, who float the stock for capital and manufacture some article, then sell it.

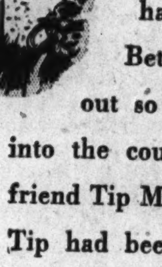
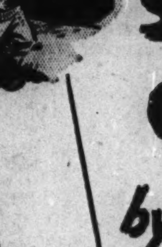
A Cowboy Flattens a Lady's Hat!



Dave Wallace didn't see the hat on the seat of the stage coach. He went to sleep so suddenly that Beth Hilliard couldn't snatch it away. Dave was exhausted, almost dead. And his house was dead. All because one of Beth's riders had lied to him about water.

So between the ruined hat and the dead horse, Beth and Dave didn't make out so well. Dave had come into the country to learn how his friend Tip Macy had died. Officially, Tip had been killed by a blizzard. But Dave had wintered many a blizzard with Tip in the Montana mountain country, and he knew that it took more than snow, wind and cold to kill his friend.

That's the background of this fascinating new story of the old West.



THE SUNSET GRAZE

by Luke Short

Author of Gun Bought Grant, Hard Case, and Gun-Hammered Gold.

You'll like this new serial. Many of you will remember Luke Short's early stories of the West . . . Gun-Hammered Gold, Hard Case, and Gun Bought Grant. The Sunset Graze is even better.

Starting Tomorrow in the Chicago Tribune

Here's how the story begins!

ACROSS these two miles of sun-blasted desert, the small black line faded and reappeared and faded again, but big Dave Wallace knew it was only the heat, and that the stage was really coming.

He sat down on his hot saddle again and closed his sore eyes. With the leaden stubbornness of a man to whom any movement has become a real effort of will, he eased the shirt from his baked back and considered that, for a man who was occasionally careless, he was also occasionally lucky.

Later, when the stage finally bore down on him, he was standing well away from his saddle, on which were his shell belt, bridle, saddle gun, and canteen. He did not want this mistaken for a holdup.

The stage driver had his look of assurance from a distance, and then the dry wail of his brakes lifted in the desert silence. The stage pulled up beside Dave and for a moment he and the driver regarded each other in the white dust moiling up between them.

"You sure enough picked a spot," the driver observed.

"I wouldn't like to homestead it," Dave conceded.

"Tryin' to cut across from the Tanks and lost your horse, eh?"

Dave nodded. The driver looked sharply at Dave, seeing a big, dusty man whose long, sun-blackened face showed a hard and mighty patience.

"Want a drink?"

"Throw up your rig, then."

Dave moved carefully as he handed up his rifle first. The barrel was so hot the driver cursed as he quickly laid it beside his shotgun on the seat. When Dave stooped to pick up his saddle, there was a moment in which he paused to muster his strength. Then, lifting the saddle, he swung up on the wheel hub and heaved the saddle atop the stage.

"Ride inside," the driver said in a kindly voice. "It's dark in there."

Gratefully, Dave stepped down. The dust curtains on the windows were anchored tightly, as well as the ones on the door. Courtesy made him peel off his slatbrimmed black stetson and beat the dust from his half boots, his denim pants, and his shirt. Finished, he opened the stage door and climbed in. One brief glimpse of the dark interior showed him there was a woman in one seat, and he chose the opposite one as the stage rumbled into motion again.

As soon as he hit the seat, Dave closed his eyes, and this time there was a blessed blackness behind his eyelids.

The woman opposite him felt on the seat beside her, and then leaned forward.

"Please," she said.

Dave did not answer.

She spoke louder. "Please, you're sitting on my hat."

Beyond the four corners the stage slowed and finally stopped rolling in front of Kissel's Feed Stable. In front of the hotel steps one of the men at the stage called, "This green trunk come too, Miss Hilliard?"

Dave Wallace was halfway across the street when the man called. He halted, something clicking in his sleep-drugged mind at the sound of that voice. Without turning, he slowly, fumblingly searched in his memory, not even hearing the girl's "Yes, please."

Now he had it. It came swiftly, shocking him.

Who was this stranger? Why did the mere sound of his voice stop Dave in his tracks?

SOME TIRELESS CHICAGOANS RIDE UPON INGENUITY

Others Put Their Faith in Gyp Dealers.

Chicagoans, noted for their ingenuity, have put their minds to work on the problem of getting tires for their autos. And many are getting tires, in curious and entertaining ways, wartime regulations notwithstanding.

This was disclosed yesterday in a survey of ways and means. There is little bootlegging, or outright violation of the rules and regulations that govern tire rationing, but there is a good deal of sidestepping of those same rules and regulations.

Buy a Farm Wagon.

One of the first "gags" that was found to work successfully was uncovered thru a sudden demand, by city folk, for, of all things, farm wagons. The reason was not difficult to discover. Mail order houses and other vendors sell farm wagons equipped with used 6.00x16 pneumatic tires, the size that fits the majority of autos. Farm implements are eligible for tires under rationing. After paying slightly more than $100 for his wagon, the buyer can remove the tires and affix a more decrepit set. Then he is ready to visit the rationing board and get a new set of tires. Or at least it has been done.

Then there are dealers with tires which they neglected to declare in their inventories to the government. In one community—near Chicago—such a dealer lent his tires to a taxicab company.

New for 1,000 Miles.

Under government regulation a tire is new until it has traveled 1,000 miles—and every one agrees it is hard to tell whether a tire has gone 600 or 1,001 miles. After a bit of service on the cabs the tires were ready for the market at quite a satisfying price.

"Change overs" are another item causing rationing officials a mild headache. These are tires accumulated when an automobile buyer, not satisfied with the original rubber, changes it for white wall tires or another brand.

A bit of roadwork on these tires takes the curse of newness off them and they may be peddled with some assurance that the deal will not end in a cell. Besides the gyp artist in this department, officials say, there is considerable honest misunderstanding.

At present, however, the main movement on the tire market is among the second hand variety—on which there is no government restriction. Consensus is that the public is getting it, but good, in the second hand tire bartering.

All Traffic Will Bear.

Altho legitimate Chicago dealers are not taking a whack at the public, there is no fixed price among the gyp dealers. They collect anything that jittery car owners are willing to pay.

Twenty-five dollars a tire is a fairly well accepted price on small and medium size cars, sales as high as $50 a tire are reported; persons with large cars get into astronomical figures. No tire is too old or discouraged to get to market, and police report that some of the smaller dealers have taken down the tire nailed to the wall or roof for a sign. This article, given a coat of paint, is ready for sale.

According to the better minds on the subject no one has thought of selling a tire for less than $13 [average price of a new, four ply 6.00x16 tire before rationing]. Bald headed tires, tires with various repaired contusions, all command at least $13.

Thin Treads Recut.

One favorite trick of the gyp dealer is to recut the tread pattern of a tire ready for the junkyard. This gives the appearance of newness, but adds nothing to the tire except trouble for the owner.

Another sales aid practiced by certain shady characters is the application of various glues and cheap materials to give the appearance of a retread job. One application of the brakes neatly removes the tread.

Such dubious new tires as are to be found in Chicago are sometimes aided toward respectability by buffing the serial number off the rubber. A patch then may be placed over the buffed spot and some of the more artistic workmen burn the word "second" into the tire.

Legitimate tire dealers said yesterday that the report of a tire sale spreads quicker than a tip on a surefire horserace winner. One fellow, who said with some embarrassment that he got "much too much" for a pair of legitimate seconds, noted this peculiarity.

"Within three hours," he said, "people were rushing into the store from across the city. Most of them said out of the side of their mouths that they heard I had some good things in tires. I used up the rest of the day convincing them I didn't."

Bootlegging Negligible.

John C. Weigle, area rationing administrator for the Office of Price Administration; Henry Pope Jr., state tire rationing administrator, and Michael Mulcahy, administrator for the Metropolitan area, all agree that there is little bootlegging of tires in Illinois. They also feel reasonably sure that the complaints received give them a reasonably accurate picture of the field.

Patriotic citizens and jealous neighbors, tireless themselves, are only too happy to report the sudden appearance of an unexplained tire. Pope recalled a downstate sheriff, awarded new tires on the contention that his car was used exclusively for peace officer business, who drove to the local movie. Twenty minutes later the administrator was apprised of the pleasure trip from several sources.

There are several cases in process of preparation for the grand jury, and 40 agents are touring the territory checking original tire inventories offered by dealers. This checkup has resulted in the filing of a number of amended inventories indicating that some dealers were not before convinced that the government actually was going to follow thru.

11 Million in U. S.

Admitting that few new tires are finding their way to market, there were an estimated 11 million of them in the United States when the freezing order went into effect. It is believed that some dealers, stocked with 6,000 to 8,000 tires, may become a bit restive over the fact they are moving only 8 or 10 monthly to ration eligibles.

Then it is conceded that a number of persons possessing tire stocks failed to file inventories with the government. With rapid organization of the tire program, inventory blanks were slow in distribution by the government. Then there are believed to be a contingent who decided to take a draw on not yielding an inventory.

Officials of rubber companies give estimates ranging from 60,000 to 750,000 as the number of new, undeclared tires in the United States. Eventually these are expected to put in their illegal appearance on the market.

RAIL UNIONS WIN EMPLOYES' VOTE ON NORTH SHORE

Chosen in Poll of 400 to Be Bargaining Agent.

Six groupes of employés of the North Shore railroad voted overwhelmingly during the last week in favor of the railway brotherhoods as their collective bargaining agents. The rival Amalgamated union, which controls the employés of the Chicago elevated and surface lines, received only a scattering vote.

In all, about 400 workers were eligible to ballot. The votes were counted under the supervision of O. F. Carpenter, mediator for the National Mediation [railroad] board, and the results were made known last night.

Passengers Suffered.

The rivalry of the two union groups was brought sharply to public attention Feb. 1, when the Amalgamated officials announced the elevated lines workers would not throw switches for North Shore trains. For two weeks the suburban road's passengers were forced to change trains at Howard street or in Wilmette, as no North Shore cars ran into the loop.

Under a compromise settlement North Shore crews now bring the road's trains to these points and crews taken from the elevated personnel handle them thru Evanston and Chicago.

Anaylsis of the Vote.

The vote tally, with the winning union for each classification, follows:

Motormen, Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, 104 to 1; conductors, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 44 to 4; brakemen and collectors, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 163 to 4; switchmen and switch tenders, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen 4 to 0; agents and towermen, Brotherhood of Railway Telegraphers, 87 to 3; dining car employés, Hotel and Restaurant Employés International, 14 to 2.

William F. Levander, president of the elevated line's Amalgamated local, said the vote would "make no difference," and that his organization was satisfied with the present arrangements. Amalgamated has attacked the legality of the election order.

CONFESSES STREET CAR SLAYING.

James Augusta, colored, 20 years old, of 4824 St. Lawrence avenue, confessed to the Hyde Park police last night that he shot and killed Robert Luster, colored, in a fight on a street car at Cottage Grove avenue and 42d street last Tuesday. Two other Negroes who attacked Luster are under arrest.

ILLINOIS TECH TO TRAIN WOMEN IN DEFENSE JOBS

Henry T. Heald, president of Illinois Institute of Technology, announced yesterday that three courses to train women for jobs in war industries will be opened March 9. The courses, offered free of charge, are materials inspection and testing, engineering drafting and industrial chemistry.

One year of college is the minimum prerequisite for all courses and certain limited requirements are listed with each course. Personal interviews are required for admission. These will be held daily next week, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m. at the Lewis campus, 1951 Madison street.

Each course will operate 40 hours weekly for 12 weeks. No college credit will be given, but certificates recognized by the United States civil service will be awarded. Costs of the courses are met by federal appropriations. The only expense to the women will be their textbooks, about $15.

61 CHICAGOANS INDUCTED INTO NAVAL AVIATION

Become 'Chicago's Own' 3d and 4th Squadrons.

There was a McCarthy, a Masewicz, a Pedersen, and a Jacobs. A Gallagher, a Serini, a Bauman, a Barnes. They came from back o' the yards, the suburbs, office desks, and college classrooms, the far south side and the far north side. They were the 61 young men inducted yesterday into the United States Naval Air force as "Chicago's Own" third and fourth naval aviation squadrons.

The induction ceremony in the Chicago Athletic association's quarters, climaxed the efforts of a group of former naval aviators who have been recruiting flyers for the navy in recent months. Yesterday's potential flyers signed up since Dec. 7 and with their induction, the former flyers' committee has provided the full flying complement and mechanic personnel of an aircraft carrier for the naval air force.

Governor at Ceremony.

Navy officials and Gov. Dwight Green attended the ceremony. Lieut. Carl G. Olson, senior member of the naval aviation cadet selection board administered the oath to the squadron members, standing in a V formation.

"This," Olson said, "is the fateful hour of America. If we are worthy of the destiny with which we are charged, untold generations of men will thank God for the strength which He gave us to endure to the end. Victory!"

Warren V. Woody, chairman of the First World War Naval Aviators' committee, gave to each candidate the gold winged insignia of "Chicago's Own" unit.

Gov. Green, in an address broadcast with the induction ceremony by W-G-N, emphasized the cosmopolitan makeup of the squadron and said: "When peace comes, we, with our great heritage of freedom, will be prepared to write the terms in our American way and to you, the fighters, will go eternal gratitude for preserving the American way of life."

Committee Wins Praise.

The work of the former flyers' committee was praised by Lieut. Comm. Richard F. Whitehead, aviation aid to Adm. John E. Downes, commander of the ninth naval district, as "a splendid example of the sort of community coöperation which is one of the essential elements in our drive to victory."

BOARD WILL HEAR PETITIONS OF 443 SEEKING PAROLES

Edwin Brethauer, for whose crimes an innocent man was sentenced to prison in 1934, is one of the 443 convicts whose petitions for parole will be heard next month, according to a list given out yesterday by the state division of correction.

The victim of Brethauer's crime career was John Long, who in 1934 was 26 years old. He was identified by witnesses as a robber, despite his protestations of innocence, and sentenced to one year to life. He entered prison in May. The following August, Brethauer was arrested. He confessed, and the witnesses who had identified Long corrected their identifications to apply to Brethauer. Then Brethauer was sentenced and Long freed.

SAMARITAN ARMY GENERAL MAKES A DEFENSIVE STAND

Worried at Court's Threat of Investigation.

Edward Collins, founder and president of the Samaritan army, who admitted in Municipal court Friday that he served a term for violation of the Mann act some years ago, yesterday told a Tribune reporter some vague but interesting things about his organization.

Collins, who calls himself Gen. Collins, was plainly worried over a threat by Judge Victor Kula to demand an investigation of the Samaritan army, which is incorporated in Illinois as a not-for-profit organization and runs a mission at 1905 Madison street. He obligingly stopped sorting weekly reports from branch missions thruout the country when approached in national headquarters at 1664 Madison street.

Calls Collector Unaccredited.

Asked about statements by Edwin E. Ramsey, 61 years old, whom Judge Kula fined $50 for obtaining money under false pretenses, Collins denied that Ramsey was an accredited collector for the Samaritan army and said that collectors never got 50 per cent of their take, as Ramsey charged, but only 25 per cent.

The general said he had just discharged his two other Chicago collectors and that Ramsey had been engaged on a trial basis and then had branched out on his own. He said $1 was a good day's collection and that if you could collect $3 "you'd be a genuine good collector." He said he created officers in the army by mail on receipt of properly filled out applications accompanied by a small fee. He exhibited a copy of a weekly report from South Boston, Va., disclosing that the officer making it had collected $27.06, all of which he took for his salary.

All officers' pay comes out of collections, Collins said, and his own rank of general should entitle him to $41 weekly. "Brother," he added, "I ain't had a full salary in two years."

300 Branches Reported.

Collins said he couldn't remember how many branches there are thruout the country or how much they send yearly to national headquarters. Better Business bureau files show there are perhaps 300 branches.

"We get maybe $30 or $40 a week from them," he said, "and pay $10 a month for this office and $35 for the mission, besides spending $7 or $8 a week for food and clothes for the needy."

Collins discussed, with reluctance, his statement in court that he once served time for violation of the Mann act. "It was maybe 30 years ago," he said. "I paid that lady's carfare innocent as you please and got caught up."

A visit to the mission found it locked. A sign on the window said it was the Gospel Mission Assembly, Inc., and also mentioned the Samaritan army. A cardboard sign on the door read: "Good Eats Tonight. You Are Welcome. Come In."

LONDONERS GET COAL RATIONING; ONLY 600 LBS. FOR SIX WEEKS

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Six hundred pounds of coal for the next six weeks was set today as the ration for London households by the secretary for mines.

The first definite rationing, which will become effective Monday, was due to a heavy drain on stocks during cold weather, difficulties of using horse drawn wagons in wintertime and the return of masses of evacuees to London. It is estimated more than 10,000 returned to one London borough.

Deliveries will be limited to houses having less than half a ton when the rationing starts.

CHURCH DROPS OUT OF SENATE PRIMARY RACE

Leaves G. O. P. Contest to Brooks, Wright.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Ralph E. Church of Evanston late last night dropped out of the race for the Republican nomination for United States senator, leaving it a two man contest between the present senator, Wayland Brooks, and State Treasurer Warren E. Wright.

Church waited until 10 minutes before midnight deadline for withdrawing petitions before he acted. He had gone to Springfield on an evening train, and went directly to the office of Secretary of State E. J. Hughes to ascertain if Wright had stepped out of the fight against Brooks. Then he went to Wright's office, where he talked with the treasurer about forty minutes. It was 11:50 when he turned in his request to withdraw his senatorial petition.

Stays in Congress Race.

Church had two withdrawal notices in his pocket, the one that he filed and another one that would have taken him out as a candidate for congress in the 10th, his old district. He had told friends the question of which he would file depended upon Wright's action. When Wright remained in the senate race, Church dropped out.

An early afternoon announcement by Harold T. Halfpenny that he would not drop his candidacy for state treasurer was taken as a possible indication that Wright might have decided already to forgo his senatorial ambitions. Halfpenny is assistant state treasurer under Wright, and politicians have said it would be ridiculous for both of them to seek choice spots in the same primary.

Halfpenny's written statement included an implication that there has been some political difference between him and his superior, Wright.

"I am not the candidate of any group or faction," said Halfpenny, "nor is my candidacy tied up with any other candidate for any office.

Holds to Own Opinions.

"Warren Wright and I have been close friends and political associates for many years. I hope this friendship will continue always, and I believe it will. But I cannot subscribe to the policies of some of the new political friends who have gathered about him. Every man has a right to his own political opinions and I propose to retain my privilege in that respect."

Earlier in the day the withdrawal of Richard Yates Rowe of Jacksonville from the treasurership situation had been completed by the filing of the papers he left at the office of the secretary of state after hours Friday afternoon.

Indorsements by Democrats.

During the day the Nash-Kelly Democratic organization in Chicago was making sure there would be no doubt of the personnel of its state slate. The Cook county central committee, which indorsed Congressman Raymond S. [Small Potatoes] McKeough for senator on Feb. 5, met yesterday and indorsed Benjamin S. Adamowski for congressman-at-large, W. D. [Don] Forsyth for state treasurer, and John A. Wieland, superintendent of public instruction, who is seeking renomination.

Arthur A. Sullivan, chairman of the state central committee, said that body will meet late this week to consider whether it also will make indorsements.

At about the same time the Cook county Republican committee will determine whether it will get behind a state ticket.

DENY UNION MEN JOBS IN FIGHT ON MORESCHI'S RULE

New York, Feb. 28 [Special].—Members of local, No. 147, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers union, which was stripped of its AFL charter after it initiated a campaign for the ouster of racketeers from the parent union, today were refused employment on the 80 million dollar Brooklyn-Battery tunnel project.

Hyman N. Glickstein, counsel for local No. 147, accused Joseph V. Horeschi of Chicago, president of the international union, of exerting pressure on the contractors to keep members of the local from getting jobs. Brian Feeney, business representative of the local, which is made up of "Sandhogs," said he will ask District Attorney Frank S. Hogan to conduct an investigation into the situation.

A construction superintendent for the Mason and Hanger company, contractors at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn-Battery tube, said the revocation of the local's charter by Moreschi and his executive board made the local "an outlaw union" so far as other AFL crafts are concerned.

An attempt to put members of the local into "Sandhog" jobs, the superintendent said, would precipitate a general walkout.

Decree Is Final

DOLORES DEL RIO.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—Screen Actress Dolores Del Rio today told of her plans and those of Orson Welles as her divorce decree from Cedric Gibbons, movie art director, became final. She is leaving soon for Mexico City to make a film. Welles is making a picture in Brazil. "Our plans," the actress explained, "are to meet as soon as it can be arranged at a point halfway between Mexico City and Rio de Janeiro." Asked if they planned to marry, she replied: "I will have an announcement to make when we meet."

SEN. CLARK TELLS PLOT TO CANCEL LEND-LEASE DEBT

Billions Will Go Unpaid Says Missourian.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Sen. Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] today declared that the administration is preparing the way for entry into postwar trade agreements under which a major portion of lend-lease appropriations may never be repaid.

Simultaneously it was disclosed that if congress finally approves in its present form a $32,762,737,900 military appropriations bill now pending in the senate, it will have made a total of 38 billion 960 million dollars available for lend-lease operations—18 billion 410 millions of it in direct appropriations.

Connally Disputes Charge.

Altho Clark's interpretation was disputed by Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, the Missouri senator told reporters it is his belief that the lend-lease agreement signed betwen Great Britain and the United States on Feb. 23 comtemplates the establishment of a virtual "free trade" era after the war.

"What we are doing," he declared, "is giving them billions and billions of dollars in consideration of their entering into a trade agreement out of which they will get a lot more than we will. I've always been a low tariff man, but I don't want to get it that way."

Clark Cites Agreement.

Clark alluded to a section of the agreement which stipulates that the terms and conditions of final settlement should be "such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations."

The agreement envisions expansion of world production, employment, and exchange and consumption of goods. It pledges elimination of discriminatory treatment in international commerce and reduction of tariff and trade barriers.

Sen. Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] told the senate earlier that he viewed this agreement as waiving repayments by Great Britain for lend-lease aid.

SUGGESTS ICKES SUE FOR LIBEL INSTEAD OF WRITING CRITIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, instead of writing a letter in unprintable language in reply to an editorial in a New England newspaper, should have sued for libel, Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] told the house today.

Hoffman declared the editorial, appearing last July in the Bridgeport [Conn.] Life, made "vile insinuations." He added however that this did not excuse the language of Ickes' reply which he inserted in the Congressional Record earlier this week.

"Ickes' letter contained some very bad language," Hoffman told his colleagues. "Without condoning the expressions he used, I want to say that since I brought his letter before the house I have seen the article that caused him to write it.

"The secretary wants to get out of the notion that he holds the championship for the use of a certain class of language. The man who wrote the editorial made some of the vilest insinuations I have ever read. If the secretary, will accept the advice of a humble citizen, he should have used the law of criminal libel instead of writing his letter."

WESLEY W. POLK NAMED TO STATE ENGINEER'S POST

Highway Chief a Former Evanston Official.

Wesley W. Polk.

Gov. Dwight H. Green yesterday announced the appointment of Wesley W. Polk of Evanston as chief highway engineer of the state. The appointment fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Ernest Lieberman last September. The position pays an annual salary of $9,000.

Polk, who has a nation-wide reputation as a highway and sanitary engineer, formerly was commissioner of public works, city engineer, and superintendent of the water department for the city of Evanston. He served as a lieutenant in the United States army engineer corps in the last war.

The new highway engineer was born in La Grange and attended the University of Illinois from which he graduated in 1918. After the war he was chemist and bacteriologist for the Milwaukee water department.

Wide Experience as Engineer.

From 1920 to 1926 Polk was employed as sanitary engineeer for the Union Stock Yards and Transit company. In the latter year he became superintendent of the Evanston water department and in 1937 he was given additional appointments as commissioner of public works and city engineer. He terminated his Evanston service last April.

Polk is 49 years old, married, and lives at 715 Forest avenue, Evanston. He is a member of the Western Society of Engineers, the American Water Works, American Public Health, American Public Water, and American Road Builders associations.

He is also a Mason and a member of the Evanston Chamber of Commerce, the Evanston Kiwanis club, the University Club of Evanston, the Illinois St. Andrews society, and the American Legion.

Lieberman Horner Appointee.

Lieberman, the former highway engineer, resigned last fall because of ill health. He was appointed highway engineer in 1933 by the late Gov. Horner, after serving as engineer for the board of local improvements here. Since his resignation the administration of the state highway department has been to a great extent in the hands of Matt Fleming, an assistant who has been in the employ of the department for 20 years.

KIMMEL, SHORT RETIRED PENDING COURT MARTIAL

Knox, Stimson Not Eager for Early Trial.

value to the enemy as well as to protect any superiors, it was said.

For this reason it was the general belief in the capital that Kimmel and Short will not stand trial until after the war. Possibly in time of peace the trials might be open to the public as was the trial of the late Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, air hero and critic of outmoded army thought.

Mitchell, the first American aviator to fly over enemy lines, was tried by court martial after the World war for outspoken criticism of his superiors. His theories have since won his posthumous vindication and restoration of his name to an honored place on army rolls.

Retirement of the two commanders was announced in almost identical language by the two departments. The navy made the matter the subject of the 47th communique of the war, reading:

"The secretary of the navy announced today the acceptance, effective March 1, 1942, of the application for retirement of Rear Adm. H. E. Kimmel, U. S. navy, 'without condonation of any offense or prejudice to any future disciplinary action.'

"The secretary of the navy announced at the same time that, based upon the findings of the report of the Roberts commission, he had directed the preparation of charges for the trial by court martial of Rear Adm. Kimmel, alleging dereliction of duty. The secretary of the navy made it clear however that the trial upon these charges would not be held until such time as the public interest and safety would permit."

The war department announcement differed only in mentioning Short, the secretary of war and making the retirement effective today.

Short in Army 40 Years.

Kimmel, who is visiting his brothers in Henderson, Ky., and Short, who is in Oklahoma City, Okla., applied for retirement Feb. 7, two weeks after the Roberts report was made public by President Roosevelt. They were removed from active duty Dec. 17, the day after the Roberts board was appointed. Neither would comment on today's developments.

Both were eligible for retirement on their own application. Gen. Short has been an army officer for 40 years, having accepted an army commission from civilian life on March 13, 1902, after graduating from the University of Illinois. He was born in Illinois, March 30, 1880.

Short was a colonel of infantry during the World war. He was commissioned a brigadier general on Dec. 1, 1936, and made a major general March 1, 1940. As commander of the Hawaiian department he held the rank of lieutenant general.

An Annapolis Graduate.

Kimmel has served in the navy more than 35 years. He was commissioned an ensign in 1906. He was born in Kentucky, Feb. 26, 1882, and is a graduate of the naval academy at Annapolis. He was made a rear admiral in 1937 and was named commander in chief of the United States fleet in February, 1941.

Friends of the two officers, in and out of the armed services, believe the two commanders, in being held solely responsible for the disaster at Pearl Harbor, are shouldering blame which should rightly belong to their superiors in the war and navy departments. Neither Kimmel nor Short has lent any support to efforts of their friends to effect at least partial vindication.

The two were adjudged to be guilty of the failure of the defensive forces to be on the alert. The Roberts report passed over inaccurate information on the movement of the Japanese fleet supplied by naval intelligence, inadequate plans for the protection of the island, and the failure of the administration to supply sufficient ships, planes, and guns to defend the islands.

Short Not Criticized.

The board refused to consider the wisdom of basing the fleet at Hawaii, which was questioned in the navy department. It mentioned that Short had advised the war department of the defensive measures he had undertaken and that the war department had no criticism of his orders.

Friends of the two officers insist that careful analysis of the report clearly shows the share of responsibility which should rest in Washington. For this reason, they say, the superiors want no immediate court martial of the officers.

Defended by Standley.

Yesterday, Adm. William H. Standley, one of the members of the Roberts commission, who has since been appointed ambassador to Russia, defended Short and Kimmel from what he termed misinterpretation of the report. He said the report had widely been misinterpreted as condemning lack of coöperation between the army and navy at Hawaii. In an interview as he was leaving the country, Standley broke the silence, members of the board have observed, and said:

"A careful reading of the report will show that Kimmel and Short conferred frequently between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7 and that their relations were most friendly.

"Coöperation between the army and the navy was at the fullest—and you can make that as strong as you want to. That was the fact. The other interpretation was wholly false."

Friend of the Yanks

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer draft and military service questions, both in the daily columns and personally if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

THE RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Some selective service registrants apparently have mistaken ideas about their right of appeal from classifications given them by their draft boards.

One man, already turned down on one appeal, asks for help in drafting a second. Another condemns his local board because it has told him he has no right to appeal to President Roosevelt. "The board is discriminating against me because I've read that anybody can appeal to the President," he writes.

Here Are the Rules.

The general rules governing appeals follow:

First, no registrant has the right to appeal from the determination of his physical or mental condition by either the examining physician of the local board, or the examining physicians of the army induction station. In other words, no registrant can appeal on grounds that the examining physicians were wrong, and that his physical condition qualifies him for a different classification.

Except for this one prohibition, every registrant has the right to appeal to a board of appeal from any classification given him by his board. This right of appeal also is granted to the registrant's dependents, and to any person who has asked for his deferment for occupational reasons.

Ten Days Usually Allowed.

Appeals usually must be made within 10 days after the registrant has been notified of his classification, altho the local board may grant permission to file appeals after the 10 day period has lapsed in some circumstances. The government appeal agent attached to the local board will aid the registrant in drafting his appeal.

The decision of the board of appeal is final in most instances. A registrant may appeal to the President only [1] if his appeal is on the grounds of dependency and [2] if one or more members of the board of appeal dissented in the determination of his case, or if the government appeal agent attached to his local board will certify that, in his opinion, the classification will work a hardship on the registrant.

Special Board Reviews Appeal.

Appeals to the President are reviewed by members of a special board of review appointed by him. If this board believes that the local board and board of appeal were wrong in classifying the registrant, it may change his classification. If the board of review denies the appeal, there is nothing further which the registrant can do to alter his classification.

QUESTIONS.

W. H. K. writes: "We were having an argument the other night about army lingo. Can you tell me what the following terms mean: "H. E.," "rainmakers," "hash mark," "dry run," and "dog tag"?

ANSWER: "H. E." is the abbreviation for high explosive. "Rainmakers" are the big guns of the heavy artillery, altho there is no truth in the yarn that their continuous firing causes rainfall. "Hash marks" are the straight stripes worn on a soldier's left sleeve which indicate length of service. "Dry run" refers to aiming practice with a rifle or other weapon in which no actual ammunition is used. "Dog tag" is the nickname for the army identification tag.

M. T. W. writes: "Why is the leather belt worn by army officers referred to as a Sam Browne belt?"

ANSWER: In an announcement issued several weeks ago by the army public relations office, it was explained that the belt is called a Sam Browne belt after Gen. Sir Samuel Browne, a British officer who supposedly invented it. Gen. Browne had lost an arm in the early campaigns in India and devised the belt to carry his equipment. At least, that's the story.

Mrs. J. M. asks: "Can a draftee ask to be transferred to a camp close to his home so that he could go home on week-ends? To whom would he apply for such a transfer?"

ANSWER: I am sure that a request for a transfer on such grounds would be turned down 100 times out of 100. Thousands of the nation's new soldiers are homesick. It is something which goes with military service.

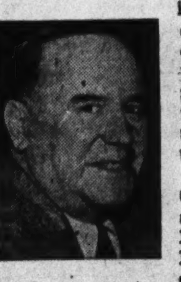
2 SENATORS DEMAND ACTION ON BILLS FOR ARMY RULE OF OCD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Two senators critical of the Office of Civilian Defense today demanded action on legislation to transfer the personnel and functions of the OCD to the war department.



Sen. Clark.

Sen. Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] and Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.], authors of separate bills to accomplish the transfer, asked that the senate military committee vote on the measures next week.

Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], committee chairman, said the committee probably would consider them Wednesday. Reynolds said he had asked the war department, which previously has opposed taking over civilian defense duties, to give its views on the measures by Tuesday.

KNOX IS WRONG, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL HOLDS

Los Angeles Alarm Termed Real Air Raid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The Army and Navy Journal today sided with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson in his controversy with Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox over the air alarm Wednesday morning at Los Angeles, Cal.

Knox dismissed the incident as a false alarm. Stimson has insisted that 15 planes, probably operated by fifth columnists, were the target of anti-aircraft guns which fired approximately 1,400 rounds in more than an hour.

The controversy between the cabinet officers has led to congressional demands that they be summoned before army and navy committees to offer explanations.

Refused to See Them, Says Journal.

Today the Army and Navy Journal unqualifiedly accepted Stimson's statement that there had been an air raid. The Journal said Knox "refused to see" the planes.

The Journal viewed the Los Angeles incident and the submarine attack Monday night on the coast near Santa Barbara, Cal., as further evidence of the axis policy of taking the initiative.

"Certainly," the Journal said, "one reason for these ineffective operations was to show the world the vulnerability of the United States at a time when the President was broadcasting his report to the nation on our situation in the war and Prime Minister Churchill was defending before parliament the tragic occurrences in the southwest Pacific and Burma.

Test of Defense Indicated.

"More than the purpose of counterpropaganda, however, must have been the anxiety to test our defense, to obtain information, and to promote popular pressure upon the government to recall ships and planes engaged in distant duty. Following the first appearances of hostile submarines and aircraft, active air and naval operations eliminated them from the ocean stretch from California to Hawaii.

"The presence of such craft indicates that the submarine must be obtaining supplies from a tanker or a comparatively nearby base, and it may be the planes which Secretary Knox refused to see and Secretary Stimson saw were released by her, or flew from an airfield located in Mexican California or one of the islands in that vicinity."

It is said the Japanese have 20 plane-carrying submarines in their undersea fleet. According to the best available information, no other navy possesses such a large number of plane-carrying subs. It is understood the Japanese are building more of such craft.

Lockport Woman Hears Brother in Navy Is Dead

Mrs. Frank Sternisha of Oakland avenue in Lockport township, Will county, was notified by the navy department yesterday that her brother, Michael Galajdik, 24 years old, who was reported missing in action after the Pearl Harbor attack, is presumed dead. He enlisted in the navy in June, 1939, and was a fireman, first class.

JAIL 20 IN CLASH OVER HOUSING OF NEGROES; 14 HURT

Detroit Restores Peace After Street Fights.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Police patroling Detroit's northeast side tonight kept an uneasy peace at the scene of today's riot—a 200 unit defense housing project designated by the United States Housing Authority for Negro occupancy over the protests of whites.

Picketing by white residents of the neighborhood, including women and children, began at dawn and violence broke out about 10:15 a. m. when several Negro defense workers and their families sought to move into homes assigned to them.

Despite a decision by city authorities before noon to postpone the Negro moving day, fighting continued until late in the afternoon. Stones and bricks flew and at least two shots were fired. Moving vans were overturned and furniture was smashed.

Five Policemen Injured.

Police used clubs and tear gas. Twenty persons were jailed and 14 injured, including five policemen.

The new dwellings, constructed at a cost to the government of 1 million dollars, were vacant tonight while the question of whether the project is to be devoted to white or Negro tenancy appeared far from settlement.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries said he would go to Washington Monday to discuss the problem with federal officials.

Federal observers who watched today's clashes said they have advised Washington they would do what local authorities suggested to settle the questions involved. These observers were G. C. Larcom of the federal housing agencies, and his assistant, Sherman Reeder.

Decisions Twice Reversed.

Charles E. V. Prinz, director of information for the National Housing administration, said in Washington that the project was originally approved for Negro occupancy, but that protests from whites in the neighborhood caused Charles Palmer, then coordinator of defense housing, and Baird Snyder III., then acting administrator of the housing division of the federal works agency, to reverse their original stand and bar Negroes.

"Whereupon Negroes organized counter protests, getting up petitions which were presented to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and sending delegations to Washington," Prinz said. "The protests resulted in a second reversal by Palmer and Snyder with the result that the project was again made available to Negroes."

Kent Cooper of Associated Press Weds Ex-Secretary

New York, Feb. 28 [Special].—Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and Miss Sarah A. Gibbs, who until a year ago was his executive secretary, were married today at the Central church, Disciples of Christ. Cooper, who was born in Columbus, Ind., in 1880, has been general manager of the Associated Press since 1925. His first wife, the former Daisy McBride of Indianapolis, died in 1920. His second wife, Mrs. Marian Rothwell Cooper, obtained a divorce in Miami, Fla., in 1940.

SERVICE CENTER: GIRLS, FUN, FOOD; 9,000 IN UNIFORM

Place Fairly Quivers on a Saturday Night.

BY HERMAN KOGAN.

At 7 p. m. last night, the old attendance mark of 8,000 had nearly been equaled. An hour later it had been surpassed. And still they kept coming to the Chicago Service Men's Center at 175 West Washington street, bluejackets of every size and shape, khaki clad soldiers, men from the coast guard stations, and those swaggering ones from the marine corps.

By midnight 9,000 had been to this amazing place, with its eight floors fairly quaking with activity. They had eaten at the gayly painted canteen on the third floor more than 20,000 hot dog sandwiches, 150 pounds of cookies, cakes and nuts, drunk 10,000 bottles of soda pop and 500 gallons of coffee, played 35 kinds of games, danced anything from jitter buggy struts to "duck the oyster."

And they had met every kind of girl from the kind who can't wait till she gets on that dance floor to the one who wants to sit and talk about life and books.

"Listen, It's Easy."

From the start the visitor senses the comradeship here. A blue eyed blonde in a flower print tugs at the sleeve of a blushing seaman. "Listen," she insists, "it's easy. All you have to do to dance is to keep time and follow me." And off they go to the fourth floor where a joyous band led by Zilmer Randolph, once a star with Louie Armstrong, pounds out hot jazz rhythms.

No dance? Then there's the fifth floor, a combination lounge and library, with everything from encyclopedias to murder thrillers, with soft couches and downy chairs. Here a group of sailors are discussing naval strategy with a civilian volunteer worker. In a corner a group sings softly "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Some Shy—Some Aren't.

Here is Mrs. Marie Norilyn Baker, sweet faced and motherly, who has sewed on thousands of buttons for "my boys." She's called "house mother" by the boys; they send her corsages and each day she receives a dozen or more letters from those who've been here and now are stationed elsewhere.

Up and down the stairways, in the jammed elevators, go the young fighting men and the girls they've just met. Shy men—"Aw, nah, I think I'll just stand here a while and watch." And the boys with that brash air—"Well, girls, here I am. Don't rush all at once."

On the eighth floor, where once Elks were put thru their ritual, is the center's night club. In the bluish light happy boys and girls sip their soft drinks and applaud for the cute entertainer singing, then tap dancing to "America, I Love You!"

A flight below. "Naow, when Ah say 'Duck th' oystuh' that means you sorta swing youah partnuh . . ." and the fiddler strikes up a tune while the soldiers and sailors and marines and their laughing partners clatter about in an old-fashioned square dance.

"Lookit, Here's the Navy."

On the sixth floor all games from ping-pong and parchesi to dominoes, horseshoes, or shuffleboard. On an out-of-the-way sofa you notice a broad shouldered young corporal and a cute young thing. To a group of girls just leaving a gay sailor just arriving calls, "Hey, what you going for now? Lookit, here's the navy!"

There is much jesting about dates and "swell numbers" and "dopes and drips" everywhere the groups of service men and the girls gather. But there hasn't been a single fight over a girl at the center. As one lank first class private from Alabama put it, prodding the reporter gently in the chest, "This is one wonderful place and we ain't gonna do no fightin' heah." He winked. "We're savin' ouah fightin' for those Japs."

LINDBERGH BEACON TURNED OFF BECAUSE OF AIR RAID DANGER

For the first time since its installation in August, 1929, the Lindbergh beacon atop the Palmolive building on North Michigan avenue was dark last night.

The two billion candle power light that was a landmark to night flyers and a familiar part of Chicago's skyline was doused at the request of Capt. E. A. Lofquist, chief of staff of the ninth naval district. He said it was necessary because of the beacon's possible advantage to the enemy in event of an air raid.

Often called the most powerful beacon in the world, the light was a gift to Chicago by Col. Elmer Sperry, wealthy inventor. The Palmolive building owners also extinguished flood lights on the structure.

Corrigan of 'Wrong Way' Flight Joins Ferry Service

Long Beach, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—Douglas [Wrong Way] Corrigan has joined the army air corps ferrying command. "I'm taking these army planes the right way now," he said today. He explained his arrival in Dublin, Ireland, in a dilapidated plane in 1938 by saying he took off from New York for Long Beach and flew the wrong way. He is 34 years old.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

FORCE WHERE IT COUNTS.

When the war began in 1939, a great amount of newsprint and magazine space was devoted to comparisons of the resources of Germany and the allies. The British and French empires had such overwhelming superiority in raw materials and man power that their success in a long war appeared to a great many writers to be inevitable. By means of a blockade, Germany would be cut off from fresh supplies of oil, rubber, tin, copper, nickel, and other strategic materials and food. The allies would stand by while the Nazis used up their nonreplacable inventories in their offensive.

Unfortunately the great British empire and the great French empire did not bring their overwhelming superiority to bear in battle. The Nazis, with more and better equipment and superior organization, were able to knock out the French empire in record time, to overrun all of western, central, and southern Europe, and even to threaten the seat of the British empire.

We have seen the same thing happen in the Pacific. Statistically, Japan is a baby compared with either the British empire or the United States, not to mention the two in combination, with the Dutch empire thrown in. And yet inferior Japan has driven the British out of eastern Asia, has ousted the United States from the western Pacific, has taken over the Dutch colonies one by one, and is making strong aerial attacks upon Australia.

The United States has many times as much in production facilities as the Japs; we have overwhelming superiority in natural resources, our wealth exceeds that of our enemy at least 10 fold. When they attack us at some exposed flank our government can appropriate 50 or 60 billion dollars, and can place orders for millions of guns, thousands of airplanes, and hundreds of ships.

But neither the whopping American statistics nor the thrilling British figures of speech are effective in battle. We are suffering reverses in the war because we are not able to make our overwhelming superiority in production effective in battle. We have a population that is 50 per cent greater than Japan's. But we haven't got enough trained soldiers armed as well as the Japs, reënforced by as many airplanes as the Japs have, where the fighting is going on. With a small fraction of what we have to work with the Japs have been able to put together a fighting organization which is able to go where it wants and do what it wants in its own section of the world, despite the opposition which we are able to offer in combination with the British, the Dutch, and the other allies.

The Roosevelt administration has been grossly incompetent in providing for the national defense. Its failure to prepare the nation for the national crisis was not due to an unwillingness of the congress to make large appropriations. The American government spent twice as much as did Germany and Japan combined from 1933 to 1939. But the present national administration preferred to spend the money for boondoggling, price raising experiments, and socialistic projects intended to benefit the forgotten man.

Not a single change has been made in the cabinet which allowed us to be involved in a war when, despite an unequaled potential war strength, we were weak in military and naval striking power. In their prime the members of President Roosevelt's cabinet were almost without exception second raters. Several are now superannuates, whose years of maximum effectiveness are well in the past. Our enemies are first rate military powers, and the ablest men in the country who are still in full possession of all their powers ought to be planning our defense against them. Some bright new faces in the cabinet would be very encouraging right now.

HOLLYWOOD STAR.

Lieut. James Stewart of Hollywood was drafted 11 months ago and worked his way up from the ranks. He had learned to fly before he was called and he is now finishing training at Moffett Field, Cal. Lieut. Stewart has not used his influence to avoid danger. He has not sought exemption from service by pleading that his work as an actor was essential to the preservation of the republic. We rather think he will feel that he has been presented his biggest rôle when he is assigned to fly a bomber or lead a fighter squadron against the enemy. His conduct as a soldier has been highly creditable to him and should serve as an example to any of his colleagues who may be looking for a convenient and bombproof hideaway.

PLANES OVER CALIFORNIA.

The statement of Secretary of War Stimson that hostile planes were over California on reconnaissance flights indicates that the government's decision to decentralize the aircraft industry has been reached none too soon. Some of the greatest plane factories are on the west coast and still others are in exposed locations on the Atlantic seaboard. Despite a general recognition of the danger, most of the efforts in the past to relocate the plants in the safe midlands have been defeated by politicians responsive to chambers of commerce and other local business booster groups.

Seven aircraft manufacturers are now reported to be erecting or planning the construction of duplicate plants in inland locations. Three of these are west coast companies. So far there is no assurance that the old plants will be abandoned when facilities in the new locations are ready, much as the nation would welcome that step. The aircraft industry is undergoing a great expansion, as it must to meet the goal of 145,000 combat planes by the end of 1943. It will be criminal folly to permit new plant facilities to be joined up with standing facilities at locations known to the enemy and within his bomber striking range. Every foot of new space should be located between the Rockies and Alleghanies.

The British demonstrated that plants could be moved by units without interrupting production materially, and the Russians were able to pick up much of their machinery and remove it to rear zones by flat car before it fell to the advancing German armies. What other countries did under pressure we can certainly do, but the job should be done as rapidly as it can without bringing a serious breakdown in current production.

There are other exposed industries that are almost as vital to the war effort as aircraft manufacture, and they, too, should be moved. Pressure groups that are more interested in the preservation of local pay rolls than in the safety of the country should be dealt with without kid gloves.

FARM LABOR.

Gen. Hershey, the director of selective service, has warned that draft boards must exercise caution lest the supply of farm labor be depleted to a point of diminishing agricultural productivity. In Chicago a few days ago a plan was outlined to midwestern representatives of the United States Employment service which may be of value to farmers faced with a shortage of labor.

This plan was evolved in Goodhue, Minn., and has been adopted in 85 other communities. It is a method of mobilizing communities to provide emergency farm help, especially for planting and harvesting. The idea was developed in the first World war, when 25 Goodhue business men went out in shifts to help nearby farmers during the harvest season.

All persons available as emergency help in a farm area are registered and pledge themselves to assist their rural neighbors as needed. They signify what days they are willing to be on call for work, and an area supervisor allocates them to the farms where help is required. Consideration is being given to a supplemental plan for adding to the trained labor pool by providing instruction of high school students in the operation and servicing of farm machinery.

When the Winnebago county agricultural war board decided to recruit high school students to do summer work on farms THE TRIBUNE proposed that Chicago's 131,000 high school students be considered as replacements for farm workers called into military service or attracted to munition jobs by higher wages. This would provide the young people with the chance of engaging in healthful exercise and earning some money, and at the same time would enable them to feel that they were doing something useful for their country. The planting season is now not far off, and if the youngsters are going to be needed it is time to think of giving them some training.

THE SENATOR HEARD FROM HOME.

No one in the senate has been more assiduous over the years in the creation and pursuit of political patronage than Kenneth McKellar, the veteran Democrat from Tennessee. Thus when Sen. McKellar introduces bills for the abolition of federal jobs it is a safe guess that he has been hearing from the folks at home, and hearing in no uncertain terms.

One of the bills he has introduced would abolish the National Youth administration and the Civilian Conservation corps. The NYA has been a dubious activity from its beginning and its executives, more than any other group of New Dealers, have shown a callous disregard of both the national interest and public opinion in their efforts to keep themselves on the pay roll by continuing their agency long after any necessity existed for it. It was the NYA that sought to discourage enlistment in the armed forces of any of the young people receiving its gratuities. If the number of its beneficiaries had been decreased there would have been fewer jobs for the dispensers of largess.

The CCC has also been competing with the armed forces for man power, an activity that is direct sabotage of the war effort. Under Sen. McKellar's bill they are given until the end of the year to wind up their affairs but may not enroll any persons after July 1. This is more generosity than they deserve. They should be cut off short.

Sen. McKellar's second bill, for the consolidation of housing agencies, was rendered a dead letter the day after it was introduced by the action of the President, who used his war powers to consolidate 16 different federal agencies dealing with housing into the National Housing administration.

Consolidation is nothing new to housing agencies. This will be the fourth or fifth metamorphosis for some of the 16. Neither does consolidation of itself promise any real economy. The contrary, rather, can be true, since it gives discredited burocrats a new lease on life under an ostensibly changed setup.

The varied experiments of the New Deal in the housing field have involved the government in so many billions of direct and indirect obligations that it is impossible at this time to abolish all the housing agencies, even those in the new Public Housing authority, which takes over the most discredited of the housing agencies. These agencies have been engaged in spending hundreds of millions of dollars on heavily subsidized, virtually tax exempt dwellings that are occupied, not by the lower third of the population about which the professional housers are so eloquent, but by families in the middle income group.

There is no room in the war economy for this tremendous waste of public funds, which entails added burdens on every home owner and property owner in a city where one of the tax exempt projects is erected. The excuse of defense housing does not go. The defense housing projects have been as ill conceived as the original slum clearance projects, and at last report a quarter of them were vacant. The President's consolidation order should not deter congress from the necessary course of cutting off funds for further wasteful expenditures of this sort.

Sen. McKellar's action is a late response to public opinion, which has been thoroly disgusted by the New Dealers' attempt to use the war effort as a screen behind which to continue and even expand their socialistic experiments. The bills which he has introduced are only a start. The Tydings committee's investigation, now getting under way, should provide data on which congress can institute reforms and economies much more far-reaching than those now proposed.

ITTY BITTY DITTIES.

The gentlemen who write the nation's laws have not been doing any too well lately, but neither have those who write the nation's songs.

Among the pantywaist numbers on the current song lists are "Remember Pearl Harbor," "We're Gonna Have to Slap the Dirty Jap," "Good-by, Mama" [rhyming with "I'm Off to Yokohama"], "Let's Put the Ax to the Axis," "Uncle Sammy, Here I Am," "Good-by, Dear, I'll Be Back in a Year," etc. Add a crooner and get out the aspirin.

We still feel that the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" is the song for a fighting faith.

BALKAN EAGLE FIGHTS ON

BY WILLIAM HUMPHREYS.

LONDON [Wide World].—Somewhere in the shelter of the Jugo-Slav mountains and the winter-burdened forests is the aerie of the Balkan eagle—Gen. Draja Mihailovitch.

Precisely where one can only guess, for the leader of the Chetniks [guerrillas], sworn to fight for restoration of free government in their homeland, moves his headquarters frequently and abruptly. And he leaves no forwarding address which the Nazis might find.

There probably are 100,000 desperate men behind Mihailovitch; mountain men, chiefly, who dominate an area of approximately 20,000 square miles. They are in Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, and Western Serbia—places where the Nazis are especially unwelcome.

The seriousness of the Chetnik opposition, comparable to the British commandos' opposition but in greater degree, can be reckoned best by a look at the map. The four provinces where the Chetniks have licensed themselves to hunt flank the main railroad line between the German arsenals and the Nazi strongholds in Bulgaria and Greece.

Over this line which carried the luxurious orient express in peacetime, Nazi supply trains now roll—thru Belgrade as far as Nish. There the line forks, one prong reaching thru Bulgaria for Istanbul, the other to Salonika and the Aegean Islands.

It is the part between Belgrade and Nish on which Mihailovitch's train wreckers concentrate.

Blowing out bridges, loosening ties, setting fire to slow moving ammunition trains straining up steep grades are part of the Chetnik campaign.

There are troop operations, too—raids on garrisons, ambuscades against marching columns, and the work of trained sappers who dynamite ammunition dumps.

"Gen. Mihailovitch has a trained army and he has a staff," a London Jugo-Slav source said.

"There are rumors that he is assisted by some British and Australian officers and men who escaped capture in Greece and established contact with him. It would be inaccurate to call his men guerrillas. They are too highly organized for that."

The Chetniks' kind of warfare—the kind the Balkan peoples have excelled in since the Turks drove to the gates of Vienna in 1529—has compelled the Germans and the Italians to police the area with thousands of troops.

The highest compliment paid the slender blond general, who is 49 years old, came from the Nazis themselves last autumn when they were forced to station five divisions in Jugo-Slavia.

Last April King Peter fled into exile. His army was broken by the Nazis. Mihailovitch was an authority on the Chetniks' war within the war of 1914-'18 and asked Peter's permission to remain behind.

When the Austro-Hungarians had become Serbia's war lords the Chetkniks had fought on. Mihailovitch thought he could reorganize the will o' the wisp mountain legions. Royal permission was granted.

The general's faith was rooted deeply in a knowledge of his own people. From Herzegovina and Montenegro on the sunny Dalmatian coast, thru the Jugo-Slav valleys to the Danube, there runs a strain of blood intolerant of oppression.

A proud race who consider themselves a bracket above their fellow countrymen are the Shumadinci. They are tall and fierce and the Serbs acknowledge much of their tradition as fighters rests on the broad shoulders of the Shumadinci. These people formed the core of Mihailovitch's army.

As the word spread down the valleys to the towns and cities other volunteers gathered at secret meeting places and took the oath.

It was not until King Peter had reached London that word got thru that Mihailovitch had taken to the field.

As the army gained strength, confidence in the operations increased, so that last autumn when the weather was favorable Mihailovitch's headquarters was able to announce that Sabac, only 50 miles from Belgrade, was in Chetnik hands. From time to time Mihailovitch issued communiques.

The first sketchy messages received in London advised that mountain guards had been organized and that "operations are proceeding according to plan." On Nov. 29, tho under siege himself, Mihailovitch wirelessed to the outside world a message:

"Long live the defenders of Tobruk."

Thru December and January reports from Turkey and Switzerland began to add meat to the skeletonized dispatches from the general. Already on Nov. 22, the German government in Berlin had reported that Jugo-Slav strife had attained civil war proportions. "Government troops," Berlin said in explanation of the growing disturbances, were being desperately engaged by "communists."

To Mihailovitch's men "government troops" meant the Jugo-Slavs who sold out to the Germans, fifth columnists, and Croat terrorists. They accepted "communists" as anybody opposed to the Nazis.

Thru November a small town in central Serbia was Mihailovitch's stronghold. Then 23 German soldiers were killed there and the Nazis demanded blood payment 100 times as great. So 2,300 men, women, boys, and girls of the town and its surrounding villages and farms were reported rounded up and executed.

Other Nazi reprisals are said to have been the dive bomb leveling of the towns of Sabac and Rudnik and other Chetnik strongholds.

According to the last summary issued in London on Nov. 6, some 340,000 Serbs—men, women, and children—have been killed since the Nazi invasion last spring. Many of these deaths, it is estimated, are due to the Croat terrorists who function under the cloak of the Utashi secret society of assassins.

The attitude of the Chetniks, according to London sources, has never wavered despite the reported mass executions. Their code is that every Jugo-Slav is a soldier and "those who are not with us are against us."

Several times, it has been reported, Mihailovitch with one or the other of his aids has slipped past axis patrols and sauntered into garrison towns and wined and dined at popular cafés.

On these and similar escapades, Mihailovitch fears betrayal only by his own sense of humor. While seated next to Nazi officers on one occasion he listened to their earnest discussion of ways and means of capturing him and only with great difficulty suppressed his laughter.

The general's hopes of holding out rest on supplies. Jugo-Slav sources say there is an easy way of providing these if they are forthcoming from the allies.

The importance of supplying the men with rifles, tommy-guns, and hand grenades, necessities of modern guerrilla warfare, is held to be best illustrated by reports that the Nazis are now reënforcing their Bulgarian and Greek garrisons for a possible drive on Turkey and the Caucasus.

London Jugo-Slavs ask why it would not be wise to supply at once an army of 100,000 men which lies athwart the principal Nazi line of communications to these points.

They declare the Serbs are equal to prolonged operations if they can get the arms. They have implicit faith in Mihailovitch as a man who won the Order of the White Eagle in the last war and who has already won from King Peter in this war the Order of Karadjoric.

THE AGE OF TONICS HAS PASSED.

ONCE upon a time many greeted their physicians with the remark, "Doctor, I don't feel just right. I am sure that I need a tonic."

In that same era drug store windows were filled with displays of generous sized bottles of "beef, iron, and wine" or some other concoction guaranteed to impart vim and vigor to all and sundry. For the most part, those days have passed. Nowadays, aware that the sense of fatigue is overwhelming, that weight is disappearing without obvious cause, or that some pain is hanging on—we insist upon knowing why. We are unwilling to allow the difficulty to continue until a hopeless situation is presented.

All too often a medicine which is alleged to be a "builder-upper" performs in exactly the opposite fashion. In fact, stimulating the nervous system, increasing the activity of the muscles—including the output of the heart—may actually accelerate disease rather than retard it. It is like attempting to put out a fire with shavings. True enough, there may be a temporary sensation of well being, but sooner or later the drug will lose its power and symptoms will grow worse.

Nevertheless, thousands will heed the praises of some vaunted remedy and wonder why recovery does not come. Let us hope that but few of these really need medical help. It is a striking tribute to the human body that, thru the years, it has withstood so many gallons of this or that compound recommended by a dulcet voice coming thru the loud speaker.

Recently one of my colleagues told me of a patient who complained of weakness. She exhibited a marked pallor of the skin. A cursory examination revealed a severe grade of anemia. For months, the victim had been taking a widely advertised vegetable elixir. At first, the small amount of alcohol which the preparation supplied gave a momentary "lift," but the destruction of the blood cells progressed until she was well nigh helpless. A vigorous program of liver injections, plus a transfusion or two, were required.

By and large, the digestive tract is obliged to combat numerous assaults. When appetite fails, the explanation is usually simple. The diet may furnish too little vitamin B, chronic gastritis may exist, or inactivity may demand but little food. Instead of "whipping up" a desire for more edibles, it is the part of wisdom to find the cause.

Nature's tonics are sleep, good food, and happiness. Every teamster knows that he must allow his steeds to rest at intervals, if he would get the most out of them. He would be stupid indeed to apply the lash when they are exhausted. Many a man displays far more concern about his automobile and his live stock than the health of his family.

If you have the tonic habit and can't get rid of it, resort to the "cups that cheer but not inebriate." Caffeine, found in tea and coffee, is a pick-me-up of real value. The 4 o'clock tea habit provides not only mild stimulation but relaxation. But the use of these beverages can be abused. The one who takes 20 or more cups daily is leaning on a crutch.

PORTRAIT OF A FUSSBUDGET.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Women the fussy sex? I'll say they're not! Witness the 200 pound male who shared three quarters of my seat on the "L" this morning. Settling himself on the seat with an assortment of grunts, he starts fumbling in pocket for morning paper. More fumbling in inner pocket for glasses, puts case back in pocket. Whisks out handkerchief, majestically and with flourish cleans glasses. Adjusts glasses, takes glasses off again, holds glasses at arm's length and peers at them, again dives into pocket, extracts handkerchief, wipes glasses, puts glasses on. He opens paper, holding it at arm's length, inner part of paper slips out of his hand, he scrambles to retrieve it, it falls to the floor in numerous sections; people gather up paper and return it to him. With calm patience, he puts paper back in consecutive order. He digs into pocket again, gets handkerchief, removes hat and wipes face, more squirming to put handkerchief back, replaces hat, removes hat again, smooths hair, replaces hat. At this point I am fascinated; a magician could not extract more articles from his person than this gentleman. Enthralled, I watched. A woman sneezes, he turns and gives her a haughty look, and pulls his overcoat more closely around his neck. Still holding paper at arm's length, he flips pages, turns to crossword puzzle, folds paper small, again goes into pocket, gets pencil, adjusts glasses, and looks at crossword puzzle. Again he wriggles and reaches into a pocket, and again into another pocket, pulls out small package, gently removes cellophane, opens package and pops a cough drop into his mouth. Much to my dismay, I had reached my station, and could not witness the finale of so marvelous a performance. Women fussy? Mind if I laugh?

HOUSEHOLD HINT.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The following is from our scrapbook and was printed during the last war over the signature of Josephine M. Carson: "During the canning and preserving season, sugar is an item of considerable expense. A very great saving in sugar as well as dollars may be effected at this time by observing the following method with fruit. Boiling sugar with acid changes the sugar to glucose. One pound of sugar has as much sweetening power as two and one-half pounds of glucose. Therefore, one pound of sugar stirred into fruit after it has been cooked and still warm will make the fruit as sweet as two and one quarter pounds while the fruit is boiling. Sugar should be warm when added to warm fruit juice, and produce a sizzling sound, which denotes the proper temperature."

CONSERVATION AND COMFORT.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—With all the attention being given to saving cloth in wartime, some thinking might be directed to summer attire. For example, there would be a considerable saving if it were considered all right to go coatless all summer, even in business. We might also consider leaving off the necktie, too. It is another dead weight about the neck on hot days. On blazing hot days we might consider wearing knee length shorts, at least after working hours. Letting our soldiers have the wool for winter use will leave the rest of us with the more light weight cotton.

HOMEWORK.

Chicago, Feb. 21. — Women signing themselves "Tired Mother" who complain of their children's homework might as well leave off the word "mother." What does being a mother mean to them? At one time I, too, did not get the homework angle. But one day I asked to see this bugaboo of homework. Was I amazed! I had heard the oft-repeated statement by teachers, "With close to 50 pupils, I just can't give individual attention."

I discovered that my 11 year old son believed that in writing sentences using the spelling words of the day, only the spelling word had to be correct, and the rest of the sentence didn't matter. We put an end to that. One night when I checked his arithmetic, I found he had been doing that particular type of problem incorrectly for a year and a half.

The most important part about the whole thing is that if there is any way on earth to get closer to your children, it is by talking over their homework problems with them in the evening.

May I also say my boys have time for Scouts, Cubs, bike riding, skating, Sunday school, parties, friends, delivering newspapers, carrying out clinkers, garbage, filling the stoker, saving waste paper and newspapers, and helping their father take care of the house while I am here in Garfield park hospital having—instead of a long wanted girl—my fourth son!

MRS. FRANK L. JENKINS.

TWO NICE PERSONS.

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 23.—In a Chicago railroad station Sunday a lad in a sailor's uniform and with his bag on his shoulder was talking to one of the ticket sellers on the best way to get to his home, but he did not have enough money. Without asking any questions, the lady who was purchasing a ticket at the next window pushed over to him several $1 bills. That boy was just about speechless, but managed to say, "O, lady, I can't take your money," and she replied, "But I want you to get home."

The ticket seller sold the lady a special ticket to her destination and back to Chicago so that she practically had her donation back. When she asked why the special rate, he said, "I saw what you did for that boy."

WOULDN'T THAT BE SOMEPIN'?

Chicago, Feb. 23.—I have been reading about the fire department wanting their sirens again. I have a suggestion to make. If the people seriously want air raid practices, why not put the sirens back on the fire equipment, and every time the siren is heard in case of a fire, every one within hearing distance can turn out their lights [if it is at night] and have a practice blackout. This would be at unexpected times, just as an actual raid would be. It would also give the block captains practice.

DIVORCE.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. How should I go about divorce proceedings, after being separated for 16 years?

2. I have not heard nor seen anything of my husband in that number of years, and [3] have been told that he is considered legally dead.

Would like to know whom I should contact, that is, one of the judges [4] or should I employ my own lawyer?

If I file for divorce and he is claimed dead [5] what would the cost be? L. C.

1. Depends on whether you have grounds for divorce.

2. This is not necessarily a ground for divorce.

3. Altho he would be presumed dead, this would not be a safe substitute for a divorce since if he proved to be actually alive your new marriage would be invalid.

4. Yes.

5. Your attorney's fee would be the largest item and we are not in a position to estimate this.

INHERITANCE TAX.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. If a husband and wife have a building in joint tenancy, in the event of death of one of them, would the law require that an inheritance tax be paid by the surviving one?

2. What is the lowest value of inheritance taxable? I also wish to be enlightened as to procedure in case of death of either husband or wife.

The safety deposit box is in the name of both husband and wife and [3] is the surviving one permitted to remove the contents of same at a time of death or [4] must the bank be notified of the death and the [5] contents removed in the presence of an employé of the bank?

6. What is the procedure regarding the will and the reading of the will? J. M.

1. There would be a tax on the half that passes by survivorship.

2. Depends on the degree of relationship. The exemption between husband and wife is $20,000.00 worth.

3. You should notify the attorney general's office to have a box examination.

4. This is advisable.

5. We see no necessity for this.

6. There is no statutory provision as to the reading of the will. The will should be promptly filed in the office of the clerk of the Probate court.

MEXICAN DIVORCE.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. Is it possible to obtain a Mexican divorce by mail [2] when the parties were married in Mexico?

3. Would such a divorce be legal in this state? M. R.

1. Depends on whether the facts are such that the Mexican court would have jurisdiction.

2. This fact would not be conclusive.

3. Most Mexican divorces obtained by nonresidents are invalid.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 6, part 2.

1. If you wished some information on the synthesis of coal tar products, you should probably consult a person holding which one of these degrees? M. D. Ph. D. D. D. S. LL. D.
2. Which one of these substances is properly called a mixture? Water Sugar Air Rubber.
3. Which one of these substances is properly termed a compound? Gunpowder Sand Hash Vinegar.
4. The usual stained church window panes are called Translucent Opaque Opalescent Transparent.
5. Which of these would require the most heat to become liquefied? Iron Lead Zinc Paraffin.
6. You deserve one point for each correct judgment below in matching these biblical characters with the deeds pertaining to them.

[a] Nimrod	[v] Started the first church picnic.
[b] Saul	[w] Drove recklessly.
[c] Jesus	[x] Criminally assaulted a king's daughter.
[d] Jehu	[y] Famous wild game hunter.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

POLICEMAN GETS HERO AWARD FOR SAVING 5 IN FIRE

Martin C. M'Caw Honored by The Tribune.

M. C. McCaw.

A squad car from the Maxwell street police station cruised thru the dark, narrow streets of Chicago's congested southwest side at midnight Jan. 15. Three policemen in the car suddenly saw a flash from a third story window of an apartment building at 671 West 14th street. Smoke and flames belched out of the window.

A screaming woman appeared thru the flames and a man was behind her. Both were frantic. The woman prepared to leap. From the squad car and into the apartment building rushed Patrolman Martin C. McCaw, 37 years old, of 5608 Emerald avenue, seven years a Chicago policeman, married, and father of five children.

Has to Break In.

He tried the door handle. The door was locked. His burly shoulder caught the door in the center and the hinges and lock snapped.

Mrs. Estelle Swantek, the building owner appeared at the door. She woke other occupants of the flat and they rushed to the street.

On up into the smoke raced McCaw. He entered a third floor room. There he found David Markowski asleep in bed. He roused Markowski and started him downstairs.

He then learned why the two frantic people had appeared at the window. The fire was in their room, next to Markowski's. Their rear exit was cut off and their other exit was thru Markowski's room. That door was locked on both sides.

Lets the Door "Have It."

"I backed off and let the door have it," McCaw said.

McCaw fought thru the smoke to the window and grabbed the woman. Below on the street firemen were already preparing a net to catch her. McCaw grabbed the man, too. The woman's name was Alma Davis and the man Raymond Johnson. He started them both down the stairway.

McCaw reached the staircase himself and then on second thought returned to the first room for another search. There he found a third man, George Lapit, asleep. It was necessary for him to slap Lapit into consciousness to rouse him and start him down the stairways to the street.

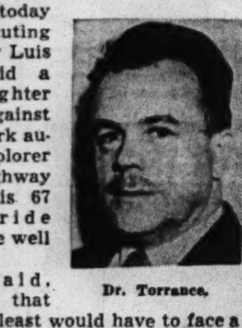
All occupants reached the street safely.

"Then I went down to the street and to my business of directing traffic and the likes of that," McCaw said later. "The fire department had the fire under control and everybody was safe."

Because of his bravery in facing smoke and flames to rescue five persons, in addition to those he warned on the first floor, Patrolman McCaw was awarded THE TRIBUNE $100 fire and police hero award for January. The award is given each month to the most heroic department member.

TORRANCE FACES NEGLECT CHARGE IN DEATH OF WIFE

MONTERREY, Mexico, Feb. 28 (AP).—Dr. Arthur Torrance was free under $1,000 bond today and Prosecuting Attorney Luis Trevino said a manslaughter charge against the New York author and explorer for the highway death of his 67 year old bride would not be well founded.



Dr. Torrance.

Trevino said, however, that Torrance at least would have to face a charge of negligence and imprudence, based on evidence that he allowed his wife—whom the prosecutor described as woman of advanced age and poor eyesight—to drive at night at excessive speed while he listened to the motor car radio.

Such a charge, if sustained by the court, would be punishable by imprisonment for from five days to five years.

Dr. Torrance's release and vindication on the charge that he killed his wealthy wife, the former Mrs. Ada Loveland of Kalamazoo, Mich., had been recommended earlier this month by the Nuevo Leon state prosecutor.

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

Huge Lake Ore Carrier Launched

NAVY GETS NEW CRUISER MONTHS AHEAD OF TIME

Fast, Heavily Armed San Juan Accepted.

New York, Feb. 28 [Special].—Five launchings and the commissioning of a new light cruiser were today's contributions of the nation's shipbuilding industry to the war effort.

The newly commissioned light cruiser is the San Juan, launched months ahead of schedule last September, and now joining the fleet far in advance of expectations.

The launchings were of a small size destroyer, designated a submarine combat ship, in New York; the U. S. S. Titania, an 8,650 ton C-2 type cargo vessel, in Kearny, N. J., the 640 foot Leon Fraser, an ore carrier, in Detroit, and the P-73, a vessel designed to aid planes and pilots forced down at sea. It was launched in Atlantic City, N. J.

Cost 12 Million Dollars.

The San Juan is said to be one of the fastest and most heavily armed ships of its type ever built and cost 12 million dollars. Commissioning ceremonies were held at the Boston naval drydock where R. C. Gady, captain of the Boston navy yard, turned the vessel over to Capt. James C. Maher, Utica, N. Y., who will be its commanding officer. Maher is an Annapolis graduate of 1916.

The small size destroyer was built in the record time of 63 days, its keel having been laid three weeks after Pearl Harbor. Known as the PC-487, it slid down the ways under the sponsorship of Mrs. John D. Bulkeley, wife of the naval lieutenant who on Jan. 7 drove a motor torpedo boat into Binanga bay in the Philippine island of Luzon to torpedo a 5,000 ton Japanese ship. The shipbuilding company received the navy "E" for excellence and all employés got "E" pins.

Ore Carrier Launched.

The U. S. S. Titania was christened by Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, wife of the Missouri senator. The Leon Fraser, launched at Detroit, is the first of five ore carriers being built for the Pittsburgh Steamship company. Each can carry 18,500 tons of iron ore, enough for eight destroyers.

The Fidelity, a minesweeper, was launched at Nashville, Tenn., the first warship seen at Nashville since the Civil war.

WOMAN FALLS TO DEATH.

PROPOSE STATE BUILD AIRPLANE LANDING STRIPS

Emergency Runways Along Strategic Roads.

The Illinois Road Builders' association yesterday proposed that state officials formulate a comprehensive program for construction of airplane landing strips on all key defense highways.

The proposal was contained in a letter sent by Taylor G. Soper, executive secretary of the association, to Ben Regan, chairman of the Illinois Aeronautics commission. Soper pointed out that Illinois is deficient in airports for commercial operations in peace times, and that since the war began many of the state's regular fields have been closed.

Soper said in his letter, "such flight strips are authorized by the defense highway act of 1941. Under this act ten million dollars has been appropriated for construction of such strips along public highways so training, military, and commercial planes can use them in emergencies.

Soper said military authorities have designated 12 Illinois highways as of strategic value. These include: U. S. 66 from Chicago to St. Louis; U. S. 51 from Wisconsin border to Cairo; U. S. 36 from Indiana state line to Missouri line; U. S. 40 from Terre Haute, Ind., to St. Louis; U. S. 45 from Chicago to Effingham; Illinois 37 from Effingham to Salem; U. S. 50 from Vincennes, Ind., to St. Louis; Illinois 13 from St. Louis to Pinckneyville; U. S. 24 from Quincy to Illinois 10; Illinois 10 east on Illinois 119 to the junction of U. S. 66 in McLean county; U. S. 6 from the Tri-Cities to Chicago, and U. S. 20 from Rockford to Chicago.

As approved by the federal government, the flight strips would be adjacent to but not joined to the highways. The landing area would have a cleared width of about 300 feet but the actual runway—black top, concrete, or gravel—would be from 100 to 150 feet wide and from 3,000 to 8,000 feet in length. It would be so located that it would parallel the direction of prevailing winds—in Illinois generally west or southwest.

A NEW CASH PRIZE OFFER
NOW APPEARING IN THE DAILY TRIBUNE!

$5,000 IN CASH PRIZES!

FREE TO ALL!
NOTHING TO BUY!
NOTHING TO SELL!

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE presents this offer solely for the entertainment of its readers. Any man, woman, boy or girl may try. It does not matter where you live. All you need is a little skill in solving the puzzles. It costs you nothing. You may win as much as $1,000.00 in cash.

The first puzzle pictures, which appeared in the Daily Tribune during the past week, are reprinted here. Start with these. Then continue in tomorrow's Daily Tribune.

Note that each puzzle represents two things commonly mentioned together, like STICKS and STONES, TALL and SHORT, GOOD and BAD, etc. One is named. Can you name the other one?

Put on your thinking cap and start! You'll find it an interesting test of skill and—who knows?—you may win one of the 430 cash awards.

★ THE RULES ★

WHO CAN ENTER? This offer is open free to everybody—men, women, boys and girls—excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. It does not matter where you live. You don't have to pay a penny—NOW OR LATER.

WHAT TO DO? Each week day a Puzzle Picture representing the names of two things usually spoken of together will be published in the Daily Tribune until 42 have appeared. One of the things will be named. You are invited to "NAME THE OTHER ONE." Write or print the missing name on the line provided. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the most nearly correct complete sets of Puzzles in accordance with the rules. First prize is $1,000.00. Facsimilies are acceptable. Hold all answers until you have the complete set of 42. Do not send them in separately.

WHERE TO SEND? Mail your entry by First Class Mail to "Names," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. With your entry send a letter, giving your name and address, and telling in 50 words or less how you expect to use the First Prize money of $1,000.00 if you win it. Letters will be considered only in the event of ties in solving the Puzzles. Entries must be in the office of the Chicago Tribune by midnight one week after Puzzle No. 42 has appeared.

BASIS OF AWARDS: Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept the judges' decisions as final. Each entry must be the original thought and effort of the person who submits the entry. If, in the sole opinion of the judges, any entry is found to be based upon answers purchased from anyone whomsoever, or upon deceit or intent to deceive, such entry will be disqualified. Neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid.

STAGEWISE IDEAS ARE TOO FEW IN THIS NEW REVUE

But 'American Sideshow' Is Bright, Handsome.

"AMERICAN SIDESHOW."

Revue in two acts and 19 scenes. Sketches and lyrics by Charles K. Freeman and Jay Frank. Music by Sonny Vale. Settings by Clive Rickabaugh. Costumes by Evelyn Mayer. Dances by Walter Camryn.. Production staged by Charles K. Freeman, and presented by him in the Civic theater, Saturday evening, Feb. 28, 1942.

THE PERFORMERS.

Burr Tillstrom, Keith Hall, Jackie Harrison, Betsy Ross, Wanda Spondor, Billy Evenson, Charles Kolar, and others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

In some distant Utopian day a really smashing hit may spring from the brain of some local theatrical producer. Upon the strength of just such a hope, sporadic enterprises of Chicago origin rise up briefly, with the firm intent of challenging Broadway's grip upon the legitimate stage.

"American Sideshow," a musical revue unveiled for the first time at the Civic theater last evening, serves to prove once again that it takes a very great deal of first class material and an equal amount of performing talent to win a substantial success with the theater public. Altho the new revue is presented in bright, handsome form, Charles K. Freeman and his associates simply have not thought up enough stagewise ideas to fill an evening divertingly, nor have they found a sufficient number of gifted performers to project their few good ideas with reasonable effectiveness.

Revue Is Hard to Create.

In the whole realm of light musical entertainment, nothing is harder to create than a revue, consisting of a miscellany of unrelated sketches, songs, and dances. Because there is no thread of continuity, each item has to be self-contained. With no plot to help the production to skim past the thin spots, a revue has a unique way of dying inch by inch and minute by minute. This fate, unhappily, frequently overtakes the various episodes of "American Sideshow."

But the show does have flashes of inspiration, even tho they are much too widely spaced. The most brilliant single contribution is a one man puppet show presented by Burr Tillotson, who manipulates both the puppets and his voice with real comic showmanship. Elsewhere two sketches satirize familiar plays amusingly; one of these is an omnibus of murder and lunacy indebted primarily to "Ladies in Retirement" and "Arsenic and Old Lace," while the other reverts to the time worn "Tobacco Road" locale for its substance.

Two Dancers Are Exceptions.

Without performers who can dance—and both attractive Betsy Ross and Keith Hall, a tap dancer with a smooth style and swift feet, must be excepted from this generalization—it is not possible to build very thrilling production numbers. Within the simple terms permitted by the semi-professional talent, the best staging in the whole revue occurs in connection with a song entitled "I Want a Dolly by Dali."

The nostalgia of the nineties, apparently an indispensable ingredient of every intimate revue, is evoked by a picturesque scene of a strawberry festival. The first eye picture is delightful, but afterward nothing happens except some rather tentative and uncongealed group movements and tableaux.

Musical Score by Vale.

Sonny Vale's musical score reveals a spontaneous, if rather imitative and harmless, gift for light theater music. In performance the music sounds less good than it really is, for the two piano playing of the composer and an unidentified colleague is percussive and monotonous.

The basic problem of "American Sideshow," essentially, is to find material and performers to measure up to the excellent costumes and settings. Within Clive Rickabaugh's attractive arena, so blithe and colorful, the proceedings are, I am afraid, a little tame.

100 FIRMS TO GET PATRIOTIC FLAGS FOR BOND SALES

More than 100 Chicago and Cook county firms are to be notified this week that they are eligible to fly a treasury department flag showing their employés are more than 90 per cent enrolled in the defense bond pay roll savings plan. Only two such flags have been awarded in the nation, both to industrial plants in Detroit, Mich. The flags, on a blue field, show the outline of a white minute man standing at the plow, his musket in hand. Overhead are 13 stars. The first presentations will be Tuesday at a meeting of the advisory council of the Cook county defense savings staff in the Union League club.

Mother Visits Killer in Cell

5,000 ATTEND FUNERAL RITES FOR SLAIN GIRL

Both Friends, Curious at Broz Services.

More than 5,000 relatives, friends, and strangers attended the funeral services yesterday for Dorothy Ann Broz, Berwyn high school girl who was shot to death in the Palace theater on Tuesday by Clarence McDonald, her 17 year old beau. Private services were held in the chapel at 6507 Cermak road at 9 a. m. followed by services in St. Odillo's church and burial in St. Adalbert's cemetery.

As early as 7 o'clock crowds jostled and pushed their way into the chapel to file past the casket, which was covered with a blanket of red and white carnations spelling out "Dotty," sent girls and boys who were Miss Broz's friends at Morton High school.

Police Detail on Duty.

As 8:30 a. m., the time for the services arrived, a special detail of police was ordered to hold the crowd in check. Stamping their feet and rubbing their hands together in the cold as they waited, people chatted with the police and asked: "Is McDonald here? Have his parents come?"

When Miss Broz's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Broz, left the chapel, a hush fell on the crowd.

"It seems unbelievable that just last Sunday Dorothy knelt at this altar rail and received communion," the Rev. William Roberts said at the church services. "She was a good, faithful, sweet, lovely little girl. Today we should pray for two mothers whose hearts are broken—Dorothy's and Clarence's."

Many Forced to Stand.

All pews were filled, there were lines along the walls, people were on the stairways both inside and in front of the church, and others found places in the entrance way.

Almost as many as attended the services followed in the procession to the cemetery, led by three cars filled with floral pieces and escorted by several highway police cars.

As Father Roberts read a short service Miss Broz's mother and father and young brother scattered gladiola petals over the coffin.

After the crowds at the cemetery had dispersed Mrs. Carl Wagner, McDonald's mother, placed flowers on the grave of the girl her son killed. From the cemetery Mrs. Wagner went to the Cook county jail where she and her son met for the first time since the inquest on Wednesday. Both were in tears and Mrs. Wagner repeated again and again, "O, my poor boy, my poor boy."

OAK PARK GIRL TO BE SOLOIST WITH SYMPHONY

Miss Margery Lindquist, 16 year old soprano of Oak Park High school, will be soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall at a special children's concert Wednesday afternoon on the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public schools.

Margery Lindquist.

The concert, which will feature a 240 voice massed choir from the Chicago elementary schools, will be broadcast by W59C, W-G-N's FM station, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. It will be the first frequency modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra and will make the world première of John Alden Carpenter's "March and Song to Freedom" which will be played by the orchestra.

The children's choir, led by Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago board of education, will take part in the Carpenter composition. Miss Lindquist is scheduled to sing the "Recitative and Polonaise" from "Mignon" by Thomas.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. MUSIC FESTIVAL LEADERS PLEDGE BEST SHOW EVER Spectacle Is Dedicated to Armed Forces.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Fifty leaders of the 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, to be sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Saturday night, Aug. 15, in Soldiers' field, pledged their aid yesterday to making the coming entertainment the greatest of all performances when they attended the midwinter conference of the festival. This summer's show will be dedicated to the armed forces of the United States.

Dr. Edgar Nelson.

The program, it is hoped, will help to strengthen the morale of the millions who each summer listen to the show thru W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System and the 85,000 persons who will see the spectacle in Soldiers' field.

Choral Director Speaks.

Dr. Edgar Nelson, general choral conductor of the festival, spoke briefly at a dinner in the Medinah club. He said music has played a most important part in uplifting the spirit of a nation in war and that this summer's show will be the greatest patriotic demonstration anywhere in the United States.

The preliminary festivals also will be continued this summer. Several chairmen were present and predicted even larger shows in their home communities. Typical was the expression of Miss Edna Christensen, the guiding spirit of the Racine, Wis., contests. "We'll help win the war with song," she said.

Four to Be Repeated.

Other Chicagoland festivals will be given in Hammond, Purdue university at West Lafayette, and Michigan City, Ind.; Peru, West Frankfort, East Moline, and Urbana, Ill., and Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Four preliminary festivals in Chicago and suburbs will be repeated, those on the north, south, and west sides of this city, and in the Forest Park and Maywood area.

The army was represented at the dinner last night by Lieut. Edward H. Degener of Fort Sheridan. It is planned that large choruses from Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training station will take part at the festival.

FORMER WOMAN POSTMASTER IS INDICTED BY U. S.

Mrs. Edna O. Trumbull, former postmaster of River Grove, was named defendant in three indictments returned by a federal grand jury yesterday. The indictments accused her of embezzling $116.54 in postoffice funds, opening and delaying letters, and using canceled stamps to post her personal mail.

John Looby, assistant United States attorney, said Mrs. Trumbull had admitted the charges. Yesterday at her home, 8431 Center street, River Grove, however, she denied them and attributed them to her political enemies in the Democratic party.

Mrs. Trumbull is a member of a long established River Grove family. Her father Oscar Streetz was once postmaster and the postoffice has been in a building owned by the Streetz family for more than 40 years. Mrs. Trumbull was named acting postmaster a year ago and was relieved of her office last September. Judge Charles E. Woodward set her bond at $500 on each indictment.

BALLET THEATER STABS ITSELF IN GAY CARICATURE

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The dancers and choreographers of Ballet theater have the audacity to burlesque even the source of their own bread and butter—the art of ballet itself. Last night at the Civic Opera house they presented for the first time locally a piece called "Gala Performance" which first stabs ballet in the back, then proceeds to twist the dagger in the wound.

One of the ballerinas of "Gala Performance" is the all soul and no sense kind who at five second intervals collapses with emotion at the thought of her own greatness and of the love which her public undoubtedly bears her. She takes long, languishing curtain calls and kisses her hands to the audience until the last trickle of applause is spent.

Other Types on View.

Another is the imperious, ruthless type who [literally and physically] flings her competitors out of the way. Still a third is the fluff and flower type—the traditional dizzy blonde gone dance mad.

In addition, there is a corps de ballet whose feminine members simper and posture uncontrollably and whose male members leap straight into the air at the slightest provocation.

This whole assemblage is put thru a routine which divertingly caricatures ballet at its most extravagant. Last night's dancewise audience yelled with laughter as it recognized each familiar grimace and maneuver.

Like everything ballet theater does, the performance was deft and well thought out. It takes wonderful dancers to dance this badly—to twist normal procedure just enough out of focus to make it high comedy, but not enough to turn the proceedings into pure slapstick.

"Gala Performance" is the work of Antony Tudor. The music is by Prokofieff and the décor by Nicolas de Molas.

Another New Piece.

Another new piece on this bill was the radiant, youthful "Slavonika," choreographed by Vania Psota to Dvorak music and Colt décor. Irina Baronova and George Skibine had the principal parts and succeeded admirably in projecting the ballet's innocence and gayety.

Ballet theater ended the bill with a repetition of "Bluebeard." Tonight the group gives its farewell performance.

SCORING one amazing triumph after another—medicine marches on in its magnificent conquest of disease. One killing disease after another—conquered. The average span of human life lengthened—20 years. The thought arises—if this be true, then why do hundreds of thousands continue to die every year from heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis, kidney disorders, stomach ulcers, and other preventable causes? The answer lies in the fact that despite these outstanding victories over disease, the average person receives but a fraction of the medical protection that is available—and that he should have. High cost perhaps has been the principal cause of this deplorable condition, for as medicine advanced, the costs also advanced until they were beyond the ability of the average individual to pay. But thanks to the founders of United Medical Service, there are no high cost barriers existing today between the average individual and adequate medical protection and care. While high costs still prevail in other quarters—complete medical and surgical care are accessible through this outstanding medical institution at low cost. Ten years of continuous success should prove to every thinking person that this effort is fundamentally sound. It has enabled thousands to receive the protection of the new discoveries modern medicine is making possible today. For physicians at the United Medical Service possess these powerful aids with which to diagnose disease in all parts of the body sufficiently early to prevent serious damage to health and prolong life. Good health, always a precious possession, becomes an even greater factor in our lives today. It's a force we must possess to win a decisive victory in this terrible war. This is true not only of our armed forces, but of the thousands of workers whose services are so necessary at home. So, let medical science take stock of your physical condition now. That's your only guarantee that you are physically fit for the work you are now doing. Don't wait for the breakdown that may follow if you aren't. This great medical service can benefit only those who seek its protection. Protect your health and save precious time by taking advantage of it now.

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALS AWAITED BY CHICAGOLAND

32 Return Friday for Title Bouts.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A mighty army of Golden Gloves fighters started out confidently on a far flung battle front a month ago. Now only 32 remain in the struggle for amateur boxing's most highly cherished prizes. These 32 will reassemble in Chicago this week to clash in semi-finals and finals with Golden Gloves titles at stake.

Friday's program will be the climax of the campaign's most sensational stage. This stage began last Monday when more than 300 boxers drawn from 23 states came together in the Stadium for three nights of fighting in the Tournament of Champions. Four in each of the eight weight divisions still were unbeaten when the last punch had landed on Wednesday night. These are the boys who will pound it out to a finish next Friday evening.

Truly Representative Field.

The field for this climactic battle is truly representative of the great territory which contributes its fighters to Golden Gloves competition. In Chicago and 37 out of town centers, newspapers, radio stations, and army camps coöperated with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the sponsorship of eliminations. Seventeen of these centers still are represented among the survivors.

They range from Cleveland in the east to Fort Worth and Oklahoma City in the southwest. Morris Corona of the Texas team comes from away down near the gulf coast and Jack Graves of the Minneapolis squad hails from the North Dakota prairie country up near the Canadian border.

The big metropolitan centers by no means dominate the list of survivors. From the widespread farm areas will come many of the strongest contenders.

Two Chicagoans Remain.

Tho Chicago has only two representatives left, it seems certain that these two will make powerful bids for championships. Herbert Hood, fighting in the heavyweight class, has scored a spectacular series of knockout victories, several of them against opponents considerably bigger than he is. They key to his success seems to be the tremendous power he can put into body blows. His procedure has been to wear down his adversaries methodically thru the first round with a body attack while he ignores their chins. By the end of the second he usually has his opponents well softened up. Then he knocks them out with rights to the jaw.

Harry Stephens, Chicago's middleweight survivor, was so superior to all of his opponents in the Tournament of Champions that he didn't have to extend himself in scoring two knockouts and a decision.

Milwaukee Has Strong Team.

The crowd which gathers in the Stadium will see one of the strongest fields in Golden Gloves history perform. The going has been too tough for three former champions to survive. Harold Dade, Tommy Campbell, and Roy Lewis all were beaten last Wednesday night—and that's a strong indication of the quality of the survivors.

Milwaukee has one of the strongest teams it ever has sent into Golden Gloves competition. Four of this town's fighters are still in there hitting. One of them, Tommy Lemmon, is the boy who overthrew Campbell, defending lightweight champion, on Wednesday night. His teammates are Joe Krulitz, a welterweight; Forrest Gee, a middleweight, and John Hubbard, a light heavyweight.

They'll Turn on the Power.

Bob Burns, captain of last season's Intercity Golden Gloves team, forms half of Fort Wayne's team of survivors, which is a family affair. Bob, who fights in the welterweight class, will have his brother Tom carrying on with him as Fort Wayne's bantamweight representative.

The Fort Worth team has particu-

Chicago Colt 9 Lengths Back; Redthorn 2d

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 [Special].—This was the day of reckoning for the little colt, Requested. Beaten twice by the famous Alsab last year, the fleet-footed chestnut son of Questionnaire won the $25,000 added Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park this afternoon, enjoying the sweet revenge of kicking his dust back into the eyes of his former conqueror which finished third, five lengths in the rear of the long-shot Redthorn.

Requested, coming from far back after Jockey Eddie Arcaro had him clear of the shuffling pack, sailed around the final turn of the mile and an eighth course, passed Alsab and then bounded down the stretch in the long, rapid strides to take the prize by four lengths from Redthorn.

Third choice on the odds board, Requested paid a generous $13.10, $5.70, and $4.30. He was clocked in 1:50 2-5. The triumph was worth $28,150 to Owner Ben F. Whitaker, a Texas oil man who bought the colt for $1,200. It brought Requested's total earnings to $78,400.

A free-spending crowd of 28,571 fans, second largest in the history of the park, turned out to watch the renewal of the rich stakes for 3 year olds. The unwieldy field of 16 starters was the largest ever to compete for the big prize, and two more than the starting gate can accommodate. Requested and Bright Willie, the favorite, were forced to start from an outside position.

Bright Willie was caught flat-footed when Starter Mike Cassidy pressed the button and never had a chance to make up the ground. He finished 13th. Arcaro, however, had better luck with Requested. Rating the colt off the pace set by First Fiddle until the half mark, he moved down along on the outside fifth, then applied the whip for the drive past Alsab and sent Requested under the wire winner. Requested carried 122 pounds, four less than Alsab.

Alsab, a always a slow starter, but until recently a whirlwind finisher, failed to find his championship speed today, even under the guidance of his favorite jockey, Robert L. Vedder, who rode him to victory in most of his scores as a 2 year old. He started third, then dropped back to 10th, but was regaining lost ground nicely when Requested swooped by. Alsab held First Fiddle from third money.

A total of $136,305 was wagered on the Flamingo, an increase of only $14,000 over the 1941 handle.

Like Alsab, Requested's previous outings this season have been disappointments. In the Bahamas he finished 10th and was fourth behind Dit and second to Incoming in his other tries. His victory today made it his 10th in 20 starts. Alsab drubbed him in a match race at Belmont and repeated in the Champagne stakes, setting a new track record each time.

Market Wise Wins Again.

Redthorn, coupled in the field entry with Sir War, Wood Robin, Equinox, Rodney, and To Boot, was driven into second place by Wendel Eads at the start and never relinquished it. It was worth $6.30 and $3.70 to holders of tickets on the field.

In the supporting mile and a furlong event, a $2,500 purse for Widener candidates, a prized field which aggregate earnings totaled more than $1,000,000 started.

It was another sensational victory for Market Wise, the bargain basement colt which won the $10,000 McLennan sweepstakes here last Saturday. Coming from last at the first turn, the Cinderella horse of last year rolled over the country's leading runners, including the mighty Challedon, to shoot past War Relic and the pace setting Attention in the last furlong and go under the wire winner by one and a half lengths. The $50,000 Widener will be run next Saturday.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28 [Special].—Nick Metz, Toronto's right defense, saw to it tonight that the Chicago Blackhawks did not move into a third place tie with the Boston Bruins in the National Hockey league. Metz scored three goals and two assists—three of his scoring efforts coming in the last five minutes of the second period—as the second place Leafs won, 8 to 2, before a crowd of 13,000.

The two teams left immediately after the game for Chicago where they will clash again tomorrow night in Chicago Stadium. The Leafs' triumph tonight was their fourth in eight games with the Hawks this season.

Hawks Lead—For 39 Seconds!

Red Hamill put the Hawks in front after 14 minutes. He passed to Joe Cooper whose shot was blocked by Goalie Turk Broda. Hamill then raced in and slapped the rebound home for his 23d goal of the season.

The Hawks' advantage stood up for exactly 39 seconds. George Dickens, Leafs' defense rookie, beat Sammy Lo Presti on a combination play with Hank Goldup and Pete Langelle.

Gordon Dillon had an easy scoring chance a minute later, but drilled his shot against Lo Presti's pads. Dillon made up for his miss at 18:02 when he assisted Nick Metz on the goal that gave the Leafs a 2 to 1 lead.

Metz Pours It On.

The Leafs added four goals in the second period—three of them in the last five minutes. Langelle tallied at 7:43 with some help by Johnny McCreedy and Goldup. Then Metz got busy. He beat Lo Presti with Syl Apps' assistance at 15:02, passed to Sweeney Schriner for the Leafs' fifth goal at 17:03, and slipped the puck past Lo Presti again at 19:53 to boost the Leafs' lead to 6 to 2.

The Hawks' only second period score came when Metz was in the penalty box. Bill Thoms, Cooper and Bill Carse worked the puck in close and Carse beat Broda from about five feet away.

The third period was a farce of penalties. Bob Carse and Johnny Mariucci were chased within 10 seconds of each other. With a two man advantage the Leafs made it 7 to 2 as Metz sank his third goal of the night. Carse and Mariucci still were in the cooler when Schriner scored Toronto's eighth goal.

The Hawks received nine minor penalties against the two handed out to the Leafs by Referee King Clancy. In addition George Allen was given a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

CANADIENS WIN, 8-3

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 28 (AP).—The Canadiens brought a two months last place stay to an end tonight by defeating the Brooklyn Americans, 8 to 3, in a National Hockey league game before 9,937. The victory enhanced the Canadiens' chances of making the last playoff spot: Lineups:

White Sox of '42 Are Near Playing Size

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 28.—The 20-man White Sox squad showed no ill effects today of the formal opening of the spring camp yesterday so Boss James Dykes gave them another session but he wasn't at all brutal about it. Possibly he was influenced by the fact that, with the exception of a few excess pounds here or there, his 1942 hopefuls are a remarkably graceful lot after a winter of idleness. Even the manager is thinned out, but it's because of his seven gallstones rather than strenuous exercise.

Dykes, who is keeping his uniform in a dustproof locker until the newsreel men show up next Friday, just stood around and talked, always keeping one eye, however, on what running was being done by the few individuals he has under constant suspicion during the training period. Whenever the activity lagged too much, the manager pointed out that by next Wednesday he would permit batting practice and the enrolleës would immediately rekindle interest in their chores. The mere mention of hitting acts as a stimulant.

Pitchers Are Plentiful.

So far as pitchers are concerned Dykes is the envy of all seven other American league managers. If James J. should open a shop dealing exclusively in mound workers his stock would be gobbled up in the flash of an eye. But he is not going into the business. On the contrary, Dykes aims to add to his collection and other managers already are fearing he may succeed.

Dykes never is much of a fellow to brag about his talent, preferring to be underestimated and thus have a chance to spring a surprise, so any suggestion that his staff might be better this season than last can't be pinned on him. But he doesn't mind pointing out that he at least has possibilities of adding to the 1941 staff which day in and day out was the most consistent in the league.

Figures Tell Story Best.

You don't have to query the other American league managers for evi-

CUBS RELAX AFTER FIRST WEEK; ANXIOUS FOR CAMP GAME TUESDAY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 28.—The Cubs today rounded out a solid week of rigorous training and all are in such fine shape they will leisurely help March come in like a lamb tomorrow, they hope.

A whole drove of photographers, movie and still operators, were here today, but, except for encouraging a little fancy dan stuff, did not keep Manager Jimmy Wilson from directing his boys in a stiff drill.

Most of the routine muscle aches having disappeared, the boys now are eager for the intraclub games to start. The first of these contests is to start Tuesday and the way things stack up now, the regular lineup, excepting battery men, will be the same as it will be on opening day, April 14, in St. Louis.

There still is a battle for outfield honors, especially in left field, where both Dom Dallessandro and Lou Novikoff expect to be stationed. Bill Nicholson will be in right field and Charley Gilbert seems to be sound again, and ready to take over center field. With Babe Dahlgren a cinch at first, Lou Stringer and Bob Sturgeon ditto at second and third and Stan Hack younger than ever as he prepares to continue at third, there is an amazing lack of hopeful challenge, considering that the Cubs are defending sixth placers.

All experting on pitching replacements thus far has been based upon the way the pitching candidates shag flies and field bunts. There will be some profound observing, however, when the intraclub games get under way.

Two Rookies Elate Jim.

Manager Wilson's personal relaxation is in the development of Wimpy Quinn and Eddie Hanyzewski, but both of these stalwart fire ball tossers are longer on muscle than experience. Much as Skipper Jim adores their fast ones, it perhaps would be premature to build them up as possible 1942 National league performers.

Quinn, it will be remembered, was with the Los Angeles Angels last spring as a rookie first baseman when his hard throwing charmed Manager Jim, who always is more or less conscious of his success in switching Bucky Walters from infielding to pitching. After returing to Chicago, Wilson brought about the purchase of Quinn, carried him on the Cub squad briefly, then sent him to Madison, Wis., for experience. Wimpy's experience in Madison included winning one game and losing four.

The Name's Hanyzewski.

This one losing record didn't discourage Jim a bit. As soon as Wimpy got his arm loosened up here early this week, he started throwing harder

Indiana Wins; Iowa Defeats Purdue, 42-36

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 28 [Special].—Indiana's basketball team, traditionally strong on its own court, remained in a tie for second place in the Big Ten basketball race and sent Minnesota reeling to its fifth conference defeat, 54 to 45, here tonight.

The victory evened matters between the Gophers and Hoosiers for the season. The Gophers previously had scored a 63 to 43 victory at Minneapolis.

Ed Denton, Indiana center, and Capt. Andy Zimmer, star guard, gave Indiana an early 4 to 0 lead. Dick Burk scored Minnesota's first basket and then added a free throw to make it 4 to 3.

Johnny Logan, Indiana forward, then began scoring, and Indiana led, 18 to 0, midway thru the first half.

Don Mattson and Tony Jaros, Minnesota sophomores, combined to make it 18 to 10, but the Hoosiers cut loose with another barrage and finished the first half with a 32 to 19 margin.

IOWA, 42; PURDUE, 36

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 28 [Special].—The Iowa basketball team scored six points in the final minute and a half of play to defeat Purdue, 42 to 36, tonight before 12,500, largest crowd of the season.

The Hawkeye victory kept Iowa in the race for second place in the Big Ten and avenged a 45 to 44 defeat suffered at the hands of the Boilermakers earlier in the season. It was Iowa's ninth victory in 13 starts. Iowa is still tied for second place with Indiana, which defeated Minnesota tonight.

With the Iowans trailing, 36 to 35,

De Paul Wins, 50-37 in Second Game.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Illinois is the undisputed champio of Western conference basketbal Last night in Chicago Stadium befor collegiate basketball's largest thron —18,931—the Illini walloped North western, 63 to 49, to win their sixt conference title and only undispute championship since 1915.

De Paul defeated Bradley Tech o Peoria in the second game of th double header, 50 to 37.

Illinois proved its merit beyon question. The champion might hav tightened playing before the tremendous crowd. The smooth teamwor that produced a victory in the critic game at Minnesota and a two poin conquest of Wisconsin might hav been disrupted.

Illinois Maintains Its Mastery.

Northwestern played one of its bes games. The fighting Wildcats gav the crowd its thrill when they score 11 consecutive points late in the firs half to trail by one point.

But Illinois didn't lose its precis ball handling. With uncanny abilit to follow, obtain and control th ball, the champions maintained thei mastery and finished with a rush, despite free substituting, to com within six points of the all-time tear conference scoring record for on game.

Superior shooting alone may wi games. Last night Illinois combine surprisingly even scoring power wit skill in passing no other basketbal team has shown in Chicago this yea

Menke Leads First Half Drive.

Four sophomores and lanky Vi Wukovits, a senior, worked togeth as evenly as the parts of a watch. Height under the back boards accounted for an unusual number of follow attempts, or nullified Northwestern's, but most of the time Illinois didn't need a second shot.

Ken Menke led the first half Illinois drive. In that time he made six field goals and two penalty shots In the second period Jack Smiley set the pace. He had not made a point in 20 minutes. Now he piled up six field goals and a free throw. Then there was the always dangerous Andy Philip, the play maker of the champions. He whipped in five field goals and three free throws.

In all, Illinois made 15 of its 20 free throws, a title winning performance from the 15 fot line.

Otto Graham and Russ Wendland, as expected, carried Northwestern's attack. They rose to a peak performance as their 13 to 17 points, respectively, indicate. But their supporters lacked finesse on attack and speed on defense so that after the Wildcats' first half rally, the decision was foreordained.

Illini Take 12 to 2 Lead.

Illinois rushed to a 12 to 2 lead in the first nine minutes and with five minutes of the half to play, led 21 to 9. Graham's penalty shot on Smiley's foul touched the fuse. Wendland responded with two spectacular field goals, waited while Don Kruger shot successfully from the corner and came back with a pair of follow shots for goals.

Northwestern now trailed 21 to 20 but Menke and Gene Vance opened a four point gap and the half ended a minute later, 31 to 23.

Smiley opened the second hal with two field goals before Wendland scored. This margin, 35 to 25, was carried to 47 to 37 in an even battl before the champions pulled away Menke and Smiley rolled in si points and with six minutes left Northwestern abandoned hope.

De Paul Opens Slowly.

The travel-weary De Paul tean which rode all day after Friday's engagement in Philadelphia, opene slowly against Bradley but managed to gain a 16 to 13 lead at half time Despite a Bradley rally with 10 minutes of the game remaining that narrowed De Paul's lead to two points the Blue Demons spurted to wi handily. Cliff Lind, Bob Wozny, an Jim Cominsky led De Paul's victorious assault.

LES MACMITCHELL MEETS MATCH IN MILE—GIL DODDS

Beaten by 4 Yards After 20 Straight Victories.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—Gil Dodds, the Ashland college alumnus who learned to run by correspondence, defeated Leslie MacMitchell of New York university by four feet in the mile run of the National AAU track meet in Madison Square Garden tonight. The winning time was 4:08.7.

Greg Rice, the little dynamo formerly of Notre Dame climaxed the meet by shattering the world indoor record for three mile run. He covered the distance in 13:45.7. Rice lapped every one of his opponents at least twice as he shaved more than five seconds from the mark he set a year ago. Rice ran the first mile in 4:34.9, reached the two mile mark in 9:15.1, and finished like a 100 yard man.

Dodds, now representing the Boston A. A., grabbed the lead on the fifth time around the 11 lap track and built up a 15 yard lead. He hit the half way mark with that advantage in 2:03.2.

First Loss in 20 Races.

MacMitchell, beaten for the first time in 20 starts, opened his rush on the ninth lap and drew abreast of Dodds entering the final curve, but the divinity student pulled ahead again on the straightaway.

Joe McCluskey, the old war horse from Fordham, set the pace for the first quarter and was clocked in :59.6 for the first 440 yards, then he faded. It was Dodds' first appearance this winter as a miler. Previously he had competed in the two mile run, which was not on tonight's program. Third place went to Leroy Schwartzkopf of Yale and fourth to Walter Mehl, formerly of Wisconsin and the defending champion.

Borican Sets Two Marks.

John Borican, the Negro artist who is one of the world's better middle distance runners, raced to a meet mark in the 1,000 yard run with a time of 2:10.5 and then hurried an additional 94 yards for a world mark in the 1,000 meters. He hit the tape in the longer distance in 2:24.3 to shatter the 2:26.4 mark Lloyd Hahn set in 1927.

Borican was so hard pressed by Campbell Kane of Indiana university in the 1,000 yard run that he faltered temporarily after bursting thru the first tape. John already holds the world marks in the 1,000 and 600 yard indoor races and only a week ago equaled Hahn's 14 year old mark for the indoor half mile.

José Bento de Assis of Brazil, who came to the United States a month ago heralded as a sprinter, was fourth in the dash but came back to win the broad jump at 24 feet 7⅞ inches.

Blozis Breaks Shot Record.

Al Blozis, Georgetown university strong man, established a world indoor shot put record by heaving the 16 pound iron ball 57 feet ¾ inch. Blozis sent the ball to within ¼ of an inch of the accepted outdoor world mark which Jack Torrance of Louisiana State set in 1937. Blozis won the title a year ago with a throw of 55 feet ¼ inch.

Fred Wolcott, formerly of Rice institute, supplanted Allan Tolmich as the king of the 60 yard high hurdles and Norwood Ewell of Penn State took the 60 yard dash, dethroning Herbert Thompson of Jersey City, in meet record equaling time of :06.2. Tolmich did not compete this year. Charles Hlad of Michigan Normal college was second to Wolcott by inches in the :07.2 race.

Richmond [Boo] Morcom of New Hampshire university, latest pole vault sensation in the east, defeated Earle Meadows of Los Angeles defending champion, with a leap of 14 feet. Meadows was second with 13 feet 6 inches. It was the second time Morcom, who vaults without a shoe on his right foot, had cleared 14 feet within a week. Summaries:

THREE MILE RUN—Won by Gregory Rice, New York A. C.; Fred Wilt, Indiana, second; George Begore, New York A. C., third; Arthur Schmidlein, Fordham, fourth. Time, 13:45.7 [betters world's record of 13:51 set by Rice in 1941.]

Wisconsin Wrestlers Defeated by Iowa, 19-9

Madison, Wis., Feb. 28 [Special].—Wisconsin's wrestling team lost to Iowa today, 19 to 9, dropping five of the eight matches, one on a forfeit.

DYKES EXPECTS A LOT FROM THEM

Rule Prevents Clubs' Using Soldier Stars

Will Harridge, American league president, thinks the speculation about this player and that leaving his army or navy post this summer to play in an occasional game with his former team is just a waste of words, inasmuch as there's a major league rule preventing it.

The rule, Harridge pointed out yesterday, was adopted in December, 1940, and states that any player on the "national defense service list can be reinstated for league duty only upon his honorable discharge from the armed forces."

Anyway, he said, room would have to be made on a team's active player list to permit an occasional Sunday job of pitching or hitting by a sparetime star, and he doubts a team would operate one man short six days a week just to enjoy the benefit of some player on the seventh.

Harridge said he thought this same ruling would serve to bar present members of the armed forces from taking part in either of the major league all-star games, since team members are chosen from active player lists. Besides, he doesn't think the club holding a player's contract would approve.

"If I were an owner or manager I certainly wouldn't want to see one of my valuable players face the risk of injury by playing in a game for which he was not in shape," Harridge declared.

FRICK WOULD USE THEM.

New York, Feb. 28 [Special].—Ford Frick, president of the National league, said again today that he believes it would be a good thing for major league stars who are in the armed service to compete in one of the two All-Star games. Frick explained, however, in repeating his opinion of a few days ago, that the final decision would have to be made by the club owners.

Thornton Lee, too, loses no time in getting the winter kinks out of his arm. Here the big fellow prepares to send one over the plate.

Cubs Sit Back; Await Camp Game Tuesday

than anybody in camp and Mr. W. was gurgling anew and talking about Bucky Walters more than ever.

Hanyzewski isn't even on the Cub roster. He signed for the Tulsa club of the Texas league, and in its rookie quota. Tho Eddie, as a semipro in South Bend last summer, struck out 14 Cubs in an exhibition game, he is slated for a lot of seasoning before he can be taken seriously as a big league prospect, it is said. There's been a lot of talk about Hanyzewski's tender years but he looks like a 26 or 28 year old wrestler in the flesh. Trainer Andy Lotshow predicts Hanyzewski will be a starting pitcher for the Cubs this year after he has shown his stuff in several exhibition games.

Navy May Get Meers.

Russell Meers, the lefty who won 16 games while losing five for Nashville last year, has been showing a fire ball in batting practice, but Manager Wilson and other Cubs refuse to become ecstatic in so far as Cub plans are concerned. Officials are convinced Russ is being trained not for the Cubs but for the Great Lakes team. Which is all right with them for nobody in camp is mad at Great Lakes.

There are a lot of other rookies around but we'd rather not talk about any of them, at least until they have appeared in camp games, preferably after they have faced the White Sox, Pirates, and Athletics.

WHITE SOX, 1942 EDITION, NEAR PLAYING WEIGHT

dence covering the effectiveness of the Sox pitchers last year. They'll concede it readily enough, but can't paint it quite as colorfully as the cold figures. The number of complete games alone is enough. Thornton Lee finished 30 of the 34 games he started. Eddie Smith weathered 21 of his 33 starts, Ted Lyons 19 of 22, and John Rigney 18 out of 29. This is all the more remarkable when allowance is made for the fact that these men seldom were given a comfortable batch of runs by their light hitting mates.

Perhaps Dykes himself should be accorded a smattering of credit for the ease with which his men go thru one nine inning job after another. The Sox manager isn't the kind easily aroused over difficulties on the mound. He gambles on the ability of the pitcher to get out of a jam, whereas most managers call in a relief hurler. Dykes' system builds up confidence instead of tearing it down. And he doesn't have his staff in a perpetual state of panic.

There's Something to It.

If there isn't something to the Dykes' system how are you going to account for the results he has been getting from men who were labeled failures elsewhere? Lee couldn't win at Cleveland but changed as soon as he came to Chicago. Smith did a similar turn around after being released by the Athletics. Bill Dietrich did the same in a milder way after moving from the Athletics to the Sox by way of Washington. And last fall Johnny Humphries who couldn't do anything as an Indian, squared off and pitched four beautiful games in a row, a performance reflected in his excellent average of 1.85 runs per nine innings.

Humphries is the standout among the fellows who have a chance to furnish the power that will make the Sox mound department bigger and better. He always has possessed a vast amount of ability, but at Cleveland he never had a chance to rest. He either was in the bull pen or finishing up for some distressed mate. The careless way in which he was handled almost ruined his arm. But he got it back to normal by sensible handling during the early part of last season and his impressive finish was the answer.

Dietrich Isn't on a Pension.

Dykes' patience with Dietrich hasn't been quite exhausted, but bespectacled Bill needn't continue to think he is on a pension. The Sox manager keeps on going along with the fellow, thinking that eventually Dietrich will realize that he is supposed to carry a bit of the pitching burden. He has the ability to carry it, but not the inclination. When he beat Bob Feller in last season's opener Dykes figured it was just the tonic Dietrich needed, but soon thereafter Dietrich was back in his intermittent rôle.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—All records for schoolboy mile runs were broken today by Frank Dixon, 19 year old brown skinned flyer from St. Francis prep in Brooklyn. He galloped around Madison Square Garden's 11 lap banked boards in 4 minutes 20.7 seconds.

In capturing the prep school mile in his first year in that stepped up division, Frank eclipsed by a full second the indoor mark set at Dartmouth by Les MacMitchell in 1938, and also lopped six-tenths off the 4:21.3 outdoor standard set by Lou Zamperini at Torrance, Cal., High school eight years ago.

Notre Dame Streak Ends at 8 Straight.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Michigan State's four seniors tonight made their final appearance before a home crowd of 7,300 and led the Spartans to a 46 to 43 victory over Notre Dame. Tonight's game ended the season for the Spartans and also enabled them to avenge an earlier 52 to 49 defeat at the hands of the Irish at South Bend.

Joe Gerard and Fred Stone gave the Spartans a 33 to 31 lead early in the second half and from that point on the Irish could not regain the lead. With five minutes of play remaining Michigan State held a 46 to 40 margin, but Bob Faught and Bob Rensberger cut it to 46 to 43 with four minutes to go, but the Spartans froze the ball and Notre Dame was unable to score again.

Tonight's victory by the Spartans brought to an end an eight game winning streak on the part of the Irish and at the same time enabled Michigan State to close the season with a record of 15 victories against 6 defeats.

Horace Mann Wins Indiana District Title

The field for the 1942 Indiana State High school basketball championship was reduced to 64 last night as the survivors triumphed in final district tournament games.

Horace Mann of Gary, one of the favorites to succeed Washington as state champion, won the district meet in Gary by disposing of Emerson, one of its city rivals, 35 to 20. The triumph enabled Horace Mann to move into the sectional at Hammond, where it will meet Michigan City next Saturday.

Michigan City, led by Jim Skidde, who scored six field goals and three free throws, won the meet in its home city by defeating La Porte, 36 to 30. Michigan City held a 12 to 5 advantage at the end of the first period, 24 to 12 at the half, and 28 to 17 at the conclusion of the third quarter.

Roosevelt High captured the East Chicago district title by routing Hammond Clark, 54 to 30. Center Kralavansky led the Roosevelt attack with seven field goals and one free throw. Roosevelt led, 26 to 21, at the intermission.

Central, Goshen Win.

South Bend Central and Goshen were victors in two other district meets in the northern part of the state. Goshen won the Elkhart tournament, defeating Nappanee, 39 to 19, in the final round. Central triumphed at South Bend, eliminating North Liberty, 36 to 32. Lineups:

X-Rays Show Michigan Star's Hurt Not Serious

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Frank McCarthy, Michigan track star who was feared lost to the team after his injury in the Pitt meet Friday night, is not seriously hurt and will be released from the university health service Monday. X-ray pictures taken today indicate that no fracture exists either in the rib or hip, but that both spots were badly bruised.

CHAMPIONSHIP FAMILY

Winning casting titles is nothing new to the Giese family. Ronald Jr. proudly displays the trophy he won with a perfect score in the Tribune Casting tournament at the Sportsman's show in the International Amphitheater last night. His admiring fans are his mother and Ronald Sr. both of whom have won awards in previous Tribune events.

Signs of Spring: Dodgers Nip Giants in Camp Opener, 6-3

HAVANA, Feb. 28 (AP).—National league opposition continued to look just about like it did last season to the Brooklyn Dodgers as the champions opened their 1942 training campaign with a 6 to 3 victory over a slightly air sick crew of New York Giants today.

The Giants, up since long before dawn and still jittery from a wind tossed plane voyage from Miami, pounded out all their runs in the first inning, then quietly subsided in the face of some excellent pitching by a trio of Dodger rookies. Neither side risked its regular hurlers at this early stage of training.

Giants Hit Drake Hard.

The Giants' three run assault came off Tom Drake. The Dodgers tied the score in the fifth, then won with a three run outburst of their own in the seventh.

What proved the winning runs were knocked across by Tom Tatum, Brooklyn farm hand who spent most of last season with Nashville. With the bases loaded, Tom caught hold of one of John Wittig's curves and singled to center field to score two runs.

Bill Werber, Giants' new leadoff man, was the only player to make more than one hit. Both managers used nearly two complete lineups, only Billy Herman going the distance for the Dodgers and Mel Ott, himself, sticking it out for the Giants. Mel received a big round of applause from the Cuban fans every time he went to the plate.

MacPhail Fines Higbe.

Beyond the four solid hits off Drake at the outset, the Dodgers uncovered some exceptional rookie pitching. Ed Albosta limited the Giants to a pair of hits in the four innings he worked, while Bob Chipman, a limber lefthander who won 17 for Atlanta last year, did not give a hit in the last two.

Brooklyn President Larry MacPhail assessed a $350 fine on Kirby Higbe for having missed seven days of training. MacPhail also canceled a Dodger-Giant game at Miami scheduled for March 13. This was not so much to dodge Friday the 13th as to give the Dodgers an extra day's workout at their Daytona Beach base. Brooklyn's pitchers tomorrow will be Hugh Casey, Chet Kehn, and Ed Head against the Giants' Harry Feldman, Tom Sunkel, and Ace Adams. Score:

YANKS SIGN PRIDDY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—The New York Yankees snapped thru their stiffest workout of the spring training season today.

Infielder Jerry Priddy accepted the team's terms, leaving only six players on the unsigned list. Priddy took part in the practice, along with other new arrivals, First Baseman Buddy Hassett, and Pitchers Marius Russo and Ernie Bonham. Those unsigned are Red Rolfe, Charley Ruffing, Joe DiMaggio, Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon, and Charley Keller.

Manager Joe McCarthy ordered practice for 1 p. m. tomorrow—the first Sunday workout during spring training for the Yanks in 18 years.

PIRATES SHIFT ELLIOTT.

El Centro, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—Manager Frankie Frisch tried out Bob Elliott on third base today, right after the outfielder hove into the Pittsburg Pirates' camp. Bob will get a chance to show his ability at the hot corner when Pittsburgh and San Diego of the Coast league play a nine inning game tomorrow.

SHORT ON SHORTSTOPS.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 28 (AP).—When Shortstop Johnny Berardino joined the army corps recently, the Browns counted on Bobby Neighbors, a rookie from San Antonio, as his replacement. Neighbors followed Berardino all right—into the air corps.

However, two other shortstops still are on the team's roster Alan Strange, utility man last year, and Vernon Stephens, a youngster from Toledo.

The Browns also announced they had sold two veteran left handed pitchers, Fritz Ostermueller and Archie McKain, to Toledo, and that Emil Bildilli, southpaw from Toledo whom they were bringing up for another trial, had applied for voluntary retirement.

CARDS USE SANDERS.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—Two rookies and two veterans worked together in the St. Louis Cardinals' first infield drill of the spring training season today. Ray Sanders from Columbus was at first, Bob Blattner from Sacramento at second, Martin Marion at shortstop, and Jimmy Brown at third base.

Sanders has an opportunity to jump into Johnny Mize's old job, but Blattner can look forward to plenty of competition when Frank Crespi ends his holdout.

PENALTIES FOR LEONARD.

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP).—If Pitcher Dutch Leonard doesn't show up at the Washington Senators' camp tomorrow he is going to pay his own training expenses.

That was the penalty which President Clark Griffith decided today he would hang on Leonard, who has been replying to the Senators' contract offers with terse telegrams saying "No." The training expenses will come out of Leonard's pocket, Griffith said, until such time as Manager Bucky Harris declares him fit.

ROBOT HURLS TO REDS.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—Manager Bill McKechnie kept the Cincinnati Reds under the fire of the robot pitcher for three solid hours today. The pitchers get tomorrow off, but everybody else must be out for more batting practice.

Indiana State Teachers to Play Camp Grant Five

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 28 (AP).—Coach Glenn Curtis of Indiana State Teachers' college announced today the scheduling of a post-season basketball game here next Wednesday with Camp Grant, Ill., for benefit of the Terre Haute Boys' club.

36 TEAMS WILL CAST TODAY IN TRIBUNE EVENT

Entry Sets New Record at Sportsmen's Show.

BY BOB BECKER.

When the Chicago Tribune's team casting event opens this afternoon at the International Sportsmen's show a new record in the sport will be set for 36 teams, each composed of five casters, will compete for top honors and Tribune trophies. This entry represents an all-time record in the history of bait casting contests, according to W. R. Collins, Chicago, secretary of the National Association of Angling and Casting Clubs. The TRIBUNE will award five trophies to the five highest teams, one of the most beautiful going to the highest scoring team of women casters. Men, women, and boys will be on the teams casting today.

Indiana is sending 18 teams to today's event. The Indiana groups and the cities they represent follow: Gary Anglers' club, five teams; Indianapolis Casting club, three; Tipton Casting club, three; and the Marion County Fish and Game association [Indianapolis]; Creek Chub Casting club [Garrett]; C. G. Conn, Ltd., Casting club [Elkhart], and the Superior Malt Team [Fort Wayne]. Each will be represented by one team and one or more alternates.

Waukesha Has Four Teams.

The Waukesha, Wis., Casting club will offer strong competition in today's event with a total of four teams. Peoria and East Peoria, Ill., also are sending four casting teams. The Caterpillar Employes' Rod club of East Peoria has nominated three teams for today's event and the Peoria Casting club will be represented by one.

Ready for this out of state invasion will be 13 Chicago casting teams, including some of the best known casters in the country. Chicago's entries are as follows: McKinley Park Casting club, three teams; North Shore Rod and Reel club, two; Scales and Tales club, two; and the Illinois Casting club, Jackson Park Bait and Fly Casting club, Lincoln Park Casting club, Sherman Park Rod and Reel club, Chicago Junction Rod and Reel club, and the Chicago Fly Casting club each have entered one team.

The team event will start promptly at 1:30 o'clock. Nick Kahler, manager of the Sportsmen's show, will extend a greeting to the contestants and formally open the contest, which is the next to the last on THE TRIBUNE's casting program. At 6:30 tonight the dry fly experts will gather at the pool for the final casting event of the show, which closes tonight.

Records Perfect Score.

Ronald Giese Jr., whose parents strapped him in a rowboat and took him fishing at the age of 14 months, last night made the only perfect score ever recorded in a fishermen's casting event in the Tribune casting tournament at the show. By his perfect mark of 100 Giese won the fishermen's final to share honors with Bob Collins, winner of the club final.

The Giese family, which includes Ronald, his father, Ronald Sr., and his mother, now has 10 Tribune casting trophies on the mantle at 6611 West Roscoe street. Mrs. Giese won the first of these by placing second in the ladies' event in 1934 when the tournament was held on Navy pier. The trophy won by Ronald Jr. last night was his sixth. Ronald Sr. has won three Tribune awards during tournaments held since 1934. The elder Giese was in the event last night, but was below par with an 82.

Collins Wins in Castoff.

Collins had to take part in a castoff to settle the club championship. In the first competition involving 23 Chicagoland club casters who qualified during the last week, Collins tied with George Hess at 99. In the castoff Collins tallied 98 and Hess fell to 95. The winner is a member of the Lincoln Park casting club. Hess represents the Chicago fly casting club.

In the junior skish competition held in the afternoon the winner was Howard Speiser, Hammond, with a mark of 95. Paul Brewer, 530 North Orchard street, was second with 93 and Kenneth Woehick, 5031 North Sawyer avenue, was third with 92.

ILLINOIS BEATS INDIANA, 31-3, IN DUEL MAT EVENT

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 28 [Special].—Crippled Indiana defaulted three matches to Illinois tonight as the Hoosier wrestlers suffered their worst drubbing of the season, 31 to 3, and their first at the hands of Illinois since 1930. The victory was the seventh of the season for the unbeaten Illini.

136 POUNDS—Illinois, won by default.
145 POUNDS—Rayburn, Illinois beat Frisk, 8 to 1.
155 POUNDS—Illinois, won by default.
165 POUNDS—Illinois, won by default.
175 POUNDS—Traster, Indiana, beat Berry, 10 to 6.

WISCONSIN LOSES TO MARQUETTE IN TRACK, 55 TO 49

Nine Records Are Broken and One Tied.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 28 [Special].—Marquette had too much first place power for Wisconsin this afternoon in the fieldhouse here and scored a 55 to 49 victory in their annual indoor track meet.

Art Egbert, Marquette sprinter and hurdler, starred in a field that smashed six meet records and three fieldhouse marks and tied another.

Breaks Two Records.

Egbert broke the fieldhouse records for the 60 yard high and low hurdles and tied the fieldhouse record for the 60 yard dash. His 15 points made him high scorer for the meet, which was decided by the relay, the final event.

The Marquette star clipped two-tenths of a second off the high hurdle mark with a 7.3 performance, shaved a tenth of a second off the low hurdle record by winning in seven seconds, and tied Eddie Tolan's 60 yard dash mark of 6.2 seconds.

Two Meet Records Fall.

Bob Beierle, Wisconsin, smashed the other fieldhouse record when he tossed the shot 49 feet 8 inches, nearly a foot farther than Sammy Behr's previous mark of 48 feet 9¼ inches.

Tom Tiernan, Marquette, set a new meet record in the 440 with a 51.1 performance, and Bill Williams, Wisconsin's defending Big Ten champion, set a 13 foot 8½ inch meet record. Summaries:

MILE—Won by Grochowski, Marquette; Stafford and Knox, Wisconsin, tied for second. Time, 4:25.

60 YARD DASH—Won by Egbert, Marquette; Soergel, Wisconsin, second; Larson, Marquette, third. Time, 06.2. [Equals fieldhouse record set by Tolan, Michigan, in 1931 and breaks old meet record of 06:4 by Kauffman, Wisconsin, 1939].

HIGH JUMP—Won by Welch, Marquette; Moreau, Hertz, Hogdell, Wisconsin, tied for second. Height, 6 feet 1¼ inches.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Tiernan, Marquette; Zolin, Wisconsin, second; Rummel, Marquette, third. Time, :51.1. [Breaks old meet record of 52 seconds by Vosberg, Marquette, 1941].

60 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Egbert, Marquette; Lambert, Wisconsin, second; Hertz, Wisconsin, third. Time :07.3. [Breaks fieldhouse and meet record of 07:5 by Smith, Wisconsin, 1939].

POLE VAULT—Won by Williams, Wisconsin; Anderson, Wisconsin, second; Baerwald, Marquette, third. Height 13 feet 8½ inches. [Breaks meet record of 13 feet 7 inches by Padway, Wisconsin, 1939.]

TWO MILE—Won by Knox, Wisconsin; Bauer, Wisconsin, second; Murphy, Marquette, third. Time, 10:03.3.

SHOT PUT—Won by Beierle, Wisconsin; Klug, Marquette, second; Kalchik, Marquette, third. Distance, 49 feet 8 inches. [Breaks fieldhouse record of 48 feet 9¼ inches by Behr, Wisconsin, 1931 and meet record of 47 feet 1 inch by Rubow, Wisconsin, 1936.]

880 YARD RUN—Won by Skagen, Marquette; Lorisch, Marquette, second; Paeschke, Marquette, third. Time, 2:00.

60 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Egbert, Marquette; Towle, Wisconsin, second; Lambert, Wisconsin, third. Time, :07. [Breaks fieldhouse record of 7.1 seconds by Smith, Wisconsin, 1939.]

BROAD JUMP—Won by Moreau, Wisconsin; Welch, Marquette, second; McFadzean, Wisconsin, third. Distance, 22 feet 5¾ inches.

RELAY — Won by Marquette [Rummel, Skagen, Grochowski, Tierman]. Time, 3:31.

MAROONS BEAT N. U.

The University of Chicago registered its third successive victory over Northwestern's track team, 55 to 48, in Midway fieldhouse yesterday afternoon. A Maroon victory in the mile relay clinched the meet.

MILE RUN—Won by Randell [C.]; Winkelman [C], second; Tozer [C.], third. Time—4:49.

440 YARD DASH—Won by Wilner [C.]; Fradkin [C.], second; Gordon [C.], third. Time—0:51.5.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Dahlberg [C.] and Tozer [C.], tied; Raemer [N.], third. Time—10:46.5.

880 YARD RUN—Won by Randall [C.]; Winkelman [C.], second; Lowey [N.], third. Time—2:01.9.

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Boyes [C.]; Wilkinson [N.], second; Vynalek [N.], third. Time—0:09.6.

POLE VAULT—Won by Chatain [N.]; Rider [C.], second. Height—11 feet 6 inches.

SHOT PUT—Won by Ovson [N.]; Deodulc [N.], second; Goddard [N.], third. Distance—42 feet 10 inches.

70 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Vynalek [N.]; T. James [N.], second; D. James [N.], third. Time—0:08.6.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Buffmire [N.]; D. Smith [N.], second; Rapier [C.], third. Distance—20 feet 11½ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Won by D. Smith [N.]; Lewis [N.], second; Boyes [C.], third. Height—6 feet.

MILE RELAY—Won by Chicago [Fradkin, Gordon, Claster, Wilner]. Time—3:37.8.

OHIO STATE BEATS ILLINI

Columbus, O., Feb. 28 [Special].—Ohio State won its fifth straight and last indoor track meet of the year here today, beating Illinois, 57 to 47. The Big Ten indoor track meet will be held next week-end in Chicago.

Robert Wright, lanky hurdler and dash star of the Buckeyes, won three events, the 60 yard dash in 6.4 seconds; the 70 yard low hurdles in 8.6 seconds, tying the fieldhouse record, and the 70 yard high hurdles in 7.8 seconds.

Another outstanding performer was Leroy Collins, who made up a 25 yard deficit in the mile relay, which the Buckeyes won to clinch the meet.

Bob Dunn of Illinois set a new fieldhouse record in the two mile run by negotiating the distance in 9:39.1. The former record was held by Ohio State's Jim Whittaker, 9:41.9, set in 1940. Summaries:

440 YARD RUN—Won by Rehberg, Illinois; Owen, Ohio, second; Kelly, Illinois, third. Time, :50.2.

70 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Wright, Ohio; Hoeffinger, Ohio, second; Olsen, Illinois, third. Time, :08.6.

POLE VAULT—Won by Schmidt, Ohio; Stimmel, Ohio, and Matter, Illinois, tied for second. Height, 13 feet 4 inches.

SHOT PUT—Won by Simmons, Ohio; Cornell, Illinois, second; Mail, Illinois, third. Distance, 45 feet 10¾ inches. [Johnston of Ohio won second, but was disqualified for using a shot .005 of a pound lighter than regulation.]

HIGH JUMP—Won by Hoeffinger, Ohio; Crable, Ohio, and Edwards, Illinois, tied for second. Height, 6 feet 4½ inches.

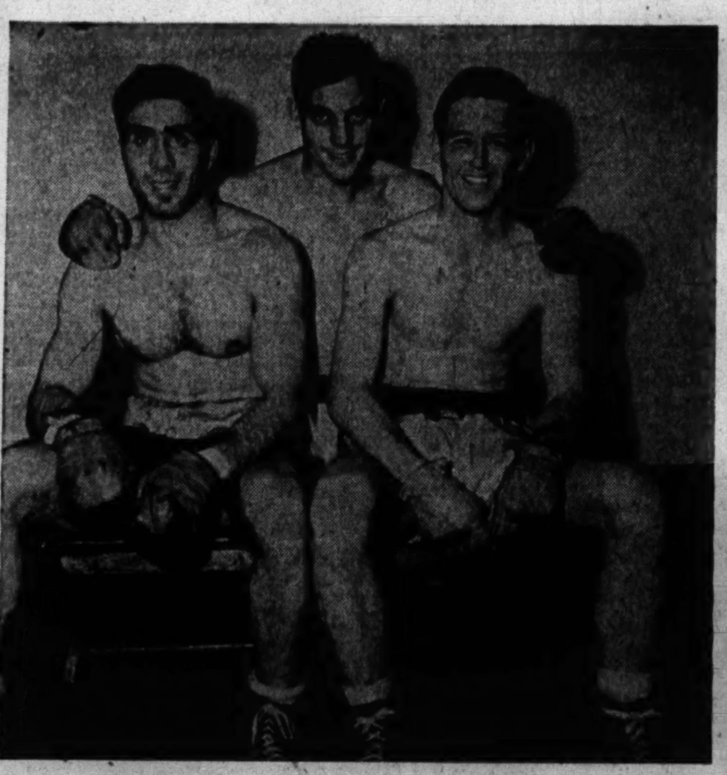
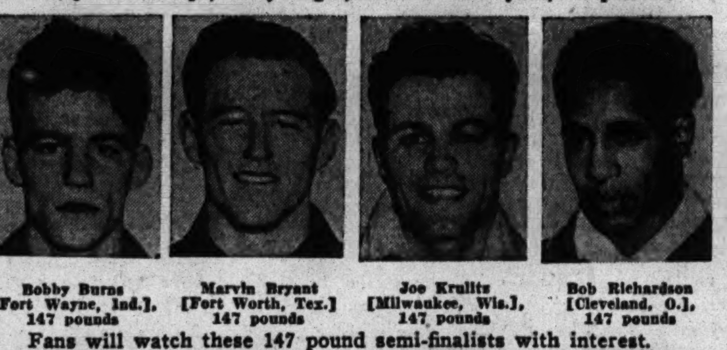
FROM THESE BOXERS WILL COME 1942 GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPIONS



Three of the four members of the Fort Worth, Tex., team who will fight for a Golden Gloves championship in the tournament finals in the Stadium Friday night as they appeared after a workout yesterday in the Illinois Athletic club, their headquarters. Left to right: Tom Attra, 175 pounds; James Philips, heavyweight, and Marvin Bryant, 147 pounds.



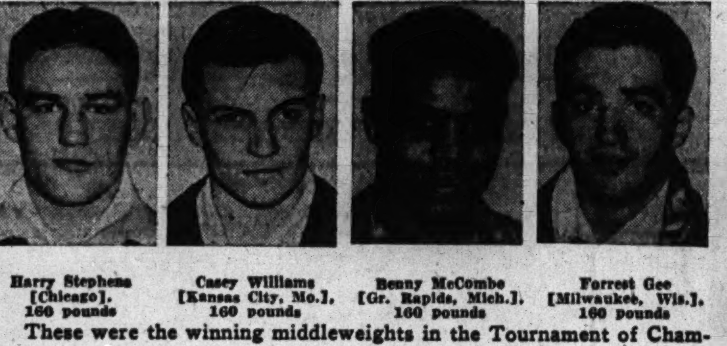
Bobby Burns [Fort Wayne, Ind.], 147 pounds

Marvin Bryant [Fort Worth, Tex.] 147 pounds

Joe Krulitz [Milwaukee, Wis.], 147 pounds

Bob Richardson [Cleveland, O.], 147 pounds

Fans will watch these 147 pound semi-finalists with interest.



Harry Stephens [Chicago], 160 pounds

Casey Williams [Kansas City, Mo.], 160 pounds

Benny McCombe [Gr. Rapids, Mich.], 160 pounds

Forrest Gee [Milwaukee, Wis.], 160 pounds

These were the winning middleweights in the Tournament of Champions.

Bob Grunden Danville, Ill.], 112 pounds

Hank Ulrich [Des Moines, Ia.], 112 pounds

Melvyn Pullen, [Dayton, O.], 112 pounds

Le Roy Jackson Cleveland, O.], 112 pounds

Tommy Burns [Fort Wayne, Ind.], 118 pounds

Andy Duncan [Peoria, Ill.], 118 pounds

Jack Graves [Minneapolis, Minn.], 118 pounds

Charles Riley [St. Louis, Mo.], 118 pounds

Proctor Heinold [Okla. City, Okla.], 126 pounds

Delbert Cockayne [Des Moines, Ia.], 126 pounds

Sammy Derrico Cleveland, O.], 126 pounds

Horace Tiyona [Sioux Falls, S. D.], 126 pounds

Morris Corona [Fort Worth, Tex.], 135 pounds

Tommy Lemmon [Milwaukee, Wis.], 135 pounds

Bert Williams [Sioux Falls, S. D.], 135 pounds

Julius Menendez [St. Louis, Mo.], 135 pounds

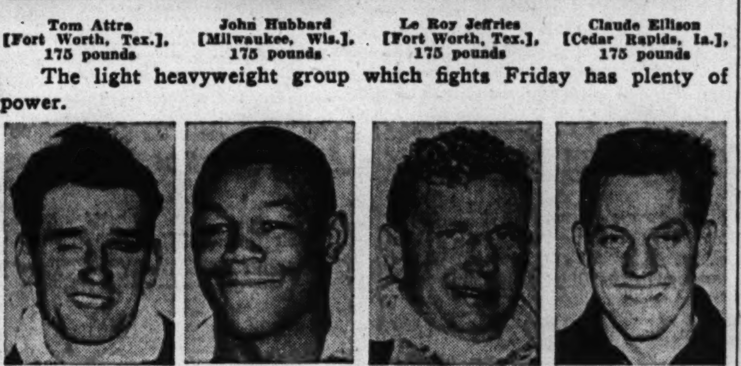
Tom Attra [Fort Worth, Tex.], 175 pounds

John Hubbard [Milwaukee, Wis.], 175 pounds

Le Roy Jeffries [Fort Worth, Tex.], 175 pounds

Claude Ellison [Cedar Rapids, Ia.], 175 pounds

The light heavyweight group which fights Friday has plenty of power.



George Roscoe [Cleveland, O.], Heavyweight

Hubert Hood [Chicago], Heavyweight

Bill Joachim. [Camp Polk, La.] Heavyweight

James O. Philips [Fort Worth, Tex.], Heavyweight

A Sports Editor's Initiation in Golden Gloves—He Likes It!

[The following column, which appeared in last Thursday's Memphis Commercial Appeal, was written by Walter Stewart, the paper's sports editor, who last week attended the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions for the first time.]

BY WALTER STEWART.

This Golden Gloves is a tremendous thing—an organization so amazing that an intelligent man cannot grasp it without a few hours of close study. As for us, we grasped it in something less than a week. Chicago is its heart and arteries as far east as Cleveland—to Colorado on the west, the gulf on the south, and Minneapolis on the north.

Eliminations in the vast territory are timed to send the boxers into Chicago at the top of their form. This is no easy task, but the real work doesn't begin until the warriors cross the city limits and converge on the Stadium. There were 304 of them this year and they came from 23 states.

Walter Explains System.

This huge field must be cut to 32 in three nights of desperate thumping, and the problem is crested with a series of wicked knots. It is met in the following patient fashion:

The four lighter weights weigh in Monday afternoon and fight Monday night. The bigger bruisers hammer and bang on Tuesday, and all divisions clear for action Wednesday. This phase is now complete and the 32 survivors will fight twice on March 6 for the western titles.

We haunted the dressing rooms for a few hours Wednesday evening and marveled a bit at the smooth efficiency. The boys report at the Stadium at 6 p. m. They undress immediately and the team coach cloaks their paws in bandages. In one of the Stadium's vast subterranean wings lines of cots are pitched—lines which run as far as the normal eye will reach.

Golden Glovers at Rest.

We walked along these lines in splashes of blank light from the overhead lamps. It was rather like a ward in some base hospital. The boys lay still—pretending to sleep and wondering what it was going to be like. In their brilliant silken robes they suggested tropic birds with broken wings. Bandaged stumps potruded from loose sleeves, and there was a constant muted murmur as instructors poured out crafty advice. The blare of a loudspeaker rolled in from the distant gloving room.

The boys were taken from the resting station a half hour before the arenic appearance—walked into the glowing room where they were paired and brought to a table groaning beneath a mountain range of mittens. These were tied on by helpers and the fighters slumped down upon chairs which were placed along the wall in pairs—like the passengers in some strange trolley car.

It is a brutal psychological strain, this thing of sitting for a long time beside the fellow you are going to hammer in a little while—a fellow who is going to hammer you, too. Most of them try to look vastly bored, but you can see the little lines gathering around their eyes. You can see the slow tightening of the lips.

Bells, Buzzers, Horns!

Until at last two names boom from the steel chest of the speaker and they walk up the long stairs and into the bellowing gulch which is the stadium. Here three rings are pitched cheek-by-jowl—the platforms brushing. The fabric of battle begins to roll off the looms.

It's really rather confusing. The rounds in one ring are opened and closed by an ordinary bell. An auto horn is used in another, and a buzzer in the third. When bells and buzzers and horns are going off inside your battered head, it's a bit difficult to remember which ring you are fighting in. Thus many fights are broken off in midround and the referee is forced to call back the retreating slashers.

But the task of observing action in three rings at the same time is a mad one. Do you remember when you were a kid and your father first took you to the circus and squandered a few pence on popcorn and sorrel lemonade? The loveliest lady on earth was turning handsprings on a great white horse in the center ring while Capt. Fred Fearnaught drove his performing field mice thru their paces at the left. To the right, you observed the Calcutta jugglers spinning knives and Indian clubs. The air above was stiff with silken shanks and trapeze bars.

Much juvenile eye trouble should be blamed on this. The circus is only a pale carbon copy of the Golden Gloves three-ringer. A lad from Iowa and another from Cleveland are getting viciously personal in the left pen, and two boys from Indiana are milling mildly at center. You naturally watch the best fight. Comes a wild roar and a thud. You swivel center and there is a cold slab of humanity. You swivel back to the left and the fight is over. They're carrying Cleveland out with ice tongs.

Arch Ward and his TRIBUNE henchmen have done an outstanding job. The tournament has moved with speed and zest and rhythm. It is more than just a mass of fights—it is a clearing house for sports gossip as 37 writers from all sections pile in for weighty discussions which outlast the dawn.

It's really rather nice.

CHICK HARBERT PLANS TO ENTER ARMY AIR CORPS

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—Chick Harbert, 27 year old winner of the San Antonio and Beaumont open golf tournaments, said today he hopes to join the army air corps after completing the winter circuit.

"There is nothing definite, because I don't know whether the army will accept me, but I do plan to try to join," he said.

A Battle Creek, Mich., pro., Harbert now holds a student pilot license. He came here to visit his father, E. W. Harbert, a Sarasota professional.

larly strong representation. Corona, winner of his Intercity Golden Gloves match last season, will be supported by Tom Attra, James Olcott Phillips, and Marvin Bryant.

Every one of the eight weight classes contains possibilities of producing semi-final or final bouts that will deserve to be ranked with the epics of other seasons. The boys who are left in the battle have come thru a long campaign and now, with their goal almost within reach, they'll turn on all the power they have Friday night.

The boxers will be fighting not only for Golden Gloves championships but also for places on the Intercity team, which will go to New York to meet the champions of the eastern seaboard in Madison Square Garden on March 30. The makeup of this squad will be determined immediately after Friday night's bouts.

Teams to Gather Thursday.

The Fort Worth team, which chose to stay in the Illinois Athletic club rather than make the long round trip to Texas, will be joined today by Bill Jochman of the Camp Polk, La., team. Jochman has been spending a few days in his Iowa home before returning to intensive training for his engagement in the Stadium.

The out of town teams will begin gathering here on Thursday and by Friday noon all will be on hand to report in the CYO gymnasium for weighing and physical examinations.

Chicago boxing fans, realizing that this will be their last chance of the season to see Golden Gloves boxers in action, have launched a sustained drive on the ticket counters in the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower lobby.

Haarlow Leads Peddie Quintet to 66-36 Victory

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 28 [Special].—Six foot 5 inch Robert Haarlow, former star at Chicago's Calumet High school, ended a brilliant season for Peddie school today, scoring 27 points to bring his total to 306. His 11 field goals and 5 goals led Peddie to a 66 to 36 route of Poly Prep. Haarlow's 306 gave him an average of 21.9 and set a new Peddie record.

SCHLITZ DEFENDS CLASSIC LEAGUE LEAD TONIGHT

The Sunday section of the Chicago Classic bowling league meets at Billy Arbanas' Southwest Recreation, 1659 South Blue Island avenue, tonight in a session that may shake up the leaders. Schlitz, which holds first place by one game, meets the National Bowling Equipments.

Koenig Brau, Monarch and Pabst, all tied for second place, meet second division quintets. Koenig's tangle with the Washington Shirts, Monarchs clash with the Blatz crew, and Pabst goes against the Ambrosias.

Snow, Cold Weather Postpone Start of Notre Dame Practice

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 28 [Special].—Notre Dame's spring football practice has been postponed indefinitely because of snow and cold weather, Coach Frank Leahy said today. He had hoped to start drills Monday, but after surveying Cartier field on his return from Chicago, he said that it might be a week or two before the snow covered field would be ready for the start of the six week session.

While in Chicago, Leahy underwent further treatments for a throat condition which has forced cancellation of several speaking engagements.

Amplifying remarks made in a recent interview concerning the use of the T-formation in his offense in 1942, Leahy stated that to say he is scrapping the Notre Dame system is putting the case too strongly.

Will Experiment with Offense.

"We are going to experiment with the T-formation of the type used by Stanford, the Chicago Bears, and others," he said. "We are also going to retain the Notre Dame shift, and possibly something of the type of T-formation that we used last year at Notre Dame and the two preceding years at Boston college.

"We would be foolish," he continued, "to discard a tried and proved offensive system unless we were absolutely certain that the new style would work for us. It seems to me that our material is particularly adaptable to the Bears' style T, but we are going to retain the shift, too, just to be on the safe side.

"Should we go over entirely to T-formation, this would be no indictment of Notre Dame system and its shift. It would merely indicate that we consider the T better suited to our material this year."

Shift Not Discarded.

Leahy pointed out that the shift could be used from this T as well as from the T he designed and used in the past, and said that instead of this being a break with tradition, it is really a step backward, in a sense.

In the Bears' T, the quarter back plays directly behind the center and he handles the ball on every play. In the Leahy T of the past three years, the quarter back played behind one of the guards and seldom handled the ball.

"The regular Notre Dame shift," he explained, "starts from the balanced line, quarter back behind the center, and the other backs in a straight line five yards back of the line and parallel to it.

Using Basic Rockne Stuff.

"Knute Rockne used the T-formation before the shift was devised, and he used it often after he had put in the now famous Notre Dame shift. Naturally variations have been added to the T, and we plan to add some more of our own—but we are still using basic Rockne stuff."

Leahy said that one big reason for the change-over is the passing ability of Angelo Bertelli, sensational sophomore passer of 1941. Bertelli was not impressive as a runner, and Leahy believes that by capitalizing on Bertelli's ball handling and passing wizardry, he can get a better rounded offense using his best runners in the other three back field posts.

BOLDEN SEEKS TO SQUARE ACCOUNT AGAINST REEVES

Bout Heads Tomorrow's Card at Marigold.

Nate Bolden, 1937 intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner whose string of seven straight victories was broken by Jimmy Reeves on Feb. 16, expects to even the score in a 10 round return bout with the Cleveland light heavyweight in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

If he achieves this ambition it will not be something new, because Bolden defeated Tony Zale after he had been beaten by the current world 160 pound champion three years ago.

Bolden's chance of obtaining revenge tomorrow is good. That's because Nate finished furiously after loafing in the early rounds and made the decision disputable.

Beauford Glover, Mansfield, O., welterweight, and Carmen Notch of Pittsburgh will make their Chicago debuts in a six round semi-windup. Four round preliminary contests will bring together Willie Jones, Gary junior lightweight, and Alvin Bevil; Virgil McKiness, St. Charles middleweight, and Jimmy Crow, and Johnny O'Brien, Calumet City 155 pounder, and Isadore Miner.

Tony Motisi, Chicago welterweight, who gained his largest purse [$1,000] for a 10 round upset of Fritzie Zivic in the Coliseum on Friday, yesterday was given an additional reward—a month's vacation—by Paddy Kane, his manager.

During the rest period the former Catholic Youth organization 147 pound champion will receive treatment for a puffed nose and an injured ear.

Motisi will not be available for a bout until April 10 when Promoter Ross Miller hopes to obtain Freddy [Red] Cochrane, world welter champion, as Tony's foe.

Zivic left last night for Pittsburgh, where he is booked to face Izzy Jannazzo of New York March 9. He hopes for a return match on the April 10 date.

Since Promoter Miller needed only $7,500 to break even on Friday's presentation, the show, which attracted a net gate of $7,633, realized a small profit. The talen cost $5,259, including the $2,500 Zivic collected.

Crisler Offers Compromise on Frosh Rule

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Branding the action of colleges which have lowered the residence requirements permitting freshmen to compete as "impulsive," H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Michigan athletic director, today said he has offered Western conference directors and Commissioner John L. Griffith a compromise program which would permit freshmen to compete in two or three intercollegiate contests after a short orientation period. The essential residence rulings would be retained.

Crisler's suggestion, sent in a memorandum to conference directors, comes as a prelude to an inevitable formal discussion of a possible abrogation of the freshman ruling at the annual conference meeting next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Chicago.

He Has Several Reasons.

Crisler's objections to dropping the freshman ruling are that it would complicate the transition from high school to college for an athlete; the element of injury to athletes who couldn't be properly instructed before entering school; overloading of squads so some would not get proper attention and the fact it lends itself so readily to proselyting of athletes.

Crisler expressed the hope that the Big Ten would not feel compelled to drop the freshman rule but admitted that "perhaps pressure about us will become so great that some defensive measure will have to be considered."

Fears Return of Tramps.

He said that abandonment of the rule "would certainly be invitation for intensive effort in recruiting and proselyting and that undoubtedly there would be a reappearance of the tramp athlete, now quite obsolete."

Formal action on any rule change will have to be taken by the faculty representatives but Crisler said that opinions of the directors will be solicited.

Alsab, the wonder horse of 1941, badly beaten by Requested and Redthorn in yesterday's running of the $28,150 Flamingo Stakes in Miami's Hialeah Park. It was the Chicago colt's third failure of the winter season. Requested beat Redthorn by four lengths, and Alsab was five lengths behind Redthorn.

Co-Capt. Rudy Soderquist made a free throw and then a field goal to put the Hawks in the lead. Then Tommy Chapman and Wendell Hill each added a field goal to clinch the game.

Chapman broke a three year Iowa record in the first eight minutes of the game, scoring seven points to erase the season mark of 215 points set by Bennie Stevens in 1939. Chapman's 10 points in the game raised the record to 223 and broke a tie for second place in Big Ten scoring with Forrest Sprowl of Purdue. Sprowl, closely guarded by Co-Capt. Vic Siegel, got only three points.

Soderquist led tonight's scoring with 13 points. Lineup:

MAROONS LOSE, 49-36

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Led by Jim Mandler, who scored 14 points, Michigan's basketball team tonight dealt the University of Chicago its 31st consecutive Big Ten defeat, 49 to 36. Chicago has not won a conference game for two years. The victory tonight was Michigan's second straight—both over Chicago—for the Wolverines' longest winning streak of the season.

Only 500 spectators saw the game in Yost fieldhouse, and most of them left before the game was over.

Michigan led at the half, 26 to 16, and when the Wolverines had built up a 43 to 22 lead in the second half, Acting Coach Ernie McCoy sent in a stream of substitutes, some of whom had never before appeared in a varsity game.

Mandler's 14 points ran his season's total to 150 for a new all-time Michigan record. Lineup:

WISCONSIN WINS, 44-39

Columbus, O., Feb. 28 [Special].—Wisconsin's rugged basketball team defeated Ohio State this afternoon, 44 to 39. The Badgers, with a half time lead of 24 to 19, lost the advantage when Ohio spurted in the opening of the second half to take a 25 to 24 lead.

Then one of John Kotz's eight baskets put the Badgers ahead again, a lead they never relinquished.

Kotz, with 20 points, set a new all time scoring record for the Big Ten with a total of 193 points. This surpassed the 174 made by Jewell Young of Purdue in 1938. Young played but 12 games for his record and Kotz already has participated in 13 with two more to go.

The game, which attracted 1,538, was played in Ohio State's gymnasium because the American Bowling Congress has taken over the regular hall in the Ohio State fairgrounds. It was held in the afternoon because of a speech scheduled tonight in the gymnasium by Paul McNutt, federal security administrator. Lineup:

Two dollar mutuels paid: Arthur J., $31.70 straight, $12.00 place, $5.40 show; Saku, $5.70 place, $3.60 show; Eire, $3.30 show.

ARTHUR J. got away flying, assumed an easy lead, and in the stretch the boy was looking back at the field. SAKU was taken to the inside in stretch and was next best. EIRE followed pace closely to stretch, then tired. LAST SOU never was a factor. SPREAD EAGLE was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $1,500. The Indian River. Four year olds and up. Six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:41⅕. Winner ch. c., 4, by Equipoise-Wand, by Man o' War. Owner, Cedar farm. Trainer, C. W. Shaw Jr. Time, 1:11 4-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Warlock, $22.60 straight, $9.20 place, $4.60 show; Johnnie J., $5.00 place, $3.50 show; Doublrab, $3.30 show.

There was a lot of crowding and rough riding in this race, in which several of the horses were knocked out of all contention. WARLOCK was clear of interference, ran into lead in last sixteenth, but was doing his best to win. JOHNNIE J. was probably pounds the best. He was almost knocked down just after the start, recovered, and was closing fast when he again was blocked in the stretch. DOUBLRAB, well up, had no mishap. ZACATINE also was almost knocked down. He just galloped along behind leaders. KINGFISHER closed some ground. DAILY DELIVERY had good speed for five furlongs, then quit.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $2,500. Four year olds and up. Mile and a furlong. Start good. Won easily, place driving. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:19. Winner b. c., 4, by Brokers Tip-On Hand, by On Watch. Owner, L. Tufano. Trainer, G. W. Carroll. Time, 1:49 3-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Market Wise, $8.90 straight, $4.50 place, $3.70 show; Attention, $6.60 place, $4.90 show; War Relic, $4.40 show.

MARKET WISE was kept on inside in early running, began to move up turning out of backstretch, then was steered to the outside of the leaders, closed with a rush and was drawing away at end. ATTENTION was rushed to the front soon after the start and, perfectly rated, held on gamely. He is sure to improve. WAR RELIC was hustled away from the gate, showed good speed and made a game effort. MIOLAND began to move up around turn but was caught in close quarters. He finished gamely in the middle of the track. CHALLEDON was allowed to trail far back. He finished gamely. BEST SELLER broke good, showed fine early speed. PICTOR had no mishap. PORTER'S CAP quit badly. OLYMPUS was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—Purse $25,000 added. The Flamingo stakes. Three year olds. Mile and a furlong. Start good. Won easily, place same. Went to post at 4:50⅕. Off at 4:53. Winner ch. c., 3, by Questionnaire-Fair Perdita, by Eternal. Owner, B. F. Whitaker. Trainer, J. H. McCoole. Time, 1:50 2-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Requested, $13.10 straight, $5.70 place, $4.30 show; Redthorn, $6.30 place, $3.70 show; Alsab, $5.00 show.

REQUESTED broke from outside of the stalls. He was slow to get away but quickly worked his way up. He got to the front entering stretch and drew away, winning nicely in hand. REDTHORN, away fast, was hustled along from the start and held on well. ALSAB broke good and fast. He was taken to outside around turn, closed ground, but never was a serious threat. FIRST FIDDLE, away flying, showed good speed but weakened in last half mile. WOOD ROBIN came along at end to beat a lot of tired horses. AMERICAN WOLF, well up all the way, was being eased up at end. BRIGHT WILLIE broke from outside of gate, got away slowly and never had a chance with the break.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $1,500. Four year olds and up listed in grade C. Mile and one-half. Start good. Won driving, place easily. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21⅕. Winner br. g., 5, by Whiskalong-Chicon, by Chicle. Owner, Mrs. L. Lazare. Trainer, W. O. Hicks. Time, 2:31.

Two dollar mutuels paid: City Talk, $8.10 straight, $4.30 place, $2.60 show; In Question, $4.20 place, $2.60 show; Century Note, $2.50 show.

CITY TALK, going in best form, assumed command soon after the start and, perfectly rated along, saved ground and gamely stalled off the determined bid of IN QUESTION. The latter moved up gradually, was taken to outside in stretch, finished very fast and would have won in another stride. CENTURY NOTE followed pace to middle of turn, made his bid but faltered in run thru stretch. ROYAL MAN had no mishap. GREEDAN had speed for seven furlongs then tired.

EIGHTH RACE—Purse $1,200. Four year olds and up. Mile and one-half [on the turf]. Start good. Won easily, place driving. Went to post at 5:51. Off at 5:52⅕. Winner ch. m., 5, by Ksar-Ridge Blond, by Durbar II. Owner, I. Bieber. Trainer, H. Jacobs. Time, 2:35.

HILLBLOND, showing a decided liking for the grass course, was sent to the front at the end of a mile and drew away easily. BROWN BOMB moved up gamely in last half mile and was next best. DOGO had a very rough trip but gamely overcame interference and finished fast. TEDDER had no mishap.

Frankie Pytlak, Red Sox Catcher, Is 1-A—in Draft

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP).—Frank Pytlak, Boston Red Sox catcher, was placed in class 1-A today by selective service officials, Chairman Leo H. Kirshenstein of local board 602 said. Pytlak's induction will be ordered by Cleveland board 19, where he is registered. He was examined by a Buffalo physician Thursday.

ELAINE GORDON SETS NEW MARK IN DETROIT MEET

Cracks National Record in 440 Yard Dash.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special].—Elaine Bogda Gordon of Chicago set a national record when she won the 440 yard dash for senior women in the North American Indoor Speed Skating championship meet in the Olympia arena tonight.

Pressed by Detroit's Margaret Cook and Cleveland's Laverne Dahm, the Chicago skater led all the way, traveling the distance in :40.4.

Other Chicago skates who starred were Don Fahrenbach, Jerry Fahrenbach, Luetta Dumez, and Ken Henry.

In the intermediate boys' class, Don Fahrenbach finished second to John Schneider of New York in the 440 yard event. His brother, Jerry, placed second to Frank Williams, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., in the junior boys' 440 yard event.

Miss Dumez was the winner of the 440 yard event for junior girls. In this contest Lorraine Sabe of Detroit and May Hurd of Cleveland set the early pace, but were disqualified for jostling each other. Their disqualification gave first place to Miss Dumez.

Henry engaged in a duel with Jerry Oldenkamp of Detroit in the juvenile boys' 440 yard dash, finishing a close second.

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY JOSEPH MORANG.

Navy Pier.

DESPITE a late season start, Navy Pier's basketball team came along rapidly enough to reach the final of the Queen of Angels invitational tournament last Sunday, losing to the strong Daley Hamburgs in the title game, 35 to 23. . . . Still, the boys on the team got a good share of the prizes as consolation for finishing in the runner-up spot. . . . CPO Bill Murphy, former Maroon basketball and tennis star, was voted the most valuable player in the tournament, and his twin brother, Chet, was selected on the all-tournament team. . . . Pier carpenters are putting spare moments into completion of a trophy chest, for with the sports program gaining daily in scope under the direction of Lieut. Jim McMillen and Lieut. J. D. Murphy, Pier personnel believes there wil soon be urgent need for one.

Chanute Field.

FOLLOWING the departure of five stars from Chanute's basketball team and last Monday's 53 to 31 defeat by Camp Grant, the Planesmen canceled the rest of their basketball schedule. . . . Officers' training exacted a heavy toll of Chanute athletes last week. . . . Those who were transferred:

Three Chanute boxers went to Chicago for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions after winning district titles in Danville. . . . They are Danny Dann, heavyweight; Carl Robinette, lightweight, and Harold Driscoll, light heavyweight. . . . The 9th Air Base quintet advanced a step closer to the post intersquadron title when it whipped the 32d School twice last week. . . . A 28 team double elimination tournament is now being played. . . . Shine Correll and Larry Adams are pacemakers for the 9th Air Base team. . . . Chanute soldiers are admitted to home basketball and hockey games of the University of Illinois for 25 cents per contest—adding considerably thereby to the lung power of the Illini's rooting section. . . . Sergt. Al Bertine reports that volleyball and badminton tournaments will be held next month.

Fort Sheridan.

AFTER three months of shooting, four teams remain in the chase for the post intramural basketball title. . . . They are the Medical Detachment, Battery D, 81st Quartermaster, and Recruit Reception center quintets. . . . Stars of the latter team, incidentally, are Milt Schlechtman and Don Dempsey, formerly of Wright Junior college. . . . Tommy Scannell, once of Leo High in Chicago, paces the quartermaster team. . . . Nine men will compete in the 50 shot finals of the post free throw contest this week. . . . Survivors are Marcellus Feit, Carl Kuminsky, Heck Hector, Frank Gilbert, Don Lee, Jim Lacek, Lieut. Albert Foreman, Lieut. L. N. Chambers, and Walter Jessen.

Fort Custer.

THE fort's gigantic new fieldhouse—which will be equipped with four basketball courts—will be opened as soon as final installations have been made in the way of gym facilities and when qualified personnel to maintain the $80,000 structure has been trained. . . . Three boys stationed at the fort went to the Michigan state finals at Grand Rapids in the Golden Gloves tournament. . . . They are Walter O'Grosky, Steven Sulka, and Paul Coleman, all privates.

Great Lakes.

INTRAMURAL basketball nears a climax next Thursday when four teams battle in the semi-finals for the right to play in the final the following week. . . . Paired in the first contest at 7 p. m. are the Athletic Office and District Personnel teams. . . . In the second game, the Chief Petty Officers will oppose the Recruit Training Office quintet. . . . Lineups follow:

ATHLETIC OFFICE.		PERSONNEL.
Kuharich	F	Schweda
Forte	F	Larson
Grace	C	Crowley
Norris	G	Ketcham
Carey	G	Merten
CHIEFS.		RECRUIT TRAINING.
Lurel	F	Long
Spata	F	Kamp
Petro	C	Clason
Marino	G	Anderson
Bowser	G	Johnson

The station's many swimming pools are in constant use to qualify all personnel in regulation navy swimming tests. . . . Last week 13 companies were qualified in building 3 under Roger Larson, instructor, while in building 212 Chief L. M. Grossmann passed 11 units.

Sports and recreation for the coming week follow:

Tomorrow.
Recruit boxing, building 3 gym, 1 p. m.
Tuesday.
Consolation round, ship's company basketball tourney, building 3 gym, 6, 7, and 8 p. m.
Enlisted men's bowling, building 3 alleys, 7:30 p. m.

Recruit boxing, building 3 gym, 1 p. m.

A packed house watched Adolph Kiefer's Water Follies last Wednesday in building 212. . . . Chief Boatswain's Mate S. Knight, a station veteran, has issued a call for chess players. . . . Chief Knight has been unable to find an opponent worthy of his mettle since the departure of Bob Stein to the naval armory in Chicago. . . . Sam Harshany, former catcher of the Toledo Mudhens and the St. Louis Browns, enlisted last week. . . . Lee Williams, former pitcher for Akron of the Middle Atlantic league, is a chief boatswain's mate, recruited from Cortland State Teachers.

Camp Grant.

THE camp's boxing team lost, but the Army Relief society won last week when the strong Chicago CYO team took a six bout program in Rockford's St. Thomas coliseum by scoring four triumphs against two for the soldiers. . . . Herbie Machino and Tom Partridge were the Grant victors. . . . The camp's basketball team whipped Chanute field and the University of Wisconsin 'B' quintets last week and met Loras college last night. . . . The season will end March 10 in Iowa City, Ia., when the soldiers will face Iowa in a Red Cross charity contest. . . . Lieut. Dale R. Stephenson, an alumnus of Michigan State, is the new post athletic officer. . . . He was named by Brig. Gen. John M. Willis, post commandant, to succeed Capt. Earl L. B. Clark, who has been appointed commander of E company.

Much of Camp Grant's recent basketball success may be attributed to the fine work of Stan Szukala, formerly of De Paul university and the Chicago Bruins, and Ernest Herbrechtsmeier, high scoring center.

THREE boxing matches were the highlight of the monthly "Happy Hour" program held Thursday night at Great Lakes. . . . In the feature bout George Feltes defeated Mike Kell. . . . Chester Rouark stopped Dick Eckstein in two rounds and Howard Burkart knocked out Al Evans in three in the other two bouts. . . . Ensign Paul Soper, assistant athletic officer, has scheduled a basketball game between the Chief Petty Officers and the Illinois Tool Works of North Chicago for Friday at 8 p. m. in building 3. . . . Joe Louis, stationed at Camp Upton, N. Y., will train at Fort Dix, N. J., for his March 27 engagement with Abe Simon in Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the Army Relief fund.

Spartas Battle Detroit in Cup Quarter-Final

BY OFFSIDE.

The Spartas of Chicago and the Chryslers of Detroit will clash today at 2:30 p. m. in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, in the western division quarter-finals of the National Soccer cup tournament. The victorious team will move into the semi-finals opposite the Falks of Milwaukee.

Sparta, undefeated this season, has strengthened its forward line considerably and has an excellent chance of duplicating its 1939 feat of bringing the national championship to Chicago.

MacDermott Carries Chicago Hopes.

Hopes of the Chicago team will be pinned on the scoring ability of Jimmy MacDermott—one of the best center forwards in the nation—and his new mates at the inside positions, Tony Posjpal and Frank Pavlicek. This trio, bolstered by two outside veterans, Jimmy Wolf and Adolph Padalik, has been bombarding opposing goal keepers all season and driving opposing managers to distraction with high scores.

Sparta's defense is the best in the western division and its middle line of three half backs has shown consistent improvement all year. With punch in the forward wall, the Chicagoans could easily make a rout of the tournament. Upon occasion, tho, even the best forward lines have been known repeatedly to miss easy shots, and the Spartas are no exception. Hence, the first few drives at the goal this afternoon by either team may well spell the psychological difference between victory and defeat.

Detroit Team Is Tough.

The Chryslers are a strong aggregation. The team's high position in the tournament testifies to that. Last year the Detroit club reached the finals of both the open and amateur tournaments, only to be beaten out, and this year it has been strengthened by the addition of several players well known to Chicago fans. They are George Hay and Johnny Neilson, formerly of the Wieboldts, and Bobby Williamson and George Coombes.

In a preliminary game the Slovaks will play the Hakoahs at 12:30 o'clock. Feature game lineup follows:

SPARTA.		CHRYSLER.
Silovsky	GK	D. Nelson

Ward Wins Senior Golf on Florida West Coast

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP).—F. W. Ward of St. Petersburg and Olean, N. Y., won the Florida west coast senior golf tournament here today with a 36 hole score of 151. Ward showed a three over par 74 to go with an opening round of 77, and finished six strokes ahead of J. W. Dodge of Syosset, N. Y., and H. L. Vaughn of Lynn, Mass., who had identical cards of 77—80—157.

SCHOOL OPENS TOMORROW FOR CHICAGO BOWLERS

Varipapa Will Conduct Tribune Classes.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

School will open tomorrow for those of Chicago's 500,000 bowlers who feel that they have faults which keep them from being stars and for would-be bowlers who want to get off on the right foot. It will mark the start of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Free Bowling school.

Sessions for the first three days will be held at Ted Lyons' Recreation, then the school will move on to Congress Arcade, next to Lawrence Bowl, and so on until it has offered bowlers in every part of the city an opportunity to take lessons from an expert teacher.

The teacher will be Andy Varipapa, admittedly the game's outstanding pedagog, assisted by Twinkle Watts, a Hollywood glamor girl. Andy will give a lecture to open his daily session, then will roam back and forth along the approaches taking out bowlers here and there, pointing out their faults and working with them until those faults have been corrected.

Twinkle Can Handle That Ball.

Twinkle, who is closer to six than to seven years of age, will be a great deal more than the ordinary glamor girl. She will demonstrate just how a 44 pound mite can not only handle a 10½ pound bowling ball, but so control it as to average more than 150 pins per game on regulation alleys against regulation pins.

At Lyons' Recreation, located on 71st street at Jeffery avenue, Andy and Twinkle will start their program at 2 p. m. tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday. They will remain thruout the afternoon, during which time Twinkle will not only bowl but autograph defense stamp books for youngsters and adults. Then, at 11 p. m., Andy and Twinkle will be back to bowl as a team against any man and woman the management chooses to have them meet. The program will conclude with a demonstration by Varipapa — assisted by Twinkle — of his famous trick shots, a répertoire he has employed in making eight movies.

One Day at Congress Arcade.

After teaching at Lyons' three days the pair will move the Tribune school to Congress Arcade, 2047 Milwaukee avenue, Thursday for a one-day show. On Friday, Saturday, and Monday, March 9, they will be at Lawrence Bowl, 1820 Lawrence avenue.

Their schedule will send them to Schalk's Evergreen Towers in Evergreen Park on Tuesday, March 10; Congress Recreation, Wednesday, March 11, and to Dom De Vito's Park Manor Recreation, 100 East 75th street, Thursday, March 12. Engagements later will bring them into two Bensinger centers in the loop and to Schneider's recreation center in Elgin.

They'll Work Together.

Varipapa and Twinkle will work together for the duration of the school, which it is anticipated will run for 25 or more days. The combination is expected to attract far more fans here than the 58,000 bowlers who saw Andy—and most of whom he worked with—in Detroit. The team was formed here during last week, with E. L. [Hank] Shurmur as manager. Shurmur has been managing Varipapa since last fall.

Thornton Five Turns Back Decatur, 43-32

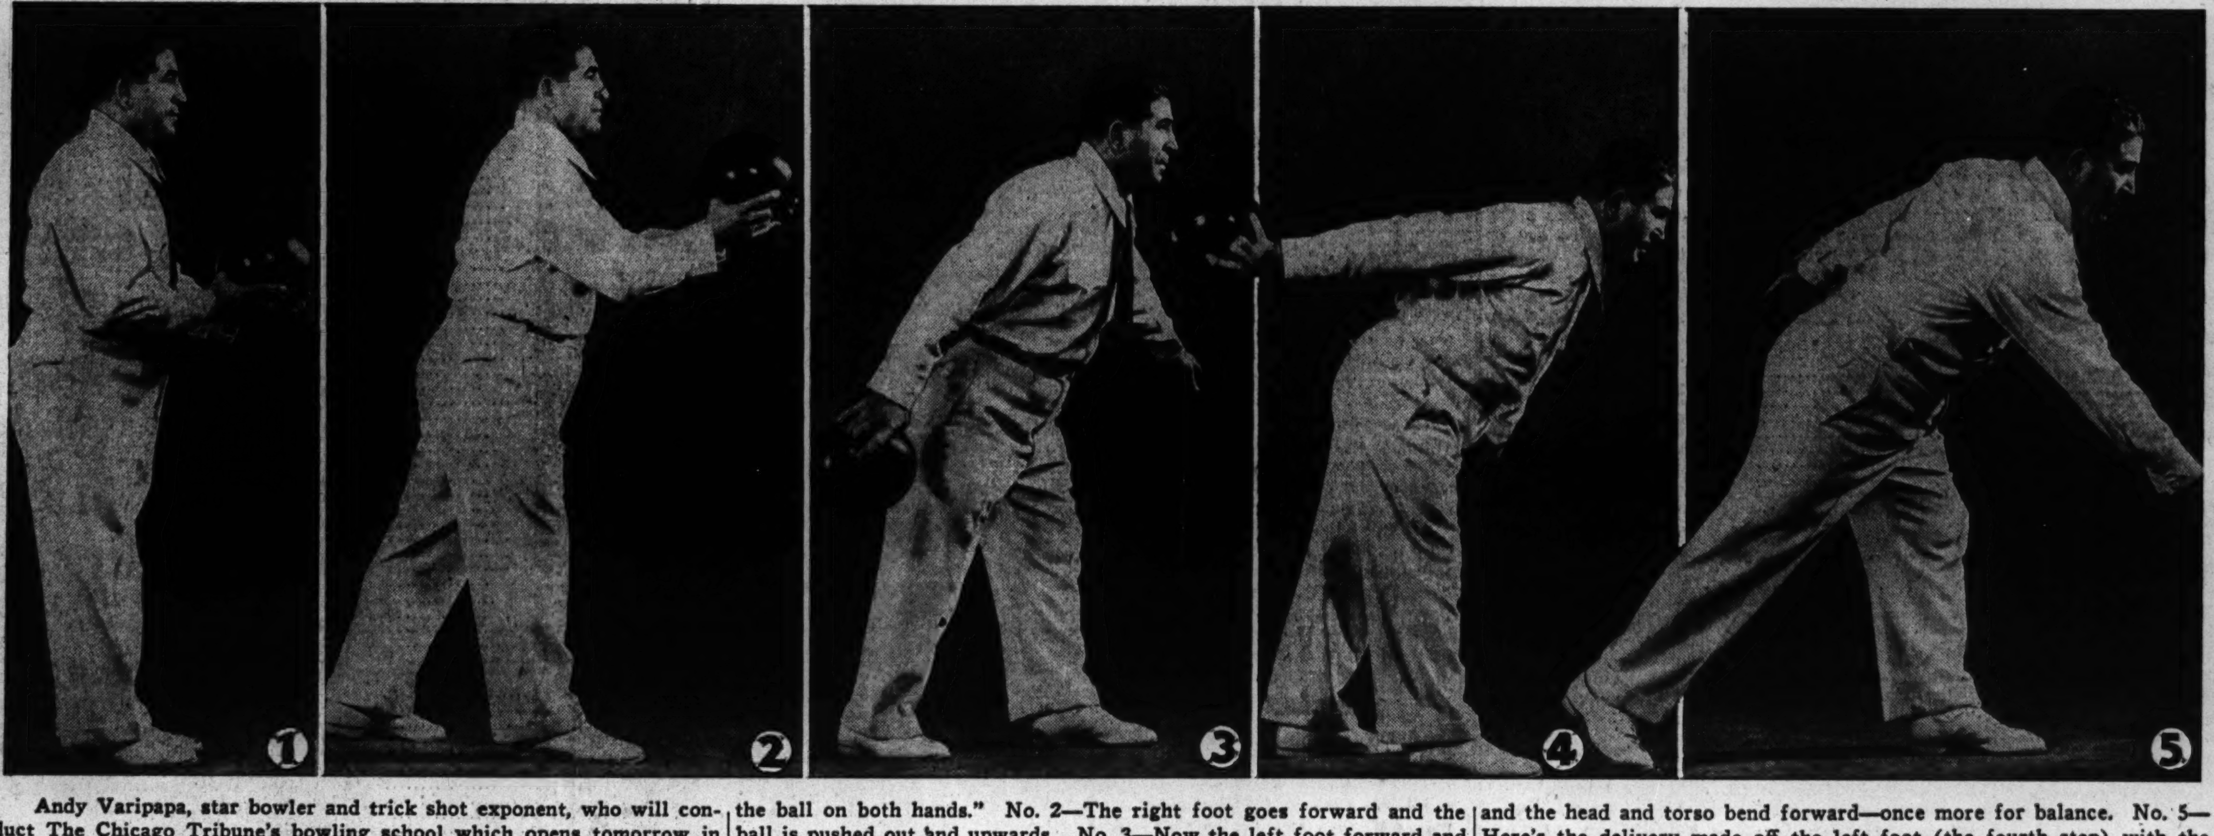
Marquette Gets Another Game—with Great Lakes

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 28 [Special]. —Marquette originally scheduled to wind up its 1942 basketball campaign against Notre Dame in the Milwaukee auditorium next Saturday night, learned today it will meet the Great Lakes Naval Training station quintet at Great Lakes on March 10.

VARIPAPA WILL TEACH TRIBUNE SCHOOL STUDENTS HOW IT'S DONE



Andy Varipapa, star bowler and trick shot exponent, who will conduct The Chicago Tribune's bowling school which opens tomorrow in Ted Lyons' alleys, demonstrates correct delivery of the ball in this series of photos. No. 1—"Keep the knees straight," says Andy, "and balance the ball on both hands." No. 2—The right foot goes forward and the ball is pushed out and upwards. No. 3—Now the left foot forward and the ball back with the left hand out. The purpose is to maintain balance. No. 4—The ball is back, the right foot again moves into the third step and the head and torso bend forward—once more for balance. No. 5—Here's the delivery made off the left foot (the fourth step) with the weight perfectly distributed for an accurate roll.

ABC Tourney Opens Tuesday in Columbus, O.

Decorators today scrambled around steel girders in the barnlike Fairgrounds coliseum putting final touches on the arena for the American Bowling congress, a 73 day affair attracting 28,000 bowlers from 824 towns in the United States and Canada.

In the coliseum lay 36 highly polished bowling alleys. Down one of those 60 foot stretches of hardwood Gov. John W. Bricker will toss the opening ball launching the tournament which winds up May 13. Bowlers will be routed in and out of the coliseum on a split-second schedule for singles, doubles, and five man events 16 hours a day, seven days a week.

It Has Drama Too.

For drama, the ABC is hard to beat. Generally some unknown bowler or some unheralded team walks off with the biggest portion of $260,000 in prize money, diamond medals, and world championships.

For $5 an event a bowler can enter the singles, doubles, and five man team classes. And all have an even chance to win $900 if they are lucky enough to roll the highest single game and be on the winning doubles and five man teams—something no bowler ever has done.

There are no finals and no eliminations. Bowlers just do their best and then start planning for next year's ABC, to be held in Buffalo.

Third Largest Tournament.

The 1942 tournament with 5,742 team entries will be the third largest, being behind the total number entered in 1940 and 1941. But the 5,171 teams coming here from out of town set a new mark for visiting teams. Doubles team and singles entries also have set new marks.

Because of the large entry lists and a 10 day earlier start for the tournament, officials were in a stew over bowling time schedules, most of which were placed in the mails today.

Team captains usually receive their assignments 10 days before the tournament opens, but ABC office attachés were forced to work day and night to get them out this week.

New Pins Cost $98,000.

Nearly $175,000 was spent setting up the special bowling plant for the tournament. Just the pins to be used—every team will bowl against new wood—cost $98,000. All the alleys are new and will be sold after the tournament to private alley operators.

It's the second time Columbus has entertained the tournament and national crisis have marked both occasions.

In 1933 the ABC was held here during the bank holiday and only 1,579 teams appeared. The United States' entry into the war, resulting in thousands of bowlers being drafted, was blamed for keeping this year's team entry of 5,742, from exceeding the record 6,073 set in 1940.

CRISLER ADMITS AN APPROACH MADE BY NAVY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 28 [Special]. —Fritz Crisler, athletic director and football coach at the University of Michigan, was evasive tonight concerning his reported plans to enter the navy as a physical education director.

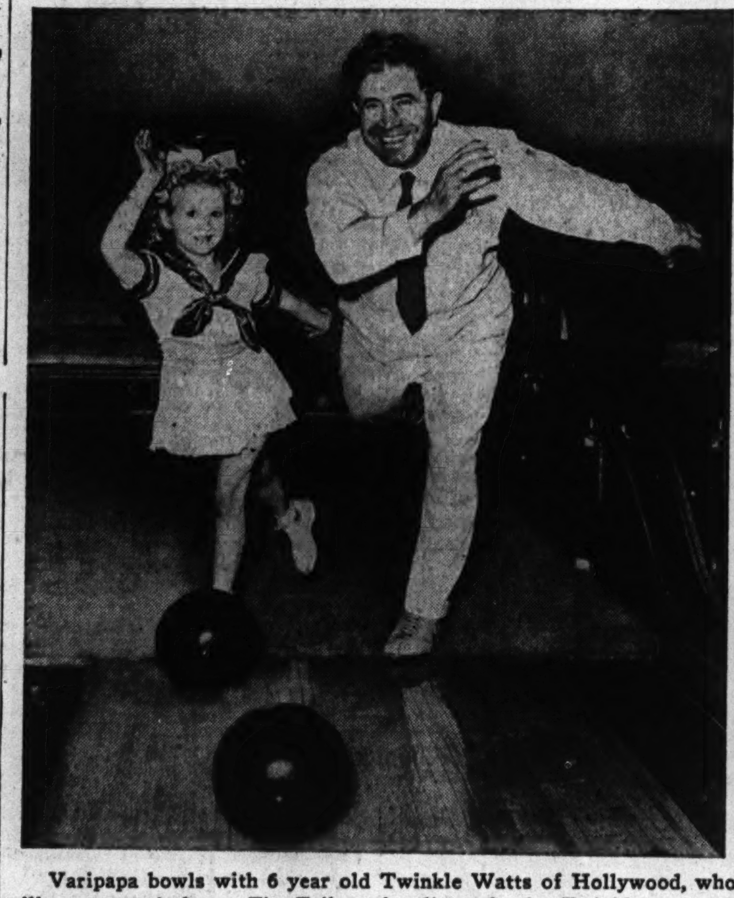
He did say, tho, that he has not yet made application for such a post, adding that if this was done, it would be some time before formal approval would come thru. This was in answer to the report he will leave Michigan for the service in two weeks.

"When I am ready to go," Crisler said, "there will be a formal announcement which will carry all the details of the athletic setup here."

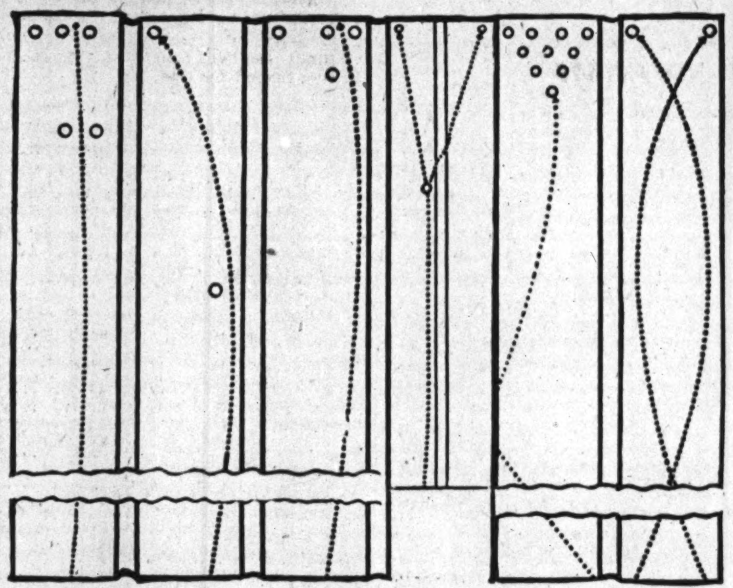
Crisler declared that he has not discussed the possibility of leaving Michigan with any of the university's officials. He said he had been approached by the bureau of aeronautics and the Great Lakes Naval Training station to direct physical education programs among the service men.

Negro Fraternity League Fives to Meet Tonight

Two Negro Fraternity league basketball games will be played tonight in the Savoy ballroom gymnasium. Omega Phi Psi will face Phi Beta Sigma and Alpha Phi Alpha will meet Kappa Alpha Psi. The first game will start at 8 o'clock.



Varipapa bowls with 6 year old Twinkle Watts of Hollywood, who will appear each day at The Tribune bowling school. Twinkle averages more than 150 herself.



Trick shots which Varipapa will demonstrate in addition to giving instruction in the fundamentals of the game are shown in these diagrams. A—Rolling ball between a person's legs makes the 7, 8, 9 spare. B—Making a powerful hook around a stationary ball on the alley and getting the 7 pin. C—A big hook around the 3 pin and picking up the 7, 9, and 10. D—Using two alleys and three pins, Varipapa makes all three pins with one ball. E—Throwing ball in gutter and making a strike. F—Making the 7 and 10 pins with two balls at the same time.

ILLINOIS LIKELY CHOICE TO PLAY NCAA MEET

By its victory over Northwestern last night the Illinois basketball team, undisputed champion of the Western conference, probably will be the choice to enter the National Collegiate basketball tournament from this district. Notre Dame's defeat last night by Michigan State simplified the task of the selection committee, of which K. L. Wilson, Northwestern; L. W. St. John, Ohio State, and George Keogan, Notre Dame, are members.

The eastern tournament for four of the eight NCAA districts will be held in New Orleans March 20 and 21. The tournament of the western districts will be held on the same dates. The championship game is scheduled for Kansas City a week later. Wisconsin won the 1941 tournament while Indiana university was the victor in 1940. That year the Hoosiers were named to represent this district altho Purdue was the Big Ten titleholder, since Indiana held two victories over the Boilermakers.

Coach Doug Mills of Illinois said last night that no selection had been made as far as he knew. Mills now is dismissing the possibility of playing the Great Lakes basketball team in the stadium March 14. The Illini end their conference program next Saturday night in Champaign against Purdue.

NEWARK SIGNS FOUR.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 28 (AP).—The Newark baseball club announced today the signing of four more players: Catcher Tom Padden, Infielder Bill Johnson, Pitcher Bernard Mussill and Outfielder Loyd Christopher.

Hey, Paris, This Hartsburg Team Is Unbeaten, Too

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 28 [Special]. —The Paris, Streator, and Centralia High school basketball teams have been receiving the publicity, while the Hartsburg [20 miles southwest of Bloomington] preps have remained in the background, but, nevertheless, only Paris has a better record.

Last night the Hartsburg Stags won the championship game of the New Holland district meet, defeating Latham, 41 to 33, for their 25th consecutive victory of the season. Both Paris and Hartsburg are unbeaten.

Alfred Lolling, forward and scoring ace, shot 12 baskets last night, raising his total for the season to 374 points. Other members of the Hartsburg squad who play regularly are Kenneth Oltmann, Marvin Barry, Leo Bender, Lawrence Leesman, and Logan Johnson.

The Stags won the Logan-Dewitt conference championship and also the Logan county title prior to capturing district honors.

Four Navy Rallies Beat Temple Quintet, 48 to 40

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 28 (AP).—Navy's basketball team came from behind four times today to defeat Temple, 48 to 40. Navy took the lead for the last time 11 minutes before the end of the game.

Pro Football Plots Course for Wartime

The wartime activities of professional football will be decided in New York this month in the most important meeting since a band of hardy visionaries gathered in a Canton, O., automobile agency 22 years ago to organize the National league.

Commissioner Elmer Layden yesterday fixed March 26 to 28 inclusive as the dates on which National league owners will clear the decks for an all out war effort. The meeting, scheduled for the Hotel Commodore, will be preceded by a session of the rules committee and coaches on March 25. Outstanding among the items of business will be the adoption of a schedule, discussion of night games and the adjustment of league policies and regulations to the national emergency.

Weather Is Problem.

Owners are unanimously in favor of night games, but there appears to be only limited opportunity to increase the number. Parks with lighting facilities are not readily available in the early season. Later the weather becomes a problem. There were only four night games on the 1941 schedule.

Recent agitation by Bert Bell, coowner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, for a shorter schedule and a suggestion by other owners that the championship race be lengthened to 14 games in all probability will not result in any change in policy, Layden intimated, altho both propositions are likely to come up for discussion. Eleven games has been the rule for the last five years.

"We feel our business, athletic entertainment, is an important factor in preserving the morale and furthering the physical wellbeing of the people," the commissioner said. "Decreasing the number of attractions defeats these purposes. On the other hand, active participation in the war program will leave little time to experiment with an increase in the number of regular league contests."

May Reduce Player Limit.

Other changes in the constitution are likely, however. Action of some sort will be taken on a proposal to reduce the player limit for the duration. The present limit is 33 men. Service demands on the playing personnel, Layden pointed out, may make it impossible for some clubs to maintain a squad of 33 active men.

Participation in the recreational programs of the armed services will occupy a good deal of the owners' time. But final decision on this matter will be in the hands of the military authorities and obviously will depend largely upon the conditions prevailing at the various encampments during the football season.

The site of the annual All-Star game, played at the end of the season, in another item slated for attention. Several cities, notably Atlanta, Ga., and Washington, have bid for the game in which the new champion meets the pick of the other nine league clubs. Here again, however, only tentative action is likely at this time in view of the changing conditions.

WALTER MILLIES SIGNS TO HANDLE MADISON TEAM

Madison, Wis., Feb. 28 (AP).—Walter Millies, 32, former Washington Senator and Philadelphia National league catcher, has been named playing manager of the Madison Blues, Duane Bowman, president of the Three-Eye league club, announced tonight.

Millies was placed under contract by the Chicago Cubs to direct its local farm club in the forthcoming season. He will receive $500 a month.

Millies played with Washington in 1936 and 1937 and with Philadelphia in 1939-'40-'41. He broke into organized baseball in 1931 with St. Joseph, Mo., and subsequently played with or managed clubs at Dayton, O.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dover, Del., and Wilmington, Del.

Minnesota Wrestlers Beat Iowa State Teachers

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 28 (AP).—The University of Minnesota wrestling team won its sixth dual meet of the season, taking four decisions and one fall over Iowa State Teachers college today. The score was Minnesota, 17; Iowa State Teachers, 11. Gopher Manly Wilcox pinned Heavyweight Dave Barry in 1:09.5 to decide the meet.

SPOTTING THE PINS

Printers always have been leaders in bowling, and one of their most progressive steps in boosting fellowship as well as aiding the game of American ten pins has been organization of the Printcraft Bowling congress, whose second tournament is scheduled in New York April 10 to 14. The event is expected to list an entry that will put it in the big time class. Chicago's printers—all members of the allied printing trades unions are eligible—will shoot in the event April 13. The Chicago entry is expected to be the largest outside that of the host city. Entry lists are still open, but close March 10. The Chicago commissioner is Charles A. Archer, 614 East 102d street.

Barney Hochstadter's second junior individual bowling classic, limited to bowlers carrying averages of 185 or less, is to be held at Archer-35th recreation April 18 thru 26, with an entry of 800 or more anticipated. The event is a junior edition of the Petersen classic, calling for eight games across 16 alleys. Entries are being taken at Archer-35th, phone Yards 2772.

Beverly Recreation and the Walter Edens won three games from Pepsi-Cola and the Pure Milks, respectively, in Beverly Major competition. Beverly shot 3,021, and the Edens, 3,004. Atlas Prager fired a 3,142 total to score a double over Westgate Valley. Scores:

Northwest Lutheran Tourney to Open on April 11.

The Northwest Lutheran Bowling association has announced its 13th annual tournament, which is to open April 11 at Niles Center recreation, 8146 Floral avenue, Skokie. Competition is limited to members of the Evangelical Lutheran church. Entries close at midnight April 1. George Lund, Niles Center recreation, is secretary. . . . John Larson, 171 shooter in the Ravenswood league at Lawrence Bowl, fired a 668 series last week. . . .

Chris Johnson poured in 731 in Red Crown Recreation's record house league series. He opened with 269, then added 259 and 203. . . . That 732 series in the Hyde Park Men's Junior was fired by Bob Schweizer of the Stengel Florist team, not by Harold Stengel personally.

Monarchs Get High Score, but Lose Two

Monarch Laundry of South Shore Major's big count, 3,061, but dropped two games to Schneider Funerals—the first by 24 pins and the second, 1,015 to 1,012. . . . Vogel Brothers, ABC champions, fired 3,202, in defeating Old Dutch Cleansers in a Red Cross benefit at Libertyville. John Erben, Jim Veverka, and Jim Frana got 738, 708, and 682, respectively. The event netted $71.25.

The North End Traveling league ends its third round tomorrow night. The schedule:

Budweisers vs. Schambergers at North Town, 7 p. m.; Rostenkowskis vs. Gold Crowns at Willow, 7 p. m.; Pepsi-Colas at Samuelsons, 7 p. m.; De Luxe vs. Keeleys at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Chapin & Gore vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7:30.

Century Bonded's 1,032 game gave them high series, 2,866, but the team lost twice to Pepsi-Cola in the Stack & Ryan Major. Prospect Clothiers won three from Goebel on a 2,856 series. . . . Victor Cartage stretched their winning streak to 11 games by sweeping a set with Hub Service in the Ted Lyons Major. The Phil Smidts boosted their lead to eight games by shutting out Palm Grove Inn. George Jordan's 649 series, with a 266 game, was high individual score. . . . The 21st annual Catholic Order of Foresters tournament, sponsored by the Illinois sate court committee, will be held at Queen Recreation, starting April 11 and continuing thru April 26. Adolph M. Betz, 5033 South Bishop street, is taking entries.

Women's Bowling Group to Hold Meeting Thursday.

The Chicago Women's Bowling association will hold its annual meeting Thursday night at the Morrison hotel. Selection of the 1943 tournament site and election of a secretary are items on the agenda. . . . A 532 series by a 130 bowler was the accomplishment of Elsie Krieger in the Berwyn National recreation's Tuesday league. . . . And Dot O'Donnell, a 142 shooter in the C. & N. W. "400" league, fired the circuit's high series, 537, and its high game for February, 210. . . . Goranson's 20 Alleys and Logan Square Buicks continued in their tie for the Congress league lead, each winning three games. Budweiser girls dropped behind on a two game defeat by the WIBC champion Rovick Shoes. Marge Lindvall got 628 and Vaughn Sagert 607 as the Williams Jewelers won a full set from the Pabsts. Waller Meets Wells Juniors in Playoffs

The 1942 players for the Public School league junior and senior basketball championships will begin tomorrow with Waller's undefeated junior quintet, champion of the north section, meeting Wells of the west division in Wells gymnasium. Other games involving junior and senior qualifiers will be played Tuesday and Wednesday.

The field of 32 qualifiers—16 in each division—was completed yesterday when four quintets gained playoff positions by the league's new system of settling ties in section races—drawing the names of the schools from a hat. Previously, league officials gathered with coaches and flipped coins.

The winners in the hat drawing contest were the senior teams of Manley and Kelly in the central section, Morgan Park's seniors in the south division, and Hirsch's junior team also in the south zone. The Hirsch juniors will engage Tilden Tech, central zone champion, Tuesday afternoon in Englewood gymnasium.

The schedule follows:

JUNIORS.

Tomorrow.

Waller vs. Wells at Wells, 3:30 p. m.

Tuesday.

Tilden vs. Hirsch at Englewood, 3:30 p. m.

ROLLER DERBY TO OPEN TUESDAY IN COLISEUM

Roller derby squads representing Chicago and California are awaiting the starter's gun for the 26 night series in the Coliseum Tuesday night at 8 p. m. Each evening competition will constitute a separate game.

Both teams will rely on veteran squads, Chicago's including such stars as Wes Aronson, Paul Gorski, Carl Payne, Mary Youpelle, Marge Richards, and Virginia Balzer. California's team includes Russell Baker, Tommy Atkinson, Dominic Parinella, Jack Walker, Oneida Reynolds, Annis Jensen, and Monta Jean Kemp.

Each squad includes a starting ten—five boys and as many girls—and several alternates. Coaches are Freddie Cohen for Chicago and Pat Alsman, California.

NEW TRIER TIES LANE IN STATE PREP SWIM MEET

Oak Park	26	Danville	3
La Salle-Peru	16	Champaign	2
East Rockford	12	Hyde Park	1
Evanston	7

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 28 [Special].—One of the most thrilling state high school swimming meets in history ended in the first tie of history here in Huff gym pool this afternoon when Lane Tech, heavy favorite from Chicago, was cought in the final event by New Trier. Each team scored 40 points.

It was the first time in five years that Lane did not win an undisputed crown. Coach John Newman's outfit appeared to wrap away its fifth straight championship when its two fancy divers, Robert Stone and William McDonald took one-two. But New Trier came back strongly in the final two events, the two relays, to score 18 points and gain a share of the title.

So close was the meet that New Trier could have won if Ray Anthony had gained an extra 10th of a point in diving. He finished third with a score of 75.26.

Pitt Signs Evashevski as Football Aid

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP).—The University of Pittsburgh announced today that Forrest Evashevski, former football star at the University of Michigan, has been named back field coach at Pitt. Evashevski now is head football coach at Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y.

Evashevski's appointment coincided with the resignations of Dr. Arnold Greene and Harold Stebbins, both ex-Pitt stars, from Head Football Coach Charley Bowser's staff.

Will Practice Dentistry.

Dr. Greene quit to set up dental practice at Harrisburg, Pa., and Stebbins, star half back on the last Pitt teams coached by Dr. John B. [Jock] Sutherland, said he will devote full time to his duties as a Pittsburgh dairy firm executive.

Under Evashevski's régime last fall, Hamilton college won five games and lost two. Evashevski took the Hamilton job after starring at quarter back for Michigan in 1938, 1939, and 1940.

Succeeded by Dickson.

Evashevski will be succeeded at Hamilton by Campbell Dickson, onetime Chicago end and former assistant coach at Princeton and Michigan who now is dean of students at Hamilton, a post he will retain.

SPEED SKATERS TO APPEAR IN LEGION FROLICS

American speed skating stars will meet in five feature events Saturday evening in the Chicago Arena, 300 East Erie street, as part of the Past Commanders Club of the American Legion charity ice frolics and sports show, General Chairman Carl Stockhold said yesterday.

Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, and Col. A. L. Brodie have furnished trophies for the senior men's mile race, intermediate boys' three-quarter mile race, and the junior boys' one-half mile race, and the Commanders club trophy will go to the winner of the girls' quarter-mile, and the Morrison hotel trophy to the midget boys' quarter-mile winner.

Maj. Raymond J. Kelly, past national commander of the American Legion and director of the 6th Civilian Defense region, will be starter and referee of the broom-ball contest between prominent Legionnaires.

Bobby Specht, amateur national figure skating champion, will lead the stars of the Chicago Figure Skating club in routines including solos, pairs, and costume events. Vivi Anne Hulten, ten times women's figure skating champion of Sweden, also will appear. Proceeds will enable underprivileged boys to have summer vacations at Boys' Club camp, Lake Winona, Ind.

BIG FOOD FIRM'S EARNINGS DROP; OMITS DIVIDEND

Standard Brands' 1941 Profit $7,759,142.

Standard Brands, Inc., announced yesterday its earnings last year dropped nearly 2 million dollars below the 1940 level, and disclosed that the quarterly dividend on common stock had been omitted to conserve working capital. The big New York food products manufacturer and distributor has been paying 10 cents quarterly.

The company reported a 1941 net income of $7,759,142, equal to 54 cents a share, compared with $9,516,315, or 68 cents a share, in the preceding year.

As in many other businesses, rising materials, wage, and tax costs under a wartime economy have resulted in an increasing need for cash, officials said.

Inventories Are Larger.

Inventories at the end of the year totaled about 36 million dollars, an increase of about 13 million dollars over 1940, they explained. Of the increase, about 8 million dollars was the result of higher prices of materials and finished goods. To meet this situation directors authorized a 4 million dollar appropriation from the 1941 net income for possible future inventory losses.

Homestake Mining company disclosed its earnings last year were $5,682,999, equal to $2.83 a share, compared with $6,091,137, or $3.03 a share, in 1940. The corporation, largest gold producer in the United States, operates principally in South Dakota. Guy N. Bjorge, general manager, said increased revenues from operations were offset by higher expenses and taxes.

Imperial Tobacco Nets Less.

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada announced its 1941 earnings declined to $5,968,431, equal to 58 cents a share, from $6,202,710, or 60 cents a share in 1940.

Interchemical corporation, New York, said its 1941 net profit was $2,136,110, equal to $6.01 a share before provision for extraordinary charges and credits. The company's 1940 net income fas $1,107,027, or $2.47 a share. The 1941 net was $2,088,034 after deducting reserves provided against assets in the far east. The company manufactures printing inks, paints, and similar products.

National Acme company, Cleveland, O., machine tool manufacturer, reported its earnings in 1941 were $3,145,104, equal to $6.29 a share, against $2,199,148, or $4.40 a share in 1940.

People and Events

Lieut. Col. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps, Lieut. Loren G. Stevens of the army, Lieut. R. C. McKee of the navy, E. R. Seese of the defense savings bonds staff, Graham Hutton of the British Press service, and William Scott of McCann-Erickson, Inc., will compose the jury of awards for defense and war art in the 1942 exhibition of advertising art. The exhibit, opening March 9 at the Art institute, is sponsored by the Art Directors club of Chicago.

More than 120 drivers for the Willett company and Willett Motor Coach company who have driven five to nine years without accident will be honored at a banquet Wednesday night in the Del Prado hotel. Defense bonds will be presented by Howard Willett Sr., president of both companies, to 31 men who have driven without accident for nine years.

Application has been posted for the transfer of a membership in the Chicago Stock exchange to D. Dean McCormick, partner of Kebbon, McCormick & Co., successors to Stern, Wampler & Co.

Four business men of the Chicago area, all of whom held commissions in the reserve corps, have reported for active duty at Fort Custer, Mich., where they are temporarily stationed.

They are: First Lieut. B. W. Feldman, manager of the United Artists theater; First Lieut. Leslie E. Adams, Oak Park, manager of the west suburban office of the social security board; First Lieut. James Maltman Jr., vice president of the Aetna State bank; and Second. Lieut. Ivan A. Horton, manager of the Power Transmission Equipment company.

Fred L. David, assistant manager of the Chicago Defense association, has resigned to enlist in the marine corps.

Chicago Business in January Shows Decided Gain Over 1941

Business and industry moved forward in Chicago during January, with most of the city's activities showing decided gains over the corresponding 1941 month, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday.

Among noteworthy gains were department store sales, up 28.3 per cent; factory pay rolls, up 40 per cent; bank clearings, up 20 per cent; building permits, up 14.8 per cent, and electric power production, pig iron production, and car loadings, each up 10 per cent.

A substantial increase in the number of riders on the Chicago Surface Lines was taken to indicate that the people are using the street cars more to conserve their automobile tires. Use of the telephone, considered one of the best of business barometers, also increased substantially.

Among the few recessions in business activities were a drop in real estate sales and a decline in transactions on the Chicago Stock exchange.

INTEREST DEDUCTIONS.

Just as the interest you receive on money you lend is taxable, interest you pay on your borrowings is deductible in preparing your federal income tax return. As in the case of taxes paid, the revenue code is liberal and does not draw a line between business and personal debts. You may deduct interest on money borrowed to defray purely personal expenses, or on money borrowed to purchase real estate and personal property. The indebtedness does not have to be evidenced by a mortgage, lien or judgment. Frequently, it is evidenced only by a note.

Many taxpayers will have deductions for the interest they pay on instalment purchases, but not all instalment purchases provide for interest. The general test of interest deductibility in deferred payments is this: If you know the interest element contained in each instalment or if interest payments are set forth in the contract, you may take the deduction. Where interest is not provided for by contract nothing is deductible as interest, even tho actually paid. A deduction may be taken, however, when it is clear that the seller intends to charge interest and the buyer intends to pay it.

For example, if the price of an automobile is $950 cash or $1,000 on the instalment plan, no part of the deferred payments is deductible as interest.

If, however, the instalment plan called for 10 payments of $95 each, plus interest of $5, then the $5 interest on each instalment is deductible.

You are not permitted to deduct the interest you pay on the indebtedness of others, unless you are under legal obligation to pay. Where no legal compulsion exists, the interest is considered a gift.

You may not deduct interest on debts incurred or continued for the purpose of purchasing or carrying obligations wholly exempt from federal income tax. This does not apply to partially exempt securities or to United States obligations issued after Sept. 24, 1917, for which you originally subscribed.

If you discount a note, the amount representing the discount is considered interest. Those who report their income on the cash basis cannot claim the deduction until they pay off the note.

For those on the cash basis, interest may not be deducted until it is paid. This means that care should be taken in the case of life insurance loans and marginal accounts with brokers. Payment by giving a new note or any other arrangement which only increases the amount due is not an interest payment for income tax purposes.

75 TRUCK DRIVERS STRIKE ON ISSUE OF BACK WAGES

Seventy-five truck drivers, members of the teamsters union, struck yesterday and tied up all hauling except defense orders at the Ziffrin Truck Lines, 59 East 30th street.

The sole issue in the strike, according to both company and union officials, is the 3.4 per cent raise in pay ordered recently by the War Labor board. The increase was ordered nationally by the board to be retroactive to Nov. 15, 1941. The striking drivers claim they have not received back pay. Dave Goldstone, manager of the trucking company, said the men have not been paid because the order was not clear on the retroactive point.

TWA OPERATIONS FOR 1941 RESULT IN $487,613 LOSS

President Jack Frye informed stockholders of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., yesterday that the company sustained a net operation loss of $487,613 in 1941, compared with a loss of $97,972 in 1940.

He said that while passenger revenues rose 30 per cent to $10,240,662, air mail revenues continued to decline, and costs of labor, materials, supplies, and taxes rose. Insufficient equipment to accommodate overflow passenger loads last summer contributed to the loss, he said.

Total operating revenues for the year were $14,064,259, a 21.5 per cent increase over the $11,572,221 in 1940.

Dr. Walter Dill Scott Joins Committee on Solid Fuels

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., and Louis Jefferson Brann, who served two terms as governor of Maine, were appointed by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today to the industry committee on solid fuels. They were named to represent the public.

GIVES PLAN TO AID SMALL TOWNS IN AND AFTER WAR

Federal Official Advises Study of Assets.

The war will make new demands on the small towns of America and such communities can meet their problems best by first taking stock of their possibilities and assets, Carroll L. Wilson, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, told directors and officials of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The directors of the chamber are holding their mid-winter session in the Medinah club. The final meeting will be held today.

Wilson said the problem which business men will face after the war will be one of creating more and better customers for the products that will be made available by an enormous increase in production efficiency which, he said, will result from the war.

Offers Plan to Aid Towns.

He offered to the junior business men a plan designed to help the small town learn what it can do to carry its share of the war load and to help in making adjustments after the war. The plan was outlined in a manual.

Its theme was that "if more and better customers are created by making better use of the possibilities of each town, every business in that town will gain, and every one who trades in that town will be better off." The first step, as outlined in the bureau's manual, would be to appraise the community's resources.

"Most war jobs filter down at last to some community to get done, or are broken into smaller jobs and scattered to many small communities," Wilson said. "And there, in your towns, the doing of these jobs, and doing it now, depends on the brains, energy, and know how of your townspeople."

Postwar Plans Important.

He said that, altho war needs are all-important now, postwar plans of the community and of business must be directed at "the great common customer, the American family." Selling the goods that increased capacity will make available will require either that more people have the chance to earn more money, or that prices be reduced, he said.

Col. John T. Taylor, assistant director of the bureau of public relations, Washington, D. C., told the group that congress should pass laws now to provide for disabled soldiers and their dependents after the war. He predicted the war will last 10 years.

LONDON AWAITS STEPS TO SCRAP TRADE BARRIERS

Post-War Reconstruction Put Up to U. S.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The new Anglo-American lend-lease pact, announced in the house of commons by Clement Atlee, dominions secretary, was given a mixed reception in financial circles here this week.

Most observers welcomed the promise of economic reconstruction after the war according to ideals embodied in the Atlantic charter drawn up by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Others who had entertained hope that pooling arrangements marked the end of the lend-lease system and the accumulation of British liabilities to America expressed disappointment.

Chief interest centered on article 7, providing "elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce and reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers."

No Advance Commitments.

Pressed in commons as to the meaning of this, however, Atlee said Britain had not committed herself in advance to eliminate the imperial preference arrangement, nor the United States to reduce tariffs.

So far the most stress is being laid here on prospects for changes in United States trade policies. "Altho there can be no doubt about the sincerity of the American government's drive for liberation of world trade, a postwar campaign might easily go wrong in practice," the Manchester Guardian's financial editor said. "Everything will depend on the readiness of the United States to accept an import surplus."

This, it is argued, is the only way sufficient dollars can be put into international circulation to maintain and develop trade between America and the rest of the world.

Not Yet Entirely Plain.

"That readiness," the Manchester Guardian writer adds, "has not yet been entirely made plain in Washington statements favoring reduction of trade barriers."

Uncertainty over the real meaning of the Atlantic charter was voiced publicly by Philip Runciman in his presidential address to the chamber of shipping. He wanted to know "exactly how far the Atlantic charter implies an international agreement for economic freedom of trade" and whether it definitely means removal of tariffs and trade barriers.

Commenting on Runciman's query, Oscar Hobson, financial editor of the London News Chronicle, declared, "It is a shrewd question for there is as yet no clear sign that our rulers are genuinely resolved to implement the undertakings inherent in the Atlantic charter."

INSURANCE GAINS REPORTED BY TWO ALLSTATE FIRMS

Allstate Insurance company's net premiums rose to $5,111,266 last year from $3,570,984 in 1940, the company reported yesterday. Its affiliate, Allstate Fire Insurance company, reported net premiums of $1,725,935, compared with $1,109,796.

The companies, organized by Sears, Roebuck & Co., are entering their 11th year. They have extended their operations to 42 states and the District of Columbia.

Assets of Allstate Insurance were $8,157,298 as of Dec. 31, an increase of 48.2 per cent compared with a year earlier. Allstate Fire's assets, at $1,844,414, were up 22.8 per cent. R. E. Wood is chairman of the board of both companies.

Lukens Steel to Redeem Issue of Bonds on May 1

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Lukens Steel company today said it would call for redemption May 1 all of its outstanding 5 to 6 per cent bonds due in 1955. About $2,700,000 of these bonds are outstanding.

INDUSTRY UNDER NEW PRESSURE IN SHIFT TO WAR

Aluminum Speedup Clew to Goal.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Additional pressure on industry to speed up its conversion to war work was applied by the government last week. As eastern plants reported that Civil war era machinery—including a planer that helped smooth the deck of the Monitor—was being pressed into service, a spokesman for the War Production board said more progress is being made than the public realizes.

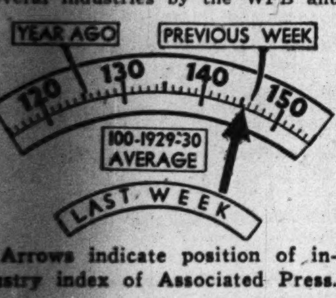
Industry will have attained full war production by late autumn, J. S. Knowlson, head of WPB's industry operations division, reported. A clew to the goal set for the speedup of output was administration leaders' announcement that expenditures will be stepped up 30 per cent in the next four months.

One of the developments in connection with the program was disclosure that action has been taken to increase aluminum output to four times the 1941 mark and to hoist magnesium production to 22 times last year's figure.

Needed for War Planes.

The metals are needed for war planes. The WPB also moved to requisition idle stocks of aluminum in the hands of industrial plants.

Tighter controls were clamped on several industries by the WPB and the Office of Price Administration, curbing uses of materials or establishing price ceilings, intensifying the problems of companies that are having difficulty adapting themselves to noncivilian output.



Arrows indicate position of industry index of Associated Press.

Floyd B. Odlum, a WPB adviser, told small business men that the way out for plants that cannot convert to war work and cannot get supplies for their regular business is to shift into other civilian lines still open. He said 65 billion dollars of essential civilian goods will have to be produced this year.

Trend Is Irregular.

Meantime some irregularity of trend was being shown in industries on which figures were available. Steel production last week was larger than in the preceding week at 96.3 per cent of rated capacity. Electric power production, which usually declines at this time of year, expanded in the week ended Feb. 21, but a decline for the same period was reported in railroad freight loadings. Paper mills operated at an unchanged rate of 103.1 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The Associated Press industrial index declined, comparing as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Steel mill act.	*139.2	139.1	132.7
Elec pwr prod.	158.1	157.2	141.0
Total car loadings	87.8	89.3	82.0
Composite index	145.3	145.5	125.1

*New high.

Rising prices caused the dollar volume of retail trade to gain sharply over year ago levels, but unit volume was at about the 1941 mark, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

Farm Income Expands.

The department of agriculture reported that farmers' cash income in 1941 was 11 billion 771 million dollars, the largest since 1920.

Sinking of tankers off the Atlantic coast raised fears over the supply of fuel oil for the 1¼ million homes in 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia which use such fuel. The government was considering requiring oil using industrial plants to convert to other fuels where possible in that area.

150 Housing Employes Will Move to Chicago

About 150 employés of the fifth regional office of the United States Housing authority will be moved to Chicago from Washington, D. C., between March 10 and March 15, J. C. Thompson, manager of the Civic Opera building, said yesterday. Arranging for about 17,000 feet of office space in the building will be started this week, he said.

Ceiling Applied to Halt Rise in Canned Goods

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—In an effort to keep canned fruits and vegetables from soaring off the dinner table, Price Administrator Leon Henderson today established temporary wholesale price ceilings for 26 varieties of canned food. He also announced that sugar hoarders possessing more than two months' supply would be denied sugar ration books until their stocks have been reduced to normal levels.

The price order is effective Monday. Top prices charged during the five days, Feb. 23 to Feb. 27, were set as the maximum prices for canners and wholesalers.

Permanent Ceiling Later.

The order is to be effective for 60 days. It will be replaced later by permanent maximum price regulations. Henderson said that there will be little, if any, justification for increases in retail prices to housewives now that wholesale prices are stabilized.

The order covers 11 canned fruits and 15 canned vegetables. The fruits are apples, apple sauce, apricots, cherries [red, sour pitted], cherries [sweet], fruit cocktail, fruit salad, peaches, pears, pineapples, and plums.

The vegetables are asparagus, dry beans, lima beans, snap beans [green and wax], beets, carrots, corn, peas, pumpkins, sauerkraut, spinach, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, tomato catsup, and tomato juice.

Warns Retailers on Prices.

"In the absence of direct price control at the retail level," the administrator said, "the responsibility for keeping retail prices at a reasonable level rests squarely on the shoulders of the retailer. Should this responsibility prove too much, the OPA will take steps to control prices at the retail source."

The department of agriculture advised the OPA that the order will in no way interfere with the production of canned fruits and vegetables in 1942. Growers will not be affected by the order.

The average price of canned fruits and vegetables at the canners' level has increased about 20 per cent since last August. Retail prices increased approximately 10 per cent in the same period, OPA said.

Registration Late in March.

The OPA disclosed that the registration for sugar rationing would cover a four day period, probably late in March, and would require the services of 1,400,000 registrars and the facilities of 245,000 public schools. Teachers will act as registrars, under supervision of local rationing boards.

No book will be given to any person whose stock of sugar requires removal of more than eight ration stamps at the time of registration, OPA ruled. Each stamp will permit a citizen to buy one week's allotment—persumably 12 ounces, altho it has been reported that officials were considering reducing the weekly ration to eight ounces.

Supply 4 to 6 Pounds.

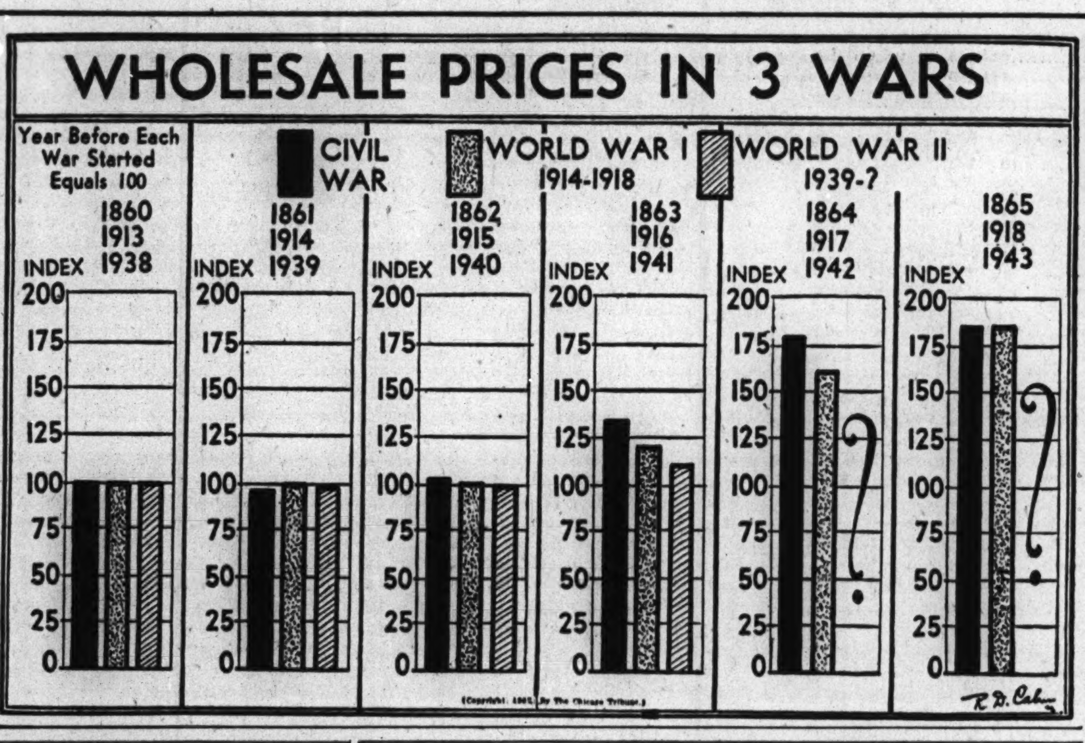
Thus, two months supply probably would range from four to six pounds a person, depending upon the final decision as to the amount of the weekly allotment.

Officials said that the question of what would be considered a "normal" supply had not been determined. It will represent, they said, "a fair supply that the average family might be expected to have on hand, but will be less than a hoarder might have accumulated." Some OPA sources indicated that two pounds a person may be the "normal" figure.

The War Production board ordered sugar refiners, importers, and distributors not to deliver sugar to canners except on certification that the canners will begin using the sugar in canning operations within 45 days of the delivery date. Officials said the order was designed to prevent sugar from being stored against future requirements.

Stock Exchange Volume Declines to 18 Month Low

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—Stock transactions on the New York Stock exchange in February totaled 7,926,486 shares, the smallest monthly volume since August, 1940. In January dealings were 12,993,665 shares and in February last year 8,969,195 shares. Bond transactions were $158,786,600 face value compared with $219,955,000 in January and $123,647,000 in February, 1941.



CONTROL EXPORTS TO LATIN AMERICA

Act to Prevent Diversion of Scarce Articles.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 [Special].—The board of economic warfare announced today that the government of 20 South and Central American republics have established, in coöperation with the United States, a system for controling the distribution of scarce commodities imported from this country.

The plan is to set up agencies which will issue certificates proving the need for the articles as well as their ultimate uses. The certificates in effect will be requests for licenses for the articles wanted. This procedure is intended to prevent diversion of scarce articles and materials to nonessential uses.

Other Government Actions.

Other actions by war agencies today included:

TRUCKS—Rationing of new trucks, truck-tractors, and trailers will begin March 9, the War Production board announced. Applications for purchase certificates, to be filed with field offices of the interstate commerce commission's bureau of motor carriers, will be approved or rejected by defense transportation officials and the WPB.

RAYON—WPB announced that increased quantities of rayon soon will be made available to the hosiery and weaving industries to replace silk and nylon diverted to war uses. Under terms of an order now being drafted, the rayon industry also will be required to set aside 4 per cent of its viscose and acetate production—representing about 13 million pounds annually—for export to other American republics.

New Order to Warehouses.

STEEL—Steel warehouses were prohibited from accepting deliveries of steel in excess of their assigned quotas from any person or company. Restrictions previously imposed applied only to deliveries from steel producers. Chief purpose of the new action is to prevent the warehouses from obtaining deliveries in excess of quotas from other sources such as automobile companies which may have steel for sale.

JUTE—The use of raw and processed jute from India was sharply restricted. All raw jute and several jute products come from India. The largest user of jute is the carpet industry, and that use is cut most sharply. The order prohibits the use or sale of any raw jute hereafter arriving except to fill defense orders.

Chicago Mills to Increase Rate of Steel Production

Chicago district steel mills will start production tomorrow at 103.1 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 101.8 per cent last Monday, mill schedules indicated yesterday.

Auto Dealers Study Survival on Eve of Federal Rationing

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The 460 Chicago and suburban area new car dealers who have 17,000 to 18,000 cars in stock were preparing yesterday to comply with full provisions of the automobile rationing regulations which become effective tomorrow.

The dealers had before them a number of perplexing problems in attempting to do business under the strict war control which Uncle Sam has exerted over them since New Year's. They already have had several weeks of immediate contact with governmental agencies thru making deliveries on cars bought prior to Jan. 2.

First, the dealers had to struggle with the detailed instructions for rationing issued by Leon Henderson, price administrator who is charged with administering automobile rationing, and had to familiarize themselves with the forms which must be filled out for every transaction.

Problem of Customers.

Second, they had to try to find ways to bring into their own showrooms those persons who will be permitted to buy the 3,942 cars alloted to Cook county for the period March 2 to May 31. A person or agency given a rationing permit to buy an automobile may get the car from any dealer he chooses.

Third, with their sales opportunities strictly limited, the dealers are seeking means to make sufficient profits to keep in business. Expansion in car servicing is the method most of them are trying.

Fourth, the dealers must decide on what method they will use to keep the cars in stock in good mechanical condition. A car can't just stand in a showroom without either being given periodic attention, such as having the engine run, or being put in condition for permanent storage. Without some attention the car will deteriorate, the dealers say. They believe they should be paid for this additional expense when they sell a car, but do not know how they can make their future customers see the justice of this.

Allowed Costs Monthly.

Dealers are allowed to add 1 per cent a month to the manufacturer's list price to cover storage, insurance, and interest. Some of them said this would probably pay these costs in the case of the higher models, but doubted it would cover costs in the case of less expensive cars.

Many dealers are storing their cars in large garages, leaving the tires on so that the cars may be moved from time to time. A few plan to take the wheels off to relieve pressure on the tires, it was understood.

One dealer said he believes the fair thing to do would be to permit each dealer to sell one-tenth of his stock a month, thus progressively liquidating his large investment in automobiles. He argued that under this method sufficient cars are likely to remain unsold to meet emergency demands from buyers receiving requitioning permits.

Dealers' Stocks Are Large.

Meantime, most dealers report they have large stocks of used cars in excellent condition. They assert the average used car has tires in condition to give one to two or more years of service under careful and rationed driving.

Because the used car market is much below what had been expected the dealers report there was never a better supply from which to choose. This is partly accounted for by the fact that many more than the usual number of current model cars were traded in as the public during most of 1940 and 1941 bought new automobiles in anticipation of the ban on passenger car production.

Speed War Conversion

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Rep. C. Jasper Bell [D., Mo.], predicted today on the basis of a letter which he said he received from President Roosevelt that the automobile industry would be "completely harnessed within 60 days for war production"

The President's letter, Bell said, pointed out that "within a very short time" all workers in automobile plants "would be employed in production of war materials contracts aggregating 120 per cent of the 1941 peak production."

Chicago Bank Clearings 374 Millions in Week

Chicago bank clearings in the five business days of last week totaled $374,800,000, compared with $405,300,000 in the preceding week and $399,700,00 in the corresponding period a year earlier, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	Washington's birthday.
Tuesday	$63,200,000	$4,100,000

Court Approves Federal Purchase of Engine Plant

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday approved the government's purchase of the Stover Manufacturing and Engine company plant at Freeport, Ill., for $125,000. The condemnation action, which was not contested, had been instituted by Clarence W. Beatty, assistant United States district attorney. The plant is to be operated by Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Chicago, in production of engines for the navy. The plant has been in only partial operation in recent months.

UNITED NATIONS HOLD BIG EDGE IN MEAT SUPPLIES

Animal Populations Shown in Survey.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

North and South American countries will pour out an overwhelming tonnage of meat and dairy products this year to swell food supplies for the united nations, a survey showed yesterday. These countries have almost three times the number of cattle available to Germany, Italy, and Japan.

Their hog population is almost double that from which the axis can obtain supplies, and the number of sheep is almost four times that available to the three enemy nations, including stock from countries they have conquered.

In addition, England, New Zealand, Australia, Russia, China, and India have cattle sufficient to raise the total available to the united nations to seven times the axis supplies.

Far Ahead in Hogs.

The combined hog total is almost four times larger and the sheep population more than 10 times larger.

The United States alone has at cattle population almost equal to the numbers in Germany, Italy, Japan, and the territory these nations have overrun. This country's hog and sheep numbers exceed the axis supply. South American countries can furnish 50 per cent more cattle and 120 per cent more sheep than the three nations and their conquered areas.

As a result of the small sheep total the axis are acutely short on wool, an important war item. Australia has 130 per cent more sheep than Hitler and his allies.

Figures Show Superiority.

The impressive array of meat, dairy and wool animals lined up against the axis follows [Figures in thousands of head, last three ciphers omitted]:

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
United States	74,607	60,526	55,979
Canada	8,600	6,200	4,000
Mexico	12,000	5,000	5,000
South America	112,000	35,000	97,000
Total	207,207	106,726	161,979

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
England	7,000	4,000	18,000
New Zealand	4,000	700	32,000
Australia	13,000	1,000	100,000
Soviet union	63,000	31,000	85,000
China	23,000	80,000	18,000
India	200,000	†......	45,000
Total	310,000	116,700	298,000

Against this vast volume is the axis supply [last three ciphers omitted]:

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
Germany	19,000	24,000	4,500
Italy	7,000	2,500	9,000
Japan	1,500	1,500	†......
*Conquered nations	48,000	32,000	30,000
Total	75,500	59,500	43,500

On the basis of these figures there are lined up against the axis a grand total of more than 500 million cattle for beef and dairy products, 200 million hogs for pork and lard, and 450 million sheep for wool and mutton.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, as part of the drive to win the war, has set a production goal for farmers for 1942 never before attempted by this country.

Altho the hog population was 60,526,000 on Jan. 1, more than 79 million hogs will be slaughtered this year if the war goal is reached. In setting this goal Wickard counted on a new record of more than 60 million spring pigs, few of which were counted in the Jan. 1 tally of hogs on farms. The cattle slaughter goal is 28 million head, and the milk production goal, 125 billion pounds. The sheep and lamb slaughter is placed at 22,900,000 head.

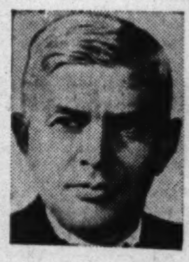
Gen. Motors' War Output Rises Rapidly

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28 (AP).—C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation, said today that "we have made faster progress on our war production than we had even hoped to make."



C. E. Wilson.

War material, Wilson said, is rolling out of the automotive industry plants "at a rapidly accelerating rate," and "we are working right around the clock every day in the week on the job of changing over to war production such plants and equipment as are not already producing war materials."

86 Plants In War Work.

Of General Motors' 90 factories, Wilson said, 86 "are already either producing war material or are being rearranged and retooled for war production. War work will be found for the remaining four, or they will be sold or leased to the government or other contractors."

Referring to the unemployment problem involved in the shift to war production, Wilson said:

"The situation is much better than the public may have been led to expect. For instance, during the week ended Feb. 14, General Motors had on its payrolls a total of 161,832 factory workers. The corresponding figure for the average employment for the whole year 1939 was 161,174—almost exactly the same number. But in February these employés averaged 44 hours per week, while in 1939 they averaged only 35."

Expect Record Employment.

Peak General Motors employment was 243,000 in June, 1941, Wilson reported, but "schedules call for increasing employment from now on and by this fall more people will be working in General Motors plants than ever before."

"General Motors," Wilson asserted, "is undertaking the manufacture for the government of about 10 per cent in value of all war material requiring metal fabrication.

NAVY 'E' EMBLEM AND PRAISE GIVEN KROPP EMPLOYES

Rear Adm. John Downes, commander of the 9th naval district, presented the navy's "E" award for excellence in arms production to the Kropp Forge company plant at 5301 Roosevelt road yesterday. Employés halted work briefly to attend the ceremony, and receive their individual awards.

"The heavy forging problems which you have worked out for the navy require that combination of imagination and technical skill which has made American industry a standard the world over," the naval officer told the workers.

He said that "if enough 'E' emblems fly over our land we shall know this country will not lose the war." But, he warned, the nation can lose the war "by our military's negligence, by an assembly-line's slowdown or we can just lose it by wishful thinking."

Train 1,800,000 for War Production in 7 Months

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The Federal Security agency said today that it trained 1,800,000 men and women for war production work from July 1, 1941 to Jan. 31 of this year. The bulk of the training was carried out at 164 colleges and universities and 2,109 vocational schools.

NELSON PUSHES WAR OUTPUT ON A 4-POINT FRONT

Assures President of New Expansion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, assured President Roosevelt today that every effort will be made to speed the production of war materials in the crucial months ahead.

He announced a four-point program which calls for establishment of joint labor-management war plant committees to consider all suggestions for increasing production, 24-hour a day use of machines, awards to employers and workers for outstanding accomplishment, and faster conversion of factories to war needs.

The pledge was made in an exchange of letters between the chief executive and his production aide. The President called for increased production and Nelson promised to deliver goods necessary for conduct of the war.

Critical Months of War.

"The months just ahead are the critical months of the war," Mr. Roosevelt wrote. "Victory depends in large measure on the increased war production we are able to get from our factories and arsenals in the spring and summer of 1942. What has been done so far must be exceeded. This is total war. We are all under fire—soldiers and civilians alike. No one is a spectator, we are all belligerents. To win we must fight.

The urgency of today must be felt in every shop and factory producing war goods, in every home and on every farm. Then we shall achieve the spirit and coöperative action that carries a team to victory.

"I therefore direct you to take every possible step to raise production now, to bring home to labor and management alike the supreme importance of war production this crucial spring."

Nelson Outlines Program.

In his reply Nelson said in responding to the request WPB is undertaking "a continuing national drive, designed not merely to increase production at once but to keep stepping it up further as the war continues.

"The principal aims of this drive," he said, "are to increase production immediately in plants which now have war contracts and to convert other plants to war production as speedily and as completely as possible."

Nelson promised "greater utilization of plants now producing war goods, aimed at bringing us as close as possible to the theoretical maximum of 168 hours work per week for every machine in those plants."

STOCKS EXTEND MODEST PRICE GAINS OF WEEK

Good Earning Statements Aid Some Issues.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—The stock market today finished a modest recovery week, with prices pointing irregularly higher. Generally good earnings statements aided an assortment of favorites, but there were exceptions

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .1 of a point and on the week showed a net advance of .04, the first improvement in three weeks. Transfers totaled 234,460 shares against 213,990 last Saturday. Daily turnovers in the week never topped 400,000 shares.

Rubber company issues were aided by the better than expected Goodrich profits report for 1941. Rails held their own while awaiting the freight rate boost decision.

Standard Brands Active.

Standard Brands was the liveliest performer, dipping ⅛ to a record low of 3½ in the wake of omission of the regular 10 cent dividend and a drop in last year's net profit. Liggett and Myers "B" and Reynolds "B" slipped when Leon Henderson refused to permit a lift in cigaret prices.

United States Rubber preferred rose 5 points on small volume. J. C. Penney and International Harvester retained gains of a point or more.

Conflicting war bulletins and the desire to step carefully pending the forthcoming tax program made for a slim market during the week. Technical factors, including the belief the list was due for a rebound after the lengthy decline, helped to revive prices Tuesday after the Washington's birthday holiday. There was a back down Wednesday and steadier tendencies Thursday and Friday.

CHICAGO LIST STEADY.

Prices were about steady yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Chicago corporation, which rose ⅛ to 1⅛, accounted for 3,150 of the 12,000 shares traded. Other active stocks were Commonwealth Edison, unchanged, and Bendix and Swift & Co., each up ⅛.

In the half hour after the close in New York, Borg-Warner and General Motors advanced ⅛ and Walgreen ¼, while Sears, Roebuck declined ⅛.

CORN ADVANCES A BIT AS WHEAT FUTURES DECLINE

Much of Supply Reported Already Sold.

Corn futures showed independent strength in light trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, closing ⅜ to ½ cent a bushel higher on buying attributed to cash interests and commission hourses.

There is no material pressure of hedging sales in corn at this time, according to brokers who believed that much of the local stock of that grain has either been sold for shipment to the east or is owned by processors. It is understood that some of the grain is not scheduled to be shipped from Chicago until next fall.

Spreading Is Reversed.

Professional traders who sold corn and bought rye a number of weeks ago when rye was about 10 cents under corn, were active in undoing the spread between the two grains, resulting in corn gaining fractionally on rye.

Outside interest in the wheat market was light and prices fluctuated within a range of about ¾ cent, closing ¼ cent lower. Oats closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower, rye gained ¼ to ⅜ cent and soy beans advanced ⅛ to ⅜ cent.

Uncertainty as to the outcome of farm legislation pending in congress is largely responsible for the continued light speculative interest in the markets according to brokers. Last week's sales of grain and soy bean futures aggregated 58,476,000 bushels, compared with 71,334,000 in the preceding week, and 85,413,000 a year ago.

Winnipeg Prices Rally.

Selling by American holders of wheat futures at Winnipeg, underway recently, was reported to have about run its course. Prices in the Canadian market dipped slightly in the early trading, but rallied when the pressure let up and closed ⅛ cent higher.

Farmers show no disposition to sell either cash corn or soy beans in volume at present brokers reported, attributing this to the relatively high government loan on the 1941 corn crop, while all high oil content beans that are suitable for seed purposes and which remain on farms on May 31 can be turned over to the government at $2 a bushel.

CO-ORDINATE CROPS

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 28 (AP).—The United States and Canada will start negotiations next week to coördinate their production of coarse grains to assure adequate war supplies but prevent heavy surpluses, it was learned today.

The United States plans to increase its soy bean production and wants Canadian assurance that the dominion's yield of oats, barley, and rye will be adequate. Trade Minister J. A. MacKinnon is expected to make a statement in parliament soon.

MINIMUM PRICE ON FEDERAL EGG BUYING CANCELED

The department of agriculture withdrew its minimum purchase or "floor" price on eggs in Chicago and New York yesterday, but said it would continue to buy in these markets for British lend-lease and domestic relief programs. Purchases have been made on the Chicago Mercantile exchange and in New York on the basis of an announced minimum price of 27½ cents a dozen in carload lots.

Officials said that floor prices were no longer necessary to assure producers a guaranteed 85 per cent of parity, since egg prices on the farm had already reached 99 per cent of parity [a measure of purchasing power].

They added, however, that the department was prepared to make whatever purchases are necessary to prevent declines in egg prices out of proportion to normal seasonal changes.

Light offerings and spirited buying carried shell egg futures to the highest levels of the week in the Chicago market, with gains ranging from .20 to .35 cent a dozen. March butter futures recovered from the seasonal lows of the three preceding days to close .05 cent higher at 32.65 cents a pound.

The agricultural marketing service reported that commercial hatchery production in January set a new record for the month at 46,884,000 baby chicks.

City Builds 2,419 Defense Type Homes in 1941

COST IS OVER TEN MILLIONS, SURVEY SHOWS

Exceeds Investment in Non-Defense Units.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Arthur G. Erdmann.

Over 10 million dollars' worth of homes costing $6,000 or less for house and lot were built in Chicago during 1941, a survey made by Arthur G. Erdmann, president of Bell Savings and Loan association, disclosed yesterday. These houses now can be classified as "defense homes"—the designation given by the federal government to homes in defense areas representing a total investment in land and buildings of $6,000 or under.

Permits were issued last year by Building Commissioner Richard Schmidt for 2,419 homes valued at $5,000 or less, having a total value of $10,454,894. There being no records available of the value of the lots in these cases, it was assumed that the total cost for each property did not exceed $6,000.

The total number of units in the defense home bracket built in Chicago last year was several hundred in excess of the total of larger nondefense residences. Of the latter classification there were 2,012 erected in the city during 1941, or 407 less than the defense home total.

Called Vital Problem.

"Defense housing being one of the most vital problems before the country and the probable source of most home building during the war, we felt it would be a public service to obtain all the light on the subject which a study of permits issued might reveal," Erdmann said.

"Consequently we tabulated and classified every home permit issued during 1941 by Building Commissioner Schmidt and also all permits issued thruout the entire Chicago region during January, 1942. The information secured will, we believe, prove valuable to the government and to the building industry."

Results by Months.

The results of the Erdmann survey by months of Chicago homes in the defense bracket follow:

	No.	Value.
January	129	$ 554,571
February	113	499,795
March	196	819,362
April	198	851,863
May	263	1,111,203
June	260	1,121,150
July	306	1,325,920
August	189	854,135
September	257	1,110,500
October	210	923,960
November	153	654,710
December	145	627,725
Totals	2,419	$10,454,894

In January, 1942, there were 397 permits for homes in the defense bracket, with an estimated value of $1,740,532, issued in the Chicago metropolitan area.

COSTS MORE TO OPERATE FLATS, SURVEY SHOWS

Cost of operating an apartment building in Chicago is approximately 7 per cent higher than it was a year ago, according to an apartment operating cost survey made by the appraisers and renting and management divisions of the Chicago Real Estate board. The survey was compiled by Stanley Roe, H. Lowell Baker, and Arthur Kruggel, a committee from the two divisions, and was based on a study of 342 buildings.

Repairs, supplies, and fuel, in the order named, were items showing the greatest increase over 1940. Repairs this year cost 11 per cent more than they cost last year, while supplies were up 7 per cent and fuel 5.3 per cent. A close fourth to these increases is taxes, which this year show a 5 per cent advance over the year previous. Water rates also will be higher, the survey states.

TALL HYDE PARK FLATS SELL FOR QUARTER MILLION

The 12 story 5100 Cornell avenue building, at the southwest corner of Cornell avenue and Hyde Park boulevard, was sold yesterday by the 5100 Cornell Avenue Building corporation for $250,000 cash to Cornell and 51st Building corporation, recently organized by Joseph G. Engert and Sol H. Optner. Originally known as the Beach View apartments the building contains 96 furnished suites and 3 stores. William J. Klibanow was broker. V. M. Welsh, of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis, was attorney for the seller, and Burton Schatz for the buyer.

Half Century Old Homes to Be Razed

E. L. Ryerson Jr. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Wreckers are to solve the problem of high taxes and obsolescence for three more Gold Coast old timers. The trio of brick and stone residences at 36 to 44 Banks street, extending from the northeast corner of Astor street to the rear lot line of the Potter Palmer residence on Lake Shore drive, owned by the Edward L. Ryerson Senior estate, are to be razed. The Harvey Wrecking company will start operations tomorrow with the expectation of having the ground cleared within two weeks.

Built 56 years ago the three homes for more than half a century have housed three of Chicago's well known families: The Ryersons, the Houghtelings, and the Carruthers.

Reasons for Razing.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the board of Inland Steel company, and also chairman of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Inland, said that high taxes and difficulty in renting the residences except as rooming owing to their increasing obsolescence, were reasons for razing them.

Plans for a four story apartment building to replace the trio have been shelved for the duration, Ryerson said. Until then the land will be cleared and left vacant.

Built in 1886.

The late Edward L. Ryerson Sr., son of Joseph T. Ryerson, founder of the steel warehousing firm bearing his name, built the stone house at 38 Banks street in 1886. It is said to have been designed by the late Henry Ives Cobb. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. lived there until 1940, when he moved to 1431 Astor street. Since then the house has been vacant.

The house at the Astor-Banks corner was built and lived in for many years by the late James L. Houghteling, of the banking firm of Peabody, Houghteling & Co. The Carruthers family lived in the house at 44 Banks.

Smith & Dawson, who are now completing the last of a group of 20 defense homes in their Prospect Heights development, north of Mount Prospect and just east of Arlington Heights, yesterday reported that application had been made for building material priorities for 20 more.

Federal priority ratings for the first 20 homes were given by the government to the firm on Dec. 11, 1941. They are all either completed or under construction and 10 are sold. Eight of the ten are to 100 per cent defense workers. Four families already have moved in.

The homes in Prospect Heights all occupy lots containing over 20,000 square feet each, or approximately half an acre. They are nearly seven times as large as the average Chicago city lot of 25x125, or 3,125 square feet.

There have been 311 residences built during the last few years at Prospect Heights. Of these 270 were erected by Smith & Dawson and the remaining 41 by individuals.

Carlton A. Smith, of Smith & Dawson, said that he anticipated more building this year than last. All homes will be in the defense home bracket.

URGES FINANCING AID TO SMALLER MANUFACTURERS

Leverett S. Lyon.

Plans to place industrial financing on the same level as other real estate financing and to break the bottleneck which is preventing small manufacturing concerns from borrowing funds for plant rehabilitation needed to secure war contracts are being studied by individuals and organizations in Chicago, it was learned yesterday.

G. O. Oslund, of the First Realty company, one of Chicago's oldest real estate concerns, founded 86 years ago, who has made a survey of industrial financing, said that officials of both the Chicago Association of Commerce and the National Association of Real Estate Boards recently have emphasized the need of action in getting lenders to realize the need of serving small manufacturing concerns as well as large ones.

"The problem of financing vacant industrial buildings for their rehabilitation and for possible conversion into useful production units under the war program has given the Chicago Association of Commerce some concern," said Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of that organization.

"A careful study of this problem might reveal that loans could be made in many instances which prove to be a help to the community and aid the government in its war production plan, and at the same time be a safe investment."

"It's high time that insurance companies, trust companies, and other financing interests thruout the country begin immediately to match the high patriotism of the men in service with their willingness to finance the construction and reconstruction of industrial projects, regardless of their size," said Oslund.

"The country knows how willing and anxious the small manufacturer is to do his part in the furtherance of our job ahead, but the country also knows how hesitant money interests have been to help him along."

SOUTH DEARBORN SALE.

Donohue Brothers recently bought the 75 feet at 637-41 South Dearborn, extending 71 feet thru to Plymouth court, improved with a 3 story building, from Robert E. Hunter of Pasadena, Cal., for $25,000 cash.

BARRIERS TO BIG SOUTH AMERICAN OIL BOOM RAZED

Peru-Ecuador Treaty Ends Fear of Title Fights.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 28.—Final settlement of the long standing frontier controversy between Peru and Ecuador is expected to throw open for development the enormously rich petroleum territories in the great triangle between the Ecuadorean Andes, the Maranon, or upper Amazon river, and the Putumayo river.

Approximately one third of this territory has been allocated to Ecuador by the recent Rio de Janeiro treaty.

Extensive Surveys Made.

For more than five years in the 1920's Standard Oil interests carried out extensive surveys in eastern Peru, including the region drained by the northern tributaries of the upper Amazon. Plentiful indications of oil were encountered, but one of the principal reasons for the later abandonment of the contemplated development program was the frontier controversy.

Five years ago Shell interests acquired a 20,000,000 acre exploitation concession running for five years from the Ecuadorean government. Under the name Anglo Saxon Exploration company, Shell has made extensive and costly explorations thruout the region, including detailed aerial surveys.

Concession to Expire.

As the Shell exploration concession expires next Aug. 9, when they will be entitled to ask for a 40 year exploitation concession, observers here believe that the Shell concession has been the prime mover in inducing Ecuador to accept the Peruvian formula for the settlement at Rio de Janeiro.

It is believed that the greater part of the Shell concession lies on the Ecuadorean side of the frontier. Continuation of the controversy, jeopardizing land titles, might have forced Shell to withdraw from Ecuador, especially in view of the fact that the most economical outlet for this region is down the Peruvian controlled river tributaries to the Amazon and the Atlantic ocean.

The Ganzoazul Petroleum company, which brought in the first producing oil wells in the Amazon basin, recently has contracted with Brazilian financial interests for the shipment of a minimum of 60,000 barrels monthly in pusher type barges down the Ucayali and Amazon rivers to Manaos, Brazil, and the Atlantic.

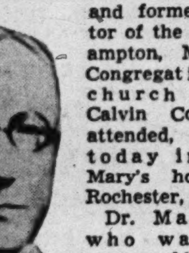
See High Pressure Phase.

The 90,000 acre holdings of the Ganzoazul company, developed by California interests, are located on the Pachitea river, a tributary of the Ucayali river, about 40 kilometers [25 miles] from the river port of Pucallpa, terminal of the 500 mile trans-Andean highway from Lima which will be completed this year.

The oil boom in western Amazonia is expected to enter the high pressure phase in view of the threatened loss of the Netherlands and East Indies fields. The Peruvian government plans to build a refinery at Iquitos and Brazilian interests plan a refinery at Manaos.

The operations base for the Shell engineers has been the village of Mera, 60 kilometers [37] miles] east of Ambato, which is on the Guayaquil-Quito railroad, where drilling recently was started.

IRVING MAURER, BELOIT COLLEGE PRESIDENT, DIES



Dr. Maurer.

Beloit, Wis., Feb. 28 (AP).—Dr. Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college and former pastor of the Northampton, Mass., Congregational church which Calvin Coolidge attended, died today in St. Mary's hospital, Rochester, Minn. Dr. Maurer, who was 62 years old, underwent an operation for hernia last Tuesday.

Dr. Maurer was born in Garnavillo, Ia., and was graduated from Beloit college in 1904.

He received his master's degree at Yale divinity school and in 1907 became pastor of the West End Congregational church in Bridgeport, Conn.

Subsequently he served the Congregational church in Utica, N. Y., then Coolidge's church in Northampton, and later the First Congregational church, Columbus, O.

He left Columbus in 1924 to become president of Beloit college.

At his death he also was president of the National Conference of Church Related Colleges. He was a former president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He held honorary degrees from Wooster, Carleton, Oberlin, and Colorado colleges.

Dr. Maurer is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Sterling Skinner of Beloit and Mrs. Noble Gibson of Milford, Conn., and two sons, Irving Maurer Jr. of Beloit and Lloyd Maurer of Forest Hills, N. Y.

Radio Actress Dies

DOROTHY GREGORY.

Dorothy Gregory, young radio actress, died yesterday in Wesley Memorial hospital after two weeks' illness. She was 18 years old and lived at 401 South Prospect avenue, Park Ridge.

Miss Gregory made her radio debut in April, 1940, as Jerry in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N. Until her recent illness she was playing the part of Eloise Comstock in the radio serial, "Scattergood Baines." Other recent radio rôles included Jill in "Kitty Keane," and Virginia Sawyer in "Stepmother."

She leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gregory, and a brother, Rodger. Services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in St. Luke's English Lutheran church.

TRAFFIC DEATHS IN 1942 FEWER THAN LAST YEAR

A decrease in automobile deaths for the first two months of 1942 was reported yesterday by Coroner A. L. Brodie. During January and February up to 2 p. m. yesterday 128 persons were killed in Cook county, compared with 135 in 1941. Chicago deaths were 102 this year and 109 last year. Injuries totaled 3,227.

Larry H. Schwartz, 30 years old, of 7343 Luella avenue, was killed yesterday after his car ran off on a road curve between Spring Green and Arena, Wis.

Jerry J. Vesely, 55, a farm hand, died of injuries received a few hours earlier when he was struck by an automobile on a highway near Mokena, Will county. Police said he was struck by two cars, driven by Robert Myers and P. B. Jacquin, both of Mokena.

Chiropractor Sentenced to Jail and Fined $350

O. C. Moe, 55 years old, 3138 Armitage avenue, a chiropractor, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail and fined $350 yesterday by Judge Albert E. Isley of Newton, sitting in the County court. Dr. Moe was convicted of having practiced medicine without a license on the testimony of a woman investigator for the state department of education and registration. He was freed yesterday on a $2,000 appeal bond.

THE WINDY CITY? NOT CHICAGO BY FIFTEEN POINTS

Statistics Show Climate Just About Ideal.

Altho weather forecasting is taboo, Frederick Rex, municipal reference librarian, still can tell about the weather in Chicago last year. Yesterday Rex produced his annual statistics which always show that if you like your weather just right—not too hot—not too cold—not too calm—and not too windy—Chicago is the right place to live.

Among 34 cities which Rex queried on 1941 weather conditions, Chicago was 26th in mean monthly temperature of 52 degrees; seventh for extreme maximum temperature, it reached 98 degrees; ninth in total rainfall, 38 inches; 22nd for the number of days when the temperature was higher than 90 degrees, 18 days; 11th for the number of days below 32 degrees, 105 days, and it was second among four of the 34 cities where the temperature went below zero.

Windy City Myth.

Chicago also had six days when the wind reached a velocity of 32 miles an hour or more. According to the Rex tables, Chicago rated 16th as a windy city.

Following are some of the tables on Chicago's weather compiled by Rex. They give the cities preceding Chicago in rating.

LAIN & SON
offers Chicago families
two conveniently located chapels giving city-wide and suburban service at all times. They offer beautiful, restful surroundings and an atmosphere of quiet and solace.

Chicago's largest funeral directors also give Chicago families the advantages of large volume business...almost TWICE as large as any other funeral concern in the city ...which means prices are lower and services include many more details.

Lain & Son has been chosen by many residents in the past years because they have offered the most competently conducted funeral services.

A preference of 30 to 1, (thirty times the average) has grown up in the city for Lain & Son for the two chapels give families the type of funeral which cannot be duplicated.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

THE SORT OF JOB I'D WANT MYSELF . . .

If I were a promising young salesman looking for a permanent connection, this is the kind of opportunity I'd set my heart on.

. . . . We are industrial publishers. Nationally known, our organization is by far the leader in the field it covers. Because one of our men has been called by the army, we have an opening in our Chicago office for a sales-minded young fellow in his late twenties or early thirties. His work will consist of selling a specialized advertising and sales promotional service to national manufacturers and business concerns.

Should you be the new representative we are looking for, and, if you decide you would like to work with us, you will be thoroughly grounded in our policies before you are asked to produce on your own. You would be employed on a salaried basis, with attractive yearly bonus provisions. Your earnings would be sufficient for you to live comfortably while proving your worth, and would increase as you move up the ladder.

You are apt to find previous advertising or publishing experience helpful but not essential. The same is true of college training. Naturally it is important that you be deferred from immediate military service.

Your application will be given every consideration and information submitted in confidence will be treated as such. Our own staff is aware of this advertisement.
Address L F 588, Tribune.

A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY AND A LIFETIME POSITION

We are furnishing information on government regulation of business, national defense, priorities and taxation to over 50,000 business houses, professional organizations, and governmental departments.

An old established organization with an annual business of several million, it is the largest and most successful firm in the field.

Due to rapidly expanding business and new products, we are enlarging the sales organization. Territories will be available in the midwest, Kansas City, Kentucky, Utah, and other far Western states.

A liberal commission on new and renewal business, and over 80% renew. Your income increases substantially every year. We thoroughly train our men, supply leads and pay a starting drawing account.

We will consider detailed applications only, from successful, aggressive salesmen, preferably age 25 to 40, who will work hard for a permanent, depression proof, and growing income. State age, education, experience, nationality, draft status, past earnings, phone, and territory preferred. For personal interview

Car Victim Recovers.

Feb. 28, 1942.

A RINGNECK pheasant which was hit by an automobile on a nearby road now is recuperating in the henhouse at the Wheaton farm. When the weather becomes milder this feathered patient will be released to the woods.

The pheasant was hit by a car not far from the farm poultry yard. The driver failed to stop, but a man who saw the accident picked up the stunned bird and took it to the flockmaster. He treated a deep wound on its breast.

When we walked in the poultryhouse the other morning the pheasant was strolling among the hens as tho he had lived there all his life, but when spring arrives and this bird is released it probably will waste no time in getting back to the woods and heavy cover around the farm ponds.

Other New Residents.

The injured pheasant isn't the only new resident in the barnyard. The flockmaster now has 280 white Plymouts Rock chicks in a brooder house. The cold February weather hasn't bothered these downy chicks, because they have a comfortable new house and an electrically heated brooder which maintains a temperature of over 90 degrees.

If you stand around the barnyard you'll smell and see smoke coming from under the eaves and over the door of one small brick building. It's caused by the burning of hickory chips in the smokehouse where 10 turkeys have been hanging from the rafters and absorbing a rich golden tan. Smoked turkeys are one of the delicacies enjoyed by farm residents who have the room for a smokehouse.

The alternate snowfalls and freezes of February made it hard for some of the winter bird residents to find food. That fact is evidenced by the number of tree sparrows which came to our birdbanding traps for seeds and bread.

Used to Cold Weather.

These hardy little winter birds are used to cold weather. They live in northern Manitoba, Quebec, and Newfoundland during the spring and summer, and stay in the northern tier of states and in Ontario and the maritime provinces during the winter. In the period between Feb. 1 and 18 we banded 22 tree sparrows, and many of these returned to the traps for free meals several times after their original banding date.

While the tree sparrows are visiting the banding traps the cardinals are telling the world with their shrill whistling that the first spring days are not far away. Nearly every morning you can hear these handsome birds broadcasting. They have every reason to feel well. They have been finding plenty of food at the farm's feeding stations and now they are going to have some company because the first bluebirds are due to check in at the farm, to be followed by the grackles and the red winged blackbirds.

Loans to pay income taxes

You must pay at least one-fourth of your total Federal Income Tax by March 16th. If you have a job, you can borrow the cash you need. Loans made to single people and married couples on own signature or furniture or auto. No endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. There is nothing else to pay.

NOTICE
To Income Tax Payers

You owe it to yourself to find out how simple it is to get cash at "Personal." You don't need endorsers or any special kind of security. If you have a job [even a new one] you can get a loan [any amount, $25 to $250 or more] on just your signature, or car, or furniture, depending on your own preference or circumstances.

STATE STREET'S
The Main Line OF DEFENSE
. . . against all those fellows who are running around yelling about prices and taxes going up. If taxes do go up, we'll merely absorb them, and we can do it too. BECAUSE

We Are on State-street

[1] Our rent is lower.
[2] Our overhead is less.
[4] We don't need fancy trimmin's or high pressure salesmen.
[5] And you don't have to pay for marble floors or silk curtains as a part of your purchase price.

MAKE ANY REASONABLE OFFER.

ROAD BUILDERS WILL MEET ON WAR PROBLEMS

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The American Road Builders' association, representing what is normally a 2 billion dollar a year industry, will hold a four day convention in Memphis, Tenn., next week to be attended by high officials of the army, navy and other governmental agencies. The subjects to be discussed are those relating to the war. These are many.

The normal sources of revenue for road building and maintenance are threatened by the rubber shortage. Less gasoline taxes and less automobile license fees will be collected as tires fail and cannot be replaced.

Pavement Requirements Remain.

Nevertheless, pavement requirements remain. The production of weapons, mainly concentrated in large plants, has called upon roads to carry heavy loads of freight. There are new congestion centers, new bottlenecks, to crack. Old pavements of strategic value to the armament industry are failing under the strain and must be replaced. Cantonments require new pavements.

In all of this work, in addition to financial troubles, the road builders face difficulties in obtaining materials, equipment, transportation and labor. For example, stocks of tractors in manufacturers' and dealers' hands have been frozen for an inventory preliminary to rationing. As another example, highway maintenance and construction require trucks, now under rations, and tires, also under rations.

Will Discuss Military Projects.

The convention will also discuss the two most spectacular military highway projects, one to link Alaska with the United States and the other to connect the United States with Panama canal. The discussions are expected to develop definite recommendations.

Notwithstanding the rubber shortage, the big munition plants must continue to function and they have been designed as to size and location dependent upon passenger automobiles for the transportation of their workers. These automobiles need pavements.

Recent surveys show that 82 per cent of all workers in the Youngstown, O., steel center use their automobiles or ride with fellow workers to and from their jobs. Nine thousand employés at an airplane plant near Seattle, Wash., arrive daily in 3,000 automobiles from distances as great as 40 miles away. Eighty-seven per cent of the employés at Glendale, Cal., an aircraft center, use private automobiles for work transportation, while in Midland, Mich., a chemical center, the figure is 92 per cent.

50 Per Cent Drive Own Cars.

In four automotive plants near Flint, Mich., now turning to defense work, fully 50 per cent of the employés drive their own cars, while another 20 per cent ride as passengers. It is not unusual for workers in defense plants or at the scene of construction of cantonments to drive a total of 100 miles a day getting from their homes to their jobs and back again.

Government officials will tell the road builders what they can do, and possibly what they have to do.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

SIGNS IN BLACKOUT?

Chicago, Feb. 18.—One hears these days about all we have to give up in order that England can have all the war materials she needs even at the cost of our own protection as the record at Pearl Harbor shows and also the report from Mr. Churchill to our congress that if we hadn't depleted our own stores to give them we would not have lost the Pearl Harbor battle or the others.

Some time back the city of Chicago had erected all over the near north side signs reading, "Park one hour only." The writer suggests that they take these signs and use them in the reclaimed metal division because from the minute they were put up till now they must have been in a complete blackout. It's easy to observe that no one ever obeys them nor do the police enforce the ruling. You will find cars parked not for one hour but for one year, more or less, and lots of times without even the current year license plates. W. J. P.

SUGGESTS COLLECTION SYSTEM.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 21.—It appears that the automobile use tax stamps are causing inconvenience and are generally conceded to be a nuisance. The situation should be easy to remedy. Why not have the $5 tax collected by the various states when automobile licenses are issued? The procedure would be simple —just collect $5 extra from every one who takes out a license. When all have been issued simply multiply the number of licenses by five and forward the resulting amount to the federal treasury. This method of collecting the tax would require very small increase of personnel to handle the extra work—probably none at all—but it would save the government the million and a half appropriated for its collection thru postoffices.

ERNA D. STRASSBURGER.

ANOTHER WAY TO SAVE RUBBER.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Several evenings ago, when driving west on Diversey avenue, I hit a hole in the street at Central Park avenue that just about wrecked two tires and a spring on my car. Luckily I managed to retain control of the car or a serious accident may have occurred.

In this day when production of cars for civilian use has stopped and tires are rationed, it seems to me that our politicians who rave about conserving rubber and prolonging the life of our cars by careful usage should give a little attention to the condition of our streets so the public can "keep them rolling."

One of my fellow workers told me that he had a similar experience when driving west on Madison street. A. J. P.

THANKS A MOTORIST.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—I wish to take this opportunity [since it is the only means I have of so doing] to thank the gentleman driving his car north on Ashland avenue on Friday, Feb. 20, who so kindly stopped his automobile, blowing his horn to call my attention to the fact that I had dropped my key case in crossing the street. Not recognizing the driver—and not having yet missed the keys—this gentleman further displayed his kindness and generosity by getting out of his car and picking up the keys for me. I certainly appreciate his thoughtfulness as otherwise I would probably never have found my keys. MAE DWYER.

THE USED CAR LOTS.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Speaking of "blighted areas," would it not be possible to have our parkways restored to us and not have every available lot turned over to that ruination of property and menace to health, the "used car" lot. They are eye sores, with their displays of somebody's old discarded cars, and ballyhoo signs. DISGUSTED.

COMPLAINS OF STREET CARS.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—How long do the people of Chicago have to put up with the street cars for transportation? The cars average 40 years in service. Why can't they be replaced? Buses could carry the load at rush hour periods 100 per cent more efficiently. They are faster and would not tie up traffic.

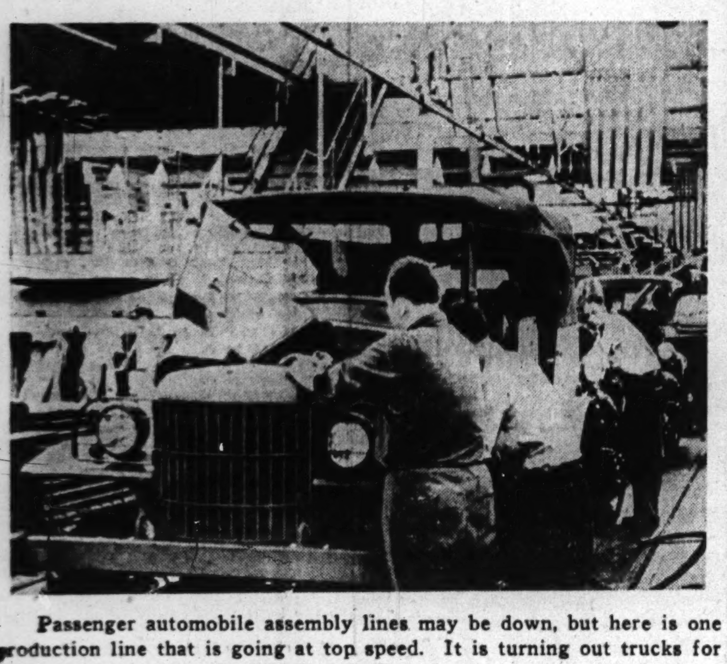
This Assembly Line Is Going Strong



Passenger automobile assembly lines may be down, but here is one production line that is going at top speed. It is turning out trucks for the army in the huge Dodge plant in Detroit.

GAS TAX GROWTH AS SOURCE OF REVENUE RAPID

Future of Excise One of War Problems.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—This week marked the 23d anniversary of the birth of the gasoline tax. It's history, as traced by the Illinois automobile club, is one of rapid growth as a producer of revenue, mainly for street and highway construction.

The future of the 23 year old excise as a revenue producer is one of the problems of the war. All authorities on the subject are merely guessing in their estimates, ranging from 15 to 50 per cent, of how much the rubber shortage will cut motor fuel consumption in the next year.

Oregon Enacts First Tax.

In February, 1919, the Oregon legislature enacted the first tax on gasoline, its purpose was to finance bonds issued for the maintenance of state highways. The tax rate was 1 cent per gallon and the amount collected from Oregon motorists that year amounted to $290,796. Following the lead of Oregon, New Mexico passed a gasoline tax law in March, 1919; Colorado did the same in April, and later in the year North Dakota fell in line. All were 1 cent tax laws and the total amount collected by these four states in 1919 was $1,022,514.

In 1920 Kentucky was the only state to be added to the original four. But by that time the ease with which this money was collected became apparent and in 1921 there were 15 states with gasoline tax laws. However, it was not until 1929 that all 48 states and the District of Columbia had come into the fold, Michigan and New York being the last. Illinois passed a gasoline tax law in 1927 but, being held unconstitutional by the Supreme court in 1928, it was reenacted in 1929.

New Mexico Increases Tax.

New Mexico was the first state to increase the tax rate to 2 cents, that being in 1920. In 1923 eight states had 3 cent rates. Four cent rates appeared in 1925 in Florida, North Carolina, and Arkansas. The first 5 cent rate came in 1926 in Kentucky, Arkansas, and South Carolina. In 1929 Florida raised its rate to 6 cents, being followed by Georgia and South Carolina, and in 1931 Florida again boosted its rate to 7 cents. Tennessee joined Florida in the 7 cent class in 1932, and Louisiana followed in 1936, this being the highest rate collected by any state to date.

Revenue in the beginning was small, each of the first two years being only slightly over $1,000,000. For the first 10 years—1919 to 1928 inclusive—the total reached just over 1 billion dollars. Then revenue climbed rapidly. The second decade produced nearly 6 billion dollars, while the last three years have added nearly 2 billion more, or a grand total of approximately 10 billion dollars.

NEWS AND VIEWS

(Advice will be given in this department from time to time on how to make the family car last longer.)

The ignition system in your automobile should be given frequent attention. Anything wrong reduces engine efficiency and wastes gasoline. Some manufacturers recommend that a general inspection of the entire system be made at least every 10,000 miles.

The ignition system includes, of course, the battery. A weak battery delays starting. When an engine has to be turned over more times than necessary—one of the results of a weak battery—gasoline is pumped into the cylinders without being used. The excess gasoline washes the lubricant off the cylinder walls and the lack of lubricant causes unnecessary wear on pistons, piston rings, and cylinders.

Corroded battery connections at distributor points and inefficient spark plugs weaken the ignition system. The distributor points should be cleaned and adjusted frequently.

The spark plug is a small but mighty important part of the engine. A poor plug can cause the waste of 1 gallon of gasoline in 10 and the engineer for one spark plug company says that one spark plug in a six cylinder engine that is missing can increase the normal gasoline consumption by as much as 20 per cent.

The spark plug must take a terrific amount of punishment. It must withstand hundreds of thousands of gas explosions at white heat. Of course no material can withstand such punishment forever. Inspection of the plugs should be made at from 2,500 to 5,000 miles of driving so that one that is not performing efficiently can be removed.

Some of the things that cause a plug to lose its efficiency are: Gas fouling, usually resulting from cold winter driving, as a result of which a cold gas carbon is deposited at the firing end of the core. This cuts down the current and reduces the spark at the gap.

Oil fouling, which results in a short circuited plug.

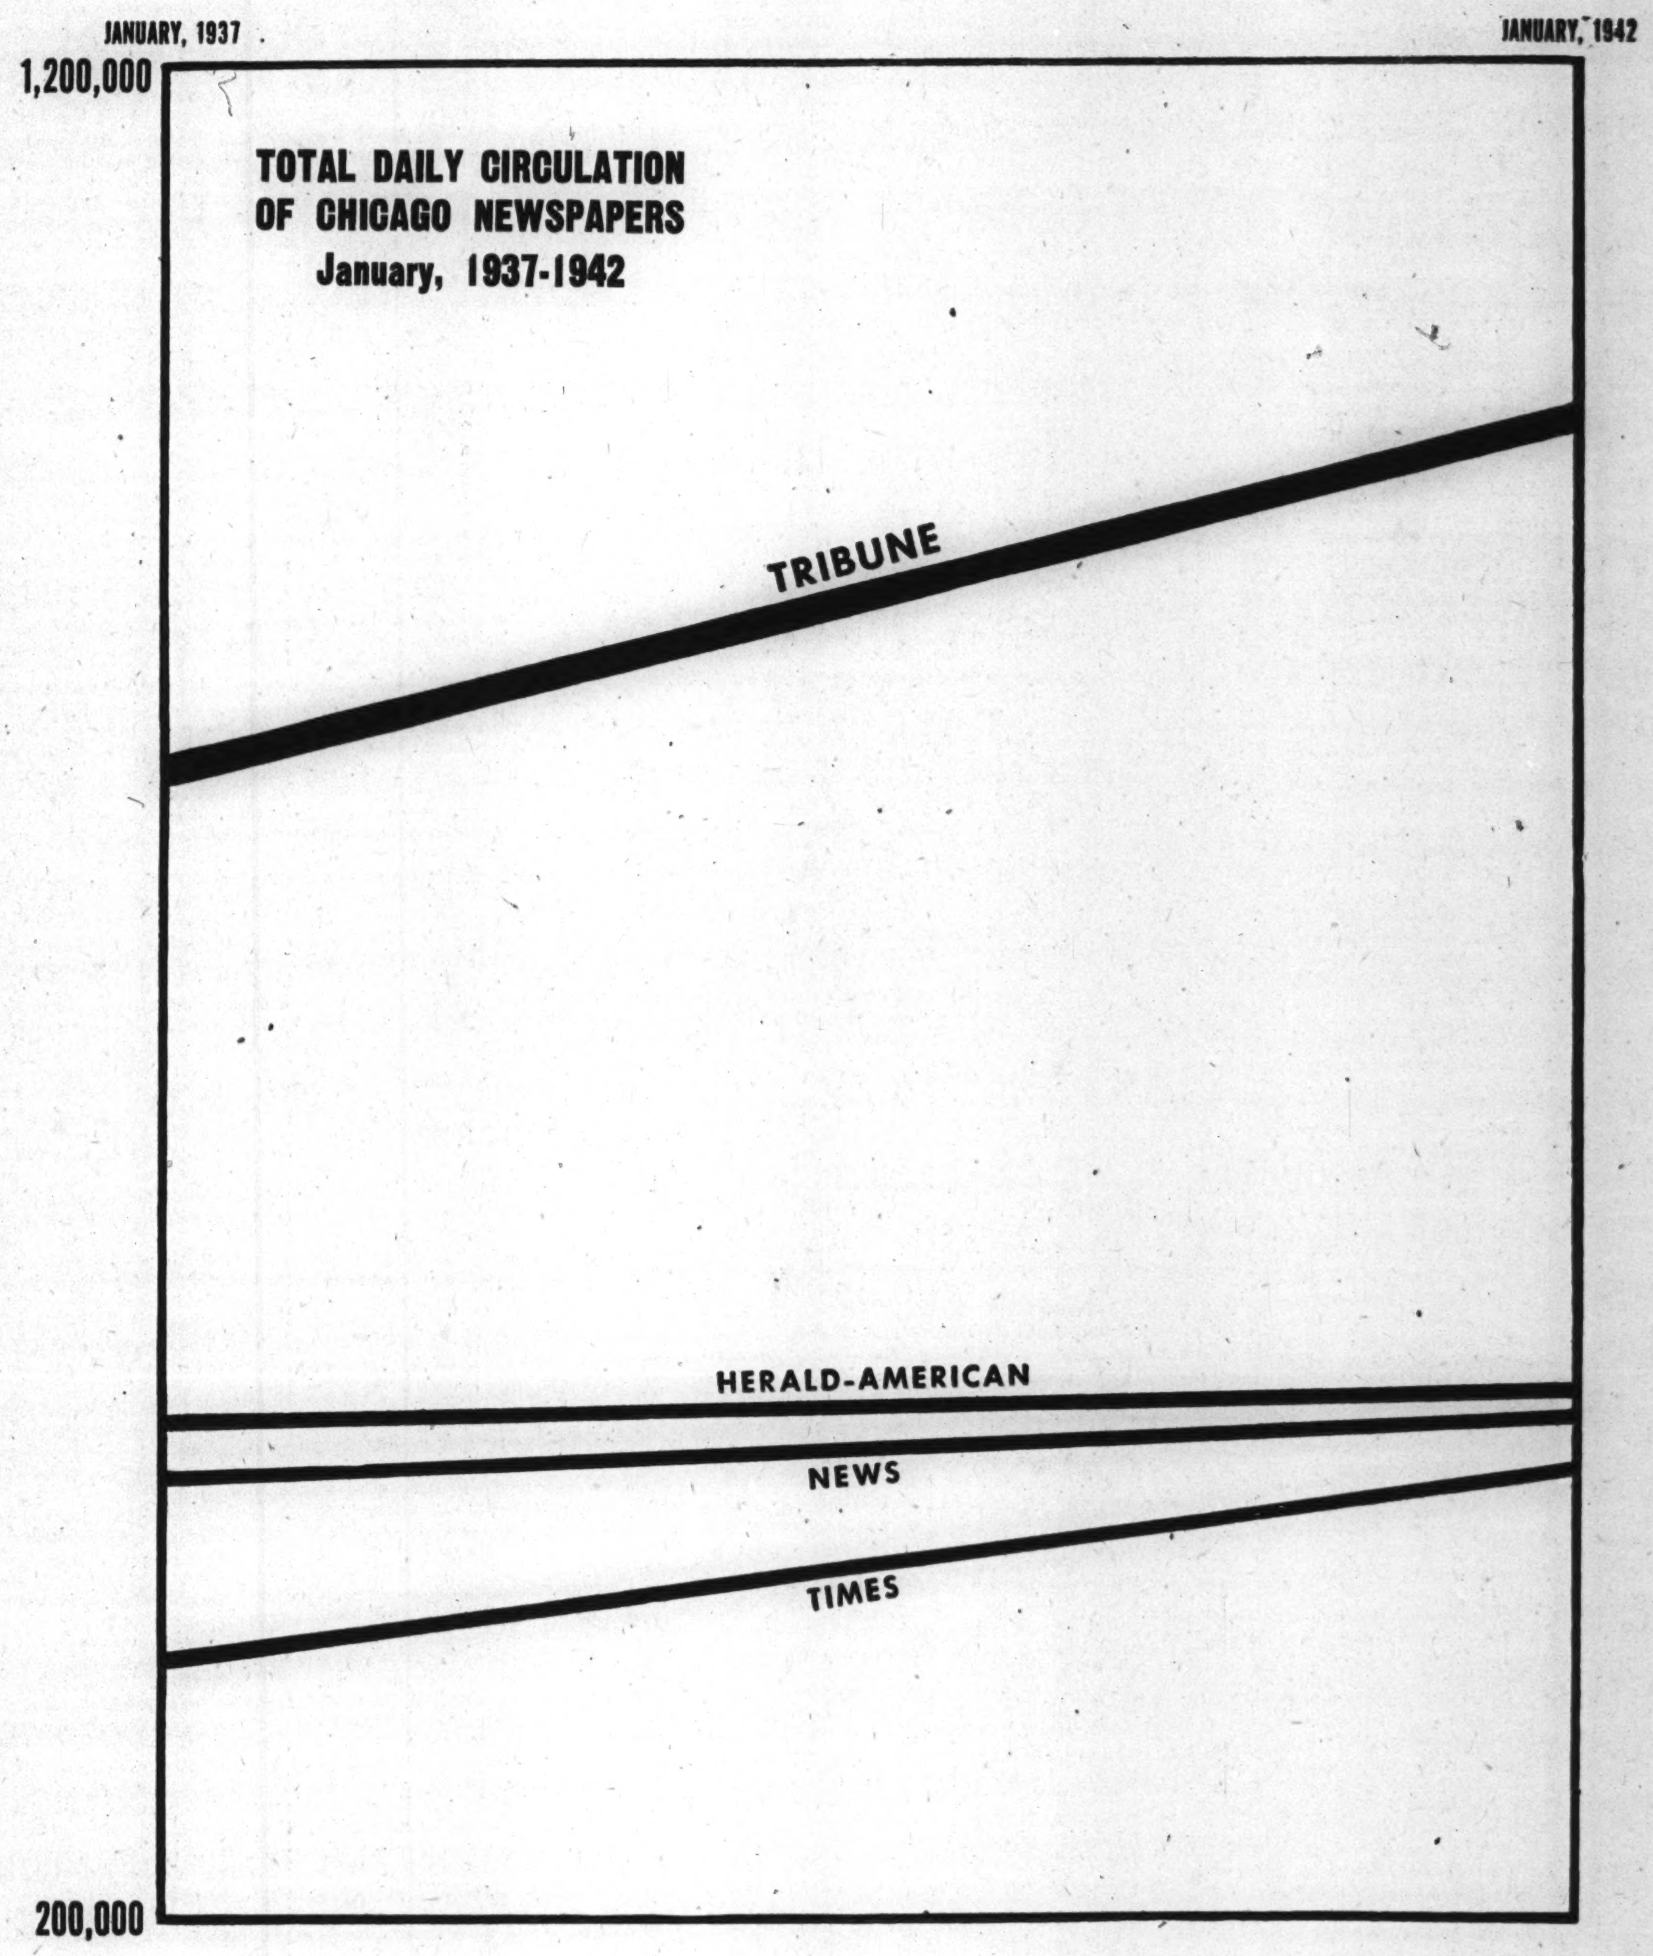
Gas leakage, which causes overheating.

Improper electrode gaps, which result in incomplete combustion.

Carbon deposits, which result in resistance to the ready passage of the spark.

It is important that spark plugs be checked and installed by some one who knows what he is doing. The gap must be correct—the car manufacturer can supply the proper setting—because if the plug gets too hot for the engine the points burn out too rapidly and if too cold the plug may become fouled. Remember when the spark plug is missing or is working inefficiently your pocketbook is suffering because you are having to buy more gasoline than you need.

Advertising sells more in the newspaper more people want!



Last month average net paid total daily circulation of the Chicago Tribune was in excess of 1,000,000. This represented an increase of more than 180,000 over January, 1937—a gain practically twice that of any other Chicago daily newspaper published in 1937, and more than the combined gains of all other Chicago daily newspapers since 1937.

DURING January average Tribune net paid total daily circulation was in excess of 1,000,000. This was more than twice the total circulation of any other Chicago daily newspaper and more than the combined circulations of any two other Chicago daily newspapers.

Here is evidence of progress and power that will interest every advertiser out to get more sales in this market. In a fast moving world a newspaper succeeds as it keeps in touch with readers and improves its service to them. Because the Tribune prints the news, free of any political, social or financial tieups, readers in increasing numbers look to it for the information they need and want.

Readers like the Tribune's straightforward presentation of the facts and its forthright editorial comment on conditions and affairs which affect their interests. They follow with absorbed attention the Tribune's comics, pictures, maps and features. They like its clean, legible type, superior paper, ink and presswork.

When you advertise in the Tribune, you address Chicago's largest, most responsive audience and make the most effective use of your advertising funds. Ask a Tribune salesman to give you all the facts why the Tribune is your basic advertising medium for any selling job in Chicago.

BILLY MITCHELL— A PROPHET WITH HONOR!

His Amazing Warning of Japan's Attack on Us

By WAYNE THOMIS

ON LAST DEC. 7 Billy Mitchell became America's major aeronautical prophet. And on Jan. 13 he became a prophet with honor when the United States senate, after ignoring him since 1925 when he was court-martialed for the very vision that brings him honor today, passed a bill authorizing a posthumous commission as major general. The commission would be entered as of the date of his death, Feb. 19, 1936.

It took the Japanese air sweep across Pearl Harbor to accomplish this. But when that attack came, almost as Mitchell had prophesied it would come, the people began to awaken to the accurate evaluation of aviation and air power he had made as long ago as the first World war, in which he was commander of AEF air forces. They began to remember his equally accurate statements of air power following the war.

And they discovered, for instance, that it was Brig. Gen. William Mitchell who first advocated the use of great numbers of planes as against the use of only a few super·aircraft. They found that it was Mitchell, not the Germans, who first advocated the doctrine that numbers, or quantity rather than quality, would provide overwhelming air superiority.

They learned that in 1918 General Mitchell had been urging the use of parachute troops, of massed day bombing, of coördination of airplanes with ground troops which is the great German theory in blitz warfare today. They discovered that he had warned again and again that all seagoing vessels, including the battleship or battle cruiser, were at the mercy of the air power and that any sea vessel could be sunk by air power.

They found as they began studying his speeches, writings, testimony he gave before various army and navy boards in Washington and during the court martial proceedings against him, that he had given other warnings. All of them were right, but all were ignored.

An important one, ignored by our naval leaders in the fleet dispositions in Hawaii, was to the effect that aviation had made harbors untenable for warships, large or small. Clustered together in harbors, he said, they presented ideal targets for aviators, and the shallow waters greatly assisted in bombing. Even tho the bombs missed their targets, the explosions, reflected from the harbor floors, would help tear out the unarmored bottom hulls of nearby battleships.

But Mitchell went far beyond generalities. He declared that Japan was this nation's most important and deadliest enemy. He said that American defensive plans should be aimed in one direction only—at Japan. And he insisted that all aircraft development work should be directed at producing planes capable of flying with a sizable bomb load from the United States coast to Japan and returning.

So concerned was he that Mitchell visited Japan in 1922. He made a survey of Japanese aviation development and probable future programs. His report, made upon his return to Washington, resulted in his being ordered to the general staff and finally led to his appointment as assistant chief of the army air service.

The report itself never was published, but in March, 1930, in a book called "Skyways," Mitchell wrote:

"Japan began her aeronautic development shortly after the war (1914-'18). Seeing the tremendous effect aircraft were having on the conduct of war, she put out redoubled efforts, particularly after the bombardment experiments carried out in the United States in 1921 (those of Mitchell's own air squadrons at Langley field, Virginia) had proved beyond a doubt that battleships were at the mercy of air power.

"Gradually they evolved a powerful air force. . . . Their army has been cut down and money saved from this put into the air force. . . . Small islands in the vicinity of Japan have been organized so air forces can land on them. If any navy attempted to cross the Pacific from America or from the north and south it would most assuredly be attacked far out at sea by the Japanese air force and destroyed. The Japanese make excellent aviators. . . . They are athletic, quick of eye and thought, brave and resourceful, self-reliant and enduring, and these are the very qualities that make good flyers."

In May, 1932, in a speech he said:

"When Japan

PLANNING OUR POPULATION!

By LLOYD WENDT

MOST sociologists agree that the ideal American family ought to have three or four children, not one, and not seven or eight. They believe that the children ought to be spaced about two or three years apart. The actual number of children and the time of spacing are of course to be determined by the economic situation of the individual family, the health of the mother, and the development of the children themselves.

In the last 40 years the American birth rate has dropped from 30 to 17 per 1,000 population. This is not yet alarming; in fact, the country might be in difficulties if the high rate of births prevalent at the turn of the century had not diminished. But the sociologists are very much concerned by the fact that low-income families are still having too many babies, while the high-income groups are having too few.

The quality of a population is even more important than its numbers. At present Japan, Germany, and Italy are stubbornly ignoring this truth by encouraging an indiscriminate increase of their peoples thru propaganda, the granting of bonuses to big families, and the levying of penalty taxes on small families and unmarried persons. Such methods have brought the Japanese birth rate up to 30.6 per 1,000, for example, after the nation had for centuries engaged in the widespread practice of abortion and infanticide. As a result of this new population policy there are nearly two million Japanese live births every year, almost equal to the two and a quarter million annually in the United States.

But the losses by death and disability among Japanese children, because of low economic standards among the most prolific families, is nearly twice our own. Thus, rating the nations according to present standards of military prowess, the Japanese empire, with 105,000,000 people, can draw upon only 11,000,000 usable men of military age, while the United States, with 131,000,000, can draw upon a vast reservoir of 25 million.

Nevertheless even in the United States fully 37 per cent of the children born every year are wasted, largely because they are born at the wrong time and to the wrong people. This wastage has its effect on the persons who are productive and fit normally into our social scheme, for they must pay a bill of four billion dollars a year taking care of the unfortunates in institutions, repressing them into penitentiaries, or in attempts to rehabilitate them. That four billion dollars is the amount spent thru various national agencies and does not include many local expenditures for which no summary statistics are available.

In time of war the quality of the population becomes especially important. When the United States began the present draft 50 per cent of the conscripts were rejected for deficiencies of one kind or another. Many of the disabilities were minor, but it was estimated that it would cost the country $500,000,000 to rehabilitate even 200,000 of the 1,000,000 men rejected, to make them fit for military service.

That the serviceability of men is related directly to the economic position of their families is indicated by the fact that in Chicago 71.1 per cent of all men drafted in the lowest income areas were rejected, while in the high-income districts the rate of rejection was 40 per cent.

Thomas Robert Malthus, the English economist, a number of years ago put forth the theory that if population growth was not controled the rate of growth would in time exceed the food supplies. When Malthus wrote, scientific birth control was practiced in very few countries, notably France, where since the Napoleonic era most peasant housewives had their prescriptions for medicinal contraceptives that proved effective. Oriental countries, where the births already exceeded available food supplies, relied on abortion and plain murder to keep down the number of children.

The United States, with wide open spaces to be developed, needed people and markets and could supply plenty of food, so the restriction of population was no problem. It was only at the time of World war I. that population control got any attention here.

Until lately American population control has in the main been following two vicious courses: At least 750,000 women, 90 per cent of them married, obtain illegal and dangerous abortions every year; and an estimated 65 per cent of all married couples purchase over-the-counter contraceptives, many of which are useless and some of which are downright harmful.

Recently scientific groups, churches, and women's organizations are taking the position that planned parenthood is necessary to the maintenance and improvement of the American standard of living.

Planned parenthood is not limited to teaching married persons methods of birth control. Its advocates are as interested in increasing the size of certain families as they are in restricting others. The goal is not to decrease the total population but to improve the quality by intelligent control. The promoters of the planned parenthood idea want to see couples rearing the full number of children they can afford, with due consideration for the mother, whose health may be ruined by too many pregnancies.

The health of the mother and the health of the infant are prime considerations in the control program. Spacing the children is most important. There are 146.7 deaths per 1,000 live births among babies born one year apart. This death toll is reduced to 98.6 when the births are spaced two years apart, and to 86.5 when they are three years apart. The mother's life is sometimes risked when children are born too frequently, and her health often suffers. The danger of maternal death rises progressively after the birth of the fourth child.

Pioneer in a national movement for scientific family control is the National Federation for Planned Parenthood, with headquarters in New York. The federation operates numerous free public clinics about the country. There are now 637 such control clinics in the United States, either sponsored by the federation and its various local units or by public health departments of some states, or by hospitals. The Illinois League for Planned Parenthood, affiliated with the National federation, has 10 free clinics in Chicago and 9 in other Illinois cities.

Any married person, or engaged couples planning immediate marriage, may visit these clinics for advice and instruction on the rearing of a family and the spacing of children. If they are unable to pay, the assistance is given free.

Couples able to do so are encouraged to have children, three or four if possible. Those who unquestionably need to restrict their families, either for economic reasons or considerations of health, are provided with the knowledge they need. If a couple can afford it they are advised to go to their family physician for instruction, or a doctor is suggested for them.

Mr. and Mrs. X, typical newly married couple, visit the downtown clinic of the Illinois League for Planned Parenthood.

Mrs. Ben Gray, executive secretary, explains the nation's maternal mortality rate.

Then Mrs. X continues the interview with the clinic doctor.

Child spacing methods thus dispensed are from 95 to 98 per cent effective, they destroy none of the esthetic values of the marriage relationship, and they are not harmful to health. Many commercial over-the-counter contraceptives, on the other hand, are not dependable, and one product widely sold for such purpose was recently censured by the federal trade commission on the grounds that it was completely ineffective.

In the United States between 750,000 and 1,000,000 women obtain illegal abortions every year. Only one in ten is unmarried. Nearly 10,000 of these women die as a result of the operations, usually performed by quacks under septic conditions, and 30,000 more are either invalided or rendered sterile. Million-dollar abortion rings exist in some of the principal cities and in many cases pay graft to law-enforcement officials.

But the negative benefits of offsetting the vicious abortion racket does not compare with the positive advantages claimed for the planned parenthood program.

"Planned parenthood seeks to bring about higher standards of living and greatly improved human resources," said Mrs. Ben Gray, executive secretary of the Illinois league. "It seeks to make possible the largest population that is consistent with that standard of living. Basic to any population control program is the proposition that parenthood must be voluntary and that responsible, healthy parenthood must be encouraged."

Dr. James H. S. Bossard, sociologist at the University of Pennsylvania, has estimated that it costs on the average about $10,000 to rear a child from birth until the 18th birthday. The birth of the child may cost from as little as $50, when the child is delivered at home, to $5,000 among very wealthy families.

Usually a couple in the lower middle class income group ought to have $150 saved in preparation for the arrival of their baby. If they have a child on an instalment payment plan they rarely catch up, for the extra drain on their income continues year after year. There are few people who will not make sacrifices to have children, but the adjustments attendant upon the birth of the first child are usually difficult enough without financial worries. Sociologists have recommended that couples should not have a baby during their first year of married life, whatever their financial condition. Planning permits them to prepare for the child psychologically and financially, with resultant happier and healthier home life.

Couples in the $3,000-a-year income class might expect their baby to cost about $300, including prenatal, obstetrical, and postnatal care and the layette and supplies necessary for the child. The government in its income tax allowances estimates the cost of rearing a child at $400 a year. This figure is low. Probably the absolute minimum is nearer $500 a year.

"We have found it best for families to save in advance for a child," said Mrs. Gray. "They can usually put away some money more readily before the child arrives than after. Then, too, a savings account is helpful if complications develop, as they sometimes do. It is never possible to be sure about the cost; there may be extra hospitalization or other expenses.

"But more important than the financial considerations is the fact that if the spacing of children is planned the mother can be in best possible health during pregnancy. We like to have them visit their doctor first. He can help the prospective mother build up her health if that is necessary."

In 1940 there were 2,360,399 babies born in the United States. By 1955, according to the National Federation for Planned Parenthood, 9 of every 100 will be dead, and 28 of every 100 will be crippled, tuberculous, mentally retarded, legally delinquent, or problem children requiring special care. Thus by 1955, 660,000 of the 1940 babies still living will require special assistance from the rest of the population instead of preparing normally to contribute usefully to the general welfare.

This means a tremendous tax bill, huge disbursements to private charities, the curtailment

O-KAY KYSER!

In "Playmates" Kay Kyser practically has John Barrymore as a straight man.

Looking at Hollywood with John Chapman

Hollywood.

THE AVERAGE actor is by ordinary standards a dope, or at best a child. A born and trained exhibitionist and a natural egomaniac, he can't often cope with the problems you and I have. He starves obscurely but proudly if he isn't in the money, and he lives like an idiot if he does happen to have dough.

Many Hollywood stars, recognizing their own failings as people of commerce, hire business managers to handle their money and put them on small weekly allowances. Their minds are lopsided and they cheerfully admit it. They have vast admiration for the few of their kind who have not only acting ability but also business sense — the Pickfords, Chaplins, Lloyds, and others who have made and hung on to fortunes. Among show folk who rate this kind of respect is James King Kern Kyser —altho he would be the last to admit that he is any kind of an actor.

Kay Kyser is a smart cookie. He is not a sharp trader, a miser, or a maneuverer, but he does have a level head — and level heads in Hollywood are as scarce as Japanese-made American flags at a Legion meeting. Kay is a young showman of the old school—a chap who came up the hard way and who knows audiences, bookings, railroad routes, the probabilities of week-end business in Boston, the value of a dollar, when to say no, when to say yes, and many other things that a star does not necessarily have to know.

When I told Kay I was going to do a piece about him as a smart cookie he was frightened. His mild, bespectacled eyes got a worried look and his mild North Carolinan voice took on an even more plaintive note. He was afraid I was going to make him a superman or something.

"I'm just an ordinary guy," he said.

And he was almost right—but there aren't many ordinary guys in Hollywood.

Harold Lloyd, another smart cookie, is producing Kay's new picture, "My Favorite Spy." I asked Harold what he thought about his star.

"He's fine," said Lloyd. "In a business way he drives a good bargain—but he is absolutely fair and honest. He isn't cheap; he keeps his band together by paying them over the scale. As an actor I think he's pretty remarkable. In this picture he is playing a pretty straight rôle, different from anything he has tackled before, and he is doing a fine, intelligent job. He catches on to anything the first time, and he has a great memory for detail. And he is good-natured and endlessly helpful."

Kyser's explanation of himself, as he tells it in his colorful southern tongue, is interesting and often amusing. He was born in Rocky Mount, N. C., in 1906, the youngest of six children. His father, Paul Bynum Kyser, was the best known druggist there.

"We were conditioned to poverty," says Kay, who has a good college education. "When I was a year old our house burned to the ground. Then the drug store burned. We never had much money—but we had champagne tastes on beer incomes. If you're poor you can give up and say, 'All right, I'm poor,' and go and live on the other side of the tracks; or you can fight against being poor. We fought."

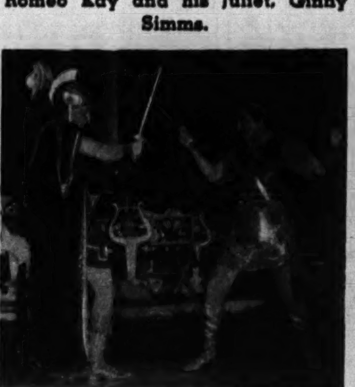
Kyser has been on his own from the time he was in high school. Like thousands of American lads, he worked his way thru college — but he worked more with his head than with his back.

Romeo Kay and his Juliet, Ginny Simms.



It's a duel.

Kay and May Robeson get advice from Director David Butler.

A lot of fellows, for instance, made their way by waiting on table or stoking furnaces, but Kay made more use of imagination than of muscle. He went to the proprietress of a boarding house and asked her how many new customers it would take to warrant his getting free room and board. She allowed that 10 was the right number.

"It was easy," says Kay. "Out of 3,000 students it was a cinch to find 10 who would go to this boarding house. So I got my room and board free, and I kept the house full."

The same deal went for clothes. New York tailors have always had salesmen on the road in college towns. Kyser braced one of these, made a deal to be made campus representative. All Kay wanted out of it was one suit—but he did his representing so well he got all the wardrobe he wanted. "I dressed like a Wall street broker," he says. He is not ashamed of having used his head instead of his muscle.

There are some Hollywoodians who are too cagey; so cagey that you don't trust them. Kyser is not one of these, and he's the first to point out that sometimes he has outsmarted himself. The training of his early life can occasionally be a handicap.

He is, for instance, middle-class economical. He turns out lights when he leaves a room.

"I still run the water slow when I'm brushing my teeth," he says, "because all you need is a slow stream, and somebody has to pay the water bill."

Once his Rocky Mount sensibleness got him into trouble. He and his band were playing a big-town hotel at a very fancy figure, and Kay had free quarters in the hotel. One night he was leaving his rooms, and he turned out all the lights.

"I knew the lights were complimentary," he says, "and hardly anybody ever turns them off in a hotel, anyway. But shucks, somebody has to pay for 'em, and it went against my grain to waste them. But when I went out the manager happened to be in the hallway, and he said: 'What are you doing, turning off the lights? Do you want people to think that my hotel is vacant?'"

Kyser's judgment about himself, his band, and their bookings has been excellent. When everybody was making movie shorts he wouldn't sign up for shorts.

"I never saw a short," he says, "where a band was as good as it was in the flesh. So why should I let people see us at a disadvantage?"

Kay spurned his first big time offer, and everybody, including his agent, thought he was nuts. He was offered $75,000 to appear in a few scenes of a grade A picture; Hollywood had thrown open its doors and laid down the red carpet—and Kyser said, "No." It wasn't a question of money, either, for 75 grand was immense money. But he and the band were not a part of the story; just incidental to it.

"I knew enough about movies," he says, "to know that if a picture runs too long it's the things that don't have to do with the plot which get left on the cutting room floor. I didn't want to risk this in our first try at Hollywood."

Kyser's judgment in this case is perfect. He and the band have been in the plots of all their movies, and their success has built steadily. In "Playmates" Kyser had John Barrymore for practically a straight man. In the new "My Favorite Spy" Kay has a fat comedy rôle which the great Harold Lloyd himself would have played in an earlier day, and pretty Ellen Drew for a leading lady.

But Kay's judgment is not always perfect. Once his phonograph record company wanted him to record a number called "Three Little Fishes." Kyser yelped long, high rebel yelps. The more he heard the song the less he liked it. But Joe Higgins, a phonograph executive, kept dogging him until he gave in. "Fishes" was the band's biggest hit to date, if you take into account the fact that records weren't selling as well then as they do now.

Ellen Drew

Harold Lloyd

More recently his present record company tried to get Kyser to record another number. He listened to it, analyzed it, decided out of fairly vast experience that it was no go and wouldn't be a hit.

"I'm the genius," he laughs, "who thought 'I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire' wasn't any good. Why, if we'd recorded it we'd have sold 700,000 records."

Kyser's mother is the daughter of a minister. He has a pianist uncle with the not so southern name of Vermont Connecticut Royster. His father was a math and penmanship teacher at the Military College of South Carolina until he went into the drug store business. Kay was a prankesome boy who frequently ran away from home and could usually be located at the amusement park listening to the drummer in the bandstand.

Kay's tendency to use his head first became apparent during his junior year in high school. A lightweight, he couldn't play football, but he became the team's cheer leader. Brooding about lightweights who couldn't play football, he organized the skinny guys into a 115-pound team called the Tigers—but even so he didn't play. He was the coach. Kay drilled his Tigers in spectacular plays, one of the most spectacular being to pray in a body just before a game (an idea swiped from the Praying Colonels of Centre college). The Tigers became state-famous and often drew bigger crowds than the regular school teams.

Kyser's first business experience also came in high school, when he and a friend, Henry Gregory, went into the advertising business. Kay had noticed that manufacturers of drug store staples like soap and corn plasters frequently wrote his father asking for the name of some reliable person to distribute circulars from door to door. The Kyser-Gregory advertising agency undertook this work, guaranteeing to deliver 3,000 circulars—enough to cover Rocky Mount — for $3.75 a thousand. They hired eight schoolboys to do the "stuffing" for two bits apiece. Thus their gross per 3,000 circulars was $11.25, their pay roll $2, their net $9.25.

Kay went to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, quickly got into any kind of show business college activities offered. He was regarded as a very fresh freshman and a little less fresh as a sophomore. He really got going when he was a junior, and Hal Kemp put him in the band business. Kemp, a noted University of North Carolina alumnus, had organized and conducted a college dance band, and when he left he suggested that Kyser start another one. Kyser got together six lads who played by ear. The first dance they played, in Oxford, N. C., they knew only six tunes, which they repeated all night long.

Kay had planned to become a lawyer, but changed over to the commerce school in college. He got an A. B. Today he talks more like a liberal arts grad than a commerce alumnus, being literate and articulate — but I think he would be a pip of a commerce prof for any school lucky enough to get him.

Dear Miss Tinée: What actor took the part of Major Crail in Belle Starr"? I think he's swell. My friends have written in quite a bit, and you have always answered them. I hope you won't disappoint me. Sincerely,

SHIRLEY OLSON.

Dear Miss Olson: Dana Andrews played the rôle of Major Crail in "Belle Starr"—and he's currently appearing in "Ball of Fire" with Barbara Stanwyck. You can write to him in care of RKO-Radio studio, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal. Come again!

Dear Miss Tinée: Could you please tell me who played the part of Larry Herman in "IceCapades"? I saw the picture recently and still have to laugh when I think of him "eating his words."

I read your column every Sunday and your movie criticisms on weekdays. I enjoy them both and sincerely hope you keep up the good work. DARLENE.

Dear Darlene: Phil Silvers played the rôle of Larry Herman in "IceCapades." You can write to him care of Republic studio, 4024 North Radford avenue, Hollywood, Cal. I'm delighted to know you like the column. Thanks for your pleasant words.

PERFECT POEMS

The Tribune has been requested by many readers to continue publication of "Perfect Poems," altho the original list, taken from "Fifty Perfect Poems," compiled by Rossiter Johnson and Charles A. Dana, has been exhausted. Future poems will be selected from the works of all writers whose poetry has survived the test of years.

EXCELSIOR

By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

The shades of night were falling fast
As thru an Alpine village passed
A youth who bore 'mid snow and ice
A banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

His brow was sad; his eye beneath
Flashed like a falchion from its sheath,
And like a silver clarion rung
The accents of that unknown tongue,
Excelsior!

In happy homes he saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright;
Above, the spectral glaciers shone,
And from his lips escaped a groan,
Excelsior!

"Try not the pass!" the old man said;
"Dark lowers the tempest overhead,
The roaring torrent is deep and wide!"
And loud that clarion voice replied,
Excelsior!

"O, stay," the maiden said, "and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast!"
A tear stood in his bright blue eye,
But still he answered with a sigh,
Excelsior!

"Beware the pine tree's withered branch!
Beware the awful avalanche!"
This was the peasant's last good night;
A voice replied far up the height,
Excelsior!

At break of day, as heavenward
The pious monks of St. Bernard
Uttered the oft-repeated prayer,
A voice cried thru the startled air,
Excelsior!

A traveler, by the faithful hound,
Half buried in the snow was found,
Still grasping in his hand of ice
That banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

There in the twilight cold and gray,
Lifeless, but beautiful, he lay,
And from the sky serene and far
A voice fell like a falling star,
Excelsior!

NOW MY PRECIOUS STOCKINGS LAST AS MUCH AS 20% LONGER!

"I've learned the right way to guard against a hidden stocking danger!"

PERSPIRATION IS ACID
...it EATS stockings!

WINTER AND SUMMER YOU PERSPIRE EACH DAY, GUARD AGAINST IT MY EASY WAY!

MISS IVORY SNOW

ONLY IVORY SNOW combines 2 great advantages you'll want in fighting this constant peril!

• Ivory Snow is a new, different fine-fabrics soap to help you guard your stockings against the daily danger of acid perspiration. It is not a flake—not a powder. Made in tiny "snowdrops" to give rich, thorough-cleansing suds that quickly remove acid perspiration and other soil. A 2-minute daily sudsing with gentle, thorough Ivory Snow is all you need!

Yes, you'll get up to 20% more wear from your stockings if you'll simply avoid carelessness—turn to this easy daily care with Ivory Snow. But be sure you use only Ivory Snow—the only soap that combines two great advantages. (See below.)

ONLY IVORY SNOW COMBINES BOTH THESE ADVANTAGES

1. It's pure, white soap made under a patented process in tiny "snowdrop" form.
2. It dissolves like a flash in cool water—4 times faster than any soap of its kind.

No wonder Ivory Snow acts so surely against acid perspiration, to help stockings last far longer!

IVORY SNOW

WANT LOVELIER HANDS IN 12 DAYS?

If your hands are red and rough from using one of those strong laundry soaps—change to pure Ivory Snow for all your dishwashing. It cuts grease as fast as the strongest washday soap. And in just 12 days you'll get softer hands!

goes to war she gives no warning of an attack. She jumps on her adversary when he is at the greatest disadvantage and is entirely ruthless in her methods. She gave no warning to the Chinese in 1894, nor when she attacked Russia at Port Arthur in 1905, nor when she attacked Corea, nor recently when she pounced on Manchuria."

And in March, 1933, in another speech, he practically called the turn on why and how the Japanese would attack us. He said:

"While many consider it debatable that Japan will make war against the United States, history shows that countries which feel their very existence menaced will seize a favorable opportunity to strike at a powerful adversary. Japan never declares war before attacking. She would probably launch several simultaneous attacks against us. One would be against the Philippine Islands, which she could seize with a very small detachment of her total strength."

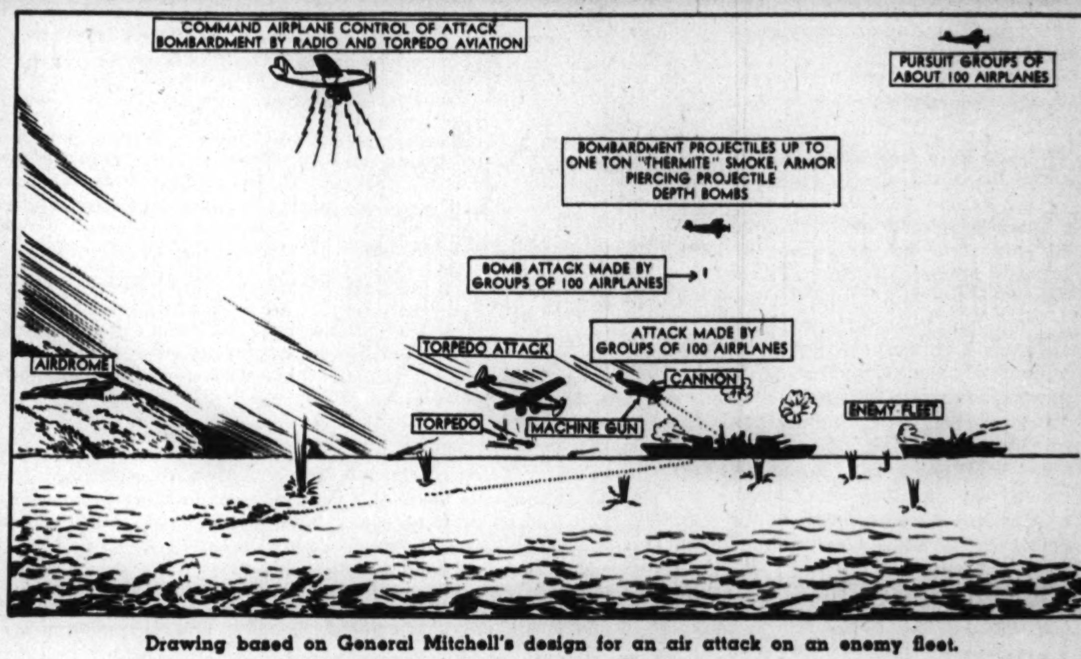
Mitchell's ideas on the vulnerability of fleets in harbors were set out in his book "Skyways." He said:

"A naval fleet spends the greater portion of its time in harbor, and this is particularly so since the advent of the submarine. A fleet in harbor is very vulnerable to air attack, even more so than when at sea, because it is concentrated in a small area.

"It offers a better target, and the water is shallower. This last is important. Bombs exploding against a bottom in shallow water have more effect than in deep water, because the bottom acts like the breech of a cannon and projects most of their force upward."

It was Mitchell who first—more than 15 years ago—predicted the teamwork between submarine and airplane that the Germans have employed during this war in attacking convoys in the North Atlantic ocean. On page 269 of his book "Skyways," published in 1930, he described this air-submarine teamwork as follows:



COMMAND AIRPLANE CONTROL OF ATTACK BOMBARDMENT BY RADIO AND TORPEDO AVIATION
PURSUIT GROUPS OF ABOUT 100 AIRPLANES
BOMBARDMENT PROJECTILES UP TO ONE TON "THERMITE" SMOKE, ARMOR PIERCING PROJECTILE DEPTH BOMBS
BOMB ATTACK MADE BY GROUPS OF 100 AIRPLANES
ATTACK MADE BY GROUPS OF 100 AIRPLANES TORPEDO ATTACK
CANNON
MACHINE GUN ENEMY FLEET

Drawing based on General Mitchell's design for an air attack on an enemy fleet.

"While surface seacraft are very easy for aircraft to destroy, the submarine is a different matter. When it is submerged, unless the water is very clear, it is almost impossible for the airplane to find it. Submarines remain hidden in the daytime at great depths and come to the surface at night.

"Not only can they use guns of any size, but also they can launch aerial torpedoes, directing them by radio against objects on land. Their effect (that of submarines) against ocean-borne shipping is tremendous. During the war (of 1914-'18) they destroyed more than half of all Great Britain's commercial ships.

"In the future they will be used to attack hostile commerce and will be employed as an auxiliary by the air forces as described above. The best defense against submarines is other submarines, and after that aircraft."

Mitchell also saw early the value of dive bombing. On page 268 of his book "Skyways" he wrote:

"Not only may projectiles be launched at battleships by the ordinary system of dropping bombs when the airplane is overhead, but the plane can dive for its target at an angle and loose the bomb, which will keep up its velocity along the same line that the airplane is flying, at any angle under 45 degrees." (He meant that the bomb would keep its direction at any angle of dive from 45 to 90 degrees.)

This dive bombing is the attack that both the Germans and Japanese have used to support their ground troops, particularly armored units, in drives in Europe, Asia, the Philippines, and in the East Indies. While our own army air forces ignored dive bombing until mid-1941 (actually the first dive bombers were not delivered to tactical squadrons of the air corps until that time, and the types involved were obsolete machines that the navy had stopped buying), Mitchell in 1930 was listing dive bombing as an important element in air attacking forces.

How really far ahead Mitchell was in his conceptions of the airplane as a war weapon may be judged from the following. In his book "Winged Defense," written in 1923 and 1924 and published in the latter months of 1924, he illustrated the various kinds of attack that airplanes could make on fleets at sea.

Mitchell described every use of the airplane as a weapon that has been made even today, and in this same book he advocated several kinds of attack that have as yet to be tried out, altho airmen at large agree that they are eminently practical.

Specifically Mitchell urged the use of:

1—Low-flying planes to machine-gun and fire light automatic cannon at all control towers and units and exposed anti-aircraft guns on vessels. These attacks should be made by pursuit type planes in groups of 100 or more, he said.

2—Overhead high-altitude bombers to drop "thermite, smoke, armor-piercing projectiles, and depth bombs." Groups of at least 100 planes.

3—Simultaneously low-flying planes in groups of 20 to 50 should launch torpedo attacks. This attack should be made from all around the compass at the same moment.

4—High overhead there should be several groups of 100 in each group of interceptor fighters to fight off any airplanes that might be accompanying the enemy fleet.

5—Finally, the entire air attack should be commanded by radio from a "command" airplane that accompanies the attackers but remains aloof from the battle. The air commander sees the action as a whole and

MOVIE STARS IN COLOR

Color portraits of these movie stars are reproduced in today's Picture Section.

ALAN CURTIS is a Chicago boy who made good in Hollywood. He was born in the Rogers Park section and educated at Senn High school, where he won letters in football, track, baseball, and basketball. He worked as a bill collector for a loan company, as a bond salesman, and as a cab driver before becoming one of the leading models for commercial artists. While he was in New York, Hollywood producers saw his picture in advertisments and offered him a screen test. His first important rôle was Joan Crawford's husband in "Mannequin." He's married to Ilona Massey, with whom he's currently appearing in the screen version of Franz Schubert's life titled "New Wine." Alan is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 180 pounds.

CECILIA PARKER was born in Fort William, Canada. She is the daughter of a British soldier, and Cecilia and the family were taken to England during the first World war, returning to Canada at its close. The family moved to Hollywood when Cecilia was 9, and she attended Hollywood High school and Immaculate Heart convent. She started her screen career as an extra in order to earn a little spending money. Her first real rôle was opposite George O'Brien in a western picture. She's been featured in the Andy Hardy series as young Andy's sophisticated sister. Cecilia is 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 110 pounds. In June, 1938, she was married to Dick Baldwin, featured young player.

JEANETTE MacDONALD was born in Philadelphia, Pa., June 18, 1907. She attended West Philadelphia High School for Girls and Julia Richmond's private school in New York City. Her singing career had started before she went to school, when at the age of 5 she made her first appearance on a stage. Her first professional appearance in New York was at the Capitol theater as one of Ned Wayburn's dancing girls. It was thru the aid of her sister, then playing in New York musical shows, that she got her first job. Her rise in the theatrical world was rapid and it wasn't long before she was playing starring rôles. Her biggest successes were "The Magic Ring," "Tiptoes," "Sunny Days," "Yes, Yes, Yvette," and "Angela." Maurice Chevalier brought her to Hollywood to appear opposite him in "The Love Parade." Her most recent screen rôle is that of Kathleen and Moonyean in "Smilin' Through," in which her husband, Gene Raymond, also appears.

ANITA LOUISE is her real name. She was born in New York City on Jan. 9, 1917, and was educated at the Professional school in New York and the Greenwood School for Girls in Hollywood. She excels at the piano and the harp, has a beautiful singing voice, and is a talented dancer. Her theatrical career started at the age of 7 when she appeared in numerous New York stage plays, including "Peter Ibbetson," "The Greatest Thing in the World," and "The Marquise" with Billie Burke. The first year of her film career was fruitless because the casting director declared that she was too lovely and did not fit any of the rôles that came along. Finally she was chosen to play the part of Titania, queen of the fairies, in "Midsummer Night's Dream," and since then has starred in many productions. She's 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 106 pounds. Anita is the wife of E. Maurice Adler, screen writer.

JUNE HAVOC is fast making her own niche in the film world, but she's still known as Gypsy Rose Lee's little sister. She was born in Seattle, Wash., Nov. 8, 1918, the second child of Jack and Rose Hovick. When she was 3 years old her mother took her to Hollywood, where she had rôles in a number of Hal Roach comedies. When she was 4½ June was launched via the Pantages circuit on a dancing career, billed as "Baby June, the Darling of Vaudeville." By the time she was 6 June was a star in her own right. Years later in New York she appeared in such stage productions "You Never Know," "No, No, Nanette," "Sally, Irene and Mary," and recently was starred in the New York cast of the stage hit "Pal Joey." Her appearance in "Four Jacks and a Jill" with Anne Shirley and Ray Bolger is her first real part in pictures. Miss Havoc is 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 116 pounds.

JIMMY "SCHNOZZOLA" DURANTE was born on the lower east side in New York, Feb. 19, 1893. His first job was in a photo-engraving plant, but Jimmy decided the work was too hard and went on the stage. He started out by singing roustabout songs of his own concoction in small clubs on the Bowery. Somewhere along the route he annexed Lou Clayton and Eddie Jackson, forming the famous vaudeville trio of Clayton, Jackson, and Durante. They were featured in Broadway hits such as "Show Girl" and "New Yorkers." Mr. Durante is 5 feet 7½ inches tall, weighs 155 pounds. "You're in the Army Now" is his most recent screen comedy, in which Phil Silvers and Jane Wyman also are featured.

GEORGE TOBIAS comes from an acting family. His parents were engaged in Yiddish theater productions in New York, and he made his debut in the Neighborhood Playhouse. Later he joined the Provincetown Players in Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape." It was at that time that the late Louis Wohlheim adopted him as a protégé. The following season George was given a rôle in the successful stage play "What Price Glory." Many other parts followed, and his most recent Broadway success was as the Russian ballet master in "You Can't Take It with You." During a slow summer season on Broadway he went to Hollywood, was soon given a contract with Warner Brothers, and is now one of the busiest character actors at the studio.

GLORIA WARREN was born Gloria Weiman on April 7, 1926, in Wilmington, Del. She attended Warner Junior High school in Wilmington and is now continuing her education on the Warner Brothers lot with Joan Leslie. Her career is such an event in the life of the family that when her name was changed to Warren her father, a watchmaker and jeweler, arranged to adopt the name for the family, too. Gloria studied dramatics, dancing, singing, and piano playing in school, and made her first appearance on any stage when she was in the seventh grade by playing the prince in "The Prince and the Pauper." She arrived in Hollywood in 1940 and was put into a course of intensive training, including singing lessons. A screen test by Warner Brothers won her a contract which she signed a few weeks after her 15th birthday.

SHORT CUT TO STYLE

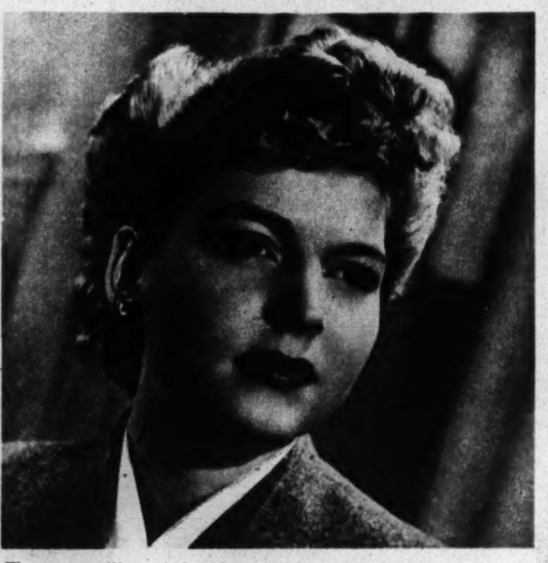
Quite a different adaptation. That's a flashlight Miss Sayres has in her fingers.



The versatility of the three-inch cut is demonstrated by this business day or formal hair-do.

"THE FEMININE note must be emphasized in wartime hair-dos." The foregoing command, broadcast by a group of eastern hairdressers and cosmetologists at their recent convention, sums up the story of hair at this time.

Hat designers recognize this new trend in hair arrangement. Both hat designers and hairdressers agree that the "up" look, emphasized by the soft femininity and the wide, individual possibilities in the three-inch cut, simplifies a situation that we must eventually face. Setting lotions and hairpins are on the priority lists and may be unobtainable in the future.

The guaranteed popularity of this universally becoming three-inch cut, set in high waves, brushed up sides, high curled back, or any way your skilful fingers and hairbrush adapt it to your own individual style of beauty, is based on the fact that it is a time-saver for women who are active in defense work. It's quickly convertible (by yourself) into an evening hair-do. Also it provides softness to offset the severe lines of the overseas cap or the cap worn in any and every occupational branch.

We like particularly its adaptability to hairbrush arrangement. That's what you're urged to use for its styling and arrangement. So that this new cut becomes not only a practical thing, a thing of feminine charm, but a boon to the hair and scalp with the repeated brushings it will get thruout the day and evening.

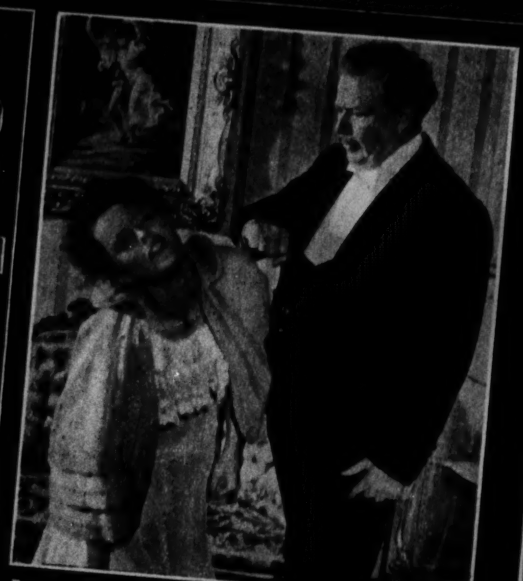
THE STORY

KINGS ROW advertises itself as a good, clean town to live in. But under the surface runs tragedy. Parris Mitchell, young medical student, loves Cassandra, emotional daughter of his mentor, Dr. Alexander Tower. Their romance ends tragically when Dr. Tower kills Cassie and himself because he feels she is insane. Parris inherits his estate, determines to study diseases of the mind in Vienna. He is seen off by his boyhood friend, gay Drake McHugh, and Randy Monaghan. Drake had incurred the enmity of Dr. Henry Gordon by trying to date his daughter, Louise. When Drake's legs are injured in a switch yard accident Dr. Gordon amputates both of them.



1 Louise, still in love with Drake, is horrified at the news of Drake's accident, and wildly she accuses her father of amputating the boy's legs out of sheer hatred. With cold fury Dr. Gordon strikes Louise and shouts, "A word of this from you and I'll have you in the asylum within two hours!"

2 Drake has been taken to Randy's home in a coma. Suddenly Randy and her father and brother hear Drake scream. Terrified, Randy hurries to him.

3 "Randy," cries Drake, "where is the rest of me?" He has just discovered his tragic condition. The horror of his discovery completely changes the once gay, carefree youth into a defeated man who will not face the world.

4 Protesting that his life is ruined and that he will be a burden to her, Drake finally consents to marry Randy. Before his accident he had a scheme to provide housing for low-salaried workers, but he refuses to work on it, feeling he is too handicapped. Then one day he gets a letter from Parris saying he will be home soon.

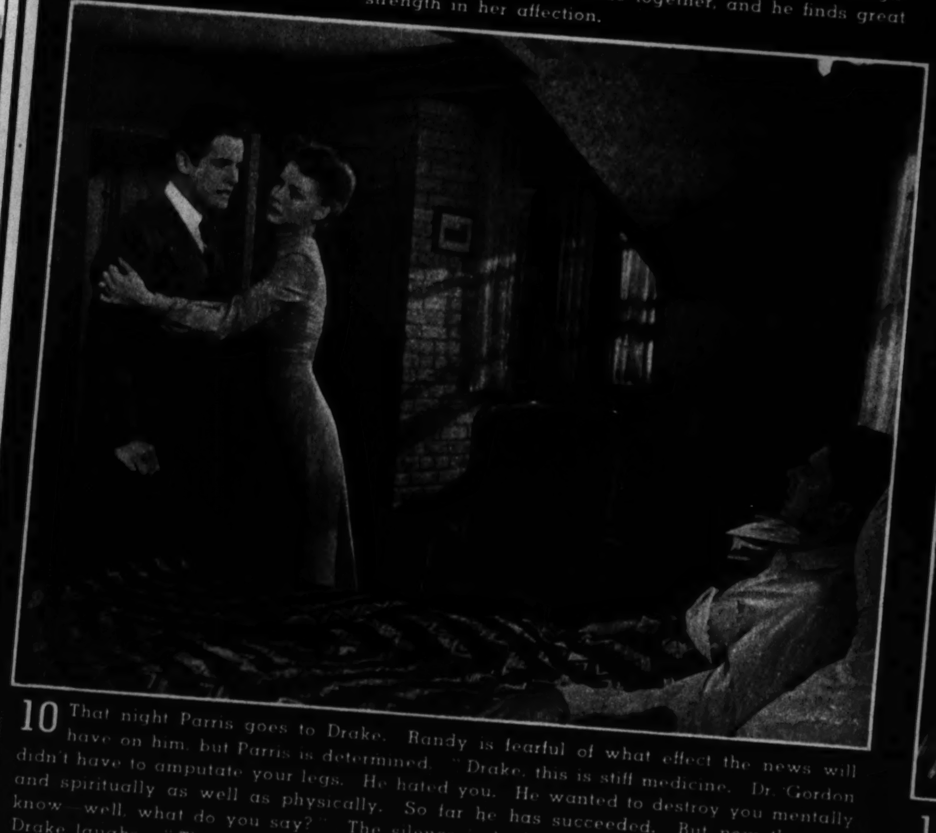
5 Randy is overjoyed, because she feels Parris is one person who can bring Drake back to a healthy state of mind. At the station she breaks down. "Please, Parris," she sobs, "you must save Drake!" "I'll try, Randy," he assures her. "Saving Drake is more important to me than my Vienna job."

6 Help in his battle to overcome Drake's obsession comes from an unexpected source. Called in to attend Louise Gordon, whose father died before Parris returned, he hears from her the story of how she sneaked into the shanty where Drake was operated on and discovered that the amputations were unnecessary. "I love him, Parris," she sobs, "and father hated him. They say I'm crazy when I tell the truth!"

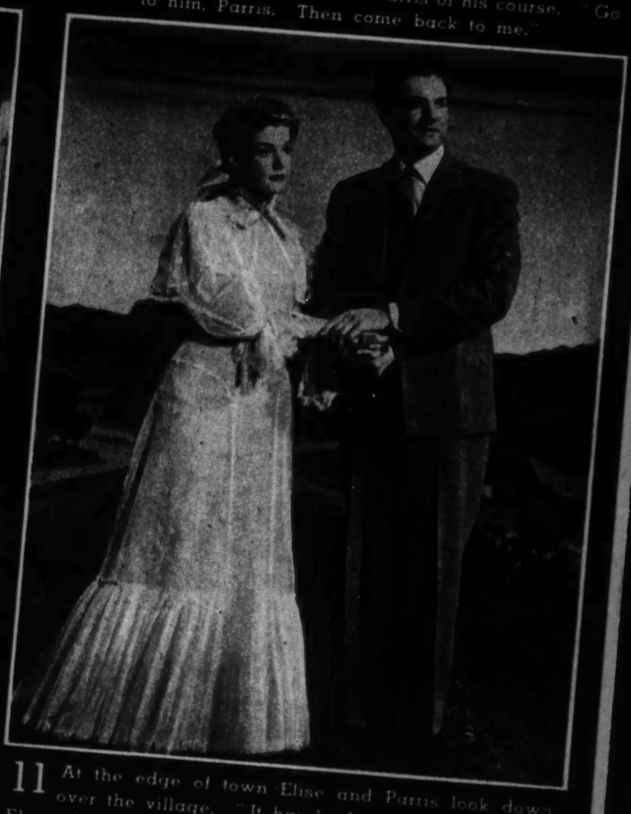
7 One night Louise breaks out of her home and rushes to Randy's house, where she blurts out the story. Parris by this time has confirmed it and tells Randy so. "Don't ever tell Drake," pleads Randy. "It would send him back into his old shell."

8 In the midst of all his worries Parris discovers firm ground at last. In the home that once was his he finds the Sandors—home-loving, rational father and daughter. A common interest in music brings Parris and Elise together, and he finds great strength in her affection.

9 One day he tells her his great problem—whether or not to let Drake know the truth. "Think of him as just a patient," counsels Elise, "not as some one you love." Her calm earnestness convinces Parris of his course. "Go to him, Parris. Then come back to me."



10 That night Parris goes to Drake. Randy is fearful of what effect the news will have on him, but Parris is determined. "Drake, this is stiff medicine. Dr. Gordon didn't have to amputate your legs. He hated you. He wanted to destroy you mentally and spiritually as well as physically. So far he has succeeded. But now that you know—well, what do you say?" The silence is broken only by Randy's sobs. Then Drake laughs. "That's a hot one! Where did that drooling old butcher think I lived, in my legs? For Pete's sake, let's have a party. I feel swell!"



11 At the edge of town Elise and Parris look down over the village. "It has harbored much tragedy, Elise, but somehow when Drake conquered his he seemed to conquer it all. It's a good town—for us to live in."

AUNT JENNY SAYS—
Here's the EASIEST way I know to get TENDER, FLAKY crust
TRY THIS LUSCIOUS CHOCOLATE CHIP PIE —HEAR THE COMPLIMENTS!
Spry
PURE VEGETABLE SHORTENING
FOR ALL FRYING CAKES PASTRY BISCUITS PIES

You'll want to make every pie Spry's simple 2-STEP WAY

Here's all you do to make the PIE SHELL

Mix 1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Measure out 7 tablespoons Spry. Divide into two equal parts.

STEP 1 FOR TENDERNESS— Cut in first half of Spry until fine as meal. This makes the crust tender.

STEP 2 FOR FLAKINESS— Cut in rest of Spry until particles are size of large peas. Makes crust flaky.

Add 3 tablespoons cold water (no more) mixing thoroughly into a dough. Roll ⅛ inch thick, prick with fork. Fit into 9-inch pie tin and make fluted rim. Bake in very hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Spry's a FLAVOR-SAVER, too

No off-flavor crust with purer Spry to smother the taste of this marvelous pie. Sprycrust is so delicate and nut-sweet that you get the FULL flavory goodness of the filling. Use Spry for all pastry, for FULL FLAVOR fried foods — wonderful cakes!

and now the filling for Chocolate Chip Pie

2 cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
⅓ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 seven- or eight-ounce bar semi-sweet or bitter-sweet chocolate, cut in pieces
1 baked Spry Pie Shell

Scald milk in top of double boiler. Combine flour, cornstarch, sugar, and salt and mix thoroughly. Add to scalded milk and cook until thick and smooth, then cook 15 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Stir a small amount of mixture into egg yolks, return to double boiler, and cook a few minutes longer. Cool and add vanilla. When filling is cold, add ⅓ of chocolate. Pour filling into baked pie shell.

Meringue

2 egg whites
4 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add vanilla and remaining chocolate. Pile lightly on filling. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 25 to 30 minutes, or until firm and delicately browned.

P. S. Make a Spry cake soon. Hear your folks rave about it. Spry cakes save you money, too. For Spry costs just about half what expensive cake shortening does.

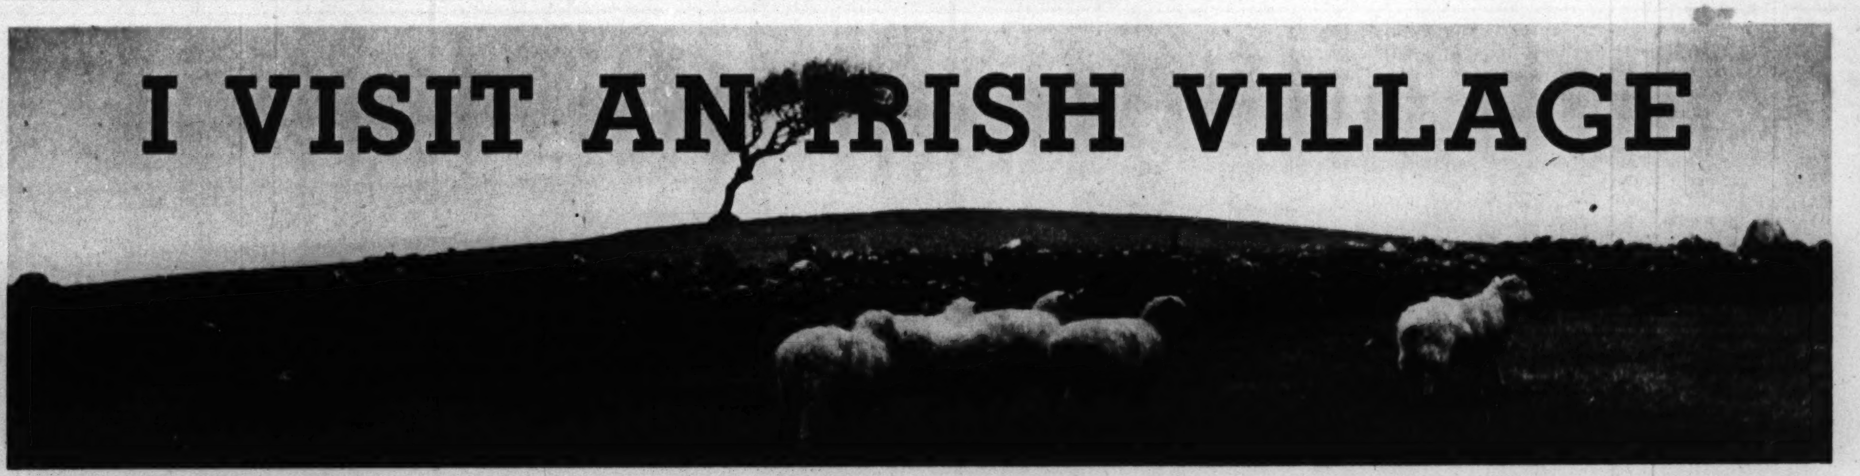
I VISIT AN IRISH VILLAGE



Sheep grazing in County Mayo. (Tribune photos by Guy Murchie.)

● THE LANDING OF AN AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN NORTH IRELAND MAKES THIS ARTICLE PARTICULARLY TIMELY. IN IT THE AUTHOR, A TRIBUNE FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT, GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS OF A TYPICAL SMALL IRISH TOWN.

By GUY MURCHIE

Swinford, County Mayo, Eire (by Mail).

THIS IS A typical town of western Eire. Most of the people here get up after 10 o'clock on weekdays but at 8:30 on Sunday for mass. Everybody knows everybody, and there are no class distinctions, with the possible exception of a handful of bankers and beggars. Every other door in the two main streets leads into a public house, and a stranger is the object of stares and gossip.

If the town was forlorn before the war it is woebegone now--what with the best young men away in the Irish army or in England or America, and with shortages of tea, fruit, and butter, and scarcely gasoline enough for the priest, the doctor, and a few privileged officials.

To get a proper measure of the town, here is an itemized introduction: In 261 houses and shops live 1,003 people. Of the 475 female inhabitants only 183 are married, while 61 are widowed. Men considerably outnumber the women, but there are 83 women over 40 years old who have never been married. Nearly a third of the town's population, 328 persons, have emigrated during the last 15 years—most of them to America. This loss of the town's most enterprising young adults has inevitably been a depressing influence on the older, lazier, or more conservative ones left behind.

In the town there are 2 banks, 3 drug stores (which call themselves medical halls), 1 movie house, 2 small hotels (most of whose guests are traveling salesmen), 1 railroad station, 51 public houses (commonly combined with shops selling other goods besides liquor and not usually called pubs), 3 bakeries, 4 butchers (who have no refrigerators and therefore do not sell beef in summer), 2 jewelers and watchmakers, 1 optician, 2 bookshops, 2 barbers and a woman hairdresser, 1 steam laundry, 16 clothiers or dressmakers, 3 ironmongers, 4 garages and repair shops (which principally service bicycles and do odd mechanical jobs), 5 blacksmiths, 2 coal dealers (who sell mainly to the blacksmiths), 3 carpenters (who are also the town's undertakers), 2 electricians (who give free service and use a van maintained by the electrical supply board), 1 bookmaker (known as a turf accountant, who operates a "racing office"), 4 midwives, 1 district nurse, 2 doctors (one of whom supervises the 2 small hospitals for general and fever patients), 4 priests, 42 nuns (who help in the hospitals and teach in the 3 convent schools for children up to 12, in the secondary convent school for girls, and in the domestic economy school for girls), 4 lawyers (known as solicitors), and 1 golf club.

As for publicly owned buildings, there is 1 church (the other was Protestant and is now in ruins), 1 town hall (used mainly for dancing, plays, billiards, and often visited because of its relatively modern lavatory), 1 courthouse (where the district court holds a session once a month), 1 police "barracks," and 1 post-office (which is the principal source of local gossip).

There are 28 bathtubs in town and 41 homes with running water for washing, but all drinking water must be carried by pail from a spring at the edge of town. There are 5 refrigerators and 6 telephones (the only public phone being in the post office). One reason there are not more telephones is that every call costs you a minimum of 15 cents, while about the only persons you could hope to speak with would be doctors, policemen, priests, and bankers. Seventy per cent of all shops sell canned goods and liquor, but there is not one complete grocery, all greengroceries being sold in donkey baskets or farmers' carts from door to door. Peat, the common fuel, is sold the same way.

The town lacks, among other things, a mayor or any sort of official local government other than the civic guards (police) and occasional committees formed to accomplish specific, urgent tasks such as road repairing. The priests are the real local rulers, and the official governing emanates from the county seat in Castlebar, 15 miles away. The town also contains no fire station, no telegraph office, no factory of any kind, no department store, no newspaper, no public library, no dairy, no secondary school for boys, and no swimming pool. Neither is there an iceman, nor a plumber, dentist, florist, printer, engineer, architect, nor a professional artist or musician. Teeth are extracted or filled by an itinerant dentist who comes to town on market day, and boys of secondary school age must either arrange special tutoring or go out of town to continue their education. Any of the town's shops may be closed at any time, and it is normal to have to wait around and knock on doors to get in. This correspondent tried for three days before finding either of the town's barbers at home. It was a frosty day when I finally did get a haircut—and the barber started the proceedings by holding his clippers for several seconds in his peat fire "to melt the frost and kill the germs." The shop where I rented a bicycle did not open for business until 2:10 p. m. The reason was that all the men of the house had been to a party the night before and did not get home until 6 a. m.

The big day in this town is the first Wednesday of each month. That is fair day. It is like the weekly market day only much bigger. It begins many hours before daylight when droves of cattle, sheep, pigs, and other animals enter town, driven by excited farmers and their families, who have been up since 2 or 3 o'clock. Some of them come more than 10 miles, for, as they say, "you never feel the distance when you drive cattle or sheep."

By 5:30 the streets are filled with carts and animals and busy people all setting about selling what they have. The hay wagons gather in one place, donkeys and horses in another, cattle in another, pigs in another, sheep in another. Lights appear in the shop windows and the drinks are being made ready, but it is not legal to open public houses until 7. There are few women out but many men, talking much in their singsongy brogue, and donkeys munching hay, and small pigs squealing as some pork jobber lifts them by the hind legs to see their condition. The men haggle and argue up and down according to a long-accepted pattern of speech.

"'Tis true he's over a hundredweight," says a red-faced farmer, pointing to a fat pig with his loaded ash staff.

Galway farmer unloading peat from his donkey.

"Have you a price fer him?" The pig is waddling across the street, rooting hungrily for bits of food that aren't there and grunting in irritation.

"I'm after tellin' you, five-ten [£5 10s]," says the jobber.

"I can't sell 'im fer that."

"Ye'll not be sellin' him for more with them legs like a chicken's."

"I'll not be sellin' a fat hundredweight o' pig in wartime for less than six."

The farmer knows his pig is a bargain at £6, and he knows that the jobber knows it. He knows furthermore that it is the jobber's pride and the art of haggling to hold out for your price till your opponent's patience is exhausted. The two men walk silently back and forth after the nervous, hungry pig, prodding it away from doorways or from under carts with their staffs.

Presently the jobber says, "Will you split the pound?"

"I'm after sayin' six," repeats the stubborn farmer.

"Five-ten is all I can pay."

"Six 'tis, and six'll it be if Ay have to wait all day."

The jobber walks away in feigned disgust half a dozen times, but the farmer triumphs in the end. The pound is not split and the pig goes for £6 even. To close the deal the jobber claps his hands once in the traditional signal, both men smile, and then they repair to the nearest house for the customary drink.

It is by now 7 o'clock and the doors have opened. Jovial crowds quickly gather inside, where apple-cheeked girls are serving the porter and stout and whisky. A straw-chewing farmer gossips with an aproned housewife in a kitchen. Other farmers come and go thru the open door, telling of deals made: "I lost near £2 on the head—and them bullocks shaking with condition. . . ."

"Cattle should go at the end of summer or wait till the spring."

Occasional ringing of bells is heard in the street announcing bargains by peddlers with carts. One farm lad is pulling a wagon containing three calves with overcoats buttoned around them. Clothed vans are full of assorted wares, and there are many wheeled stands of a kind common in Maxwell street, Chicago, in years gone by.

When afternoon comes the number of people and carts begins to decrease as the tired farmers one by one set out for home again, taking their unsold animals with them. Trading is over by dark and little social gatherings set to the music of clinking glasses are about all that is left of a busy day. Perhaps a traveling salesman or two arrive at the hotel ready to start operations in the morning, catching the shopowners at the most lucrative time of the month. The salesmen may be selling anything from goose grain to men's formal evening wear. 'Tails, incidentally, are very popular in Swinford, being worn by all men who can afford them at the annual formal dance. About the only other times that the average small-town Irishman might wear them are when being married or buried.

An idea of the importance of swank at the annual dance in Swinford can be had from the

FILL UP ON FILLETS

By MARY MEADE

Frozen cod fillets may be broiled without thawing if desired.

FROZEN fish fillets are a joy to cook, because they're all ready for the broiler, and because you can have the kind of fish you like, whether it's in season or not.

You don't need to thaw the fillets before cooking them if it isn't convenient to do so. They'll take longer to cook if you put them into the broiler in a frozen state, but you'll have them on the hot platter quickly nonetheless.

Use a moderate broiling heat for fresh or frozen fillets. Spread the fish with soft butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper, and paprika. Then cook until browned on one side, turn, and brown the other side. Serve the fillets with tartar sauce or with lemon slices garnished with parsley. Stars cut from sliced beets were used to garnish the cod fillets pictured.

If it's steak, beef patties, or sautéed liver you're serving, you probably don't need more than a reminder to bring the meat to table with a garnish of French fried onion rings. Big rings from sweet Spanish onions, dipped into batter and cooked in deep fat, are crisp and delicious. Men especially go for them.

FRENCH FRIED ONIONS

Sliced onions
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup water
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 egg white, beaten until stiff

Peel large sweet onions and slice into ⅛-inch slices. Separate the rings, using only the larger ones. Save the rest for other cooking uses. Soak rings in milk for half an hour, drain on a clean cloth, and dip (a few at a time) into fritter batter. Make batter by sifting flour with salt and stirring in water gradually. Add oil, beat smooth, and fold in beaten egg white. Fry coated rings in deep hot fat at 370 degrees, turning once. When rings are golden brown lift them to soft paper to drain. They may be kept hot in the oven until all are cooked and the remainder of the meal is ready. Allow four-five rings per serving.

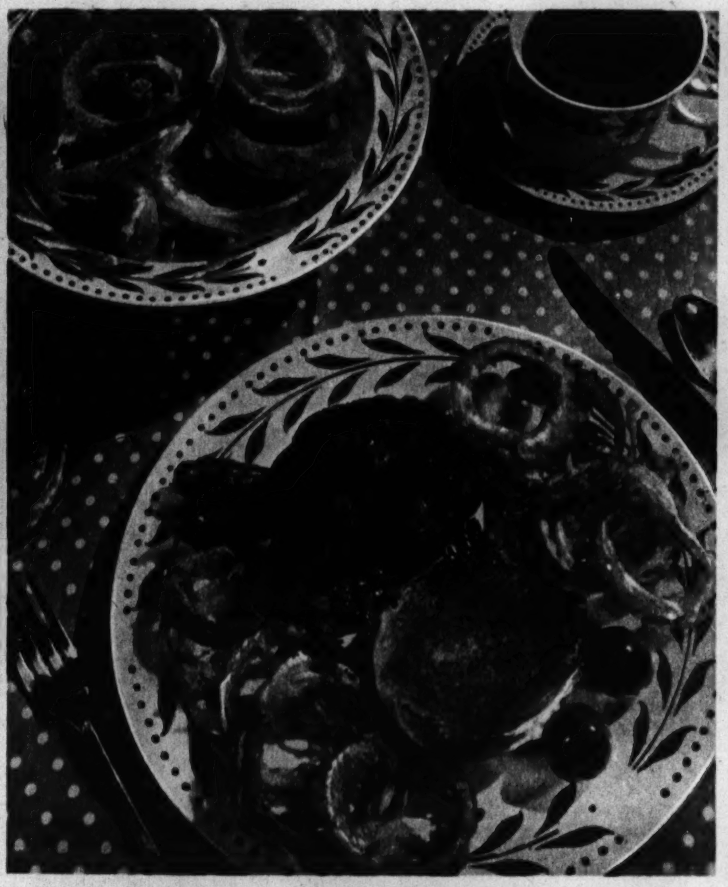
Scalloped eggs and cheese is a grand dish for a meatless meal. Serve it plain or with tomato sauce. Tomato salad is a good accompaniment if you don't use the sauce.

SCALLOPED EGGS AND CHEESE
(Serves four)

6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons melted butter
Cheese sauce

Arrange half the crumbs with eggs and cheese sauce in layers in a greased casserole. Top with remaining crumbs mixed with melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees until sauce is bubbly and nicely browned, about 40 minutes.

CHEESE SAUCE—Blend 1½ tablespoons melted butter and 1½ tablespoons flour. Add 1 cup milk gradually, stirring and cooking until smooth. Add ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Add ½ cup grated cheese (sharp American) and let it melt.



Who doesn't like onion rings dipped in batter and deep-fried?

Here's a Lenten special, scalloped eggs in a cheese sauce.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

THIS HOT, CREAMY DRESSING makes a party food of cabbage slaw. Five dollars goes to Mrs. R. W. Brooks of 1619 West Cook street, Springfield, Ill., for the recipe. Mrs. Brooks didn't say so, but the contest editors are pretty sure that this is the recipe used by the Pennsylvania Dutch on their justly famous "pepper cabbage."

Have you a favorite recipe in your files? Then send it to the Mary Meade Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune. It may win a $5 prize for you.

GRANDMOTHER ASHBY'S HOT MAYONNAISE FOR SLAW
(Serves six)

¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup diluted vinegar (half vinegar and half water)
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg

Put sugar, vinegar, salt, and butter in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Meanwhile beat the egg until thick and lemon colored. Remove boiling mixture from stove and pour a little into the beaten egg, stirring constantly. Add egg to remaining hot mixture, stirring continually. Cook over very low heat, stirring constantly, until the mixture is the consistency of thick cream. Keep heat very low and stir constantly. Pour hot over shredded cabbage and chopped green pepper and serve immediately. This is enough for from three to four cups of mixed cabbage and green pepper.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.

C Wistar

CASPAR WISTAR, eminent physician and anatomist, was born in Philadelphia, Sept. 13, 1761. In 1782 he received the degree of bachelor of medicine from the University of the State of Pennsylvania, and in the following year he went abroad to study in London and at Edinburgh university. He received his doctor's degree in Edinburgh in 1786.

Returning to Philadelphia in 1787, he was elected a junior fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia. Two years later he obtained a position in the faculty of the College of Philadelphia, and when this institution was merged with the University of the State of Pennsylvania in 1792 to form the University of Pennsylvania he was given an adjunct professorship.

In 1808 Wistar was elevated to the full professorship of anatomy and midwifery, and from 1810 until his death he continued to hold the chair of anatomy. His principal accomplishment as a practical anatomist was the elucidation of the correct anatomical relations between the ethmoid and the sphenoid bones. In 1811 he published his "System of Anatomy," the first American textbook on this subject.

Wistar had interests outside those of medicine and anatomy, however. In 1787 he was elected to membership in the American Philosophical society. He succeeded Thomas Jefferson as president of the society in 1815.

For a long time Wistar kept open house once a week in his Philadelphia mansion to members of the Philosophical society and visiting scientists. He died in his native city on Jan. 22, 1818. His name is perpetuated in the Wistar association, founded in 1886; in the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, and in the beautiful plant wistaria, which Thomas Nuttall, the botanist, named for him in 1818.

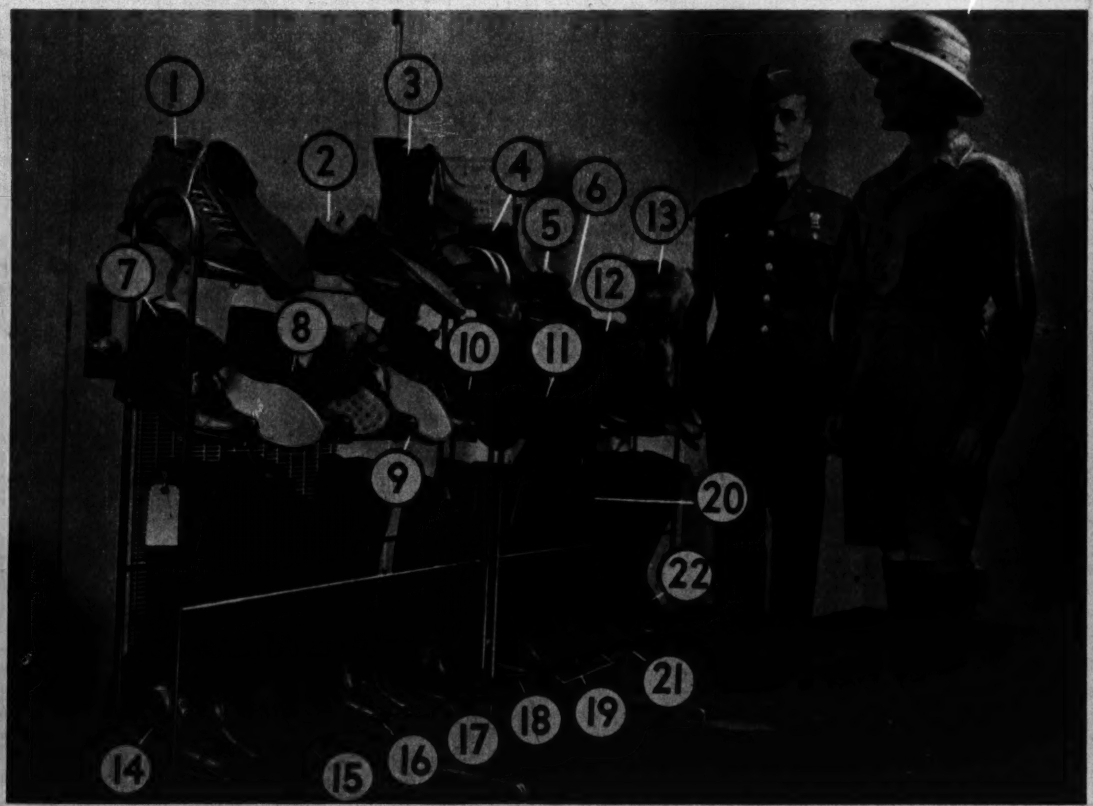
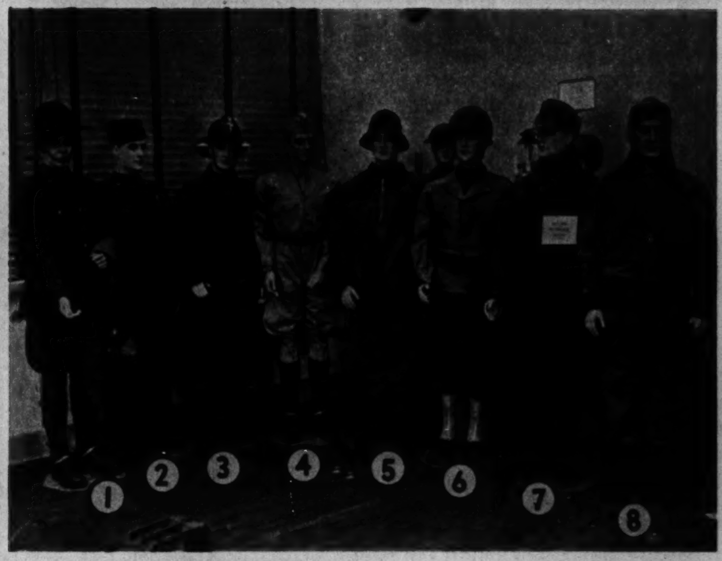
Arctic garments and a new type tent stove for American soldiers.



Here are the various types of boots and shoes provided for soldiers and nurses. They are: (1) Ski boots, (2) oxfords, (3) parachute boots, (4) nurse's arctics, (5) nurse's black shoes, (6) nurse's white shoes, (7) service shoes, (8) service shoes with hobnails, (9) top stitched shoes, (10) service shoes with composition soles, (11) two-buckle arctic overshoes, (12) five-buckle rubber overshoes, (13) mukluks or Eskimo fur-top boots, (14) 16-inch legging-top shoes, (15) half moccasin lace-top boots, (16) cavalry boots, (17) 14 and 16 inch waterproof boots, (18) rubber knee boots, (19) shoe pacs, (20) four-buckle rubber overshoes, (21) rubber hip boots, (22) laced rubber knee boots. The figure at the extreme right is dressed in a tropical garrison uniform that is being tested; the other figure is dressed in a regulation service uniform. (Acme photos.)



Eight basic uniforms of the army service. They are: (1) Winter uniform and raincoat of mounted troops, (2) wool service uniform for dismounted troops, (3) post fireman's uniform, (4) cotton summer uniform for mounted troops, (5) rubberized rain suit for troops in Alaska, (6) field uniform for dismounted troops, (7) cold weather uniform for motorized troops, (8) winter combat uniform for armored forces.

THE GIGANTIC task of outfitting and provisioning Uncle Sam's army, which eventually is expected to contain seven or eight million men, falls upon the quartermaster corps. Not only does this branch of the army see to it that the soldiers have what they need to wear and to eat, but it also houses and transports them.

With the exception of weapons, fighting appurtenances, and ammunition, the quartermaster corps buys everything that the soldiers use that is common to two or more branches of the service. Furthermore, it lets the contracts for the purchase of these supplies and equipment.

The illustrations accompanying this text show some of the many items provided for the men of America's new army. The two figures standing on either side of a stove in one of the pictures, for example, are dressed for arctic weather. The figure on the left is attired in a horsehide or cowhide parka with a fur-trimmed hood. The mittens also are of fur, and the feet are clad in leather-topped rubber pacs. Parkas of similar design are made of muskrat fur. The parka of the figure at the right is of a still newer design. It is made of water-repellent poplin. The inside is white, and the garment can be worn with the white side out as a means of providing protective coloration in the snow. Footwear of this figure is the same as that of the other. The snowshoes are of the so-called continental type, designed especially for brush country.

The stove is a tent stove designed to take the place of the old Sibley stove, a simple conical type sheet iron heating unit that formerly was regulation. It burns either wood or coal and is light enough to be easily portable.

In the picture showing the various types of boots and shoes used in the army are two figures. The one on the left is dressed in the regulation service uniform, while the one on the right is attired in a new type tropical uniform of cotton khaki which is being tested under service conditions and may be adopted. The tropical uniform consists of a shirt with either long or short sleeves and a convertible collar, shorts, and helmet. The helmet is of fiber covered with cloth.

The third illustration shows eight different basic types of uniforms as listed by numbers in the legend.

All of these items and hundreds more have been tested, judged as to usefulness and wearing qualities, contracted for, and purchased. New orders necessarily must pass the same rigid inspections.

As a part of this vast business the quartermaster corps maintains sample rooms, such as the one in the Civic Opera building in Chicago, where 1,000 different items are on display. The sample rooms are open to manufacturers and manufacturers' representatives, who inspect the clothing or other equipment shown, leave their names and addresses, and eventually are invited to bid on the manufacture of new equipment required that falls within their special provinces.

The Chicago quartermaster sample room display is under the command of Brig. Gen. J. E. Barzynski, commanding general of the Chicago quartermaster depot, and the officer in charge is Capt. Dale C. Schofner, assistant procurement planning officer.

Books Offer Hints to Owners

This 8-week-old Pekingese puppy, owned by Mrs. E. A. Solecki, was photographed at a recent puppy match.

ALTHO many veterinarians agree that a large majority of dog owners do not know all that they should about how the average puppy or grown dog ought to be fed or cared for, this much certainly is true: Owners don't hesitate to call for help on their problems. Veterinarians inform us that they hand out advice over the telephone to thousands of owners every year, and we have only to look at the mail bag to see how dog fanciers call for help on their problems.

About six out of ten letters tell us that the writers have just acquired a puppy of this or that breed and they would like complete (!) instructions on how to feed and train the new pup. Or they would like suggestions as to pamphlets or good books that will give them practical tips on raising and training a pup. Inasmuch as complete instructions on even the barest fundamentals of sensible dog care can hardly be condensed in less than 50 to 100 pages of book type, lending a hand to some of these novice owners is no easy job for anybody called in as a consultant.

After checking with hundreds of dog owners and examining our own experiences with the dogs we have owned and are keeping at this time, there is no doubt in our mind that many of the common troubles which owners face could have been avoided if they had devoted a little time to reading a few pages on feeding a dog, early training, discipline, obedience, common dog ailments, and other similar topics, for the more the owner knows about dogs in general the better care he can give his pet and the more fun it'll be in the home.

The Airedale terrier is a strong, useful dog that comes to us from the British Isles. This trim, well poised specimen named Welland Selection was only 4 months old when photographed.

Moreover, it's a lot easier to prevent some dog troubles than trying to overcome them later on. For example, it's easier to prevent excessive barking and the habit of chasing cars than to cure these faults. This is where a small handbook on dog care and training comes in handy because of the many suggestions it offers on canine care.

There are a number of small handbooks and also more pretentious works on raising dogs which can be of inestimable value to every owner who wants to own a sensible, well behaved, intelligent pet. These may vary in price from as little as 35 or 50 cents to $2 or $2.50 or more. In other words, a dog owner can get hundreds of dollars' worth of advice by investing in a book that often costs less than a good collar and leash.

One of the most inexpensive but practical little handbooks on feeding dogs is the 90-page handsomely illustrated book, "Feeding the Dog," prepared by this department. It gives feeding instructions on more than 30 breeds, tells how to raise either a pup or grown dog, and has some of the most attractive puppy pictures that ever have been put into any book costing ten times as much. The book is sold by the Public Service Offices of The Chicago Tribune at 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower, Chicago. The price of "Feeding the Dog" is 30 cents by mail. Many, dog breeders are buying these practical little handbooks and giving them to people who buy puppies from their kennels.

If an owner is serious about advanced training for his dog, William Cary Duncan's "Dog Training Made Easy" will be a help. This $2 book may be obtained in any book store. It is for the owner who is very much interested in training (even for obedience tests). But the average owner may find it too long (251 pages) and going into too much detail, because it is a comprehensive book.

For the dog enthusiast who is trying to raise a puppy as a pet, give it good care, feed it correctly, and train it to behave in the home and on the street, a more compact book like "How to Raise and Train Your Puppy" ($1 at any book store) has its advantages. It is very concise, offers dozens of practical tips, tells explicitly how to housebreak a pup, how to protect it from distemper, how to treat worms, care of the pup's coat, how to provide playthings for a young dog, give it leash and collar training, teach it to come and sit down and walk at heel. The book also discusses first aid for the home dog. It includes directions on feeding dogs of any size and age. The book has more than 60 illustrations of breeds and other dog subjects.

If an owner is very much interested in teaching a dog lots of tricks, Henry R. East's handbook, "How to Train Dogs," is a dandy. It's not new, but it is easy to read and helpful. Boston terrier owners will get many dollars' worth of advice and history about their breed in Vincent G. Perry's "The Boston Terrier" (Judy Publishing Co., $2). It's a very complete book on the Boston.

There are a large number of breed books available if an owner wants to learn more about the breed he is particularly interested in. For example, John P. Wagner has done a very complete job on the boxer ("The Boxer," published by Orange Judd, $3.50). There are at least two good books that we know of on the dachshund. Maxwell Riddle of Cleveland has written a very informative book on the springer spaniel ("Springer Spaniel," Judy Publishing Co., $2). In practically every field of dog activity and dog care owners will find one or more good books containing much helpful information.

• For attractive offers of dogs, turn to the Dogs, Cats, Birds, and Pets want ad column in today's Tribune.

This Irish setter, International Champion Verbu Norna Oogh, is the only representative of the breed that has finished its utility dog title in obedience classes. Norna is owned by Miss Emily Schweizer of Northbrook, Ill.

HELPS SPEED RECOVERY AFTER ILLNESS

That's Why Many Doctors Strongly Recommend It

If you're convalescing after a cold or other illness, you'll be grateful for the tonic power of Scott's Emulsion. Highly recommended by many doctors for invalids and convalescents because it is easy even for a delicate system to digest and contains vital elements that help the system recuperate when rundown.

I VISIT AN IRISH VILLAGE

fact that this correspondent counted 62 cars parked outside the door—this at a time when gasoline is almost precious enough to put in a museum. Only priests, doctors, and government officials are allowed fairly ample rations of gasoline now. The few others who still keep cars must restrict themselves to three or four dozen miles a month. Business men whose work depends on traveling are given no special allowance, for business is not considered important in Eire—even tho the nation is acutely suffering for lack of men with industrial experience.

A picture of an Irish town would not be complete without some religious ceremony, and no event of the kind touches deeper than a wake and funeral—so let's go to Paddy Howley's last rites. Paddy was a schoolboy who faded away with tuberculosis in his 15th year, a very common thing in the western counties of Ireland.

The corpse house (home where a wake is being held) is on the outskirts of town, where Paddy's father lives. His mother also died there eight years ago. It's a small gray house with a low thatch roof, and young Paddy is laid out in a handsome brass-trimmed coffin resting on three chairs just inside the front door, which is left open. There are lighted candles at the four corners of the coffin, and the only other light in the room comes from a cheery peat fire on the hearth. Some 50 people are seated in the three rooms on the lower floor on chairs and benches crowded into the house for the occasion, and their shadows make eerie patterns on the whitewashed walls behind them as the candles flicker. The only time large, scattered Irish families meet is at funerals, and so there is much excited chatter as cousins are being introduced to cousins from neighboring towns and nieces are meeting aunts they never knew they had. A 6-year-old girl with golden hair is playing with one of the coffin handles and stopping now and then to stand on tiptoe and gaze over the rim at the still form inside.

Most of the adults are smoking white clay Waterford pipes "in respect for the dead" and telling stories or cracking jokes with no pretense of mourning. Only one or two seem to be silently praying, and one old woman is keening (chanting) softly to herself just at the coffin's foot. About every two hours fresh tea is served and biscuits are passed around. In the two back rooms cut off from view of the coffin frequent clinking of glasses is heard and cordial offers of "another drop o' the hard stuff."

Some of Paddy's closer relatives remain all night, taking turns watching beside the coffin. Most of the others come and go, staying perhaps three or four hours, until they begin to run dry of gossip. When they leave they thank Mr. Howley for his hospitality, most of them adding the conventional expression of commiseration.

On the afternoon of the next day the body was removed to the town church, followed by several hundred townspeople to witness the saying of the rosary. It was angelus time—6 o'clock—and a large flock of black rooks flew over to the church also and sat along the ridgepole, just in time to listen to the bells.

Early the next morning came the "dead mass"—the real funeral service. About a third of the population attended, but I counted about three women to every man there. It is a well used church with a beautiful altar in white and gold with a lavender background and arrayed with 20 glimmering candles and large white chrysanthemums. The hundreds of devout and wrinkled faces gaze fixedly at the altar, watching every move of the priest, whose breath drifts visibly away on the chill air as he chants. There is the odor of overclad, weary bodies and the feel of old woodwork against your fingers as the mournful ceremony progresses. Large colored figures of Jesus and Mary stand on either side of the altar steps. The little boys serving in red and white tunics have soup bowl haircuts and pious faces. The choir sings drearily, some of the members holding beads in one hand and music in the other, making up in devoutness what they miss in harmony.

Afterward the coffin is gently raised and the slow procession to the grave begins. The bell tolls slowly from the belfry as the coffin is slid into the back of a very modern looking hearse—built in Detroit, Mich. An altar boy steps from the chapel door carrying a lighted candle. It quickly blows out in the chill wind. The priest follows behind the black car, then come the people—walking slowly—brothers, sisters, father, uncle, niece, cousins, and kith.

As the hundreds of pairs of feet crunch thru the town behind the hearse all the shopkeepers still at work shut their shop doors and pull down the window shades. Respect for the dead.

Out along the road and up over the hill goes the black car—to the place beyond, where the white and gray crosses lean under the larches against the dank sky. The coffin is lifted from the car and borne on the shoulders of brother, father, uncle, and cousins—crunch, crunch, up the little path to the open hole and the pile of fresh earth and the spade. The others follow behind, talking among themselves, quietly but not mournfully. Some are smoking.

As the kin pallbearers do the work of lowering young Paddy's ornate coffin into the family grave, one of them hangs his worn woolen cap on an ancient mossy cross of the next grave. The brother sets his on the rotting wooden coffin of his mother, which was temporarily removed during the grave digging.

Know Your Camera

GLAMOR

(Posed by Veronica Lake.)

(Posed by Hedy Lamarr.)

SOME photographers specialize in "glamor." They make the type of pictures most women would like to see of themselves and most photographers, especially amateurs, are unable to produce. Yet glamor shots follow to some extent a fixed formula which is not more difficult to observe than elementary rules for taking other types of pictures.

Roughly speaking, the secret of glamor is the accentuation of the model's good characteristics. Assuming that you photograph a model who has at least some amount of charm, try to find out just what this charm is, play it up with all the tricks of picture making, and subdue everything else.

It may be the eyes, the hair, the neckline, the mouth, the legs, or the figure of your model that you find most attractive. It may be her smile, the self-assurance with which she wears her clothes, or the beauty of her hands. Whatever it is, plan to bring it out in your pictures.

How do you go about bringing out this quality? The job is a combination of posing; selecting the proper clothes, accessories, and props; makeup; lighting; and to some degree picture finishing. We mention the latter because good judgment in enlarging the picture, cropping the negative, tilting the figure in the picture space, and burning in certain parts while printing can make a world of difference. These tricks directly supplement the original composition and lighting of the subject.

Glamor pictures are always smooth and "perfect." They are the result of endless attention to every detail, even tho the finished picture often shows little detail. Good examples are many pictures by the famous Hollywood photographer George Hurrell, who often allows heavy shadows to cover up details in large parts of his glamor shots. Yet closest attention is paid to having every hair in its proper place. The model wears the type of clothes that are in harmony with the atmosphere of the particular picture. Her cheeks, mouth, and eyes are made up carefully; jewelry or flowers are shown or discarded according to plan. Attention is paid to the placement of hands and legs and to the appearance of the waistline even when these details are subdued in the final print.

Because perfection is the keynote of all glamor pictures, it is advisable to use makeup on the model. Few women look their best without correcting to some extent the outlines of the mouth and the eyebrows, and even if they are perfect natural beauties it may be necessary to apply makeup to insure that their mouths or their eyes will photograph the way you want them to.

Next to posing, proper lighting is the most important factor in glamorizing any subject. Light makes the picture, and by controlling the direction and the amount of light reaching your subject you can give it modeling. Your lights will accentuate whatever you wish to bring out, and controled shadows will subdue unwanted detail. Flat light coming from the direction and the height of the camera usually gives uninteresting pictures. The more or less tricky "effect" lighting seen in glamor pictures usually requires the use of one or more spotlights. These allow better control of the areas to be lighted, because the light can be focused and the size of the light beam regulated. With their aid you can put a spot of light on the hair, on part of the face, or wherever else you may want it.

One way of attacking a fleet at sea that was advocated by Mitchell but never yet tried in war was with gas. In "Skyways" (1930) he says:

"Shipping may be attacked by gas. Gas clouds ejected by airplanes can completely envelop a fleet, which cannot get away from them. The ventilating systems in ships suck the gas right into their interiors. Even if gas masks are put on the outside of the ventilators and every member of the crew wears a mask, such a great concentration of gas can be made that no one can escape its effects."

The gas attack, Mitchell wrote in articles for the army, is merely a variation of a smoke screen attack first developed by his units to accompany low-flying machines that were intended to bomb or machine-gun troop emplacements, enemy airdromes, etc. At sea, he said, use of a smoke screen would enable torpedo bombing planes to approach closely to enemy ships before the anti-aircraft weapons of these vessels could be turned upon them.

A paraphrase of the description he gave on several occasions follows: "This use of smoke as a screening for torpedo bombers is one of the finest methods of attacking heavy vessels. It is done like this: A smoke-laying airplane—or preferably several planes—approaches the target vessel or line of vessels and turns on its smoke apparatus. Flying 50 to 100 feet off the water at high speed (after a long dive if this is necessary), such a plane or planes can curtain even a fast-moving destroyer within four walls of smoke in a matter of seconds.

"The torpedo-carrying airplanes maneuver outside the smoke walls at heights which enable their pilots to see the masts or the smoke from the funnels of the target, but too low for gunners aboard the boat to aim at them. When ready to make the attack—and this of course must be carefully timed to coördinate with the smoke laying—they fly thru the smoke wall, aim their planes, drop the torpedo or torpedoes, and turn back into the smoke. The only period during which gunners can aim or fire at them is while they are inside the smoke. It would be a very short interval and would hardly allow even machine gunners or men operating quick-firing cannon to correct their aim so they get on the plane."

A variation of this attack, General Mitchell said, was to lay a smoke screen around an enemy vessel in such a way that, turn as it would, it must plow thru the smoke wall. By carefully timing its attack a plane could catch the boat just as it emerged and deliver a torpedo attack at point-blank range before the gunners were able to see the airplane's approach.

General Mitchell's squadrons operating from Langley field, Virginia, in 1921, and again in 1923, proved that airplanes were supreme over all ships at sea unless ample air protection was available. In articles written by Mitchell following these tests he described these bombings as follows:

"Finally the time came for us to attack the Ostfriesland with the 2,000-pound bombs, and Captain Lawson's flight went to sea. The great ship was down a little by the stern (as a result of bombing by 600-pound bombs a day or two earlier in tests that were stopped with one salvo), drawing about 40 feet of water. She had sunk considerably after Bissell's attack the previous day.

"Lawson circled his target once to take a look at her and make sure of his wind and his altitude. He then broke his airplanes from their V formation into single column and attacked it. Seven airplanes followed one another.

"Four bombs hit in rapid succession close alongside the Ostfriesland. We could see her rise eight or ten feet between the terrific blows from under water. On the fourth shot Captain Streett, sitting in the back seat of my airplane (Mitchell flew his own single-motored command plane out over the Ostfriesland for the bombings), stood up and, waving both arms, shouted, 'She's gone!'

This attack was delivered in 1921. Later that same summer the bombing group was given the battleship Alabama, obsolete and retired, to practice on. Mitchell wrote of this attack:

"She was towed into about 35 feet of water near Tangier sound in Chesapeake bay. Again Captain Lawson's invincible squadron attacked the battleship. This time we went in to sink her as quickly as possible, and, being in shallow water, the effect of our bombs was greater.

"The first 2,000-pound bomb did its work; she sank to the bottom in 30 seconds. Six other bombers coming behind Lawson struck her with their projectiles, and within four minutes she was a tangled mass of wreckage unrecognizable as the fine ship which had been there before."

An affirmation of Mitchell's theories on air power is included on pages 266 and 268 of his book "Skyways," in which he said:

"Attack by explosive bombs has been proved to be entirely effective in crippling and sinking the largest and strongest ships that can be built.

"These weapons are the greatest that man has ever devised, on account of their explosive content. An ordinary projectile from a cannon carries only from 5 to 15 per cent of its total weight in explosive. The armor-piercing projectiles of naval cannon contain even less, a 2,000-pound armor-piercing shell from a 16-inch gun carrying about 60 pounds of TNT.

"An air bomb, however, that weighs a ton carries anywhere from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds of TNT. If this projectile hits in the vicinity of a ship, within a couple of hundred feet, the under-water mining effect or 'water hammer' is so great that it will cave in the bottom of the ship, causing it to sink."

The details of General Mitchell's court martial are not of interest here beyond a statement that a board of admirals and generals convicted him of acts harmful to the morale of the army.

The prelude to this action was Mitchell's public assertions that the army and navy high command were incompetent and had failed to recognize the effectiveness of airplanes. The truth or lack of truth of these charges, however, were not considered by the board, nor were they a factor in the suspension of Mitchell from duty and placing him on half pay for five years. When this sentence was pronounced he resigned. That was in 1925.

But he did not stop trying to warn the country. As late as 1934, less than two years before his death, Mitchell, who by then saw Japan as an enemy with whom we soon would do battle, was urging establishment of strong air bases in Alaska. In one article he said:

"An air offensive against Japan from Alaska would be decisive. They know this full well, and they know that we are preparing for it in no way whatsoever.

"They are misleading us with naval preparation which really will be quite secondary to air power that ultimately will decide the contest between east and west, while with the greatest secrecy they are developing long-range bombers for an attack on the United States."

The import of Mitchell's words is all the stronger now that the Japanese have struck at Pearl Harbor, at the Philippines, Malaya, and Singapore and the Dutch East Indies chiefly with air power.

When his term as assistant chief of the air corps—with its temporary rank of brigadier general—came to an end Mitchell was not reappointed. President Calvin Coolidge publicly announced that his refusal to reappoint Mitchell was a result of reports on the impetuous officer by his fellow commanders. When this occurred he reverted to the rank of colonel. It was as Colonel Mitchell that he resigned.

It was as William Mitchell, private citizen, that he died in February, 1936, after a short illness. And it was as William Mitchell, private citizen, that he was buried in Milwaukee, Wis., his early home. Members of the family declined any military pomp.

of any program for national defense, not to mention the misery of the unfortunates themselves and their families.

A large proportion of this population wastage originates in the low-income group. More than half our babies are born to families earning less than $1,000 a year.

Organizations like the Illinois League for Planned Parenthood have been able to reach comparatively few thru their free clinics, for they depend largely upon private contributions for their maintenance. Nevertheless the clinics in Illinois have provided information to 30,700 patients since 1924. Many of these received assistance without charge, others paid as little as $1 each, and some were able to meet the actual cost of the service. The planned parenthood advocates hope that eventually family control clinics will be operated by the public health departments of the various states. This is now being done in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Alabama. In North Carolina the policy has been in effect for four years, and there is a clinic in every county. Mothers are instructed in the proper care of children and are helped to space and limit their families.

Says the National Federation for Planned Parenthood: "Because they lack adequate information concerning child spacing, those families whose health and economic conditions make it unwise to have children at too frequent intervals are bearing a disproportionate percentage of our population. The result is that the nation must spend far too much, in excess of four billion dollars a year exclusive of state and local spending, in social welfare activities. Less than 1 per cent, far too little, is spent on preventive measures.

"Planned parenthood means protection for mothers whose physical condition makes child-bearing dangerous. It means less of the human wreckage that occurs when homes are crowded to the bursting point. It means less delinquency, fewer broken homes, sounder family life. It means a sound balance between the numbers of people and the means with which to feed, clothe, and house them. It means a higher level of living. It means ultimately a happier, more productive, self-reliant population.

"Planned parenthood wants to see that information about child spacing is made available to all American citizens who need it for their health and well being. It proposes to limit family size when health or economic conditions make it necessary; to encourage larger families among parents whose good health and sound economic conditions insure their babies a sound and healthy childhood."

Don't leave the books in the library. Take them out and have them handy.

LET'S GET THIS straight! All those problems that you've hashed over a coke in the drug store or those troubles you have kept to yourself, mulling and moaning and not getting anywhere—let's get them decided right now! This is a good chance. What if that little blonde in the blue cardigan has given you the brush-off—are you going to let it spoil your whole year? And what's this about your flunking in second year algebra? Have you been dating too much, staying out too late, or what's wrong with your concentration? You can't do that, and before it's too late, let's talk this thing over!

It's all right, for we can talk here as privately as in the back booth of the drug store. All those problems about what to wear to the formal dances down to whether or not to take Cicero next year can become so plain and simple when you see them printed in black and white. That very question that has been bothering you may be just the thing that has had other high school seniors tossing on their pillows these last weeks. Maybe you've been wondering why it is that the smoothies seem to know the score so well. Just a few pointers would probably help you, too. You will probably come out with a top man for the next school dance or will make your future employer realize that you are just the boy to handle that Saturday job with the small, neat pay envelope. There are a lot of important little things that can be straightened out with just a few words or a little clear thought.

F'rinstance, maybe nothing interesting ever happens to you. Your mother says you're far too young to be dating anyway, or your father says no son of his is going to get the car till he's over 18. Maybe you have nothing to do on Friday nights but your homework, and all the boys in letter sweaters are crowding around some one else's locker after school. Well, who's right and who's wrong and why? Just sit down and think it out. Don't mope it out—dope it out. Maybe your mother is right about not letting you date too young. You remember, don't you, the story of Little Red Riding Hood, who went walking in the forest when she was a little girl and almost got eaten up by a wolf? And that's no fairy story!

And what if your father won't let you use the car—it really isn't such a problem. Didn't you ever see a dream walking? Take your date to a neighborhood movie or for a short stroll to the coke hangout, or why not a brisk workout at the skating rink for you both? For extra special evenings you can always arrange to double-date with some one who has a car, and before you know it you will be 18 yourself and using the family car.

Your problem may be another kind. You may have been going along blithely, studying hard and keeping your desk neat in study hall, and suddenly you realize that you are out of things at school. You don't know what goes on in the drug store-locker room talk. You find you are marked as a droop, a dreary, and a dating dullard. You just aren't one of the crowd. Use your head on this one. First make sure your unpopularity isn't just your imagination, and if it is actual, make up your mind to right the situation at once. If you want to get people interested in you the best thing to do is to get interested in people. Don't watch your own progress; watch the people around you. Talk about what they know, what they're doing. Take an active part in school club work, venture a few remarks to those higher-ups—perhaps the class president or the captain of the football team—whom you've always shied away from, and you will find them as friendly and anxious to talk as you are. Before long yours will change from an "I" to a "we" social life.

What if you can't have the car? Take your date to the coke hangout.

And what about school itself? Are you just easing thru by smiling at the right time and emptying the wastebasket for the teacher? Or are you really getting what you want? You came to school to prepare for the time after these four "football, coke, and dating" years are up; for college or for immediate work. How is that preparation coming along? Are you really getting started? If that Sarah Bernhardt urge is in you, if you feel you have a story to tell and can't quite find the words, if you are thinking secret thoughts about Grant Wood and a good set of paints and brushes—there is work to be done by people like you. Now is the time to start using those feelings that are making you restless in study hall. Mozart was composing minuets at 4, and Stephen Vincent Benet sold his first story at 12—and who said you can't do it? The current song hit "Lament for Love" was written by a 16-year-old high school student—who said you can't do it? The world is always anxious to see new names and new faces with talent behind them, so get busy. The world is wonderful when you're working hard.

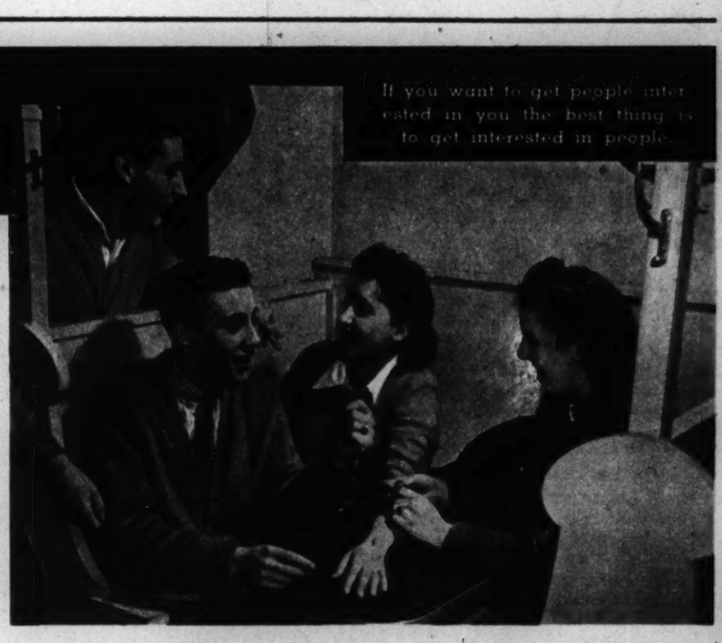
Perhaps your day is so crowded you have no time for personal interests outside of school work; no time for hobbies. Few people like the restrictions of a time budget worked out on paper, so just use your head on this one. For instance, you have a list of books, worth-while books, classics and current writings, that you plan to read—"O, some time!" Why not now? Don't just leave the books in the library. Take them out and have them handy. Those minutes every evening when you are waiting for your current heart murmur to call. You can't settle down to study till you've talked with him, so what to do? Or that 15 minutes' pause before supper while you are waiting for your father to come home from work, what about that? Those are the times when, with a little forethought, you can get valuable reading done. Or if you have taken music lessons all thru grade school, and now find that with football practice and other things there just isn't time for an hour's piano practice each day—do you think you could get up a little earlier in the morning? There is a valuable hour in there between cockcrow and the time that the rest of the family begins to stir. You can be an Eddie Duchin yet.



If you want to get people interested in you the best thing is to get interested in people.

You don't have to make a drudge or grind of yourself—that is almost as bad as being a fluffhead. But don't shove everything off into the future, waiting till you "have time." Cut down gradually on your twiddling minutes. Part of the time you spend in telephone chit-chat, in drug store coking, in mooning over dreamy dance bands, in just plain "sitting," could be used for self-development. Every moment should count. Look yourself square in the eye and ask what you've been doing with your days.

Slow, smoldering ambitions—never fulfilled, never even aired—can be whiffed out before any one knows they are there. Latent talents can melt away with no exercise—so really get busy now. You are big stuff, you know. All you need is a little work to put you across.

Don't let anything hold you back. All the troubles and problems you may have in your head—get them out, think them over, and get rid of them. You can be your own clearing house, your own wailing wall, as well as your own judge. Nothing is such a ghastly problem if you think it over intelligently. It may not be all clear sailing, but it will be easier. So just remember—use your head and you win!

NEW STARTLING PROOF DREFT IS GREATEST SUDS DISCOVERY IN HISTORY!

"Cleaner Dishes without Wiping!"

"We've Seen the Proof!"

. . . say prominent health officials! Not wiping dishes is far cleaner and more sanitary . . . because it definitely reduces the spread of infectious germs.

EXCERPT FROM U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH BULLETIN
The United States Public Health Service proposes an ordinance for eating and drinking establishments which requires:
" . . . that wherever possible, utensils be permitted to drain dry without the use of drying cloths."

BARBARA REID ROBSON
Widely Consulted Home Economist and Dietitian, says:
"I've seen it with my own eyes! Even glasses dry so radiantly clean—wiping is needless, when you do dishes the time-saving Dreft way!"

DREFT...UNLIKE ANY SOAP...BRINGS DISHES RADIANTLY CLEAN WITHOUT WIPING! Now makes practical Easier, Cleaner Method

Endorsed by Leading Health Officials!

DREFT GETS MY VOTE... AND WE DRY THE DISHES IN OUR HOUSE!
dreft
marvelous suds discovery

Yes—even if you dry your dishes, you'll find Dreft a miracle worker in the dishpan! Wait till you see Dreft swish instantly into mountains of suds—even in hardest water! Watch those active suds cut through grease almost like magic! Note how easy it is to get dishes radiantly bright—because Dreft leaves no cloudy, hard-water film to polish off! You'll agree—there never was anything like Dreft before!

Regardless of price or quality, there isn't a soap in the world that can offer you all these remarkable Dreft advantages:

1. EASIER . . . because Dreft makes 5 times more suds in hardest water than any soap. There's no greasy, hard-water scum to make the dishwater messy! And Dreft's great sudsing power makes it wonderfully economical, too!
2. QUICKER . . . because Dreft never leaves cloudy hard-water film to be wiped off glassware and dishes. A good rinse and they dry shining, sparkling clean! And—by not wiping—you can cut your work in half!
3. CLEANER . . . because no germ-carrying film is left on dishes. And no germ-spreading towel need be used. You'll positively be thrilled by the sparkling results!
4. NO ROUGH, RED HANDS caused by strong soaps! Dreft—famous for its kindness to stockings, fine woolens, lingerie—is marvelously gentle to your hands in the dishpan!

In short . . . whether you wipe your dishes or not . . . you'll find patented new Dreft different from any soap you ever used. And it's a difference that means easier, better dishwashing!

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

Try Dreft tonight—and see its dishwashing miracles with your own eyes. If you don't agree it lives up to every statement in this advertisement—your money will be refunded! You risk nothing—and you stand to benefit by dishwashing advantages no soap has ever been able to offer!

MY WORK IS CUT IN HALF BY USING DREFT! AND SEE HOW GORGEOUSLY THE GLASSES AND DISHES SHINE WITHOUT WIPING!

dreft is different!

OFFERS YOU FAR CLEANER DISHWASHING THAN THE SOAP YOU'RE NOW USING!

PLOWING through snow and slush with cold, wet feet lowers temperature. Such a disturbance of your body's heat-regulating mechanism reduces the blood supply of your mucous membranes—increases their mucous secretions. Your nose first feels dry, then runs copiously.

You can fight this symptom of a cold by helping nature normalize your foot temperature quickly. Rub your cold, wet feet briskly with Absorbine Jr. This active linimentation stimulates your circulation more quickly than rubbing alone. And, as a fresh supply of warm blood flows through your feet, that cold, clammy feeling disappears.

Don't fail to take this simple precaution when feet get wet! Do same with children. See if you don't reduce the misery of running noses this winter! Keep Absorbine Jr. handy. $1.25 at all druggists. FREE SAMPLE—write W. F. Young, Inc., 370D Lyman St., Springfield, Mass.

The General Wins

"LOOKIE what I have!" shouted the Dunce one morning, as he threw open the Teenie Weenie kitchen door. He carried a big grape in his arms and, dropping it on the kitchen table, he asked the Cook for a carving knife. "I'm going to cut myself a large slice right now, and you can serve the rest for dessert tonight."

"Where did you get this grape?" asked the General, who happened to step into the kitchen at that moment.

"Oh, over there," answered the Dunce, with a wave of his hand.

"Over there in some big house?" asked the General.

"Yes, sort of," answered the Dunce. "It just happened to be lying on a table."

"It didn't happen to be lying in a dish, did it?" asked the General.

"Yes," said the Dunce, "come to think of it, it was. Sort of hangin' around some other grapes."

"It was probably trying to run away and you kindly helped it," suggested the General.

"Well, I did sort of feel sorry for it," grinned the Dunce, "and I invited it home for dinner."

"Well, sir, we don't want thieves bringing their loot into our house," said the General. "You know it is not right to go into people's houses and take things without permission. Now, you take that grape right back and put it where you found it."

"Ah, jiggers!" exploded the Dunce, who was very fond of grapes. "Can't we keep it?"

"No," said the General. "Pick it up and come on. The Policeman and I will go along to see that you do return the grape safely."

The Dunce picked up the grape, and they set off. But he was forced to stop and rest occasionally, for the grape was quite heavy, and every time he stopped he would try to persuade the General to change his mind.

"No," the General was firm, "pick it up and come on."

Finally, the Dunce made his way into the house where he had found the grape. "I found it up there on a big bunch of grapes in a dish on that table," he said, "but I'm not strong enough to get it back up there."

"If you were strong enough to get it down, you're strong enough to get it up." And the General made the Dunce carry the grape up to the top of the table. The Dunce set the grape on the table near the dish and began to argue again, to the great amusement of some of the Teenie Weenies who had followed.

"General," said the Dunce in one last plea for the grape, "the people who live in this house would never miss this one single grape. They'd just pop it into their mouths and it would hardly be a taste for them. But for us Teenie Weenies, there would be enough to give every last one of us a great big slice, and maybe there would be some left for breakfast."

"Well, sir," said the General, "the Teenie Weenies don't eat stolen fruit. You get this grape back into the dish, and then you can go straight home and spend the rest of the day in bed, young man."

The Turk, who is very strong, offered to help the Dunce raise the grape to the rim of the dish, but the General said no, because he wanted the Dunce to remember all his life that he must not take anything that does not belong to him.

The Dunce mournfully boosted the grape into the dish, and the Policeman then took him home and made him climb into his Teenie Weenie bed. "That's where thieves belong," said the Policeman. "When they're asleep they can't steal."

"Aw, I wasn't stealing," the Dunce insisted.

umpf!" said the Policeman.

'LO, PERRY! WHERE YA GOIN'?
I AIN'T GOIN'— I'M COMIN'!
AW'RIGHT THEN— WHERE YA COMIN' FROM?
SUNDAY SCHOOL!
TODAY, WE LEARNED ALL ABOUT NOAH AN' TH' ARK!
OH, I KNOW THAT STORY! IT'S ABOUT TH' FLOOD—
—AN' HOW IT RAINED 40 DAYS AN' 40 NIGHTS—
YEAH, AN' NOAH HAD TWO OF EVERY KIND OF ANIMAL ON TH' ARK!!
40 DAYS AN' NIGHTS IS A LONG TIME TO BE ON A BOAT WITH NOTHIN' TO DO!!
COUNTIN' ALL THEM ANIMALS SHOULDA KEPT HIM BUSY!!
SMOKE ... IGAR
G'WAN, HE ONLY COUNTED 'EM ONCE — WHEN THEY WENT UP TH' GANGPLANK!
WELL, WHAT DO YA S'POSE NOAH DID FOR 40 DAYS——
—I KNOW, HE MUSTA SLEPT FOR 40 NIGHTS!
ABOUT ALL HE COULD DO IN TH' DAYTIMES WAS FISH!
WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU WAS ON A BOAT FOR OVER A MONTH WITH NOTHIN' TO DO, AN' WATER ALL AROUND??
OH, I'D FISH — BUT I'LL BET NOAH DIDN'T DO VERY MUCH FISHIN'!!
THEY HAD NO SHUFFLE-BOARD OR DECK TENNIS IN THEM DAYS, SO WHAT ELSE COULD NOAH DO BUT FISH?
WELL, I AIN'T SAYIN' TH' OL' MAN DIDN'T DO NO FISHIN'— COFFEE
—BUT IF HE DID, I'LL BET HE DIDN'T CATCH MANY FISH!!
WHAT MAKES YA SO SURE HE DIDN'T CATCH MANY FISH, WISE GUY??
'CAUSE NOAH DIDN'T HAVE ONLY TWO WORMS ON TH' ARK!!

JACK, LEARNING THAT MR. BROTHERLY IS PULLING A SHAKE-DOWN, ACCUSES CINDY OF BEING IN ON IT--
SO THAT'S WHY YOU DECIDED TO MARRY TH' SKUNK! YOU WANTED TO BE SURE TO GET YOUR SHARE!
I ONLY SAID HE ASKED ME TO MARRY HIM--WHAT IS ALL THIS?
AS IF YOU DIDN'T KNOW! WHEN I LEFT HIM TO CLOSE THE DEALS FOR THE AIRPORT SITES THAT I MAPPED OUT---
--BROTHERLY BOUGHT SMALL SECTIONS FOR HIMSELF--A FEW ACRES JUTTING OUT INTO THE AIRPORT OR A SLICE OFF THE RUNWAYS!
HE'S MADE EACH AIRPORT WORTHLESS UNLESS I BUY WHAT HE OWNS--HE ONLY PAID A FEW THOUSAND DOLLARS--BUT HE DEMANDS A MILLION!
HE KNOWS I'VE ALREADY SUNK SEVERAL MILLIONS IN MY SKYCAMPS--BUILDING RUNWAYS AND HANGARS!
COULDN'T YOU TELL FROM THE PLOT PLANS THAT YOU WEREN'T GETTING ALL THE LAND YOU HAD MAPPED OUT?
SKYCAMP HANGAR COTTAGE
YOU KNOW I LEFT ALL THE LEGAL RED TAPE TO BROTHERLY---HE DID SHOW ME PLOT PLANS, BUT NOW HE ADMITS THEY WERE NOT TH' REAL ONES!
YOU PROBABLY HELPED HIM BLUE PRINT TH' FAKE ONES THAT HE DESTROYED LATER---OW!
HOW DARE YOU!! I'VE TRIED TO BE A LADY BECAUSE I LOVED YOU--BUT NOW I'M THROUGH!
YOU THIEF! YOU BX$†!^!◎⊟--I'VE HEARD HOW YOU'RE TRYING TO CLEAN JACK----YOU'LL HANG FOR THIS!
I'VE DONE EVERYTHING WITHIN TH' LAW! JACK IS JUST A STUPID BUSINESS-MAN, MY SWEET!
DON'T YOU "MY SWEET" ME, YOU DOG!
COME, COME--IS THAT ANY WAY FOR A LADY TO TALK TO THE MAN SHE IS GOING TO MARRY? DON'T FORGET--I'LL SOON HAVE A MILLION DOLLARS!
I WOULDN'T MARRY YOU IF YOU HAD A HUNDRED MILLION! I'VE WONDERED ABOUT YOU FROM TH' START--I'VE ALWAYS FELT I'VE KNOWN YOU BEFORE---
I WISH I KNEW WHO YOU REALLY WERE, YOU DESPICABLE SCUM!!
WHY, YOU SHE-DEVIL, YOU!!

BUT, AT THAT MOMENT WHEN A SPLIT SECOND MEANS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH, A MIRACLE HAPPENS!
MR. GUMP! IT'S WORKING! NOW FOR THE BIG TEST!
WHIR!
HOORAY! MY INVENTION IS A COMPLETE SUCCESS!!
IT HAS PUT THE ELECTRIC SYSTEM OUT OF ORDER IN THIS PLACE! DUCK QUICK, DR, CRANE! I HEAR OUR CAPTORS!!
THEY CAN'T ESCAPE, EVEN IN THE DARK, AT THIS POINT-BLANK RANGE!
DESTROY THEIR DEVILISH MACHINE!
SHOTS! GOOD HEAVENS! UNCLE BIM! UNCLE BIM! DID THEY SHOOT Y-YOU?!
NOISE COME FROM DOWN THERE! IF THEY HURT UNCLE BIM, BULL MOOSE TEAR 'EM TO PIECES!!
WAIT! WHAT'S THAT NOISE? THAT GIANT WE HAD CHAINED IN THE CELLAR — HE'S LOOSE!
THERE, THEY ARE! YOU STAY HERE, CHESTER — THEY HAVE GUNS — BULL MOOSE TAKE GOOD CARE OF 'EM BY HIMSELF —
GOSH, BULL MOOSE — THAT'S NOT FAIR! I CAN EASILY LICK THAT LITTLE GUY!
THE GIANT! HE'S COMING UP THE PASSAGE! WE HAVEN'T TIME TO RE-LOAD! WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE — QUICK! THE WINDOW!
THEY ESCAPING THROUGH WINDOW! BULL MOOSE GET THEM!!
WAIT, BULL MOOSE! UNCLE BIM IS IN THE OTHER ROOM — WE'VE GOT TO SEE IF THEY SHOT HIM!!
CHESTER! BULL MOOSE! WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?!
THANK PROVIDENCE! YOU SAVED OUR LIVES!
IN JOYFUL EXCITEMENT, BULL MOOSE FORGET HE HAS WORK TO DO! HAVE LITTLE JOB TO FIND THOSE TWO RATS AND TEAR 'EM TO PIECES!
I'M SO HAPPY THEY DIDN'T SHOOT YOU AND DR. CRANE, UNCLE BIM! WE WERE SURE THEY'D KILLED YOU!
WOOF! GR-RR R-R-R
THAT WON'T BE NECESSARY, BULL MOOSE — THOSE FEROCIOUS MASTIFFS THEY KEPT IN THE BACK YARD TO PREVENT OUR ESCAPE, HAVE PREVENTED THEIRS!

NOW! A BRAND NEW GRANULATED SOAP WITH A DIFFERENCE YOU CAN ACTUALLY SEE!
JUST LOOK! TWICE AS WHITE...AND NO STRONG SOAP-POWDER ODOR!
IMAGINE A SOAP WITH EXTRA POWER TO GET OUT DEEP DOWN DIRT...YET SO MILD IT'S RAYON-SAFE!
Super Suds
SAFE EVEN FOR SILKS AND WOOLENS ...AND A MARVEL IN THE DISHPAN TOO...SO KIND TO HANDS!

WASHES UP TO 25% WHITER WITHOUT HARSH CHEMICALS

So Supremely Gentle... It's RAYON-SAFE!

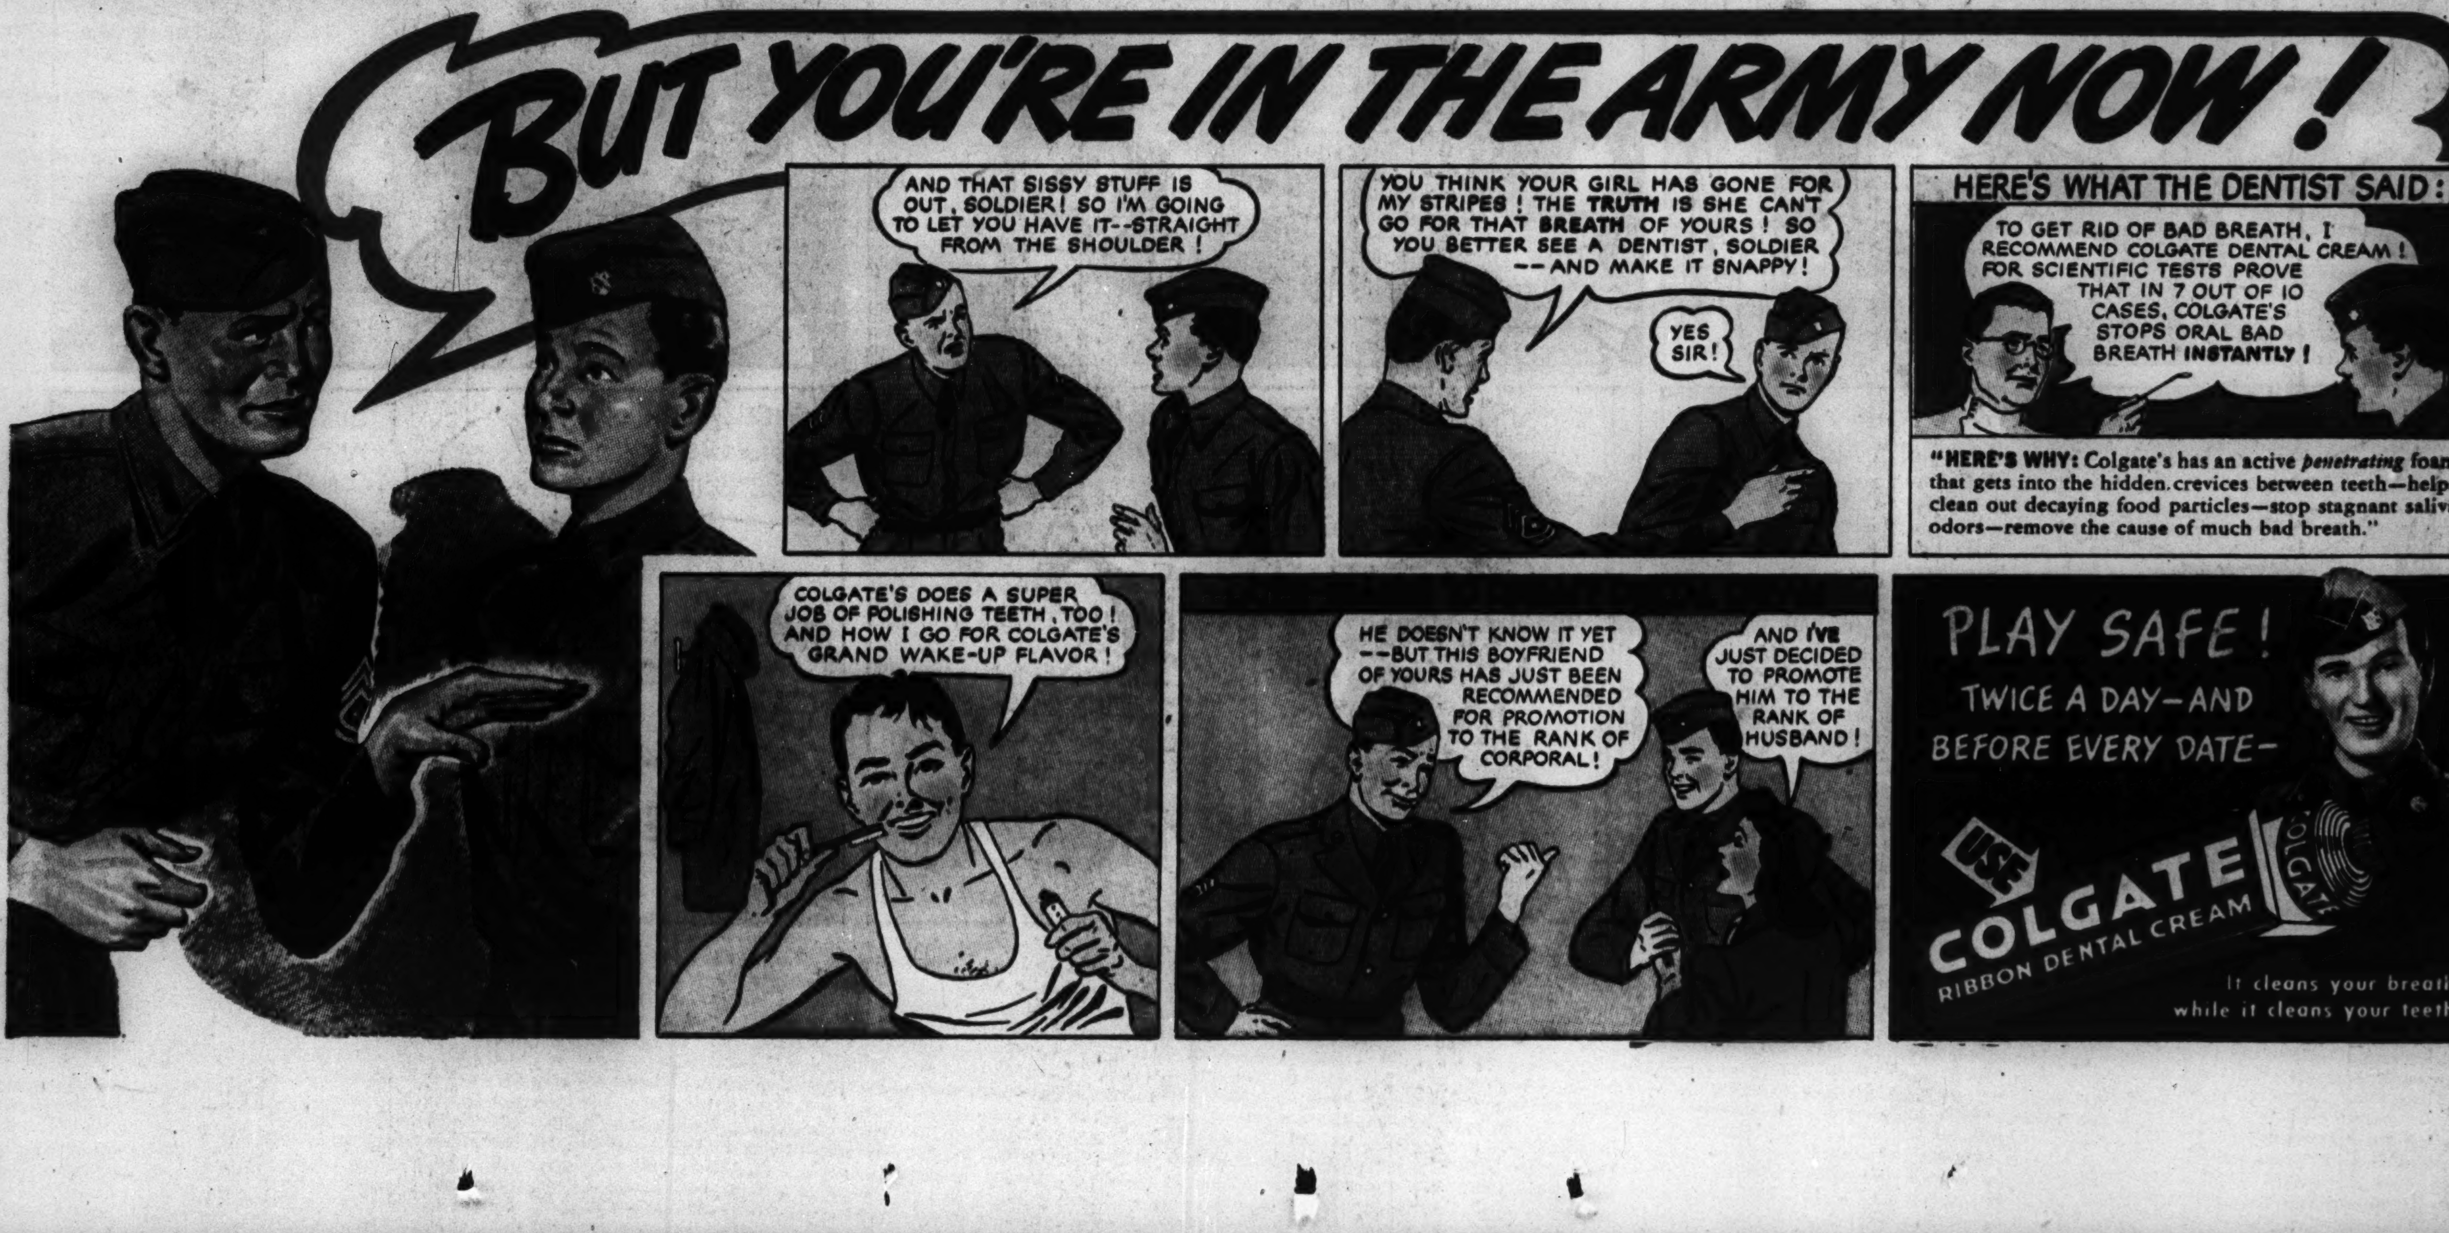
INSTANTLY YOU OPEN the package you'll see the evidence with your own eyes! For New 4-Purpose Super Suds is twice as white as the other leading granulated soaps—and no strong soap-powder odor!

BUT THE REMARKABLE thing about New 4-Purpose Super Suds is the way it achieves extra washing power without harsh-chemical action! Gets white clothes dazzling white yet so gentle it's Rayon-Safe! Safe for EVERYTHING IN YOUR WASH—even washable silks and woolens.

SO TRY this new soap innovation. See how it does these things:— (1) Washes white clothes up to 25% whiter than less efficient soaps—without harsh-chemical action . . . (2) Washes dainty rayons safely, a way that Rayon Experts recommend . . . (3) Launders washable silks and woolens beautifully without need for costly "extra" soaps . . . (4) Washes dishes sparkling with extra speed—a way that's really kind to hands!

YOUR DEALER has New 4-Purpose Super Suds now! Get a package without delay!

NO CHANGE IN THE FAMILIAR BIG BLUE BOX—BUT WHAT A DIFFERENCE IN THE SOAP!



BUT YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW!
AND THAT SISSY STUFF IS OUT, SOLDIER! SO I'M GOING TO LET YOU HAVE IT--STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER!
YOU THINK YOUR GIRL HAS GONE FOR MY STRIPES! THE TRUTH IS SHE CAN'T GO FOR THAT BREATH OF YOURS! SO YOU BETTER SEE A DENTIST, SOLDIER --AND MAKE IT SNAPPY!
YES SIR!
HERE'S WHAT THE DENTIST SAID:
TO GET RID OF BAD BREATH, I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM! FOR SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE THAT IN 7 OUT OF 10 CASES, COLGATE'S STOPS ORAL BAD BREATH INSTANTLY!
COLGATE'S DOES A SUPER JOB OF POLISHING TEETH, TOO! AND HOW I GO FOR COLGATE'S GRAND WAKE-UP FLAVOR!
HE DOESN'T KNOW IT YET --BUT THIS BOYFRIEND OF YOURS HAS JUST BEEN RECOMMENDED FOR PROMOTION TO THE RANK OF CORPORAL!
AND I'VE JUST DECIDED TO PROMOTE HIM TO THE RANK OF HUSBAND!
PLAY SAFE! TWICE A DAY—AND BEFORE EVERY DATE—
USE COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

"HERE'S WHY: Colgate's has an active penetrating foam that gets into the hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stop stagnant saliva odors—remove the cause of much bad breath."

It cleans your breath while it cleans your teeth

LISTEN- WHAT'S THAT?
SOUNDS LIKE A CAR COMING DOWN THE DRIVE!
BACK THIS BUGGY UP BEHIND THE SHRUBBERY, BEA!
I'M TELLING YOU, SLIVER, SOMETHING WENT WRONG!
WE SHOULD HAVE HEARD THAT BOILER BLAST TEN MINUTES AGO.
COME ON! LET'S TAKE A LOOK!
IT'S B-B EYES, ALL RIGHT!
BUT WHAT CAN WE DO? WE'RE UNARMED!
WHAT TH--! THEY'RE GONE! THEY'VE CLEARED OUT!
THE PRESSURE'S DOWN. LOOK! THE GAUGE HAS BEEN BROKEN!
THEY'VE PUT SOMETHING OVER. WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE!
BEA! DO JUST AS I TELL YOU. DON'T MIND WHAT HAPPENS TO YOUR CAR! THROW 'ER IN SECOND GEAR AND RAM 'EM!

MAKES RICH SUDS
EASY

"Wonderful!" you'll say, when you see your first OXYDOL wash—white without bleaching.

And "Wonderful!" you'll repeat, when you notice how mild the New Oxydol is.

"Wonderful!" is what everybody's saying about the New "Hustle-Bubble" suds in Oxydol today. They're milder on hands! And safe for your lovely washable rayons! And safety itself for your dainty colored washables!

Yet "Hustle-Bubble" suds do more for you. They're harder-working suds, richer in washing power—packed with more power to wash clothes white. These busier, active "Hustle-Bubble" suds go much farther, too. Every cupful of New Oxydol washes more clothes or dishes. You save a good part of your soap bill.

GERTIE O'GRADY
by Paul McCarthy
HERE IT IS THE FIRST OF MARCH, AND I'D COUNTED ON MAKING SOME MONEY CHASING HATS -- BUT, HECK, IT'S NOT VERY WINDY!
OH, BOY! C'MON, APERCOTT -- I GOT AN IDEA, AND IF IT WORKS I'LL BLOW YOU TO A BUNCH OF BANANAS!
ANOTHER CUSTOMER! -- BUSINESS SURE IS GOOD ON THIS CORNER!
HERE'S YOUR HAT, MISTER!
THANKS! AND HERE'S A QUARTER FOR RETRIEVING IT!
I'LL BET YOU'VE NEVER MADE 25 CENTS EASIER THAN THAT, FORTUNE!
THERE'S WHERE YOU'RE WRONG, AUNT GERTIE — I'VE ALREADY MADE $2.75 CHASING HATS THIS AFTERNOON!
IT DOESN'T SEEM WINDY ENOUGH TO BLOW OFF THAT MANY HATS!
THAT'S WHAT I THOUGHT, TOO -- BUT I FIGURED OUT A SYSTEM --
-- WHEN THE CUSTOMER GETS PAST, APERCOTT POPS OVER THE FENCE AND BLOWS HIS HAT OFF -- THEN I DO TH' REST!

DEFENSE COMMANDERS MAP ACTION

PATRONAGE ROW CREATES BATTLE FOR FINUCANE

9th District Involved in Ward Feud.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Sen. Daley.

A feud between two Republican ward committeemen, Felix F. Kucharski of the 12th and William S. Finucane of the 11th, last week threatened the seemingly certain renomination of Finucane as state representative for the 9th district.

Kucharski is concentrating his efforts in the primary campaign on unseating Rep. Finucane. To this end he is working tooth and nail for Attorney Vincent Joyce, 2873 Quinn street. Since this is a "setup" district in which only one Republican and two Democrats will be nominated for three house seats, voting on April 14 will decide the issue.

Joyce thus takes a lead over other candidates than the incumbent, but his chief backer controls only 22 of the 115 precincts in the district, which contains parts of the wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25.

Dispute Over Patronage.

According to the political grapevine Committeeman Kucharski wanted his son appointed state factory inspector but the job went to Arthur Sullivan of Finucane's ward. This touched off Kucharski's complaints that he was unfairly treated in the distribution of patronage. He also complained that citizens with Polish names were not getting sufficient recognition, altho his candidate has an Irish monicker.

This is Finucane's third term in the house. Before the Republicans regained the state administration, his voting in the pinches at Springfield was such that he was named among the small group of Republican legislators who aided the Democrats. However, with the G. O. P. once more in state power, his voting record has been characterized by party loyalty, according to sources at Republican headquarters.

Besides Rep. Finucane and Joyce, G. O. P. house candidates are William E. Orr, 3621 Lituanica avenue; Michael J. Drozdowski, 2946 Poplar avenue; Rudolph Schultz, 2925 McDermott avenue; Otto Siebert, 1645 West 33d street; Frank J. Pacanowski, 2909 Quinn street, and Clarence Schultz, 2829 Eleanor street.

Incumbents Lead Ticket.

The Democratic house candidates are led on the ballot by the incumbents, Peter P. Jezierny, a spry oldster serving his fifth term, and William J. Gormley, who is completing his ninth term. Firmly entrenched in party ranks, they are faced with only two opponents: Frank P. McGinty, 3315 South Western boulevard, and Stanley Sobiszewski, 3735 South Hermitage avenue.

Andrew Toman, 3822 South Winchester avenue, who is said to have good organization backing, holds top spot on the ballot for the Republican nomination for state senator. Because of the lopsided Democratic majorities in the district, George Nehls, 3301 South Morgan street, is his only opponent.

Sen. Richard J. Daley, youthful legislator who during his single terms in the house and senate forged to the front by dint of energy and ability, is up against four opponents. Despite his good record and powerful party support, the heavy Democratic Polish vote in the district is a temptation to these aspirants.

Therefore, as one of Daley's backers said, "If you're going to have opponents you'd better have a lot of them." The opponents are Frank Wilkowski, 3352 South Paulina street; Joseph Przybylo, 2510 South Throop street; John F. Mikos, 3637 South Hermitage avenue, and John E. Zukorski, 2913 Bonfield avenue. The division of the "name vote" among these will help Daley keep his seat.

Expert on Tax Affairs.

Deputy county controler, Sen. Daley is an expert in tax matters. He had a large share of the work in passing the tax preadjudication bill to give small home owners the benefits of reductions in faulty assessments. At present, only property owners represented in courts where illegal assessments are knocked out get the benefit of such tax reductions.

This measure has been passed three times. Twice the law was invalidated by the Illinois Supreme court on technical grounds. Passed again in 1941, it was vetoed by Gov. Dwight H. Green, who said he feared that it might be in improper form.

"For the sake of the ordinary taxpayers, I will not accept defeat on this issue," Sen. Daley said last week. "If returned to the senate, I will continue my efforts to have this measure made part of our laws. It is a matter of common justice, and it must be done."

Kasper Cites Support.

Last week it was stated that John J. Kasper was one of the candidates without organization support for the

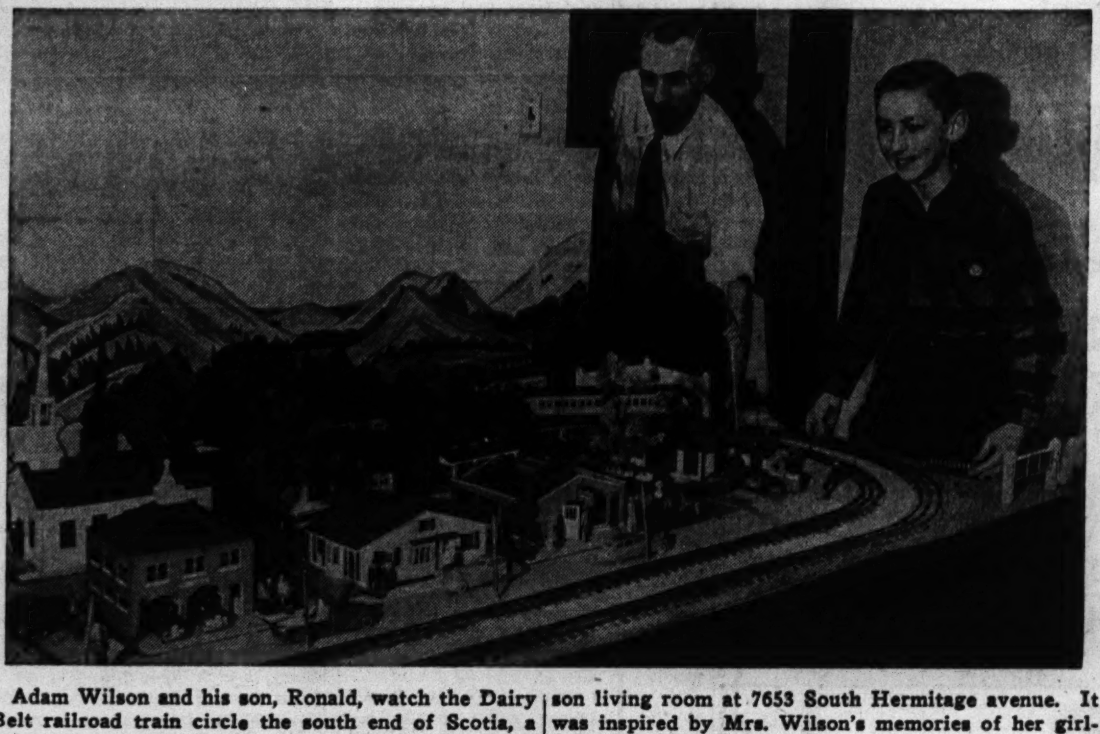
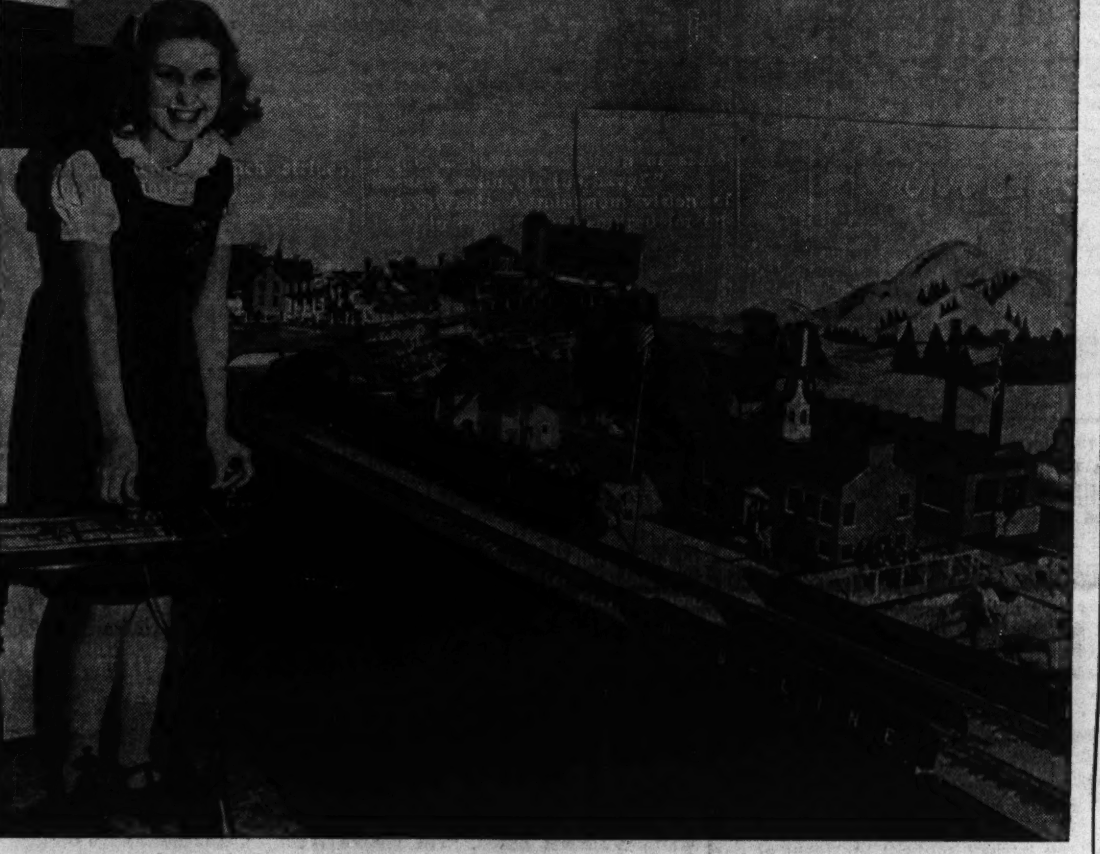
Miniature Town Is Hobby for Entire Family



Adam Wilson and his son, Ronald, watch the Dairy Belt railroad train circle the south end of Scotia, a town in miniature, developed by the family in the Wilson living room at 7653 South Hermitage avenue. It was inspired by Mrs. Wilson's memories of her girlhood home in Scotia, Neb.



Last night, Marion Wilson pulled out the plug in the wall socket behind her and Scotia was plunged into its first blackout. She is operating the machinery which controls the progress of the Dairy Belt railroad train.

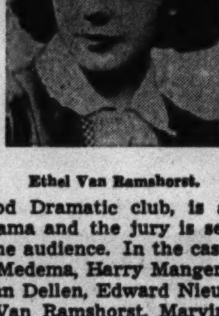
PUPILS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF SCHOOL MUSIC

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public school system, a chorus of 400 students from Emmet, Peirce, Ruggles, and Wentworth elementary schools will participate at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Children's Symphony concert at Orchestra hall.

The children will sing John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Freedom," a selection written for the occasion. More than 3,500 public school pupils will be in the audience. Dr. Helen Howe, director or music for the board of education, is organizer of the chorus. Vocal music was introduced into Chicago's schools three years after Lowell Mason, known as the "father of public school music," carried music into Boston schools.

The program will be broadcast at 3:45 o'clock over W-G-N. The Wentworth school is at 6950 South Sangamon street, and the Ruggles school is at 7831 Prairie avenue. The address of the Peirce school is 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue.

ENGLEWOOD DRAMATIC CLUB TO STAGE PLAY AT AUSTIN TOWN HALL



Ethel Van Ramshorst.

Chicago Christian High school alumni will present "The Night of Jan. 16" Wednesday evening in the Austin Town hall, Central avenue and Lake street, under direction of Miss Ethel Van Ramshorst, 10815 Prairie avenue. The play, given by the Englewood Dramatic club, is a courtroom drama and the jury is selected from the audience. In the cast are Lorraine Medema, Harry Mangerson, Roger Van Dellen, Edward Nieubuurt, Ruth Van Ramshorst, Marvin Tornga, Grace Stob, Ned Van Dellen, Otto Veenstra, Nellie Jane Rudenga, George Cooper, Harriet Bus, Lubbert Van Dellen, Al Santefort, Everdeen Hiskes, Marguerite Van Dellen, Robert Bonnema, Bernice Vander Ploeg, Melvin Edman, Marjorie Nieubuurt, and Henry Whyma.

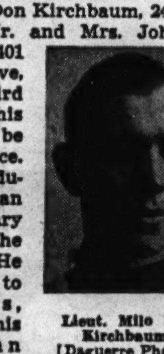
With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Ray M. Smith.

Aviation Cadet Ray M. Smith, 1451 West 103d street, will be graduated soon from the air corps advanced flying school at Stockton field, Cal. He will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the air corps reserve and awarded silver wings, symbolic of the aeronautical rating of pilot.

He has a B. S. degree in mechanical engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology, and was a CAA student instructor with 140 flying hours to his credit before taking army flight training at Santa Maria and Moffett field, Cal.

John Francis Dunne, 1028 West 20th place, was one of the recent graduates of the service school at the naval air station in Seattle, Wash. He completed four months intensive training in the aviation radio school and will be sent to the fleet or to a shore station to put his trade school knowledge into action. He attended Calumet and Mount Carmel High schools. Prior to his enlistment he was a steel worker employed in South Chicago at South Works, Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation.



Lieut. Milo Don Kirchbaum.
[Daguerre Photo.]

Lieut. Milo Don Kirchbaum, 24 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kirchbaum, 9401 Longwood drive, became the third member of his family to be called to service.

He is a graduate of Morgan Park Military academy, in the class of 1937. He is assigned to Fort Lewis, Wash. One of his brothers, John Charles, is at Key field, Meridian, Miss., and the other Kenneth Greer at Baton Rouge. They, too, are Morgan Park alumni.

Two southwest side soldiers assigned to Scott field, Ill., have been advanced to the rank of corporal in the army air corps. They are William F. Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Fitzpatrick, 10446 Prospect avenue, and Arthur C. Keeley, son of Thomas J. Keeley, 3729 West 64th street.

Another army advancement was announced by the commandant at the Orlando air base, Orlando, Fla. Corp. Casimir J. Beres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beres, 11811 South Sangamon street, was promoted to sergeant. He is with a quartermaster detachment.

CATHOLIC WOMEN MEET THURSDAY AT SOUTHMOOR

South Side Catholic Woman's club will hold its first meeting of the month Thursday evening in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue. Richard Finnegan, Chicago newspaper man, will be the speaker.

Mrs. E. E. O'Reilly, 7919 South May street, president of the club, will introduce Mrs. J. B. Simson, president of the 2d district, Federation of Women's Clubs, and her board of directors. Miss Margaret Leddow, dramatic soprano formerly of Vienna, Austria, will sing, accompanied by Max Rudolphe.

The club's Red Cross home nursing class meets every Tuesday afternoon in the Southmoor. Soldiers and sailors will be guests of the club at the National Catholic community center, 1122 South Wabash avenue, Saturday evening, March 14.

OUTDOOR GIRLS START MONTH'S JAUNTS TODAY

The Englewood Outdoor Girls will launch their March activities today with an Indian Boundary hike. The hikers will gather at 9:30 o'clock at 63d street and Western avenue. Frances Hagerty and Russ Barber will lead the group.

Next Sunday the club will bowl at 3:30 o'clock at 3323 West 63d street. A business meeting will be held at 8:15 o'clock Friday, March 13, at the Ogden park fieldhouse, 65th street and Racine avenue.

A street car hike has been planned for Sunday, March 15. Hikers will gather at 63d street and Western avenue at 9:30 o'clock. On Friday, March 20, the group will hold a dance at the Trianon ballroom, 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The final March activity will be a "Can-You-Take-It" hike. Frances Pilat and Jimmy Johnson will lead the group from 63d street and Western avenue.

41 LINE UP FOR CONGRESS POSTS IN 6 DISTRICTS

Many File on Final Day for Primary.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Forty-one prospective congressmen from the six districts of southwest Chicagoland—the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 6th, and 11th—filed their nominating petitions in Springfield, it was announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

Among the 41 were 16 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Each party will nonminate one candidate in each district on April 14, the two thus chosen in each congressional subdivision being pitted against each other in the Nov. 3 election.

Six of the Democrats and 13 of the Republicans filed on the last possible day, in spite of the fact that petitions were received in Springfield as early as Feb. 7.

Expect Some Withdrawals.

Last night was the deadline for withdrawing names whose owners do not wish them to appear on the primary ballots. Such withdrawals are not uncommon. Some are impelled by the weak candidates' realization of the futility of their fights. Others are dictated by party leaders, in the interest of party harmony or of driving a political bargain with the stronger candidates.

The rushes each year come on the first and last days of filing principally because of the scramble to achieve position at the top or bottom of the party listings on the ballots. Top position is considered most desirable, and bottom position next, because of the ease with which these spots can be found by the ordinary voter.

76 Candidates in Chicago Area.

In the 11 Chicagoland districts a total of 76 candidates filed for the 22 nonminations within the power of the electorate to bestow. Of these, 34, or slightly more than half, delayed until the final day.

Only one of the 76 is a woman. She is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, attorney, running for the G. O. P. nomination in the 8th district, which takes in parts of the near west and near northwest sides in Chicago.

Here is a brief list of the candidates filed for each of the six southwestern districts:

FIRST DISTRICT

This district includes the loop, all of the 1st ward, and parts of the 2d, 4th, and 11th wards.

On the Democratic side Former Ald. William L. Dawson [2d] is in top ballot position. Dawson was the Republican nominee from the district in the 1938 election, but lost to Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, incumbent since 1934, who is retiring because the Democratic organization turned thumbs down on his labor voting record in the national house.

Next appears the name of Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, who was sent to the city council in 1939 after a three cornered fight among himself, Dawson, and William E. King. Dickerson was victorious over King in the council runoff.

In the third and last spot is William S. McNamara, attorney, who ran for municipal judge in the 1938 primary. He is the only white man filed in the 1st district Democratic race, both Dawson and Dickerson being colored.

On the Republican side Former State Sen. William E. King heads the ballot list. The second name is that of Dr. Benjamin W. Mach, dentist, who ran a poor 10th in the 2d district primary two years ago. The tailender is Bindley C. Cyrus, 764 East Oakwood boulevard, a political unknown.

SECOND DISTRICT

This so-called "Hyde Park" district includes all the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 10th wards, and parts of the 3d, 4th, 9th, 17th, and 19th wards.

The first name on the Democratic list is that of Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], the Democratic organization's choice to succeed Congressman Raymond S. [Small Potatoes] McKeough, incumbent since 1934, who is the Cook county machine's candidate for the nomination for United States senator. It is followed by that of David X. Meyers, 5423 South Hyde Park boulevard.

Thomas J. Downs, 7726 South Shore drive, attorney who headed the Illinois Young Republican organization in 1936, tops the Republican list. Next comes the name of Frank O'Leath, 1624 East 56th street, insurance man, who ran eighth in his political debut in the congressional primary two years ago. Next in order come Edward J. Murphy, 1962 East 71st place, and Maurice Washer, 7626 South Colfax avenue.

THIRD DISTRICT

This district includes all the 16th and 18th wards, parts of the 3d, 9th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, and 19th, and the townships of Lemont, Palos, Worth, Orland, Bremen, Thornton, Rich, Bloom, and Calumet.

Joins Pilot Father on Air Line

Now that Betty Beindorf, stenographer, has joined her pilot father, Capt. Clarence R. Beindorf, as an employe of the United Air Lines they frequently have an opportunity to drive to and from their work together. The captain has been a pilot ever since Betty can remember. She says she hopes she can type as well as he flies.

Blazer of Air Trails Keeps Fit as Hobby

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

That the air lines have come of age was demonstrated when Betty Beindorf, 19, recently became a stenographer in the general headquarters of the transportation company for which her father, Capt. Clarence R. Beindorf, is a veteran pilot.

Betty has no memory of a time when her father was not piloting planes. Her brothers, Ray, 13, who is a student of technical magazines on flying, and Billy, 9, whose hobby is model airplanes, think of a world that was not air minded as belonging to the dim past.

Mrs. Beindorf remembers well enough when for more than a year her husband kept from her the knowledge that he had purchased his own plane and was using it to make trips thru the southwest as an adding machine salesman. Now the trips to and from New York City by the captain for the United Air Lines are routine. He wears the diamond 10 year service pin awarded by the company. He became a pioneer mail flyer in 1927, and with the United lines has flown 2 million miles.

Reflected in Home.

The Beindorf home at 199 Northwood road, Riverside, might be that of a successful professional or business man of the suburb who commutes on the "Q."

Interior of the home on the quiet, tree lined street gives hint of the family head's career. The twin floor lamps by the fireplace were made by the captain from airplane propellers. The andirons have been fashioned from connecting rods. The clock is set in a miniature propeller. There are paintings of planes amid the clouds. The touches are such as sea captains, reflecting the nature of their careers, adorned their homes thru past generations.

In the living room Mrs. Beindorf has permitted but one trophy belonging to the captain's main hobby—big game hunting. It is a wolfskin rug. But at the top of the stairs and in one of the upper rooms, there is plenty of proof of the captain's skill with a rifle. From the walls protrude the stuffed heads of moose and wolves and bears and other wild animals brought back from vacation trips to British Columbia.

Keeping Fit Is Habit.

It is one of the main requisites of the air lines that a captain keep physically fit. That means outdoor exercise and it entirely suits the captain who appears slender despite his 190 pounds. During his leisure days between trips in Riverside, he plays tennis with a vengeance, bowls with a local team in the Masonic league, and during these winter days skates with Betty on the Des Plaines river. Betty, herself, excels as a figure skater. To drop from the peak of physical condition means being "grounded" for the time being by the company, and no first class pilot needs to be prodded into keeping trim.

Home life means much to the captain, and his home with Mrs. Beindorf seeing to it, adjusts itself to his career. Each week he has all but two

BAND AT THORNTON HIGH TO GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT FRIDAY NIGHT

Lyle A. Hopkins.

The 13th annual concert of the Thornton Township High school band will be given at 8 o'clock Friday in the school auditorium at Harvey. Guest conductors will be William Lee, director of the Harvey grade school band, and Austin Edwards, formerly of the W-G-N Symphonic orchestra and Kryl's symphonic band. A 2:30 o'clock matinée will be given Friday for the high school students. The program will include Wagner's Rienzi overture and Dvorak's New World symphony. "God Bless America" will close the program. Lyle A. Hopkins will direct the concert.

PARK FACILITIES DRAW THRONG ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Indoor gymnasium facilities provided by the park district on the southwest side were used by 632,479 persons in 1941, a park district survey revealed. The southwest section led other areas in the city in outdoor gymnasium activity, a total of 436,956 persons using these facilities.

Thirteen parks provided these totals. They are:

Armour square, 3300 South Shields avenue; Cornell square, 51st and Wood streets; Davis square, 45th street and Marshfield avenue; Fuller, 45th street and Princeton avenue; Gage, 2415 West 55th street; Hamilton, 72d street and Normal boulevard; Hardin square, 26th and Wentworth avenue; Madden, 3800 Rhodes avenue; Mark White square, 2900 South Halsted street; Marquette, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue; McKinley, 2210 West Pershing road; Ogden, 6500 South Racine avenue; Sherman, 52d street and Racine avenue.

SIX SOUTHWEST SIDERS AID TWIN CONCLAVE PLANS

Three sets of southwest side twins have been named to the committee arranging the annual convention of the Zephyr Twin club, to be held July 4 and 5 in South Bend, Ind. They are Burnadette and Bernice Fitzgerald, 6826 South Laflin avenue; Merle and Beryl Jacobsen, 8241 South Bishop street, and Eleanor and Pearl Lindsay, 5628 South May street. The Chicago chapter of the club meets the second Tuesday of each month at the Morrison hotel.

Oxford Club Meets Today at Morgan Park Church

The Oxford club, a discussion and social group of southwest side young people, will convene at 4:30 o'clock today at Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive.

CIVIL LEADERS FOR SOUTHWEST AREA IDENTIFIED

Some Are Veterans of World War.

BY JEANNE M'CARTHY.

Civilian Defense Division 3, which encompasses the greater portion of the southwest side of Chicago, has been divided into 20 communities. Each of these is presided over by a community commander, on whose shoulders rests the burden of organization for preparedness against enemy attack.

Division 3 is bounded roughly by the drainage canal, western city limits, 65th and 87th streets, and Western avenue, State street, and Stewart avenue.

Several southwest side communities are in Division 2, which lies mostly south of Division 3. James Gately, owner of a Roseland department store and member of the Calumet Commercial club, is division chief.

Banker Heads Division.

Heading Division 3 is Frank C. Rathje, 1724 East 54th street. Fifty-seven years old, Rathje is a practicing attorney, president of the Chicago City and Mutual National banks, and a leader in community life. He is a past president of the Illinois Bankers' association. Fishing and hunting are his favorite hobbies. He is married, the father of four children.

Directly under him in the rôle of division director is Robert Bantz, director of Odgen park. The duties of division director have been described as comparable to those of an executive secretary. Bantz is 36 years old, married, and the father of two children.

The communities in the division and their commanders are as follows:

Clearing—Alfred Seltin, who was wounded twice during the World war, is commander. Two hundred and twelve blocks, extending roughly between 59th and 65th streets, Cicero and Harlem avenues, comprise his community. Mr. Seltin is 46 years old and a foreman at the Continental Can company.

Marine Corps Veteran.

During World War I. he was in the marine corps. He still carries a bullet in his lung as a reminder of the conflict. He was awarded the Order of the Purple Heart medal with a leaf for his bravery. He has served three years as president of Clearing American Legion post. Seltin is married and the father of two children.

Lake Town—Division 3's youngest commander is 26 year old John J. Kenny, 815 West 54th place. Kenny is a lawyer, in private practice. He is unmarried, and has resided thruout his life in Lake Town. In his district are 121 blocks.

Garfield-Damen, Town of Lake, Sherman Park—These three communities are grouped under the command of Frank Covert, 1542 West 47th street, assistant cashier at the Drovers National bank. Until the stockyards fire in 1934, when his home was destroyed, he lived in the immediate vicinity of the packing houses.

Former Kiwanis Head.

He has been affiliated with the bank for 25 years, is a past president of the Kiwanis club of Town of Lake, and treasurer of the Town of Lake Chamber of Commerce. He is 53 years old and married. His community contains 289 occupied blocks.

Gage Park—Jerry Pech, a 33 year old lawyer and owner of the Pech real estate firm, has been entrusted with the leadership of Gage Park civilians. He's married, resides at 2514 West 55th street, in the community in which he was born and reared. One hundred and ninety-one blocks, extending from Leavitt to Central, and from 49th to 59th streets, comprise his district.

Marquette Park—Seventy-two year old R. M. Jones, 2421 West 63d street, is the commander of this district. One hundred and forty-two blocks make up this area. Mr. Jones is active in the community as a member of the Marquette Lions club, the South West Business Men's association, and the Englewood YMCA. He is married.

World War Veteran.

Chicago Lawn—Fred H. Halvorson, a pioneer Chicago Lawn resident, is that community's commander. He's a World war veteran, a member of Glendale American Legion post. He served as president of the 63d and Kedzie Chamber of Commerce for one term, is chairman of the West Communities YMCA, and a director of the Chicago Real Estate board. He has resided in Chicago Lawn for 35 years. His area, bounded by 59th and 74th streets, California and Central Park, is composed of 144 blocks.

Ogden Hill—Frank McGarr, a coal dealer, heads the Ogden Hill civilian defense effort. He is 51 years old, a director and past president of the Ogden Hill Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Chicago Plan Commission, and past grand knight of Father Perez Council, Knights of Columbus. He is married and has two sons. His district covers 59th to 75th street, Racine to Leavitt avenues.

Fuller Park-Stock Yards—Michael J. Boyle, 4716 South Wells street, is the commander of that area reaching from 39th to 51st streets, the

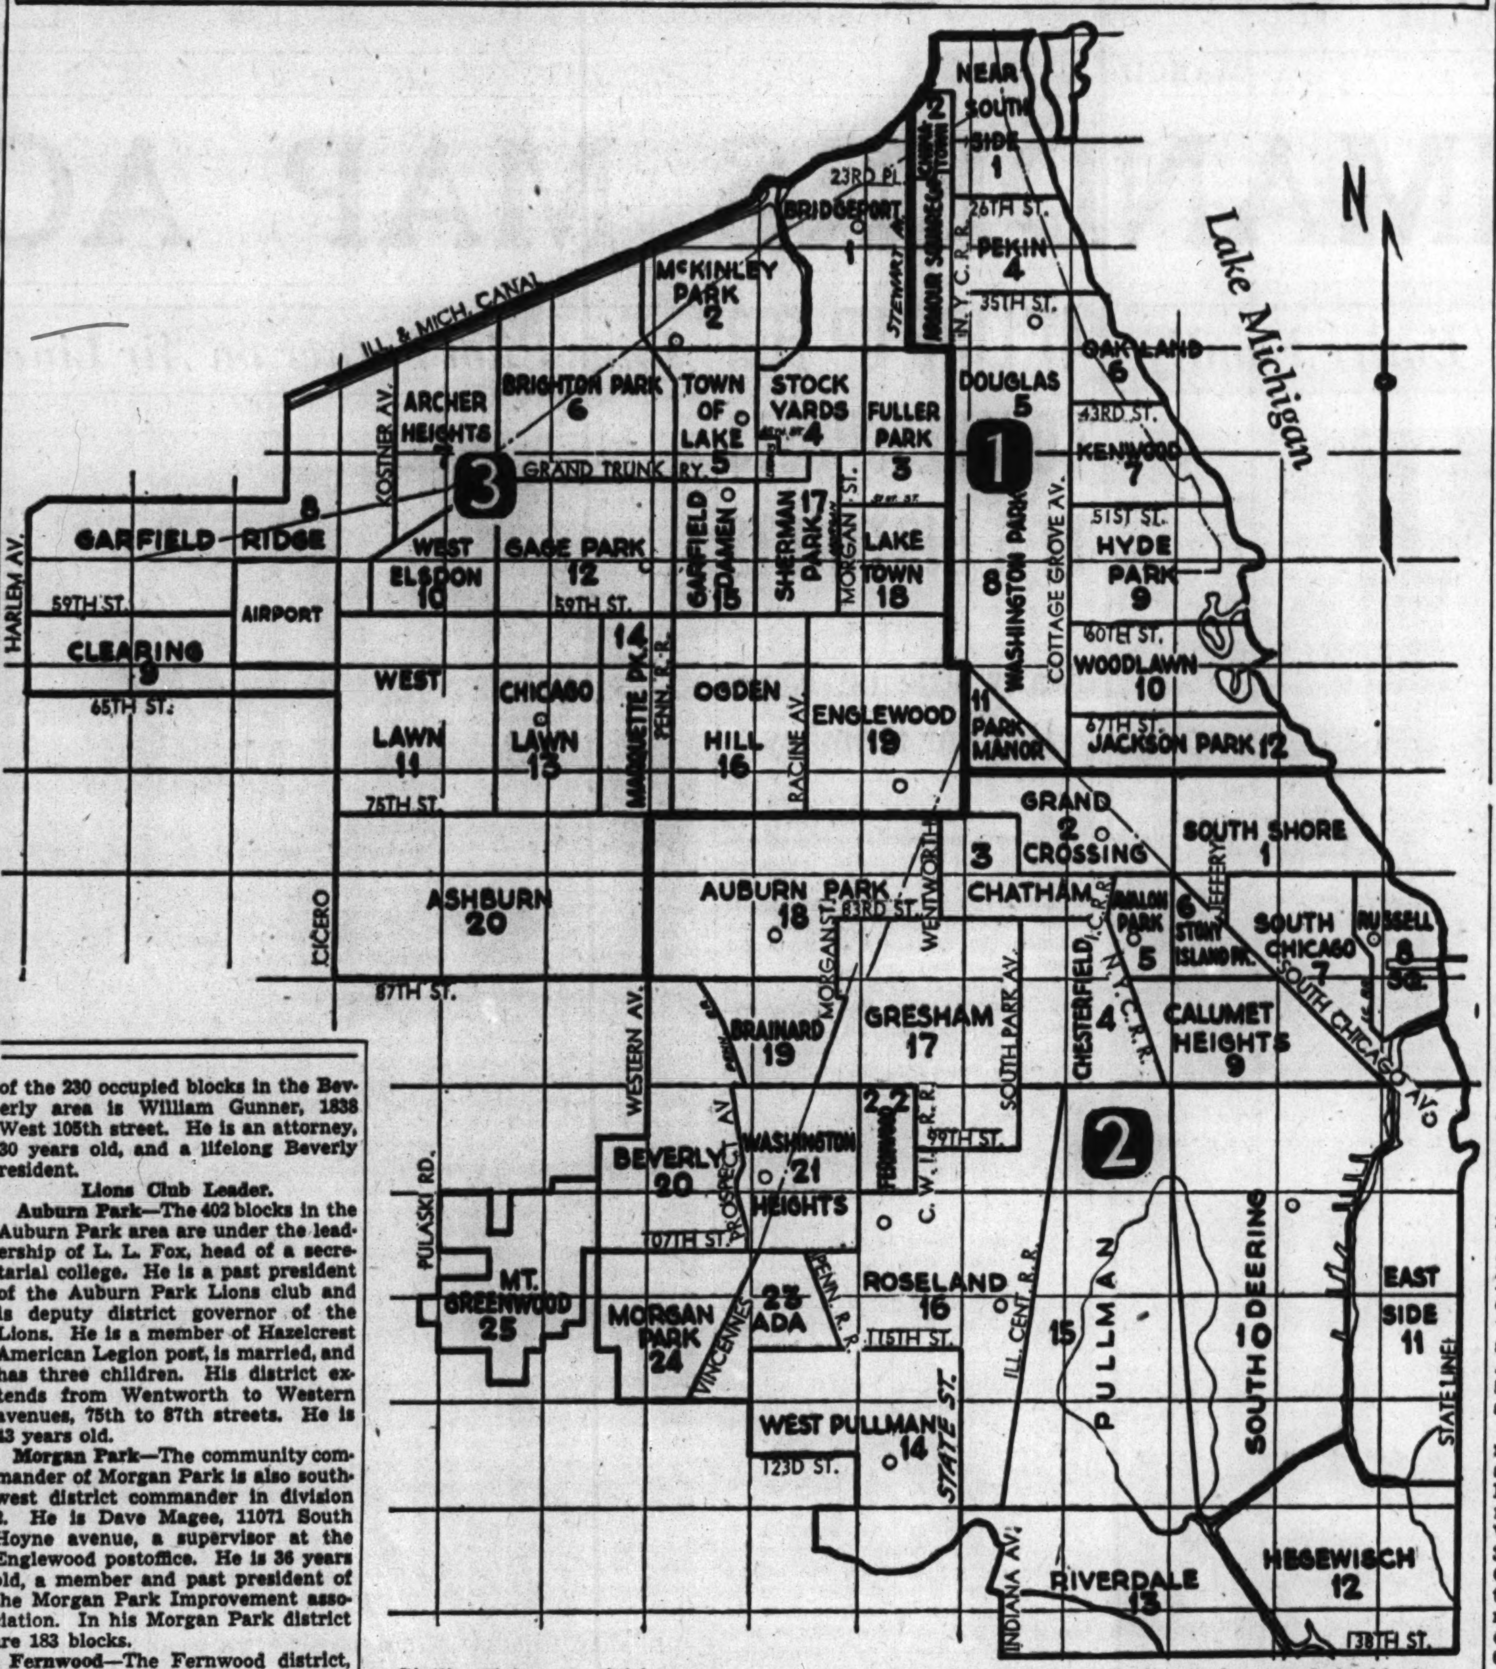
Designate Community Areas for Civilian Defense Purposes on South Side



Civilian defense activities on the south side are directed thru three divisions. Each division is divided into communities, each with a commander. Inside the communities are block captains and their wardens and assistants. Community commanders have been appointed thruout the area and most of the block captains have been elected. The organization plan places great responsibility on the community commander. Short biographies of the commanders appear in this issue.

Rock Island railroad tracks and Halsted street. Mr. Boyle, an attorney, is 30 years old, married, and the father of two children. He is an alumnus of De Paul university, and a member of the Chicago Plan commission.

Civic League Director.

Garfield Ridge—Civilian defense activities in Garfield Ridge are headed by Thomas Cody, 5542 South Natoma avenue, a clothing merchant. He is 35 years old, and has been a resident of Garfield Ridge for 16 years. He is former secretary of the West End Civic league, a director of the West End Savings and Loan Association, and a past president of the St. Joseph Holy Name society. Married, he is the father of two children.

Englewood—John L. Showel is community commander of Englewood, an area of 352 blocks, extending from 59th to 75th streets, State street to Racine avenue. He is vice president and general manager of the Southtown Economist, community newspaper. An alumnus of Notre Dame, he has been an Englewood resident for 15 years.

Archer Heights—To Frank Cygan, a United States mail carrier, has fallen the leadership of civilian defense activities in Archer Heights. Eighty-one blocks make up his area. He resides at 4804 South Hamlin avenue, with his wife and three children.

Real Estate Broker.

Ashburn—A real estate broker, Charles C. Cross, has been designated as commander of that area extending from 75th to 87th streets, Western avenue to Cicero avenues. He is 58 years old, and has been a resident of Ashburn since 1927.

Brighton Park—Two hundred and thirteen blocks comprise the area supervised by Walter J. Wolf, 4209 Archer avenue, community commander. Mr. Wolf, a furniture dealer, is a World War I. veteran, a member of William McKinley American Legion post, and the Brighton Park Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was born in Brighton Park 48 years ago. He is also a past president of the Kiwanis Club of Archer Road. His district extends from Western avenue to Central Park, the new drainage canal at 33d street to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at 49th street.

Draft Appeal Agent.

Bridgeport—John M. Falasz, an attorney, heads the civilian defense in Bridgeport. He has been a lifelong resident of the community, which numbers some 175 blocks, spreading from the south branch of the Chicago river to 39th street, and from Stewart to Ashland avenues. Mr. Falasz is president of the Bridgeport Lions club, a member of the executive council of the Southwest Boy Scouts, and government appeal agent for Draft Board 96. During the régime of Gov. Horner he was chief factory investigator in the state department of labor. He is married and makes his home with his wife and a son at 953 West 31st street.

West Lawn—Dr. Charles R. Solbrig, 3125 West 63d street, has been named community commander for West Lawn. His area stretches from Central Park to Cicero, 59th to 75th streets. The doctor is 35 years old and married.

West Elsdon—The civilian defense effort in West Elsdon is under the leadership of a 34 year old engraver, John Mazer, 5530 South Tripp avenue. Mr. Mazer is married, and the father of two children. There are 116 blocks in his division, which spans the area between 50th and 59th streets, South Central Park and Kostner.

On Hospital Staff.

McKinley Park — The McKinley Park area comprises 114 blocks, and is headed by Dr. Joseph E. F. Laibe, 3401 South Western avenue. Dr. Laibe, a physician and surgeon, is a member of the Mercy hospital staff. He has been a resident of the McKinley Park area since 1920. He is married and the father of one child.

The following southwest side communities are in division 2:

Pullman, West Pullman, Riverdale, Roseland—These adjacent communities have been entrusted to Leslie Beck, 10832 Forest avenue, who also is a director of the defense division. He was born in Pullman 40 years ago, and has made his home in that district since. He is a member of the Porcupine club, a business men's organization in Pullman, and Elks club, and has been secretary of the 9th ward Democratic organization for ten years.

In 1933, he was a candidate for alderman. He is a city employé, working as general secretary in the bureau of engineering. In his area, which extends from 95th street to the southern city limits, Ashland avenue to Lake Calumet, there are 896 blocks and a total of 125,000 residents.

Ward Superintendent Is Head.

Mount Greenwood—The defense of civilians in this community has been entrusted to Michael O'Malley, 10949 South Whipple street, ward superintendent in the 19th ward. He was born in Ireland 38 years ago, and has resided in the United States since 1923. He is married, the father of two children. One hundred and thirty-eight blocks are in his district. They run from 103d street to the city limits, Sacramento to Pulaski.

Brainerd—Frank Reynolds is the commander of the 130 blocks extending from 87th to 95th streets, Beverly to Vincennes avenues. Forty-seven years old, Reynolds has spent the last 18 years in Brainerd. He is a deputy clerk in the Superior court, is married, and the father of six children. He has been president for the last 12 years of the Brainerd Improvement association and is a trustee of the Ridge Civic council. He makes his home at 8731 South Throop street.

Beverly—Community commander of the 230 occupied blocks in the Beverly area is William Gunner, 1838 West 105th street. He is an attorney, 30 years old, and a lifelong Beverly resident.

41 FACE PRIMARY CONGRESS TEST IN SIX DISTRICTS

25 G.O.P., 16 Democrats on April 14 Ballot.

of Charles P. Kal, 6721 South Maplewood avenue. Third is the name of Eugene Thomas Horn, 6422 South Maplewood avenue, former Horner precinct captain, who ran also in 1940. In the tail spot is the name of Ray H. McCarthy, 6428 South Maplewood avenue.

Fred E. Busbey, 9144 South Hoyne, for many years an Americanism worker in the Illinois department of the American Legion, leads the G. O. P. list. Next is Arthur R. Ayers, 11118 Artesian avenue, teacher of architecture in Lindblom High school since 1922, a political newcomer. In last spot is the name of former Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, who has been practicing law since the Democratic landslide of 1936 dislodged him from the bench. Lyle ran for mayor in 1932.

FOURTH DISTRICT

The 4th includes all the 12th ward, and parts of the 2d, 3d, 11th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th wards.

Master in Chancery Martin Gorski of the Superior court heads the Democratic list as the city hall organization's man for the spot from which Congressman Harry P. Beam, incumbent since 1930, is retiring to run for Municipal judge in the Democratic primary. Beam's house voting record is said to have displeased Polish elements in his district. The other Democratic names in order are those of Leo F. Flynn, 518 Root street; John A. Shulmistras, 4016 Archer avenue, and Frank Wozniak, 5000 South Racine avenue, all rated as secondary candidates.

Five men little known in politics make up the Republican roster. They are, in order of their filing: Max F. Rynkar, 4240 South Washtenaw avenue; Arthur Joseph Rutshaw, 852 West 50th place; James A. McGrath, 3612 South Union avenue; Edward A. Chill, 2831 West 23d street, and Walter Skalecki, 4213 South Albany avenue. All but Rynkar were in a last day scramble for last place on the G. O. P. ballot.

SIXTH DISTRICT

This, the west suburban district, dips down into the southwest side. It includes all the 23d and 29th wards, parts of the 13th, 22d, 24th, 25th, 27th, 28th, 30th, and 37th wards, and the townships of Cicero, Proviso, Riverside, Stickney, Lyons, Oak Park, and Berwyn.

The Democratic side has two entrants. One is former Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien, who is retiring as sheriff. He served three terms, starting in 1932, and then was succeeded by S. F. Maciejewski of Cicero, who is now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the sanitary district board. The second candidate is James Novotny, 2626 South 59th avenue, Cicero.

Eight candidates have filed on the Republican side. The top of the list is occupied by the name of Ralph C. Wilson, 126 West Burlingame avenue, La Grange; who withdrew from the 1940 primary. Next in order are M. J. Williams, Willow Springs; Daniel J. Mulvihill Jr., 4547 Maypole avenue, an accountant; George H. Brockmeier, 305 Forest avenue, Oak Park; James Carroll, 4143 West End avenue; Ernest R. Loewy, 1508 Harrison street; Charles J. Anderson Jr., 1816 Monroe street, and Raymond E. Trafelet, 6839 West 21st street, Berwyn.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

The 11th is made up of the counties of Du Page, Kane, Will, and McHenry, which hem the first 10 districts against Lake Michigan from the Indiana state line to Wisconsin.

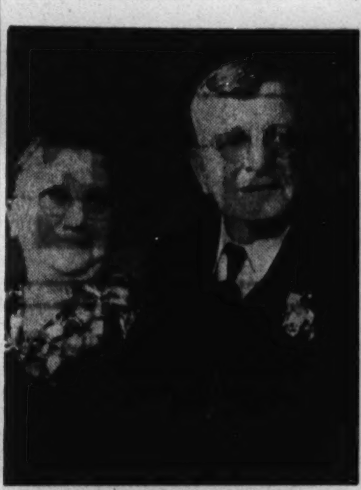
Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, also in Du Page county, incumbent since 1934, has only one challenger in the Republican primary. He is Thomas M. Jennings, 80th avenue and Woodvale road, Frankfort [in Will county], former carpenter, now a shipping department employé in a Whiting chemical plant.

Wed 50 Years



The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartzel, 13003 South Seeley avenue, Blue Island, was marked recently by an open house at their home. Mr. Hartzel retired 12 years ago from the Illinois Central railroad after 34 years of service. He served as 3d ward alderman in Blue Island from 1917 until 1921. The anniversary also marked the 68th birthday of Mrs. Hartzel. Three children, George Hartzel, Mrs. Alice Buckwalter, and Mrs. Anna Werner of Blue Island, comprise their family.

TWO SOUTHWEST SIDE STUDENTS JOIN SOCIETIES

Two southwest side college students recently were initiated into fraternal organizations. Miss Michelle De Crespigny, daughter of Mrs. Lilette De Crespigny, 10603 South Seeley avenue, was initiated into Mu Gamma chapter of Chi Omega at Culver-Stockton college, Canton, Mo. Kenneth Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, 5417 South Spaulding avenue, was initiated into Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific fraternity, at Syracuse university. He is a graduate student majoring in physics.

Officers Are Named by Mercy Hospital Auxiliary

Mercy hospital auxiliary recently elected a slate of officers for a one year term. Mrs. Joseph E. Kaspar, 128 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park, was named president. Mrs. William F. Madigan, 8052 Hermitage avenue, was elected vice president; Mrs. Daniel J. Healy, 1221 Catalpa avenue, secretary, and Mrs. J. E. Kelley, 4722 South Greenwood avenue, treasurer.

TOWN OF SCOTIA RISES AS WILSON FAMILY HOBBY

Scotia experienced its first blackout last night. It was a trial and it was a success, according to Mayor Adam Wilson. The railroad whistle on the Dairy Belt train doubled as an air raid siren. The removal of a plug from an electric light socket in the Wilson home at 7653 South Hermitage avenue, plunged the town into darkness.

Scotia, a town in miniature, occupies the eastern portion of the Wilsons' living room. It stands on a plywood base, 15 feet long and 4 feet wide, supported by several sturdy wooden legs.

It's Family Project.

With a few creative transgressions, it is a replica of Mrs. Wilson's childhood home, Scotia, in central Nebraska. When the creation of a town got under way, she suggested Scotia. Scotia is a family project. It's as much an interest to Mr. Wilson and his wife as it is to 11 year old Ronald, and 10 year old Marion. All work together on it, consider improvements and changes, and vote on them.

Mr. Wilson really inaugurated the project 10 years ago, with the purchase of a tiny, plaintive looking toy lamb. They had the lamb and no place to put it, so Scotia was evolved. At first they called it Hollywood, but recently the Wilson council voted the change.

It's an elaborate place now, completely encircled by railroad tracks that were built by Mr. Wilson and scaled ¼ inch to the foot. The tracks are double and altogether there are about 85 feet of them. They plunge thru a tunnel at the north end of Scotia, cross a ravine, which divides the town in two, and stop at an elaborate depot, equipped with a loading platform, porters, and passengers.

Fire Station and Dairy.

The town has streets and sidewalks. There are telegraph poles, illuminated houses, a school, a church, a fire house. In the fire house are a fire engine and a hook and ladder. Another engine is parked in front of the fire barn, ready for any emergency. On the north side of the ravine is a farm, a dairy farm. There's also a dairy with skylights, several milk trucks on the street, and numerous milkmen starting on their deliveries. This preponderance of dairy equipment and personnel is largely Ronald's doing. He wants to be a dairy farmer when he grows up. Meantime he and his sister attend the Clara Barton elementary school.

Scotia is politically independent, altho a WPA road gang stands immobile on a street at the far north end. There's a small park next to the train depot, and vagrants and the town's first citizens share the green benches.

Green-dyed sawdust is the grass. The tree trunks are entwined wires, covered with wood fill. Dyed baby's breath provides the foliage. Billboards stand at the outskirts of the city. These are mounted match covers.

Scenery of Nebraska.

The bridge over the ravine is under surveillance by military men with guns, because Scotia is alert to the threat of sabotage.

A back drop has been painted by Mrs. Wilson, a former art instructor in public schools here and in Nebraska. It is a sketch of the hills and valleys and the North loop river which shadow the real Scotia.

The Wilsons plan to continue with their project. Next year they'd like to have moving automobiles on the streets and get a new engine for the train.

MRS. MARK BATES HEADS STAFF FOR DEFENSE SAVINGS

To Organize Campaign in 25 Towns.

Mrs. Mark C. Bates.

Mrs. Mark C. Bates of Flossmoor recently was named woman's chairman of Cook county towns, south, of the defense savings staff. This unit works directly under the treasury department. Her district is comprised of 25 Cook county towns. They are Blue Island, Harvey, Chicago Heights, Calumet City, Burnham, Lansing, Markham, Riverdale, Dalton, Dixmoor, Thornton, Matteson, Richton Park, Flossmoor, Homewood, Palos Park, Orland Park, Hazelcrest, Midlothian, Crestwood, Tinley Park, Olympia Fields, Ivanhoe, Glenwood, and Steger

Mrs. Bates' first activity will be appointment of chairmen in each of these towns. These, in turn, will provide for the setting up of defense savings booths in public places and organize business houses employing less than 25 persons for regular pay roll savings. The organization will provide, eventually, for a house to house campaign to sell bonds. Mrs. Bates' appointment is for the duration.

No quotas have been set, nor deadlines named. The organization, under present plans, will function thruout the war. She expects to name her committees within the next two weeks. Similar appointments have been made in north and western Cook county towns, where the naming of town chairmen also is under way.

The defense savings staff is working in close coöperation with religious groups, clubs, PTA organizations, Legion auxiliaries, and other state and national units.

Mrs. Bates, a graduate of the University of Chicago, is the mother of four children. Her husband was one of Flossmoor's earliest settlers. He, too, is a University of Chicago alumnus.

Betrothal Told

The betrothal of Miss Dorothy B. Duboise to Raymond A. Blouin was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Duboise, 2217 119th place, Blue Island. Mr. Blouin is the son of W. P. Blouin, 12221 Artesian avenue, Blue Island.

Rev. C. C. Cox Announces Topic for Sermon Today

"Gnats vs. Camels; Motes vs. Beams" will be the subject of the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor, when he addresses the 11 o'clock service today at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. The Negro Umbrian Glee club will sing at the 8 o'clock service tonight.

breakfasts at home and they and other meals are prepared with the proper vitamins in mind. The captain takes two breakfasts a week in New York after a flight during which from an elevation of 5,000 feet and upwards he is able to view, in fair weather, the landscape below for a 50 mile radius. His co-pilot is another west suburbanite, Howard Mayes of Berwyn.

"Of course it becomes routine," the captain agreed, "but it's always interesting. There are the changes of weather and of seasons. It means meeting many famous passengers at close range."

Betty Sees Departures.

From an office window at the airport, Betty can see her father start on his trips to New York, but he is too absorbed in his duties at the moment to wave her a "good-by." It would be possible for Mrs. Beindorf to keep track of her husband's homeward flights by radio, but this she seldom does.

"Sometimes," said Mrs. Beindorf, "when he pops in at the door he wants to talk shop and sometimes he wants to be quiet for awhile. I was glad Betty could follow him in the business. It was what she wanted to do."

The captain spoke of changes that had come in air transportation since the pioneer days of the 1920's—days of a pilot, a plane, a mechanic, and a hope as compared with a business of 900 employés in Chicago and 3,500 on the system, including 450 pilots and 225 stewardesses.

So far as Capt. Beindorf is concerned it is as if the air lines had developed to give him just the niche for which he was best suited. First, there were 14 years on a farm near Litchfield, Ill., for which he is grateful. On coming to Chicago he had thought for a time of railroading. Then he went to Oklahoma as a salesman, and there he married.

Sold Plane to Post.

"I didn't confess to my wife at first I had bought a plane," the captain recalls, "but when she had taken her first flight with me she was sold on the idea, too. I sold that plane to Wiley Post and it became his first plane. Its top speed was 72 miles an hour, below our starting speed of today. And that was only 20 years ago."

Incidentally, the coast to coast line over which Capt. Beindorf flies was 21 years old last year.

Ray, whose father didn't see him until six days after he was born due to flying schedules, keeps his father posted on new types of planes. He likes to join in wood chopping exercise with the captain and practice with him in the basement rifle range.

Has Dad as Pattern.

Billy has outgrown his play pilot uniform, but he has lost none of the thrill of being a flyer's son and his friends on the school ground have been told by him that he intends to follow his father's trail.

A pilot can't work more than 85 hours a month. So the captain is home a good deal, and Mrs. Beindorf's ambition is to make him a good home.

Mary Egan a Bride

Prior to her recent marriage Mrs. James Allison was Miss Mary Egan, daughter of Fire Chief and Mrs. Francis P. Egan, 1201 West 97th place. Her bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ellen Allison, 4847 South Wells street. They were married in St. Margaret's church. Her father is chief of the 10th battalion.

Members of the Theater of the Air club chapters from Chicagoland and other points as far east as Brooklyn and as far south as Austin, Tex., will be guests of W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday for a special Marion Claire night honoring the soprano prima donna of the operetta broadcasts. The program will be aired on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual.

A feature of the broadcast will be the announcement of the winners in the $1,000 Marion Claire contest to select "which song from which operetta you best like to hear Marion Claire sing."

Miss Claire will read the names of the winners and will sing the operetta selection chosen by the winning contestant.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Judges reviewed thousands of entries received from 27 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the Marion Claire contest. During the program Miss Claire will sing her favorite operetta selection as well as that chosen by the radio audience as its favorite.

The Theater of the Air club lists more than 300 chapters from coast to coast with a membership of 7,156. The chapter members meet every Saturday night to listen to the operetta broadcasts on W-G-N and Mutual and many of the chapters have become active forces for the "best in music" in their communities.

Singing with Miss Claire in the broadcast will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of many of the operetta programs, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire will extend a personal welcome to the club members who will be guests at the broadcast.

W-G-N LISTENER PROVIDES CHURCH BELL FOR AFRICA

A church bell that for years called to worship the people of Hamilton, Mo., is now on the high seas, traveling the long road to Rhodesia, Africa, because of an appeal made on W-G-N-Mutual's public service program, "This Is Life." Each "This Is Life" broadcast describes the cases of deserving people who need the listeners' assistance.

A short time ago "This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and Mutual Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 11:15 a. m., broadcast a letter from William B. West, an engineer who had just returned from a church construction project in Rhodesia, Africa. The church was almost completed, wrote Mr. West, but lacked a bell. Nowhere in that dark African region could one be located, and the mission had no money to import one from the outside. So, because he had heard what "This Is Life" listeners had done to find needed articles, West appealed to them.

Many offers were received, but the majority of them—for bells that were too large—had to be rejected. Finally Mrs. Oscar Axton of Hamilton, Mo., offered one that was just the right size. Her offer was accepted. Soon Rhodesians may be hearing a bell that once pealed in the heart of the United States.

Melody Matinee to Offer Favorite American Songs

A new program titled "Melody Matinée," based on the theory that radio holds no finer enjoyment than lovely melodies smoothly played, will be heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 12:30 to 1 p. m. The program is devoted to favorite American songs, arranged and presented by outstanding conductors and singers. Today's program will include selections from "New Moon," "Carioca," Jerome Kern's beautiful "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Among My Souvenirs," "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Recent Bride

Miss Rita Eunice Galvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Galvin, 5710 South Halsted street, recently became the bride of Raymond Martin Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Walsh, 5410 Princeton avenue. The ceremony was solemnized at Visitation church.

SHADOW ROUNDS OUT 12 YEARS AS A THRILLER

Just 12 years ago this week "The Shadow" radio series was launched. For many years it has been an established feature over the Mutual network [currently 4:30 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N]. It has been a trail blazer for all the radio "Ellery Queens," "Sherlock Holmes," "Thin Mans," and other thrillers and whoduits.

In the beginning the Shadow [who enjoys the highest listening audience of any day time radio show according to recent surveys] was a shocker. The Shadow was more or less a villain in the days when Frank Readick played the part. The character began improving during the tenure of the spectacular Orson Welles. In recent years, with Bill Johnstone in the title rôle and Marjorie Anderson as his girl friend, Margot Lane, the Shadow has become a hero.

While he still his his eerie laugh, with the aid of a filter microphone, the Shadow doesn't fly thru space, hypnotize characters, and, in general, behave like Superman.

The only edge he has on the other performers is that he can become invisible—the program writers had to do that to give the dramas the kind of zing and suspense they require.

The kids didn't care very much about the enormity of "The Shadow's" early crimes. Bombing of Grand Central station, gassing New York or 'Frisco—they took 'em in stride.

Current "Shadow" episodes don't go that far. But they're gaudy enough—recent scrips had a villain killed by the kiss of a jackdaw with a cyanide tipped beak, a great dane devouring a killer midget, a gorilla cracking his master's skull.

SHERIFF'S RACE HOLDS INTEREST IN WILL COUNTY

11 in Contest; Six Other Offices to Be Filled.

Twenty-four Will county residents have announced themselves as candidates for seven county offices. The primary election will be held Tuesday, April 14, when nearly 40,000 voters are expected to go to the polls. Republicans now hold all the offices. The county offices of judge, clerk, probate judge, probate clerk, treasurer, sheriff, and superintendent of schools are to be filled this year.

Greatest interest is centered in the contest for sheriff. Eight Republicans are vieing for the nomination, with three Democrats in the race. The sheriff and treasurer are prohibited by law from succeeding themselves.

Former Sheriff's Son in Race.

On the Republican side, Ralph Newkirk of Joliet heads the list of hopefuls. His father, Jim Newkirk, was sheriff of Will county some 20 years ago. Others seeking the post are Roy H. Hendricksen of Joliet, former assistant county supervisor; Henry Lauterbach of Troy township, director of the county farm; Fred G. Reim of Plainfield, a former deputy sheriff; Merton Shepley of Joliet, former supervisor of streets; John M. Jenco of Joliet, former state representative and deputy sheriff; Edgar H. Johnson of Joliet, a justice of the peace. The political newcomer in the race is Ralph E. Hietschold, a Troy farmer.

The Democratic aspirants for sheriff are Former County Clerk Henry Koerner of Manhattan, Former State Police Sergt. Reuben H. Cardwell of Joliet, and Conrad J. Wirth of Joliet, former county treasurer.

Judge Wants Another Term.

Glen L. Cowing of Joliet, a Republican, is out to succeed himself as county judge. Sidney E. Baskin of Joliet, seeks the Democratic nomination.

Two Republicans are seeking the nomination for county clerk. They are the incumbent, Joseph H. Hartley of Joliet, and Lee Morris of Joliet, former Will county assessor. The Democratic aspirant for this office is Harvey L. Watkins of Joliet, a former supervisor.

Donald C. Lang of Joliet, Republican holder of the post of probate clerk, is out to succeed himself. George C. Sangmeister, mayor of Frankfort, is the Democratic candidate for the job.

Two in G. O. P. Race for Treasurer.

The county treasurer's post is being sought by Republicans Ivan Rhodes of Plainfield, chief deputy county clerk, and J. Stanley Simpson of Joliet, director of state relief in Will county, and a bulwark in the local musicians' union. The Democrats' hope is Martin B. Schuster of Joliet, a member of a Joliet draft board.

Republican Fred R. Adams, who has held the post of probate judge off and on for several terms, is a candidate to succeed himself. Democratic opposition is being given by Attorney J. Harold Downey of Joliet, several times candidate for state's attorney.

Louis F. Bottino of Joliet, a Republican, is unopposed in his candidacy for reëlection as superintendent of schools.

FORT DEARBORN MASSACRE SPOT NOTED BY PLAQUE

A metal plaque marking the location of the Fort Dearborn massacre was bolted recently to the south side of the Railway Express building, 18th street and Calumet avenue. Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, 82 years old, a member of the Chicago Historical society, and Express company's officials were among those at the dedication.

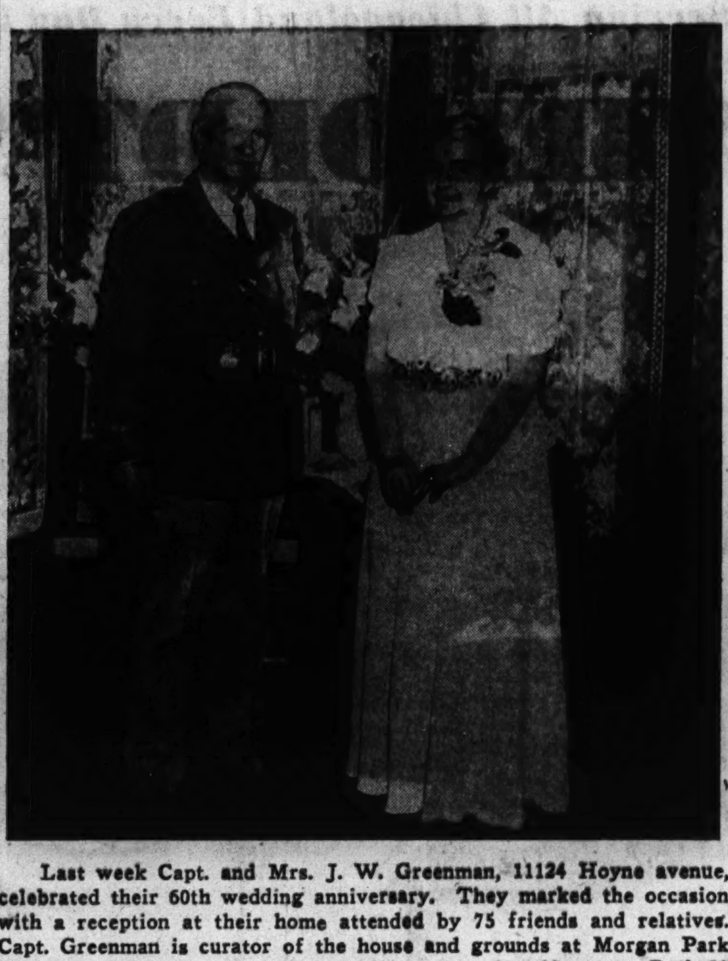
Mrs. Gregory, who has resided at 1638 Prairie avenue since 1867, reports that 18th street was originally the trail taken by the soldiers toward Fort Dearborn. They were surrounded by Indians, she said, as they turned on what is now Calumet avenue. The original tablet marking the site was stolen.

Others present at the dedication were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, 1500 North Lake Shore drive; Mrs. Phillip Miller, 5757 Kimbark avenue; Miss Dorothy Sterling of Winnetka, and Herma Clark of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

St. Bernard's Hospital Unit to Give Luncheon March 10

St. Bernard's Hospital auxiliary will sponsor a card party and luncheon Tuesday, March 10, at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. James McNamara, 7552 South Carpenter street, is chairman. Assisting her are Mrs. Mayme O'Grady, 7333 South Lafayette avenue; Mrs. Catherine LaRue, 4146 South Wells street; Mrs. M. J. Treanor, 8339 South Sangamon street; Mrs. Raymond Flynn, 411 West 61st street.

Morgan Park Golden Wedding



Last week Capt. and Mrs. J. W. Greenman, 11124 Hoyne avenue, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. They marked the occasion with a reception at their home attended by 75 friends and relatives. Capt. Greenman is curator of the house and grounds at Morgan Park Military academy, a post he has held for more than 10 years. Both 80 years old, they are Morgan Park residents of 37 years' standing.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 2.

It soon will be spring and gardening will begin with a rush. Prune currants and gooseberry bushes now. All that is necessary is to cut away the oldest wood. Prune grapes as soon as possible before the sap begins to flow or before bleeding begins. leeding can be stopped by painting the cut ends with shellac.

When the ground is warm and any perennials or strawberry plants are heaved from the ground, firm the soil around them, pressing them into place. Pear trees, lilacs, and the flowering quince should be sprayed for scale. Destroy all insect cocoons.

Tuesday, March 3.

Home gardeners should plant some fruits, especially a few currants and gooseberries. A grapevine or two used as a screen is always profitable and beautiful. An apple, plum, peach, cherry, or pear tree is excellent for a background, or along the back fence. Plum trees are fine for the chicken yard.

Wednesday, March 4.

Do not remove all mulching material at the first thaw, for much injury is caused by late frosts. The lawn will soon need attention; a dressing of sifted, rich soil thinly spread over it will add materials to the turf that are greatly beneficial.

Most lawns need a good application of plant food and the best to use is a complete, commercial balanced food applied at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Established lawns that have bare places should be renovated by lightly spading up the areas, carefully raking until a fine seedbed is formed and grass seed sown.

Thursday, March 5.

If the ground has previously been in use a spading fork may be used instead of a common spade. A file is useful to keep tools sharpened. New tools should never become rusty. Wash off all soil that adheres every time a tool is used, and wipe with oil—old cylinder oil is excellent.

Friday, March 6.

The old garage usually can be improved by a covering of an annual vine, such as the moonvine, which flowers at night, morning glories, and the variegated hop. Some vegetables can be sown this month, such as tomatoes and early cabbage.

Sow thinly in boxes and after the seed has started keep in full light or sun, but watch the watering. If a coldframe is at hand use it a little later on for hardening off preparatory to transplanting them to the garden.

Saturday, March 7.

Beans should not be sown until all danger from frost has passed. Onion sets, lettuce, and radishes may be sown quite early. Some annuals are best sown indoors, for they require a considerable time to develop. Some annuals will do fairly well in poor soil, such as the California poppy, calliopsis, corn poppy, feather cockscomb, four o'clock, petunia, sweet alyssum, spiderflower [cleome], nasturtium, gaillardia, and balsam.

STOCK TO LEAD ORCHESTRA IN F-M PREMIER

New Carpenter Song on W59C Wednesday.

Margery Lindquist.
[Carmen-Winger.]

The first Frequency Modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented by W59C, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. Wednesday. The Mutual network will broadcast the concert, conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock in Chicago's Orchestra hall, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

A 240 voice choir from the public schools, observing the centenary of vocal training in the Chicago schools, will be featured during the broadcast. The concert will open with the choir and orchestra presenting "The Star Spangled Banner" under the direction of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

A highlight of the concert will be the world première of "March and Song to Freedom," by John Alden Carpenter, noted Chicago composer. Mr. Carpenter wrote this composition in celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the school system. The choir will sing during the première presentation of this work.

Soloist on the program, one of the regular children's concerts by the Chicago Symphony, will be Margery Lindquist, young soprano of Oak Park. Miss Lindquist will sing the Recitative and Polonaise from "Mignon" by Thomas.

The program also will include: the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini; opus 67 of the Andante con moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony; "The American Patrol" by Meachem; the "Marche Slav," opus 31, by Tschaikowsky, and Sousa's stirring march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

St. Kilian's Altar Society Meets Tuesday Evening

The monthly meeting of St. Kilian's Altar and Rosary society will be held Tuesday evening in the parish hall, 87th and Aberdeen streets. Mrs. Louis Cella, 861 West 86th place, will be chairman of the evening. Mrs. Albert Stapleton, 8923 South Emerald avenue, is president of the society.

Mercy High Dads' Club to See Baseball Movie

"The Ninth Inning," a new movie made by the American league, will be shown at the meeting of the Mercy High School Dads' club Tuesday evening in the school hall at 81st street and Prairie avenue. Bob Elson of station W-G-N will be the narrator.

MAC LEISH TO DISCUSS PROPAGANDA ON RADIO ROUND TABLE TODAY

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, will discuss "Propaganda—Good and Bad" on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

MacLeish, whose office approves the release of information on the war program, will participate in the round table discussion with Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the library of congress, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of the humanities at the University of Chicago.

The speakers will discuss the need for honesty in propaganda and measure the effects of present propaganda procedures in the United States upon morale at home and abroad.

NEW AUTOS ARE GRANTED 45 ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Issue 450 Permits in City in First Week.

Permits for new automobiles went to 45 individuals and companies on the southwest side during the week of Feb. 16 to 20—the first week of rationing of 1942 passenger cars in Chicago.

During that period the eight rationing boards in Chicago, which also have jurisdiction over tire and tube purchases, received 1,174 inquiries concerning new car deliveries. Nearly 900 made application to receive cars. Some were withdrawn, others are pending, and still others were rejected, with the net result that certificates were issued for 450 cars.

Here is the key to the abbreviations of car makes used in the list: Bu., Buick; Cad., Cadillac; Ch., Chevrolet; Chr., Chrysler; Do., Dodge; Fo., Ford; Hu., Hudson; Li., Lincoln; Me., Mercury; Na., Nash; Ol., Oldsmobile; Pac., Packard; Pl., Plymouth; Po., Pontiac; Stu., Studebaker.

Following are the boards which issued the certificates, the southwest siders who received the permits, and the make of car:

65 GET 160 TIRES

Sixty-five individuals and companies on the southwest side were rationed a total of 160 automobile tires and 126 tubes during the week of Feb. 16-20, it was reported by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator. Of these totals, truck owners were given 116 tires and 126 tubes.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago issued 299 certificates, compared with 192 for the previous week. It was the largest number issued since tire rationing was begun on Jan. 5.

Chicago's quota for February was 1,596 passenger tires and 2,654 truck tires. Up to Feb. 20 the boards had issued certificates for only 19.93 per cent of the passenger tire quota and 47.17 per cent of the truck tire quota.

Individuals and companies on the southwest side who received certificates for tire and tube purchases during the third week of February are:

RUTH SLATER IS GUEST ON 'MUSIC THAT ENDURES'

Ruth Slater, contralto star of opera and the concert stage who is regularly heard on FM station W59C each Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be guest soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's "Music That Endures" program, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be featured with Miss Slater.

Miss Slater will sing "Dedication" by Franz and "Come to the Fair" by Martin. She will also appear with the chorus in Schubert's hymn, "Omnipotence."

The orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber will play the finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and "The Angelus" from Hadley's Third Symphony. They will join the augmented chorus in the presentation of "God's Country," hit tune from the musical comedy, "Babes in Arms."

W-G-N SERVICES TO COME FROM S. SIDE CHURCH

The Chicagoland Church hour, heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 9 to 10 a. m. thruout March, will broadcast from the Monumental Baptist church at 729 Oakwood boulevard. The Rev. James L. Horace has arranged for a number of guest preachers.

Today the Rev. A. Wayman Ward of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church will be heard. The following Sunday will see the Rev. Mr. Horace in the pulpit. The Rev. W. A. Johnson is scheduled for March 15. He is pastor of the Greater St. John Baptist church, at 4821 South Michigan avenue. The Rev. Dr. Harold Roupp of Central church in Orchestra hall will be heard on March 22.

ATTIC, ONCE IDLE, BECOMES HANDY SPACE IN HOME

Playrooms or Storage Easily Provided.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Attics these days are coming to the fore as more space is needed in hosts of families the country over. Perhaps there are defense workers in town who could use living quarters converted from storage hideaways for trunks and portraits, walnut dressers and iron bedsteads. Or perhaps the boys of the family would take it over gleefully and hang a sign on the stair door: "For boys only—grownups and girls please stay out."

The spirit of 1900 won't sit prim and stiffnecked in so many attics this year. The spirit of 1942 is determined to make the best of what we have—and keep it fit and working for use as far as possible.

Bathroom in Corner.

One very interesting attic modernization converted the attic into the children's domain. Tucked in one corner is the children's bathroom, with a low cast-iron enameled tub and small lavatory that matches in color and design. This lavatory is wall hung, with shelf back and low, too, so there's no straining on tip toe for the children to reach it. At the end of the tub is a dual purpose little cabinet, with drawers for towel storage and a handy ledge on the top for the youngsters' treasured trinkets. A water saving shower head is over the tub.

On the floor there's a serviceable dark blue mottled linoleum with a red and white band and an anachronistic white centaur to harmonize with blue and cream walls and ceiling.

Drawers for Storage.

A bathroom is only one of the attic conveniences you may have. Sloping eaves and short walls are no discouragement to the modern attic modernizer. Under those eaves can be shelves and drawers galore and built-in seats and bunks and doors to conceal trains and carts and blocks and footballs and space for seasonal decorations the whole year round.

In planning an attic room or rooms for the children, wall board samples should be carefully checked. There is a wide choice on the market in varying thicknesses and costs. There are wallboards with insulating qualities and also those which require no papering or painting or finishing of any sort. This type of board has definite advantages since later on, if a change of treatment is desired, it can always be refinished with paper or paint.

Plywood or Paper.

In almost every attic there are opportunities for walling off ends or corners for large closets and to provide a cedar closet of real worth.

If accessories are to be in the nautical vein the side walls of the stairway can be papered with a heavily waxed paper in the imitation of pine boards. Or they can be covered with plywood. Real ship's rope at least two inches thick can be run thru large rings fastened to the stair walls. It isn't hard to tie both ends with shipshape knots. As stairs to an attic are often steep this is a measure of safety as well as decoration.

A ship's lantern can hang at the top of the stairs, its light controled from the foot of the stairs as well as the top.

May Be Playroom.

Desks and bunks and even chests of drawers can be built in. And such a room, if desired, can serve more than one purpose. It can serve as a playroom for the children, but not as their bedroom. In the evening it can be used by the adult family members.

If the attic is not overly light, and the budget is too limited to spend money for new and larger windows, the general lightness of the space can be aided by wise use of light contributing paint. Overhead a very light yellow can be used to give a sunshiny effect to the room. Then woodwork can be painted a slightly darker yellow, while walls, doors, and frames can be coated with a soft shade of cream.

EDITOR OF CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE SPEAKS AT SUNDAY CLUB TONIGHT

Dr. Roy L. Smith.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate magazine, will speak at the 8 o'clock meeting of Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight on the subject, "Carrying Bones to Canaan." John L. W. J. GRANATA SEEKS ADDUCI SEAT

Daughter Joins Pilot Father in Working with the Air Lines

"Home is the sailor, home from the sea" now has its paraphrase in "Home is the pilot, home from the skies." Rest days mean happy hours for the family of Capt. Clarence R. Beindorf, 199 Northwood road, Riverside. His daughter, Betty, at his right, recently became a stenographer for the air lines where he is a veteran flyer. Billy is a model plane enthusiast, while Ray, leaning against the mantle, is a student of the constant developments taking place in aviation. Mrs. Beindorf's hobby is working needlepoint.

When daughter grows up to work for the same air lines as her father, and his role as pilot is the only one of which she has any memory, it means that air transportation really has come of age. Occasionally Betty has the pleasure of motoring home with her father from the airport. The pair enjoy skating together on the Des Plaines river, a sport at which Betty excels.

It is one of the main requirements of an air pilot that he keep physically fit, and Mrs. Beindorf prepares breakfast with vitamins in mind when the captain is home. Tomorrow dad will have his breakfast in New York and the family makes the most of each shared meal.

Big game hunting is Capt. Beindorf's hobby and the Riverside home contains many trophies brought back from vacation trips to British Columbia. There is nothing like roughing it and plodding thru the mountains for giving a man hard muscles, he contends.

[TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

Ray is the Boy Scout and also the bookworm of the family. He is deeply interested in the technical phase of aviation. It thrills him to find some bit of new information he can pass on to his father.

Veteran Air Liner Pilot Hunts Big Game as Hobby to Keep Fit

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

That the air lines have come of age was demonstrated when Betty Beindorf, 19, recently became a stenographer in the general headquarters of the transportation company for which her father, Capt. Clarence R. Beindorf, is a veteran pilot.

Betty has no memory of a time when her father was not piloting planes. Her brothers, Ray, 13, who is a student of technical magazines on flying, and Billy, 9, whose hobby is model airplanes, think of a world that was not air minded as belonging to the dim past.

Mrs. Beindorf remembers well enough when for more than a year her husband kept from her the knowledge that he had purchased his own plane and was using it to make trips thru the southwest as an adding machine salesman. Now the trips to and from New York City by the captain for the United Air Lines are routine. He wears the diamond 10 year service pin awarded by the company. He became a pioneer mail flyer in 1927, and with the United lines has flown 2 million miles.

Reflected in Home.

The Beindorf home at 199 Northwood road, Riverside, might be that of a successful professional or business man of the suburb who commutes on the "Q."

Interior of the home on the quiet, tree lined street gives hint of the family head's career. The twin floor lamps by the fireplace were made by the captain from airplane propellers. The andirons have been fashioned from connecting rods. The clock is set in a miniature propeller. There are paintings of planes amid the clouds. The touches are such as sea captains, reflecting the nature of their careers, adorned their homes thru past generations.

In the living room Mrs. Beindorf has permitted but one trophy belonging to the captain's main hobby—big game hunting. It is a wolfskin rug. But at the top of the stairs and in one of the upper rooms, there is plenty of proof of the captain's skill with a rifle. From the walls protrude the stuffed heads of moose and wolves and bears and other wild animals brought back from vacation trips to British Columbia.

Keeping Fit Is Habit.

It is one of the main requisites of the air lines that a captain keep physically fit. That means outdoor exercise and it entirely suits the captain who appears slender despite his 190 pounds. During his leisure days between trips in Riverside, he plays tennis with a vengeance, bowls with a local team in the Masonic league, and during these winter days skates with Betty on the Des Plaines river. Betty, herself, excels as a figure skater. To drop from the peak of physical condition means being "grounded" for the time being by the company, and no first class pilot needs to be prodded into keeping trim.

Home life means much to the captain, and his home with Mrs. Beindorf seeing to it, adjusts itself to his career. Each week he has all but two breakfasts at home and they and other meals are prepared with the proper vitamins in mind. The captain takes two breakfasts a week in New York after a flight during which from an elevation of 5,000 feet and upwards he is able to view, in fair weather, the landscape below for a 50 mile radius. His co-pilot is another west suburbanite, Howard Mayes of Berwyn.

"Of course it becomes routine," the captain agreed, "but it's always interesting. There are the changes of weather and of seasons. It means

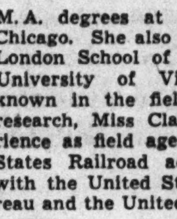
FLORENCE CLARK IS HONORED BY GUIDANCE GROUP

Miss Florence E. Clark, personnel director at Farragut High school, was elected second vice president of the National Vocational Guidance association at the organization's 27th annual convention in San Francisco. Miss Clark succeeds C. Gilbert Wrenn, elected first vice president.



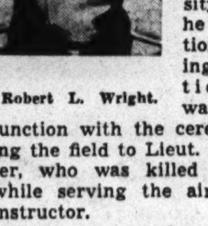
Florence E. Clark.

Miss Clark obtained both her Ph.B. and her M.A. degrees at the University of Chicago. She also has studied at the London School of Business and the University of Vienna. Nationally known in the field of occupational research, Miss Clark obtained experience as field agent for the United States Railroad administration and with the United States Woman's bureau and the United States Children's bureau,

In 1931 Miss Clark was engaged to write the first occupational study published under supervision of the occupational research section of the National Vocational Guidance association. Her subject was "The Printing Trades and Their Workers."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Robert L. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wright of 108 North Lincoln street, Hinsdale, received his wings and air corps commission recently at Foster field, Victoria, Tex. Wright attended Harvard university at the time he entered aviation cadet training. The graduation ceremony was held in conjunction with the ceremony dedicating the field to Lieut. Arthur L. Foster, who was killed 17 years ago while serving the air corps as an instructor.



Robert L. Wright.

Richard E. Olsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thornwald W. Olsen of 126 North Lotus avenue, was promoted to the rank of corporal recently at the army air corps basic flying school at Goodfellow field, near San Angelo, Tex.

Warren A. Palm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Palm, 120 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, was advanced to the rank of sergeant recently, on his 21st birthday. He is in the communications section of the army air corps in the Hawaiian Islands.

It's Ensign E. J. Grady now. The young Chicagoan, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Grady, 4240 Washington boulevard, recently received his officer's commission after studying at the midshipmen's school of the U. S. S. Prairie State in New York City. He has been assigned to specialized work in another naval school. Ensign Grady was born in Chicago May 22, 1917, and was graduated from St. Ignatius high school in 1936 and from Loyola university in 1940. He was a chemist before entering the navy.

OAK PARK TESTS OWN BLACKOUT SIREN TODAY

Oak Park residents need not dive for cover under the dining room table, or for the shelter beneath the basement steps, when they hear a siren's scream this afternoon. For it will be only the village president, Robert McMaster, throwing the switch for a test of the new air raid siren signal. But after the signal has been thoroly tested—then Oak Parkers, and their neighbors within a seven mile radius, will want to scurry to protection at the sound.

The siren was raised to the roof of the village hall last week, and workmen bolted it firmly into place in a concealed corner. Total weight of the machine is a quarter of a ton—and it measures 42 inches high and 32 inches in diameter. Powered by a 7½ horsepower motor, it is capable of 3,450 revolutions per minute, and can be heard for a distance of seven miles.

In a formal ceremony at 1 o'clock this afternoon President McMasters will throw the switch for the test of the siren. Thereafter, the switch will be located in the operator's room at the police radio station.

Gifts to Veterans.

A committee from the Gov. Henry Horner Ladies' auxiliary will visit the Hines hospital Tuesday to present veterans with handkerchiefs and cigarets. Mrs. Rena Katz is state hospital chairman.

DEFENSE SETUP 90% COMPLETE ON WEST SIDE

9 Commanders Launch Civilian War Aid.

Civilian defense organization on the west side is now about 90 per cent completed, it was revealed last week by Wallace MacClay, chief for division 4, comprising the west side. Many communities have elected their block captains, but a few of the districts are progressing less rapidly.

The communities, their commanders, headquarters, and the progress they have made are as follows:

1 and 2. Near West Side.—Commander Ben Mills, Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore drive, Whitehall 4850. Mr. Mills is president of the Mid-City National bank, 801 Madison street, Haymarket 7600, where he can be reached during the daytime hours. Headquarters are located at 2400 Madison street, with phones Haymarket 3404 and Haymarket 3405. In charge there at all times is Vice Commander Franklin A. Hahn, who reports the district 65 per cent organized. One of the largest areas in the city, the communities include a high percentage of foreign speaking residents.

3. Southwest Central.—Commander Frank J. Bilek, 1638 Blue Island avenue, Canal 4959. Mr. Bilek, who is president of the Cook County Civic council, and of the Southwest Central Business Men's association, is on duty thruout the day and evening at the civilian defense headquarters, 1831 Blue Island avenue. Ninety per cent of the blocks in this area have organized, despite a foreign language handicap which includes 25 nationalities. Walter Carroll has been appointed to head the finance and industry committee, Joseph Hucek, 1329 West 18th street, is vice commander for the district, and the Rev. Joseph F. Sefl is taking an active part as chairman of the civilian morale committee.

One Block Has Co-captains.

Working thruout New Year's eve and New Year's day, Mr. Serdiuk and his helpers had all block organizers interviewed and named Jan. 1. Also unusual in this area was the inability

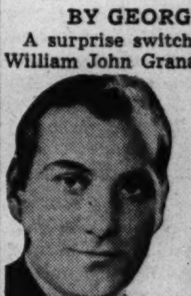
FIERCE FIGHT SEEN FOR G. O. P. IN 2D DISTRICT

Observers Puzzled by Switch.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A surprise switch last week placed William John Granata, 27th ward Republican committeeman, in a battle for keeps with Rep. James J. Adduci for the single G. O. P. seat in the Illinois house of representatives from the 2d district on the west side.



William J. Granata.

James J. Adduci.

William John Granata, younger brother of Rep. Peter C. Granata of the 27th district, said he would withdraw his candidacy for clerk of the Probate court. He had the regular Republican organization indorsement for the spot, for which he was nominated in 1940. By most accounts, this is a better year for Republican votes. And the job pays $9,000 a year.

Expect Hot Battle.

Granata the younger now holds a $5,000 a year job as member of the state industrial commission by appointment of Gov. Green. The Illinois constitution says that legislators may not hold positions of profit under the state or federal government. A state representative gets $5,000 for a two year term.

Those are some reasons why observers looked for more than the usual amount of action in the Granata-Adduci contest.

Adduci was elected to the legislature in 1936. He was president of the Illinois Laundry company, and now is listed as being in the real estate business.

"I'll just go along with my regular organization," Rep. Adduci said. "I don't know anything about what Granata's doing. I haven't seen the fellow."

Recall Physical Encounter.

William John Granata has been quoted as saying that his running against Adduci stems from a physical encounter last November. Granata was working for the Republican judicial ticket while Rep. Adduci was lending his efforts to the Democratic coalition ticket for the Superior court.

Three times on election day Granata clashed with Rep. Adduci and his brother, Joseph. On the last occasion, Joseph Adduci was reported to have struck Granata, who hit back. A city policeman ended the brawl. Twice thereafter stench bombs drove customers from a saloon operated by one of Granata's precinct captains.

Granata's supporters reported that two of the total of nine Republican house candidates are to withdraw. They are Joseph Dicenzo and Scott J. Vitall, who were both filed from the same address as Granata—1640 West Adams street.

It was difficult to tell whether any of the remaining candidates, besides the two chief antagonists, were bona fide. One of them, James Bernard, 734 South Claremont avenue, is said to have been sponsored by Rep. Adduci for a job in the Democratic secretary of state's office.

It may be a coincidence that another one is Sol Granata, 820 South Hermitage avenue, no relative of William John Granata. The others are John Louis White, 720 South Laflin street; Rocco Roberti, 1426 West Polk street, and Lawrence H. Moretti, 1544 West Roosevelt road.

"Anybody who's on the ballot has a chance to win," Rep. Adduci commented, when he was asked whether he knew of any "ringers."

Granata Rebuilds His Ward.

Granata, who at 36 is about 10 years younger than Adduci, learned politics from his brother and added to his useful store of this knowledge at the University of Illinois. Student politics at this large university have produced some keen talent for the postgraduate political field.

While working his way toward a law degree, Granata was active in debating and dramatics and won a varsity soccer letter. Since becoming ward committeeman about three years ago he has devoted much time to rebuilding the 27th ward politically.

The Democratic incumbents do not anticipate comparable difficulties on the road back to the house of representatives. They are James J. Ryan, 312 South Ashland avenue, ending his third term, and Vito Marzullo, a first termer. William J. Daly, 1723 Warren boulevard, has filed against them.

In this 2d district, as in the 9th, the April 14 primary will virtually decide the house contests. In each of these two "setup" districts Democrats will nominate two and Republicans one candidate for three house seats.

Feud Threatens Finucane.

of one block to choose between two candidates for block captain. When the votes were evenly split after several ballots, it was decided that the two men would serve together, as co-captains.

The financial support of the work in the community will be conducted along the same lines as a community fund drive, with budget plans for business and industries. Veterans' organizations and churches in the vicinity are coöperating.

5. North Lawndale — Commander, Arthur Schimmel, 3601 West 13th street, Crawford 9559. Mr. Schimmel publishes the Lawndale News, community paper, with offices at 3255 Roosevelt road, Crawford 4355. Beginning today, headquarters will be maintained on two floors at 3321 Roosevelt road. There will be a service men's center, and offices for committee heads. The 100 per cent organization of the district was celebrated on Washington's birthday, with a program and party in one of the neighborhood theaters, attended by 1,200 residents. Norman Abramovice, 1547 South Avers street, is vice commander of the area.

Women Take Active Part.

The women of the district are active. Mrs. A. L. Brody soon will name 25 committee heads to take charge of work among the women. Boy Scouts are being assigned to each of the block captains.

6. East Garfield—Commander, Norman W. Johnson, 1431 North Park avenue, River Forest. Publisher of the Midwest News, community paper. Mr. Johnson's offices are located at 2224 Van Buren street, Seeley 7474. Headquarters for the area are open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. every day at 221 South Kedzie avenue, Kedzie 6181. Block organization is complete in this area, the last meetings having been held last week. A committee to arrange financial aid for the program will include Ray A. Scherer, Arthur P. Murphy, Jack Levin, the Rev. Frank Coates, the Rev. Vincent Schaltinga, and representatives of other churches in the neighborhood.

7. West Town—Commander, Henning Fedderson, 3720 Chicago avenue, Belmont 9020. Mr. Fedderson owns a men's furnishing store at the Chicago avenue address. Headquarters are maintained at the Northwest Town library, 1615 North Pulaski road, Belmont 8046, where Mrs. Helen Robinson and Miss Adah M. Anderson are on duty to give information. This area is approximately 65 per cent organized, chief obstacle being the foreign language barricade between block organizers and the residents of their blocks. Services of interpreters are needed for many blocks.

Morale Committee Active.

Rev. Ernst E. Morrill, pastor of the Grand Avenue Congregational church, and Miss Margaret A. Hayes, principal of Cameron school, are aiding in the organization work in this community, heading the civilian morale committee.

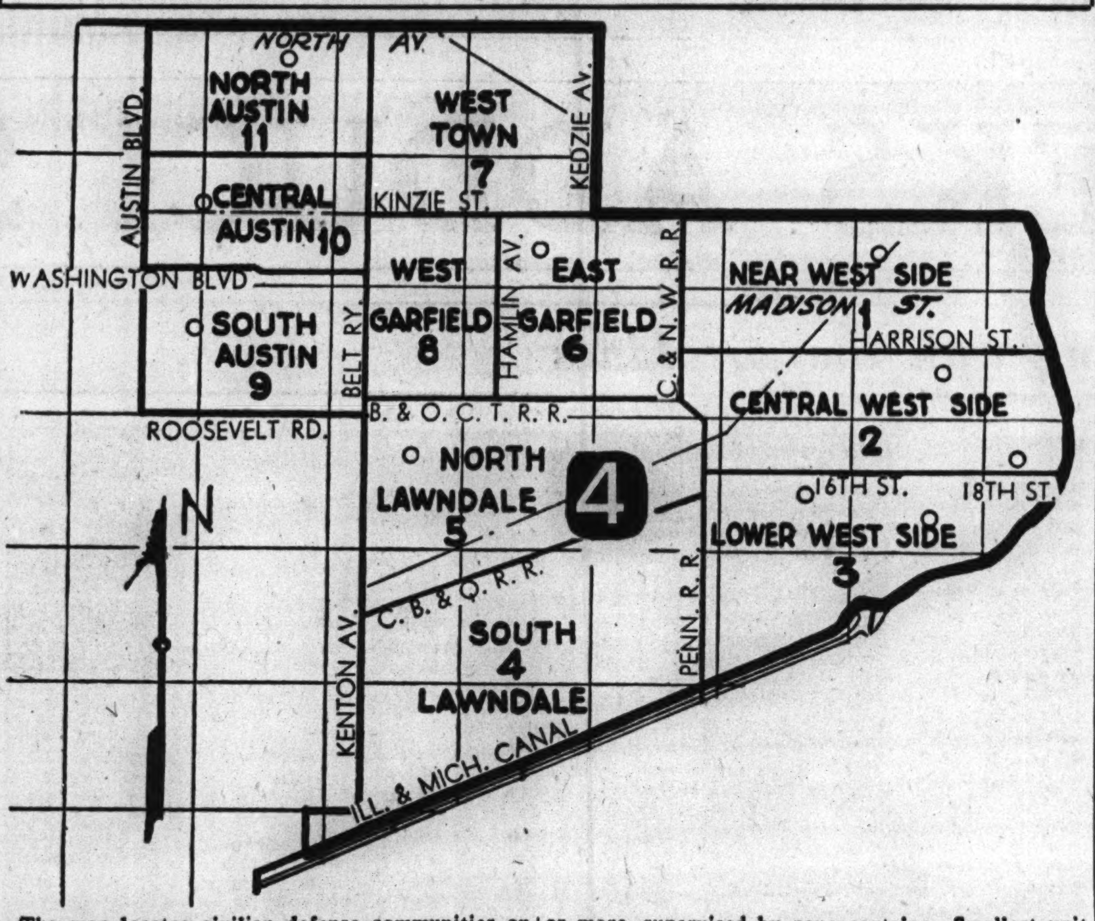
8. West Garfield—Commander Thomas J. Connery, 4140 Washington boulevard, Kedzie 5122. Mr. Connery is associated with M. J. Connery and Sons, realtors, with offices at 4236 Madison street, Kedzie 5051. Headquarters at 7 South Pulaski road, in room 7, are open thruout the day, with Irving McCarthy, vice commander in charge. Phone number at headquarters is Nevada 3431. The area is 75 per cent organized, with several blocks yet to be heard from. Block captains in the area last week began attending school, held three nights weekly for community directors, at Crane High school. As in other districts on the west side, auxiliary firemen have been sent to the central training school downtown, and will in turn train volunteer firemen in their own communities.

9 and 10. South Austin and Central Austin—Commander William O'Brien, 4619 Maypole avenue, Austin 2000. Mr. O'Brien is associated with the Druley-O'Brien company, coal dealers, and his business and residence addresses and phones are the same, so that he may be reached there at any time. New headquarters for the two ereas have been opened in the Austin branch library, at Race and Central avenues, Austin 0350. Organization work in the two areas is now 90 per cent complete, with final work expected to be done this week. Robert Wiler is serving as secretary for both districts.

11. North Austin—Commander J. W. McNichols, 4931 Walton street, Austin 3762. Mr. McNichols owns and manages the J. W. McNichols & Co., real estate and insurance firm, located at 4806 Chicago avenue, Austin 1100. Headquarters are located at 747 North Cicero avenue, Columbus 5191, and are open between 1 p. m. and 5 p. m., and between 7 p. m. and 9 p. m., with volunteer workers on hand. Mr. McNichols is generally at headquarters each eveing, and can be reached at his office during the day. The area is now completely organized, with 205 block captains having been elected approximately two weeks ago. Plans for financing the work in the area have not been formulated.

Headquarters for the entire west side, division 4, have been set up in rooms 25 and 26, on the second floor of the Gold Dome building in Garfield park, Van Buren 3277. Division chief is Wallace MacClay, purchasing director for the O. D. Jennings Manufacturing company at 4309 Lake street, Mansfield 2612. Serving as division director is Harvey Johnson, 4150 North Kolmar avenue, Kildare 2187. Mr. Johnson is executive secretary for the Garfield Park Business Men's association, with offices in room 7 at 7 South Pulaski road, Nevada 3431.

Designate Defense Communities on West Side



The map locates civilian defense communities on the west side. Known as division 4, the west side includes 11 communities, each with its own commander. Each community is divided into zones of eight blocks or more, supervised by zone captains. Smallest unit in the program is the block, over which the block captain has control.

ened the seemingly certain renomination of Finucane as G. O. P. representative for the 9th district.

Kucharski is concentrating his efforts in the primary on unseating Finucane. To this end he is working tooth and nail for Attorney Vincent Joyce, 2873 Quinn street. Joyce thus takes a lead over candidates other than the incumbent, but his chief backer controls only 22 of the 115 precincts in the district.

The district contains parts of wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25.

Result of Patronage Quarrel.

According to the political grapevine, Committeeman Kucharski wanted his son appointed state factory inspector, but the job went to Arthur Sullivan of Finucane's ward. This touched off Kucharski's complaints that he wasn't getting enough patronage.

This is Rep. Finucane's third term in the house. While the Democrats were in power he sometimes voted with them in the tight spots, but now that the Republicans have regained control his voting record in Springfield is distinguished by party regularity.

Incumbents on Democratic Side.

Democratic house candidates are led on the ballot by the incumbents, Peter P. Jezierny, a spry oldster serving his fifth term, and William J. Gormley, who is completing his ninth term. Firmly entrenched in party ranks, they are faced with only two opponents, Frank P. McGinty, 3315 South Western boulevard, and Stanley Sobiszewski, 3735 South Hermitage avenue.

Andrew Toman, 3822 South Winchester avenue, who has organization backing, holds top spot on the ballot for the Republican nomination for state senator. His only opponent is George Nehls, 3301 South Morgan street. The district usually shows lopsided Democratic majorities.

Sen. Richard J. Daley, youthful legislator who during his single terms in the house and senate forged to the front by dint of energy and ability, is up against four opponents. Despite his good record and powerful party support these aspirants are tempted by the heavy Polish-American vote.

The opponents are Frank Wilkowski, 3352 South Paulina street; Joseph Przybylo, 2510 South Throop street; John F. Mikos, 3637 South Hermitage avenue, and John E. Zukorski, 2913 Bonfield avenue.

In Committee Race.

Following are the names of Cook county candidates for party senatorial committees who filed their petitions after last Sunday's list of candidates went to press:

REPUBLICAN.

2d district—Jerome L. Goldberg, 1508 West Jackson boulevard.

9th district—Joseph Koranda, 942 West 29th street; William Miller, 3012 Gratten avenue.

15th district—Joseph Neadly, 1847 Allport street; Louis Schovanec, 1916 South May street; Louis J. Schleter, 1902 Blue Island avenue.

19th district—John J. Gsell, 4307 West 25th place; Arthur P. Herron, 3117 Oak Park avenue, Berwyn; Clarence R. Bowen, 4251 Van Buren street; Dwight D. Carroll, 721 South Kenneth avenue. [William Rott, 1421 South Kostner avenue, filed previously as a Republican candidate; in last Sunday's list he was erroneously classed as a Democrat.]

21st district—Flora J. Mostillar, 258 North Washtenaw avenue; Thomas E. Trages, 616 North Avers avenue; Herman P. Mazza, 537 North Lawndale avenue.

23d district—George Pilarski, 1527 Wicker Park avenue.

27th district—Frank A. Skrzenta, 1953 Dickens avenue; Harry Poulopuolos, 815 West Adams street.

DEMOCRATIC.

23d district—Frank Lystarczyk, 1237 North Artesian avenue; John P. Gogola Jr., 1733 Potomac avenue.

27th district—Joseph E. Kosinski, 1418 West Division street.

Members of senatorial committees determine how many candidates each party shall nominate in each district for the Illinois house of representatives. These party committees also are empowered to fill house vacancies on the ballot if nominees die or are disqualified before the November election.

meeting many famous passengers at close range."

Betty Sees Departures.

From an office window at the airport, Betty can see her father start on his trips to New York, but he is too absorbed in his duties at the moment to wave her a "good-by." It would be possible for Mrs. Beindorf to keep track of her husband's homeward flights by radio, but this she seldom does.

"Sometimes," said Mrs. Beindorf, "when he pops in at the door he wants to talk shop and sometimes he wants to be quiet for awhile. I was glad Betty could follow him in the business. It was what she wanted to do."

The captain spoke of changes that had come in air transportation since the pioneer days of the 1920's—days of a pilot, a plane, a mechanic, and a hope as compared with a business of 900 employés in Chicago and 3,500 on the system, including 450 pilots and 225 stewardesses.

So far as Capt. Beindorf is concerned it is as if the air lines had developed to give him just the niche for which he was best suited. First, there were 14 years on a farm near Litchfield, Ill., for which he is grateful. On coming to Chicago he had thought for a time of railroading. Then he went to Oklahoma as a salesman, and there he married.

Sold Plane to Post.

"I didn't confess to my wife at first I had bought a plane," the captain recalls, "but when she had taken her first flight with me she was sold on the idea, too. I sold that plane to Wiley Post and it became his first plane. Its top speed was 72 miles an hour, below our starting speed of today. And that was only 20 years ago."

Incidentally, the coast to coast line over which Capt. Beindorf flies was 21 years old last year.

Betty, who recently went to work for the United Air Lines, has no desire to be a pilot on her own account, but she likes to ride as a passenger with her dad at the controls.

Ray, whose father didn't see him until six days after he was born due to flying schedules, keeps his father posted on new types of planes. He likes to join in wood chopping exercise with the captain and practice with him in the basement rifle range.

Has Dad as Pattern.

Billy has outgrown his play pilot uniform, but he has lost none of the thrill of being a flyer's son and his friends on the school ground have been told by him that he intends to follow his father's trail.

A pilot can't work more than 85 hours a month. So the captain is home a good deal, and Mrs. Beindorf's ambition is to make him a good home.

LA GRANGE CLUB TO MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE TUESDAY

Pageant to Tell Story of Growth.

Mrs. Ralph T. Jayne.
[Chesthire Photo.]

The 50th anniversary of its founding will be celebrated Tuesday by the La Grange Woman's club. Mrs. Donald V. Williamson, club president, will head the receiving line at the club parlors at the Masonic temple from 2:30 until 4:30 o'clock. She also will appear in the opening and closing episodes of the pageant at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the Lyons Township High school.

Mrs. Ralph T. Jayne is general program chairman of the club. Mrs. Miriam Lewis Schonweitz, former La Grange resident, is directing the pageant, having been called from her home in West Danby, N. Y., by the board of directors. The pageant was written by Harley Mitchell, and 35 club members will take part.

Mrs. D. V. Williamson.

Authentic period costumes and stage properties will be provided by Mrs. W. V. Jolliffe and Mrs. J. C. Weidert. Mrs. Russell Howard will paint the scenery. Souvenir programs have been designed by Byron Dudley. Mrs. Forrest B. McElroy, Mrs. Floyd Swett, Mrs. Edward E. F. Young, and Mrs. Walden Cummins also are active in arrangements for the celebration. Mrs. Stanley Anderson, vice president, has arranged an informal reception following the pageant. In the receiving line will be the club's past presidents, Mrs. Charles P. Horr, Mrs. E. Clarke Ziesel, Mrs. Arthur Howe Carpenter, Mrs. Harry J. Illett, Mrs. Harry Gibson, Mrs. Frank Ault, Mrs. George Simons, and Mrs. John Mangold. Special guests will be the only two charter members still living, Mrs. Mary C. Borwell and Mrs. George O. Pratt.

Active at the tea will be Mrs. Harold Fielder, Mrs. H. S. Sayre, Mrs. Earl Pierce, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Warner, Mrs. Robert E. Coulter, Mrs. Ira Schmidt, Mrs. Carl Dunlap, Mrs. Albert M. Abrahamson, Mrs. Walden C. Cummins, Mrs. Fred Blenkinsopp, Mrs. John A. Fulkman, and Mrs. Charles Sheel.

Austin Woman's Club.

Miss Ida A. Linden, chairman of the department of public health and child hygiene, will present Dr. M. M. Kunde of Northwestern university at the meeting at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning of the Austin Woman's club, Central avenue and Fulton street.

The afternoon meeting will begin at 2 o'clock and is under the direction of Mrs. Ford S. Clark, chairman of the American home department. Speaker will be George T. Stafford, talking on "Conserving Human Beings at Home."

Maywood Twentieth Century Club.

An all-day session will be held Tuesday by the Maywood Twentieth Century club. The managers' meeting will convene at 10 o'clock; the business meeting at 10:30. Officers, department chairmen, and delegates to the state convention will be elected. A buffet luncheon, with Mrs. Harry B. Hostettler as chairman, will be served at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. David L. Mills, club president, is in charge of the program which begins at 1:30 o'clock. Dr. Eric Von Schroetter will speak on "The Human Side of Pan-Americanism."

Naperville Woman's Club.

Reciprocity day, as well as guest day, will be observed by the Naperville Woman's club on Wednesday afternoon at the First Congregational church parish house. The program will feature the club's own talent. The verse choir, under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Finkbeiner, will read "The Cycle of Life." The chorus, under the direction of Mrs. George Wellner, will give several numbers.

Nineteenth Century Club.

Mrs. Albert Cotsworth Jr., president of the Nineteenth Century Woman's club, will introduce Louis Fischer as the speaker at the meeting tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Fischer is the author of "Men and Politics," and made his home in Russia for 14 years. Miss Virginia Gunderson and her committee will serve tea.

Nineteenth Century Associates.

The Nineteenth Century associates will hold their annual style show and card party at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. Twelve members will model.

North Oak Park Woman's Club.

American Home day will be observed Wednesday by the North Oak Park Woman's club, with Mrs. C. J. Schleck, chairman of the citizenship and home department, in charge. A series of discussions on model homes will be included.

Tuesday Club.

Mrs. Mary L. Drobish will be hostess to the Tuesday club at her home, 309 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, on Tuesday afternoon. The program will include a travelog by Mrs. John Wicks.

Rosary Girls Dramatize History of Mass

When students of Rosary college take the stage on Monday evening, March 9, to dramatize "The Voice and the Word," a history of the mass, these three young women will play leading roles. The production will be staged at the Loyola Community theater. Left to right, they are Mary Eileen Farmar, 1216 Fair Oaks, Oak Park; Harriet Ann Kruppenbacher, 1416 North Ashland avenue, River Forest, and Grace Ellis, 184 North Marion street, Oak Park.

SILVER BEAVERS AWARDED THREE SCOUT LEADERS

Service Tributes Given at Annual Dinner.

Men outstanding in their voluntary support of the Chicago Boy Scout council were presented with Silver Beaver awards last week at the 30th annual meeting and defense rally, held at the Palmer House. The Silver Beaver award is the highest tribute that a Scout council can pay voluntary leaders. Candidates are selected according to the service they have given to their local council. Several of the recipients were residents of the west side.

Joseph W. Bajgier, 2259 Cullerton street, an assistant district commissioner, has been in scouting since 1931. He has served as scoutmaster, member of a troop organization committee, camping committee, training committee, and Polish Roman Catholic union and CYO contact official.

Directs Swim Meet.

He supervised and sponsored the district's annual swim meet and developed objectives for the district for the current year. He tripled the commissioner's staff in his district. Mr. Bajgier has conducted monthly leaders' round table and commissioner meetings, and is directly responsible for the organization and reorganization of units in the west side district.

Russell A. Jones, 2627 Adams street, member of the west side district's executive group since 1934, also won the award. In 1937 he was named chairman of the district's camping committee. Official records show that he has gone beyond the minimum requirements of a camping committee chairman, for he not only visits camps, but attends troop meetings to promote camp attendance. This year he was appointed vice chairman of the west side district.

As a finance worker, Mr. Jones has raised thousands of dollars thru the years he has served on this committee.

Award to Chief Physician.

Dr. S. C. Stanton, Hinsdale, scouter at large in the Chicago council, was also honored with a Silver Beaver award. He has served as chief camp physician at the Owasippe Scout camps since 1930. He has participated with the council in the organization of its first aid program and has served as chief judge or referee in the city-wide contests.

Dr. Stanton is a member of the Order of the Arrow and has served as an officer in the Owasippe lodge. The order is a national Boy Scout service fraternity. He is a retired brigadier general in the United States army medical corps and a former surgeon general for Illinois.

Wed on Birthday

Mrs. J. William Gilbert was formerly Miss Betty Mae Glashagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Glashagel, 447 South La Grange road, La Grange. She was married on her birthday, last Friday, to the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Gilbert, 156 North Park road, La Grange.

AUSTIN SCOUTS HOLD FIRST AID TRIALS TUESDAY

Austin Scoutleaders club is planning special events for Austin Boy Scout troops during March. The annual Austin community first aid contest will be held Tuesday night at the Austin Town hall, with Troops 268, 367, and 373 participating. In charge of the contest will be Dr. L. A. Mann, merit badge examiner.

The last week of March, the group will hold a mobilization on a night unknown to scout leaders, and known only to Robert Krejci, assistant district executive of the west side. Mr. Krejci will make a call to the field executive of the Austin Scoutleaders club, Donald Mann. He in turn will relay the signal for mobilization to the scoutmasters of Austin troops.

The committee in charge of the arrangements include John Hickey, president of the Austin Scoutleaders club; Burt Baxter, secretary, and Donald Mann, field executive, who will act as coördinator of the mobilization. Primarily a test mobilization it is designed to show the community of Austin that Boy Scouts are prepared to do their duty in any emergency.

PROVISO YOUTHS TO DISCUSS OWN PLACE IN WORLD

3d Annual Conference to Open Friday.

Dr. James Clarke, professor of homiletics at the Presbyterian Theological seminary in Chicago, and the Rev. Al Ronander, assistant pastor at the First Congregational church of Oak Park, will be the main speakers at the Friday night and Sunday afternoon sessions of the third annual Proviso Boys' and Girls' conference, next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

"Youth's Place in a World of Differences" will be the theme of the Saturday morning and Saturday evening sessions of the conference of which the Rev. John Ekstrom is director. The speaker at the Saturday morning session will present his speech in such a manner as to provoke questions from the audience.

Six Discussion Groups.

After the speech, the session will break up into six discussion groups to be led by adults, possibly teachers. Two discussion groups will convene in the First Baptist church, two in the First Methodist church, and two in the First Presbyterian church, all in Maywood. The session will begin at 10 o'clock.

An informal get-together will follow the regular procedure of the Friday night session. The session starting at 7:30 o'clock will be held in the First Congregational church in Maywood.

A feature of the Sunday afternoon session will be a candle lighting service and the induction of officers for the 1943 conference. The session to which parents of the young people are invited to attend and remain for tea will be held at the First Congregational church.

Invite Churches in Township.

The Rev. Mr. Ekstrom said churches from all over the township were being invited to take part in the conference. Some are sending their "key" boys and girls and their alternates as representatives.

The highlight of the conference, a banquet in the Proviso High school cafeteria, will start at 6 o'clock Saturday.

PUPILS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF SCHOOL MUSIC

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public school system, a chorus of 400 students from Emmet, Peirce, Ruggles, and Wentworth elementary schools will participate at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Children's Symphony concert at Orchestra hall.

The children will sing John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Freedom," a selection written for the occasion. More than 3,500 public school pupils will be in the audience. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education, is organizer of the chorus. Vocal music was introduced into Chicago's schools three years after Lowell Mason, known as the "father of public school music," carried music into Boston schools.

The program will be broadcast at 3:45 o'clock over W-G-N.

Betrothed to Teacher

SERGEANT GIVES LINCOLN PICTURES TO OAK PARK HIGH

A set of 12 framed pictures has been presented to the Oak Park-River Forest High school by Sergt. Richard Stevens Johnson, of the class of 1935. Sergt. Johnson is in service at Fort Warren, Wyo. The pictures are reproductions of the series of paintings by Louis Bonhajo portraying Abraham Lincoln at significant periods in his life, from his childhood up to his last years.

The original paintings have been donated to the Lincoln Memorial university at Harrogate, Tenn., an institution which Lincoln himself helped to found, and which owns one of the greatest collections of Lincolniana in the country. The inscription under each picture, which gives a factual background of the subject, was written by Paul M. Angle, head of the state historical library at Springfield and Lincoln scholar.

The donor, Sergt. Johnson, since his graduation from high school in 1935, has won his degree from the Northwestern university school of commerce. He was engaged in market research before entering the army. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson, who formerly resided at 505 Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park.

BAND OF PROVISO HIGH WILL GIVE CONCERT TODAY

Featuring its well known sextet as one of the highlights, Proviso Township High school's 105 piece band, directed by J. Irving Tallmadge, will present its second in a series of three concerts at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon in the high school auditorium.

The brass sextet is composed of Bruce Cornue and Arthur Fippinger, cornets; Earle Cromer, French horn; Arthur Good, trombone; Ed Schneidewent, baritone, and Leo Ratzer, bass.

OBSERVES 90TH BIRTHDAY AMONG CHURCH FRIENDS

Mrs. Anna Westerlund Is Native of Sweden.

Mrs. Anna Westerlund.
[Clyde photo.]

Mrs. Anna Westerlund, 2728 West 22d place, a resident of Chicago since 1880, celebrated her 90th birthday last Tuesday. In the evening, relatives and a host of friends gathered at Douglas Park Mission Covenant church, California avenue and 22d place, to honor Mrs. Westerlund. Congratulatory speakers were the Rev. C. A. Bjornbom, the Rev. Paul F. Erickson, and the Rev. Paul J. Theorell. The program included vocal and instrumental numbers, followed by a reception given by the Ladies' Aid society in the church parlors.

Any complete biography of Mrs. Westerlund would be a rich account of pioneer fortitude and experience. She was born Feb. 24, 1852, in Sweden. Her childhood was humble and filled with hardship. When she was 8 years old, her father was drowned in a mining accident. Little Anna was sent out in the pastures to tend sheep, and it was there that she spent hours learning to read and mastering the catechism.

First Marriage Brief.

When she was 28 years old, in 1880, she came to Chicago to marry C. J. Ostling, a widower with three children. This marriage was very brief, for a year and a half later death took her husband. She was left with a 5 month old daughter and three foster children.

On Aug. 4, 1887, she was married to Carl J. Westerlund, who died in January, 1902. Three children were born to them, Ernest Westerlund, now of Baltimore, Md., David Westerlund, now of Downers Grove, and Mrs. Hannah Moe, now of Chicago.

Deaconess in Church.

Mrs. Westerlund is active and regular in attendance at all the services of the Douglas Park church, since having joined in 1883. For many years she was chairman of the Ladies' Aid society, and she has served as a deaconess for a number of years.

W-G-N TO NAME MARION CLAIRE SONG WINNERS

Fans Will Be Guests at Special Broadcast.

Members of the Theater of the Air club chapters from Chicagoland and other points as far east as Brooklyn and as far south as Austin, Tex., will be guests of W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday for a special Marion Claire night honoring the soprano prima donna of the operetta broadcasts. The program will be aired on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual.

A feature of the broadcast will be the announcement of the winners in the $1,000 Marion Claire contest to select "which song from which operetta you best like to hear Marion Claire sing."

Miss Claire will read the names of the winners and will sing the operetta selection chosen by the winning contestant.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Judges reviewed thousands of entries received from 27 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the Marion Claire contest. During the program Miss Claire will sing her favorite operetta selection as well as that chosen by the radio audience as its favorite.

The Theater of the Air club lists more than 300 chapters from coast to coast with a membership of 7,156. The chapter members meet every Saturday night to listen to the operetta broadcasts on W-G-N and Mutual and many of the chapters have become active forces for the "best in music" in their communities.

Singing with Miss Claire in the broadcast will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of many of the operetta programs, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire will extend a personal welcome to the club members who will be guests at the broadcast.

SALUTE HIRSCH AND D. M. NELSON ON CITIZENS HOUR

The achievements of Hirsch High school will be saluted on Citizens of Tomorrow on W-G-N from 1:30 to 2 p. m. today. The program is presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which honors an outstanding Chicagoland school each week.

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, assembled students from Hirsch in the main audience studio of W-G-N last Wednesday when the program for today was recorded. Thaddeus J. Lubera, principal of Hirsch, recounted some of that school's achievement and told of its history. The Choral club under the direction of Helen Kane sang "When Day Is Done" and the rustic song titled "The Peasant and His Oxen."

During the program Mr. Maxwell paid tribute to one of America's foremost executives, Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production board. Nelson attended the Hannibal, Mo., High school, where he ranked highest in his senior class and was noted for his participation in extracurricular activities. Nelson's motto of doing "first things first" was suggested as an excellent motto for the students of Hirsch to adopt.

Names of two more Chicagoland high school students were added to the Citizens of Tomorrow honor roll. They are Allen Pfnister of Hirsch and Eloise Taylor of Bloomington, Ill.

W-G-N LISTENER PROVIDES CHURCH BELL FOR AFRICA

A church bell that for years called to worship the people of Hamilton, Mo., is now on the high seas, traveling the long road to Rhodesia, Africa, because of an appeal made on W-G-N-Mutual's public service program, "This Is Life." Each "This Is Life" broadcast describes the cases of deserving people who need the listeners' assistance.

A short time ago "This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and Mutual Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 11:15 a. m., broadcast a letter from William B. West, an engineer who had just returned from a church construction project in Rhodesia, Africa. The church was almost completed, wrote Mr. West, but lacked a bell. Nowhere in that dark African region could one be located, and the mission had no money to import one from the outside. So, because he had heard what "This Is Life" listeners had done to find needed articles, West appealed to them.

Many offers were received, but the majority of them—for bells that were too large—had to be rejected. Finally Mrs. Oscar Axton of Hamilton, Mo., offered one that was just the right size. Her offer was accepted. Soon Rhodesians may be hearing a bell that once pealed in the heart of the United States.

Melody Matinee to Offer Favorite American Songs

A new program titled "Melody Matinée," based on the theory that radio holds no finer enjoyment than lovely melodies smoothly played, will be heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 12:30 to 1 p. m. The program is devoted to favorite American songs, arranged and presented by outstanding conductors and singers. Today's program will include selections from "New Moon," "Carioca," Jerome Kern's beautiful "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Among My Souvenirs," "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Toman Forum.

Toman Library forum, 4005 West 27th street, will hear the Rev. Ernest Zizka review Louis Adamic's "Two-Way Passage" at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening.

MAC LEISH TO DISCUSS PROPAGANDA ON RADIO ROUND TABLE TODAY

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, will discuss "Propaganda—Good and Bad" on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

MacLeish, whose office approves the release of information on the war program, will participate in the round table discussion with Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the library of congress, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of the humanities at the University of Chicago.

The speakers will discuss the need for honesty in propaganda and measure the effects of present propaganda procedures in the United States upon morale at home and abroad.

SHADOW ROUNDS OUT 12 YEARS AS A THRILLER

Onetime Villain Turns to Justice Crusade.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just 12 years ago this week "The Shadow" radio series was launched. For many years it has been an established feature over the Mutual network [currently 4:30 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N]. It has been a trail blazer for all the radio "Ellery Queens," "Sherlock Holmes," "Thin Mans," and other thrillers and whodunits.

In the beginning the Shadow [who enjoys the highest listening audience of any day time radio show according to recent surveys] was a shocker. The Shadow was more or less a villain in the days when Frank Readick played the part. The character began improving during the tenure of the spectacular Orson Welles. In recent years, with Bill Johnstone in the title rôle and Marjorie Anderson as his girl friend, Margot Lane, the Shadow has become a hero.

While he still his his eerie laugh, with the aid of a filter microphone, the Shadow doesn't fly thru space, hypnotize characters, and, in general, behave like Superman.

Shadow Is Invisible.

The only edge he has on the other performers is that he can become invisible—the program writers had to do that to give the dramas the kind of zing and suspense they require.

The kids didn't care very much about the enormity of "The Shadow's" early crimes. Bombing of Grand Central station, gassing New York or 'Frisco—they took 'em in stride.

Current "Shadow" episodes don't go that far. But they're gaudy enough—recent scrips had a villain killed by the kiss of a jackdaw with a cyanide tipped beak, a great dane devouring a killer midget, a gorilla cracking his master's skull.

Crusades for Justice.

And here's another revision of the early Shadow character. He never kills anybody directly. He just aggravates them to the point of surrendering or confounds them with so much cleverness they commit suicide. He's strictly a crusader for justice.

Sid Slon and Peter Barry are the regular writers and Bill Tutle supervises scripts. They like fantastic ideas. Among those used have been a saga tagged "The Man Who Murdered Time."

Time stopped everywhere in the world and kept repeating itself like a broken record. The same people kept dying, the same auto accidents occurred, the same dictators made the same promises. Finally "The Shadow" found out why—a mad scientist, afraid of dying, had stopped time cold.

W-G-N SERVICES TO COME FROM S. SIDE CHURCH

The Chicagoland Church hour, heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 9 to 10 a. m. thruout March, will broadcast from the Monumental Baptist church at 729 Oakwood boulevard. The Rev. James L. Horace has arranged for a number of guest preachers.

Today the Rev. A. Wayman Ward of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church will be heard. The following Sunday will see the Rev. Mr. Horace in the pulpit. The Rev. W. A. Johnson is scheduled for March 15. He is pastor of the Greater St. John Baptist church, at 4821 South Michigan avenue. The Rev. Dr. Harold Roupp of Central church in Orchestra hall will be heard on March 22.

'Easy Money' to Expose Crooked Gambler Tonight

Mike Romano, radio actor who worked for a time in the state's attorney's office, will be heard in the rôle of Fennette, the operator of a crooked gambling house, on W-G-N's exposé series, "Easy Money," to be aired at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Fennette runs afoul Mike Trent, masked detective, who exposes him.

Bulldog Drummond Faces Auto Tire Robbery Gang

A priority problem, involving an auto tire robbery combine, confronts Bulldog Drummond in his adventure to be heard on W-G-N and Mutual from 5:30 to 6 p. m., today. The title of the exciting episode is "The Case of the Hot Rubber Ring."

CONGRESS RACE HAS 47 SEEKING ONLY SIX SEATS

25 Lag for Last Place on Primary Ballot.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Forty-seven congressional candidates from the six districts that help to make up the western city and suburban area have filed their nominating petitions for the April 13 primary, it was announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. The six districts in question are the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 11th.

Petitions were received in Springfield from Feb. 7 until last Monday. After the first day's flurry, filings slowed down as usual until the last day. Of the 47 western area petitions filed for congressman, 25 or more than half, were received on the final filing date.

Twenty-two of the 47 were Democratic petitions, and 25 were Republicans. Eleven of the Democrats waited until just before the deadline.

Withdrawal Day Passes.

Candidates had until last night to withdraw their names from the official primary ballots.

The first and last day rushes come principally because of the effort to obtain either top or bottom position on the ballots, which are deemed most desirable because the ordinary voter can locate them most easily.

Here is a list of those filed for each of the western congressional districts:

FOURTH DISTRICT

Master in Chancery Martin Gorski of the Superior court heads the Democratic list as the city hall organization's man for the spot from which Congressman Harry P. Beam, incumbent since 1930, is retiring to run for municipal judge in the Democratic primary. Beam's house voting record is said to have displeased Polish elements in his district. The other Democratic names in order are those of Leo F. Flynn, 518 Root street; John A. Shulmistras, 4016 Archer avenue, and Frank Wozniak, 5000 South Racine avenue, all rated as secondary candidates.

Five men little known in politics make up the Republican roster. They are, in order of their filing: Max F. Rynkar, 4240 South Washtenaw avenue; Arthur Joseph Rutshaw, 852 West 50th place; James A. McGrath, 3612 South Union avenue; Edward A. Chill, 2831 West 23d street, and Walter Skalecki, 4213 South Albany avenue. All but Rynkar were in a last day scramble for last place on the G. O. P. ballot.

FIFTH DISTRICT

Two Democrats have filed. One is Congressman Adolph J. [Half a Congressman] Sabath, dean of the national house who has represented the district continuously since 1906. The other is Frank C. Freid, 1720 South Racine avenue, real estate man and former physical education instructor, who ran as a Republican in 1928 and 1930, and as a Democrat two years ago, when he placed fourth in a field of five.

The Republican side also has two candidates. One is Clem Graver, 976 West 18th place, former bailiff for Municipal Judge Samuel Heller and now an investigator in the attorney general's office. The other is John R. Lamb, 1856 South Ashland avenue.

SIXTH DISTRICT

The Democratic side has two entrants. One is Former Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien, who is retiring as sheriff. He served three terms, starting in 1932, and then was succeeded by A. F. Maciejewski of Cicero, who is now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Sanitary District board. The second candidate is James Novotny, 2626 South 59th avenue, Cicero.

Eight candidates have filed on the Republican side. The top of the list is occupied by the name of Ralph C. Wilson, 126 West Burlingame avenue, La Grange, who withdrew from the 1940 primary. Next in order are M. J. Williams, Willow Springs; Daniel J. Mulvihill Jr., 4547 Maypole avenue, an accountant; George H. Brockmeier, 305 Forest avenue, Oak Park; James Carroll, 4143 West End avenue; Ernest R. Loewy, 1508 Harrison street; Charles J. Anderson Jr., 1816 Monroe street, and Raymond E. Trafelet, 6839 West 21st street, Berwyn.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

Nine Democrats have filed. Top spot on the list is held by Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, incumbent since 1930, whom the city hall organization seriously considered dumping. The others, in order, are Benjamin D. Leavitt, 2640 Logan boulevard; Michael Swiatkowski, 2732 North Kedzie avenue; James C. McGloon, 1258 North Central avenue; Harry S. Dolgoff, 3615 Leland avenue; Otto E. Gorski, 5417 Higgins avenue; George J. Pieplorka, 2318 North Western avenue; Walter Jagodzinski, 6151 North Moody avenue, and Stanley M. Kaminski, 4032 Nelson street. All but Schuetz, Leavitt, and Swiatkowski filed on the final day.

Four Republicans entered the race. First was James C. Moreland, real estate man and former alderman of the 41st ward, was the G. O. P. nominee in 1930, 1936, 1938, and 1940, making his best showing two years ago. Second was Meyer Fink, 5869 North Kilbourn avenue, a poor third in the 1936 primary. John W. Lorenz, 5116 Wolfram street, and George T. Foster, 2607 Lawrence avenue, filed in that order on the last day.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

Four Democrats filed, including Congressman Leo Kocialkowski, incumbent since 1932, who the Nash-Kelly organization replaced on its regular slate with City Treasurer Thomas S. Gordon, business manager of the Polish Daily News. Kocialkowski, who has top spot on the ballot, has not indicated whether he will withdraw. In second place in the list is Vincent A. Gadacz, 1834 North Paulina street. Gordon is third, and in last place is Stanley Adamkiewicz, 1029 Milwaukee avenue, who filed just before the deadline.

There are four GOP candidates also. First is William W. Carron, 1521 Warren boulevard. Second is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, 1702 Chicago avenue, attorney who was the nominee in 1938. Joseph Polep, 1315 Bosworth avenue, and Earl C. Mertes, 1112 South Sangamon street, filed in that order on the last day.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

The 11th is made up of the counties of Du Page, Kane, Will, and McHenry, which hem the first 10 districts against Lake Michigan from the Indiana state line to Wisconsin.

Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, also in Du Page county, incumbent since 1934, has only one challenger in the Republican primary. He is Thomas M. Jennings of Frankfort, former carpenter now a shipping department employé in a Whiting chemical plant.

West Side Bride

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. J. Roy Knowlton Jr., was Miss Helen Joan Berberet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Berberet, 924 North Leamington avenue. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Knowlton of Chicago.

38 WEST SIDERS GET PERMITS TO BUY NEW AUTOS

450 Cars Are Rationed in City First Week.

Permits for new automobiles went to 38 individuals and companies on the west side during the week of Feb. 16 to 20—the first week of rationing of 1942 passenger cars in Chicago.

In that week the eight rationing boards in Chicago, which also have jurisdiction over tire and tube purchases, received 1,174 inquiries concerning new car deliveries. Nearly 900 made out applications for cars. Some were withdrawn, others are pending, and still others were rejected, with the net result that certificates were issued for 450 cars.

48 WEST SIDERS GET 154 TIRES IN RECORD WEEK

Ration at High Mark, Mulcahy Reports.

Forty-eight individuals and companies on the west side were rationed a total of 154 automobile tires and 132 tubes during the week of Feb. 18-20, it was reported by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator. Of these, truck owners were given 135 tires and 116 tubes.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago issued 299 certificates compared with 192 for the previous week. It was the largest week's business since tire rationing was begun Jan. 5.

Chicago's quota for February was 1,596 passenger tires and 2,654 truck tires. Up to Feb. 20, the boards had issued certificates for only 19.93 per cent of the passenger tire quota and 47.17 per cent of the truck tire quota.

Individuals and companies on the west side who received permits for tire and tube purchases during the third week of February are:

Garfield Park B'nai B'rith Group Holds Dance Tonight

Garfield Park B'nai B'rith auxiliary, in celebration of the close of its earning fund drive, will hold a dinner-dance this evening at the Congress hotel.

STOCK TO LEAD ORCHESTRA IN F-M PREMIERE

New Carpenter March on W59C Wednesday.

The first Frequency Modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented by W59C, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. Wednesday. The Mutual network will broadcast the concert, conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock in Chicago's Orchestra hall, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

Margery Lindquist.
[Carmen-Winger.]

A 240 voice choir from the public schools, observing the centenary of vocal training in the Chicago schools, will be featured during the broadcast. The concert will open with the choir and orchestra presenting "The Star Spangled Banner" under the direction of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

A highlight of the concert will be the world première of "March and Song to Freedom," by John Alden Carpenter, noted Chicago composer. Mr. Carpenter wrote this composition in celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the school system. The choir will sing during the première presentation of this work.

Soloist on the program, one of the regular children's concerts by the Chicago Symphony, will be Margery Lindquist, young soprano of Oak Park. Miss Lindquist will sing the Recitative and Polonaise from "Mignon" by Thomas.

The program also will include: the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini; opus 67 of the Andante con moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony; "The American Patrol" by Meachem; the "Marche Slav," opus 31, by Tschaikowsky, and Sousa's stirring march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

RUTH SLATER IS GUEST ON 'MUSIC THAT ENDURES'

Ruth Slater, contralto star of opera and the concert stage who is regularly heard on FM station W59C each Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be guest soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's "Music That Endures" program, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be featured with Miss Slater.

Miss Slater will sing "Dedication" by Franz and "Come to the Fair" by Martin. She will also appear with the chorus in Schubert's hymn, "Omnipotence."

The orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber will play the finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and "The Angelus" from Hadley's Third Symphony. They will join the augmented chorus in the presentation of "God's Country."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 2.

It soon will be spring and gardening will begin with a rush. Prune currants and gooseberry bushes now. All that is necessary is to cut away the oldest wood. Prune grapes as soon as possible before the sap begins to flow or before bleeding begins. leeding can be stopped by painting the cut ends with shellac.

When the ground is warm and any perennials or strawberry plants are heaved from the ground, firm the soil around them, pressing them into place. Pear trees, lilacs, and the flowering quince should be sprayed for scale. Destroy all insect cocoons.

Tuesday, March 3.

Home gardeners should plant some fruits, especially a few currants and gooseberries. A grapevine or two used as a screen is always profitable and beautiful. An apple, plum, peach, cherry, or pear tree is excellent for a background, or along the back fence. Plum trees are fine for the chicken yard.

Wednesday, March 4.

Do not remove all mulching material at the first thaw, for much injury is caused by late frosts. The lawn will soon need attention; a dressing of sifted, rich soil thinly spread over it will add materials to the turf that are greatly beneficial.

Most lawns need a good application of plant food and the best to use is a complete, commercial balanced food applied at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Established lawns that have bare places should be renovated by lightly spading up the areas, carefully raking until a fine seedbed is formed and grass seed sown.

Thursday, March 5.

If the ground has previously been in use a spading fork may be used instead of a common spade. A file is useful to keep tools sharpened. New tools should never become rusty. Wash off all soil that adheres every time a tool is used, and wipe with oil—old cylinder oil is excellent.

Friday, March 6.

The old garage usually can be improved by a covering of an annual vine, such as the moonvine, which flowers at night, morning glories, and the variegated hop. Some vegetables can be sown this month, such as tomatoes and early cabbage.

Sow thinly in boxes and after the seed has started keep in full light or sun, but watch the watering. If a coldframe is at hand use it a little later on for hardening off preparatory to transplanting them to the garden.

Saturday, March 7.

Beans should not be sown until all danger from frost has passed. Onion sets, lettuce, and radishes may be sown quite early. Some annuals are best sown indoors, for they require a considerable time to develop. Some annuals will do fairly well in poor soil, such as the California poppy, calliopsis, corn poppy, feather cockscomb, four o'clock, petunia, sweet alyssum, spiderflower [cleome], nasturtium, gaillardia, and balsam.

Some annuals do well in a fairly acid soil, such as calliopsis, nicotiana, marigold, verbena. Some will grow in a neutral soil, such as candytuft, phlox drummondi, mignonette, nasturtium, and zinnia. Annuals must be thinned to permit each one to have its full share of space. Thinning should be done as soon as the plants can be handled.

FRIENDS HE MADE THRU 46 YEARS TO HEAR TEACHER

It's Other Class Sunday at Olivet March 8.

The friends Frank L. Wood has made during the 46 years he has taught the Wesleyan Bible class will throng into Olivet Methodist church, Adams street and Keeler avenue, next Sunday afternoon. The occasion will be the sixteenth annual Other Class Sunday, instituted and celebrated annually by the Wesleyan class. The Rev. Ralph Hall Collis is minister at Olivet Methodist church.

Frank L. Wood.

Since Mr. Wood began teaching the class, he has also taught and addressed scores of Bible classes all over Chicago, and in many states. Sixteen years ago class members invited those with whom he had come in touch to attend a special service as guests. From this grew the annual Other Class Sunday.

Represent Many Denominations.

Last year there were 14 denominations represented from 75 churches. Seventy classes sent delegates, as well as three other organizations, and one mission. Attendance during the 15 years has totaled 9,316, averaging more than 600 a meeting.

The program Sunday will open at 3 o'clock with organ numbers by Mrs. R. P. Marshall, new organist and choir director, and piano numbers by Mrs. Elmer K. Wierman, Wesleyan pianist. Alexander Todoroff will lead the community singing. Taking part in the prayer service will be the Rev. George C. Crowell, Calvary Presbyterian church; Miss June Baur, Central Park Methodist church; Arthur J. Bond, Woodlawn Baptist church, and Lawrence O'Toole, superintendent of Olivet Sunday school.

Dr. Newton G. Thomas of the First Baptist church of Oak Park will give the address of welcome. Miss Mabel Crabtree of the Central Park Congregational church will give the response. The Wesleyan male quartet will sing, its members being Harvey W. King, the Rev. M. Collis, Daniel M. Brown, and Mr. Todoroff. Mrs. Ernest L. Hayford, Wesleyan president, and Elmer K. Weirman will have charge of the announcements.

Pastor's Daughter on Program.

Special musical numbers will be presented by Mrs. Sadie T. Turner of the Eighth Presbyterian church, accompanied by Mrs. Donnie McDowell; Miss Shirley Jean Collis, daughter of the Olivet pastor, accompanied by Miss Betty Marquart, and the Olivet choir.

Harvey W. King, associate teacher of the class, and teacher at Grace Evangelical church, will speak. A silent tribute will be paid to Edward A. Ludwig, former teacher at Woodlawn Methodist church, who died in January. The day's lesson will be brought by Mr. Wood, who will speak on "Gates." The closing prayer and benediction will be by Canon David E. Gibson, pastor of Cathedral Shelter.

OAK PARK JUNIOR PARLEY TO TALK WORLD AFFAIRS

The 10th annual Junior institute of the Oak Park Council on International Affairs will be held Friday and Saturday at First Methodist church in Oak Park. The institute meets annually for a program of consideration of world conditions by young men and women of Oak Park-River Forest Township High school. Under supervision of Miss Jeanette Magowan, faculty adviser, since its inception, the institute will be directed this year by another faculty member, Morris R. Buske.

The program will open with a banquet Friday evening. Principal speaker will be Walter E. Myer, director of the Civic Education service.

Saturday's sessions will open with a forum at 10 o'clock. First leader will be Jurgen Hans Roetter, senior at a Madison [Wis.] high school, and nominee for the W-G-N Citizens of Tomorrow honor roll. He will speak on "My Experiences as a Student in England and Germany." His mother, Mrs. Ada Roetter, will be the principal speaker in the morning, talking on "A Refugee Discovers America." With her husband and family, she went from Germany to England in 1935, and came to this country in 1939, residing now in Madison.

Mr. Myer will speak again Saturday morning, giving two addresses, "Comments on Latin America" and "Significance of this Institute."

Executive committee of this year's junior institute includes Harry Oberhelman, chairman; Marion Compton, Patricia Wills, Norman Dawson, Herbert Armstrong, Virginia Bowles, Mary Cochran, Charles Higgins, and Mary Ellen Wood.

ATTIC, ONCE IDLE, BECOMES HANDY SPACE IN HOME

Playrooms or Storage Easily Provided.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Attics these days are coming to the fore as more space is needed in hosts of families the country over. Perhaps there are defense workers in town who could use living quarters converted from storage hideaways for trunks and portraits, walnut dressers and iron bedsteads. Or perhaps the boys of the family would take it over gleefully and hang a sign on the stair door: "For boys only—grownups and girls please stay out."

The spirit of 1900 won't sit prim and stiffnecked in so many attics this year. The spirit of 1942 is determined to make the best of what we have—and keep it fit and working for use as far as possible.

Bathroom in Corner.

One very interesting attic modernization converted the attic into the children's domain. Tucked in one corner is the children's bathroom, with a low cast-iron enameled tub and small lavatory that matches in color and design. This lavatory is wall hung, with shelf back and low, too, so there's no straining on tip toe for the children to reach it. At the end of the tub is a dual purpose little cabinet, with drawers for towel storage and a handy ledge on the top for the youngsters' treasured trinkets. A water saving shower head is over the tub.

On the floor there's a serviceable dark blue mottled linoleum with a red and white band and an anachronistic white centaur to harmonize with blue and cream walls and ceiling.

Drawers for Storage.

A bathroom is only one of the attic conveniences you may have. Sloping eaves and short walls are no discouragement to the modern attic modernizer. Under those eaves can be shelves and drawers galore and built-in seats and bunks and doors to conceal trains and carts and blocks and footballs and space for seasonal decorations the whole year round.

In planning an attic room or rooms for the children, wall board samples should be carefully checked. There is a wide choice on the market in varying thicknesses and costs. There are wallboards with insulating qualities and also those which require no papering or painting or finishing of any sort. This type of board has definite advantages since later on, if a change of treatment is desired, it can always be refinished with paper or paint.

Plywood or Paper.

In almost every attic there are opportunities for walling off ends or corners for large closets and to provide a cedar closet of real worth.

If accessories are to be in the nautical vein the side walls of the stairway can be papered with a heavily waxed paper in the imitation of pine boards. Or they can be covered with plywood. Real ship's rope at least two inches thick can be run thru large rings fastened to the stair walls. It isn't hard to tie both ends with shipshape knots. As stairs to an attic are often steep this is a measure of safety as well as decoration.

A ship's lantern can hang at the top of the stairs, its light controled from the foot of the stairs as well as the top.

May Be Playroom.

Desks and bunks and even chests of drawers can be built in. And such a room, if desired, can serve more than one purpose. It can serve as a playroom for the children, but not as their bedroom. In the evening it can be used by the adult family members.

If the attic is not overly light, and the budget is too limited to spend money for new and larger windows, the general lightness of the space can be aided by wise use of light contributing paint. Overhead a very light yellow can be used to give a sunshiny effect to the room. Then woodwork can be painted a slightly darker yellow, while walls, doors, and frames can be coated with a soft shade of cream.

Dr. Roy L. Smith.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate magazine, will speak at the 8 o'clock meeting of Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight on the subject, "Carrying Bones to Canaan." John L. Clarkson of Lake Forest will preside in the absence of Clifford W. Barnes. Charles F. Grey of Evanston will read the Scripture.

Dr. Smith was pastor, until last year, of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles and recently was selected as one of the seven men most representative of the Methodist church in America. He was Pacific chairman of the Stimson Committee for Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression and was awarded the Order of the Jade by the Chinese government. Dr. Smith was a foreign correspondent in the orient for a number of years and is author of the syndicated "Sentence Sermons."

The 7 o'clock meeting will be under the direction of the University of Dubuque, Dubuque, Ia. Dr. Dale D. Welch, president, will speak and the university's choir under the direction of Noel Logan will sing.

DEFENSE COMMANDERS BEGIN TASKS

G. O. P. SLATES AN HONOR MAN IN U. OF C. AREA

George D. Mills in State Senate Race.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Regular Republican ward organizations of the 5th senatorial district on the south side have taken a leaf from the Democratic book and are indorsing George D. Mills, who was an honor student at the University of Chicago, for the nomination for state senator.

George D. Mills.

This strategy was suggested by the success the Democrats had in electing U. of C. men in the district which includes the famed Midway citadel of learning. Prof. T. V. Smith won the state senatorship in 1934 and the late Prof. James Weber Linn won a house seat in 1938.

In putting up Mills, a so-called Deneen Republican, the regular G. O. P. organization apparently has eliminated any strong independent candidacies in the primary. His only opponents are Lawrence Ward, 4710 Forrestville avenue, a colored tailor, and Parrie Ann Van Hyning, 6210 Greenwood avenue, the only woman candidate for the legislature in the district.

Captain of Debating Team.

Mills is a rather colorful candidate. At the university he won a Phi Beta Kappa key for scholarship, was elected to Delta Sigma Rho honorary oratorical society, was captain of the debating team which won the intercollegiate championship in 1920, and was a member of the swimming team.

An active attorney since 1923, Mills has brightened his spare moments by writing shows for the university Blackfriars and the Chicago Bar association. He was formerly chairman of the membership committee of that association.

In the first World war, Mills was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry at Fort Sheridan. He is a member of the Hyde Park post of the American Legion and of the Military Order of the World War.

Mills is the son of Lieut. Make Mills, head of the industrial squad of the Chicago police department, which has been combating subversive activities since the early 1920s. The candidate lives at 5338 Cornell avenue with his wife, Ruth, a former member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and their one child.

Geary Has Strong Support.

Sen. John B. Geary, the Democratic incumbent, has three opponents who cannot seriously challenge the organization strength which he commands. Geary is the son of Joseph P. Geary, Democratic 4th ward committeeman and head of the city civil service commission. Young Geary is employed in the commission office. He is ending his first four year term.

His opponents, all colored, are not listed in the telephone directory. However, George E. Murphy, 4729 Prairie avenue, a war veteran and decorator, is said to have some backing. The others are John J. Sullivan, 5400 Cottage Grove avenue, and George S. Bynum, 220 East Garfield boulevard, said to be a former lieutenant of Ald. Benjamin Grant of the 3d ward. Bynum also has filed for the lower house at Springfield; which candidacy he will withdraw is not known.

The 5th is a contest district, where each party will nominate two candidates for the house of representatives, leaving the four to fight it out for three seats in the fall campaign.

Incumbents Win O. K.

Republican regular organizations have indorsed the incumbents, Rep. Noble W. Lee and William J. Warfield. Two independents, Johnson H. Banks, 6724 St. Lawrence avenue, and James M. E. Vance, 5111 Indiana avenue, are not given much of a chance to break the slate.

The chances of independents on the Democratic side appear better but their strength is divided among four men. Rep. Louis G. Berman, ending his fourth term, shares the organization indorsement with Emmett E. Page, 6401 St. Lawrence avenue, who is well equipped to go after the colored vote.

Their opponents are James F. Kearney, 6919 Indiana avenue, an electrical foreman on a defense project near Joliet; A. Morris Burroughs, 4739 Champlain avenue, a strong Negro contender who is well known; David X. Meyers, 5423 Hyde Park boulevard, downtown garage operator who has also filed as a candidate for congress, and Bynum, who has also filed for the state senate.

Committee Candidates.

Following are the names of Cook county candidates for party senatorial committees who filed their petitions after last Sunday's list went to press:

REPUBLICAN.

First district: Addie L. Payne, 55 East 29th street.

Third district: Rosomond V. Fortson, 337 East 35th street; Chris Bates, 3811 South Wabash avenue; Edward Humphrey, 3846 South Dearborn street.

Fifth district: Harold R. Alex, 918 East Hyde Park boulevard; Florence Kirk

Grant Permits for New Cars to 77 in Area

Permits for new automobiles went to 77 individuals and companies on the south side during the week of Feb. 16-20—the first week of rationing of 1942 passenger cars in Chicago.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago, which also have jurisdiction over tire and tube purchases, received 1,174 inquiries concerning new car deliveries during the week. Nearly 900 made out applications to receive cars. Some were withdrawn, others are pending, and still others were rejected, with the net result that certificates were issued for 450 cars.

Here is the key to the abbreviations of autos used in the list: Bu., Buick; Cad., Cadillac; Ch., Chevrolet; Chr., Chrysler; Do., Dodge; F., Ford; Hu., Hudson; Li., Lincoln; Me., Mercury; Na., Nash; Ol., Oldsmobile; Pac., Packard; Pl., Plymouth; Po., Pontiac; Stu., Studebaker.

Rationing boards which issued certificates to buy new passenger automobiles, south siders who received the permits, and the make of car, were:

PUPILS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF SCHOOL MUSIC

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public school system, a chorus of 400 students from Emmet, Peirce, Ruggles, and Wentworth elementary schools will participate at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Children's Symphony concert at Orchestra hall.

The children will sing John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Freedom," a selection written for the occasion. More than 3,500 public school pupils will be in the audience. Dr. Helen Howe, director or music for the board of education, is organizer of the chorus. Vocal music was introduced into Chicago's schools three years after Lowell Mason, known as the "father of public school music," carried music into Boston schools.

The program will be broadcast at 3:45 o'clock over W-G-N. The Wentworth school is at 6950 South Sangamon street, and the Ruggles school is at 7831 Prairie avenue. The address of the Peirce school is 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue,

In Operetta About South America

This is James Roberts' idea of a South American violinist. He will be one of the juveniles in the operetta, "Children of South America" to be given at the benefit fashion show sponsored by the Greater South Side Four Arts league Friday afternoon, March 13, in the Del Prado hotel. His accompanist is Mary Anne Christensen, 1510 East 85th street. Mary Anne and Robert, who lives at 1714 East 68th street, are two of the performers who have been selected for the show thru a talent contest conducted by the league. Proceeds of the show will go to the Illinois Protestant Children's home. [TRIBUNE photos.]

BOY SCOUT FUND DRIVE STARTED BY SOUTH SHORE

Workers Aid in Raising $90,000 in City.

Personnel for the 1942 finance drive by the South Shore Boy Scout district was named recently. The area is working to contribute its share toward the city-wide goal of $90,000. All the workers are volunteers. The district includes Shoreland, Woodlawn, Greater Roseland, and Blue Island.

District Finance Chairman Richard M. Lenihan, 7407 Paxton avenue, announced that funds from the campaign will be used to further Scouting in underprivileged areas; to provide for an accurate account of Scout advancement and achievement, and to furnish Scout groups with materials, ideas, and advice.

Directing the community drives are Fred Gillies, Shoreland; M. O. Mitchell, Triangle; A. R. Montgomery, Woodlawn; Henry Baumann, Blue Island; Charles Staff, Eastern; A. J. Teninga, Greater Roseland, and H. B. Fridstein, Hyde Park.

Following is a list of community workers:

Shoreland—Albert Blatti, J. P. McGoorty Jr., R. B. Vail, Peter Hanratty, Donald Walsh, Elmer Schneider, Elmer Walsh, Charles Pearson, John L. Rach, Robert Blain, Everett Haglund, Edward Stein, Robert Halladay, John Quigley, William Moeller, R. W. Seelinger, Ray Duffy, and Walter J. Reilly.

Woodlawn—Dr. W. J. Downing, Clarence Elliott, Dr. William Hillemeyer, Ralph Haycock, Dr. L. J. Hitz, Dr. L. H. Dill, Henry J. Beutel, Dr. Nels Nelson, Carl Rune, Leonard Van Stelle, George O'Toole, Dr. Frank P. Hammond, and Dr. Edward Franklin.

Blue Island—Roy Massena, T. F. Easton, Leslie McCord, George Oetjen, Dr. C. E. Felkers, E. J. Ankorn, Adam Kranich, Harold Volp, Maurice Schultz, Stephen Hoag, Louis Rauch, Charles Price, E. J. Warner, and John Steinhart.

Judith Pientka, 8651 Burnham avenue, will be a South American ballet dancer in the operetta. Several of the most talented children on the south side are scheduled to appear on the program.

Calumet Circle, Isabellans, to Hold Dinner Wednesday

A 6:30 o'clock dinner will be served Wednesday evening at the Better Home Institute club, 6902 South Normal boulevard, under the sponsorship of Calumet circle Daughters of Isabella. Mrs. Margaret McInerney, 7733 South Park avenue, is chairman. She is being assisted by Miss Sarah Hughes, 6759 Wentworth avenue.

Loretto Auxiliary Holding Annual Day of Recollection

The Loretto Woodlawn academy auxiliary will sponsor a day of recollection today. The exercises will be conducted by the Rev. Leander Conley between 9 and 3:30 o'clock in the school building at 1447 East 65th street. Mrs. Herman Voss, 2826 East 77th street, is chairman.

31 ENTER RACE FOR CONGRESS IN 5 DISTRICTS

Scramble for Last Place on Ballot.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Thirty-one would-be congressmen from the five districts that take in the south metropolitan area, the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, and 11th, have filed nominating petitions for the April 14 primary. This was announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes after the filing deadline last Monday.

Fourteen of the 31 were Democrats and 17 were Republicans, but only one candidate can be nominated by each party in each district in the primary, to run against each other for the Nov. 3 election. Five of the Democrats and 13 of the Republicans filed on the last day, altho petitions were accepted from Feb. 7 on.

The candidates had until last night to withdraw their names from the official primary ballots. It was presumed that several of those filed would take advantage of this withdrawal privilege. Some would be impelled by the hopelessness of their positions in view of strong opposition. Others would retire on instructions from their political sponsors, perhaps following deals with some of the stronger candidates.

Seek Last Place on Ballot.

The last day filing rush was attributed to the desire of the candidates to have their names appear at the bottom of the congressional lists on the ballots. Top position on the ballot is most sought after, and the bottom spot is next in the affections of the office seekers.

In the 11 Chicagoland districts a total of 76 candidates filed for the 22 nominations it is within the power of the voters to bestow. Of these, 34, or more than half, waited until the last day, presumably hoping for the coveted tail-end listing. Only one of the 76 is a woman. She is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, running for the Republican nomination in the 8th district.

Here is the stackup of congressional candidates by districts for the southern area:

FIRST DISTRICT

This district includes the loop, all of the 1st ward and parts of the 2d, 4th, and 11th wards.

On the Democratic side former Ald. William L. Dawson [2d] is in top ballot position. Dawson was the Republican nominee from the district in the 1938 election, but lost to Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, incumbent since 1934 who is retiring because the Democratic organization turned thumbs down on his labor voting record in the national house.

Next appears the name of Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, who was sent to the city council in 1939 after a three cornered fight among himself, Dawson, and William E. King. Dickerson was victorious over King in the council runoff.

In third and last spot is William S. McNamara, attorney who ran for municipal judge in the 1938 primary. He is the only white man filed in the 1st district Democratic race, both Dawson and Dickerson being colored.

On the Republican side former State Sen. William E. King heads the ballot list. The second name is that of Dr. Benjamin W. Mach, dentist who ran 10th in the 2d district primary two years ago. The tail-ender is Bindley C. Cyrus, 764 East Oakwood boulevard, a political unknown.

SECOND DISTRICT

This so-called "Hyde Park" district includes all the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 10th wards and parts of the 3d, 4th, 9th, 17th, and 19th wards.

The first name on the Democratic list is that of Ald William A. Rowan [10th] the Democratic organization's choice to succeed Congressman Raymond S. [Small Potatoes] McKeough, incumbent since 1934, who is the Cook county machine's candidate for the nomination for United States senator. It is followed by that of David X. Meyers, 5423 South Hyde Park boulevard.

Thomas J. Downs, 7726 South Shore drive, attorney who headed the Illinois Young Republican organization in 1936, tops the Republican list. Next comes the name of Frank O'Leath, 1624 East 56th street, insurance man who ran eighth in his political debut in the congressional primary two years ago. Next in order come Edward J. Murphy, 1962 East 71st place, and Maurice Washer, 7626 South Colfax avenue.

THIRD DISTRICT

This district includes all the 16th and 18th wards, parts of the 3d, 9th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, and 19th, and the townships of Lemont, Palos, Worth, Orland, Bremen, Thornton, Rich, Bloom, and Calumet.

Congressman Edward A. Kelly, incumbent since 1930, heads the Democratic listing. His petitions give his address as 7905 South Laflin street, altho he has a home in Flossmoor. His name is followed by that of Charles P. Kal, 6721 South Maplewood avenue. Third is the name of Eugene Thomas Horn, 6422 South Maplewood avenue, former Horner precinct captain who ran also in 1940. In the tail spot is the name of Ray

Married Recently

The marriage of Miss Alice Lerner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Lerner, 5346 Cornell avenue, to Charles Abrams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Abrams, 6611 South Racine avenue, took place recently in the home of the bridegroom's parents. A reception was held in the Empire room of the Palmer House. [H. Du Bois Photo.]

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lieut. C. R. Hummer, 6019 Harper avenue, has been graduated from the nation's only advanced observation flying school at Brooks field, Texas. Lieut. Hummer, an officer in the field artillery, now is waiting for assignment to a permanent tactical unit of the air corps. At Brooks he had 60 hours of actual flight training and 188 hours of ground school study. He also learned the technique of aerial photography. Lieut. Hummer is a graduate of the University of Illinois and a former passenger agent for the United Air Lines.

Aviation Cadets John K. Austin, 7631 Creiger avenue, and Richard J. Carroll, 7222 Luella avenue, recently completed the nine week period of basic training at the new air corps basic flying school at Lemoore, Cal. Their daily routine included athletics, drill, ground school, flying, study hours, and recreation.

Otto Newman, of 8813 Houston avenue, has been given the rating of aviation machinist mate third class at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla. He went to Pensacola in March, 1941, and was assigned to duty with the ground crew of one of the flying squadrons attached to the "Annapolis of the Air."

Private Allen H. Moss, 6450 Kenwood avenue, has been promoted to sergeant at Goodfellow field, San Angelo, Tex., the army air corps' basic flying school.

Private John E. De Silva, 7126 St. Lawrence avenue, has completed his basic training in the field artillery replacement center at Fort Sill, Okla., and has been transferred to the field artillery school for a special three months motor mechanics course.

Eugene C. Marcinko, 8222 Coles avenue, has been promoted to the grade of first sergeant in the army medical corps. He is in Company C, 30th medical training battalion at Camp Grant, Ill.

Three south siders recently qualified as marksmen in the 40th training battalion at Camp Croft, S. C. They are Alexander Pilurs, 6645 Kenwood avenue; Severyn Teibloom, 1021 East 43d street, and Jason Cohen, 1723 East 71st street. Teibloom was highest of the three with a score of 200.

CATHOLIC WOMEN MEET THURSDAY AT SOUTHMOOR

South Side Catholic Woman's club will hold its first meeting of the month Thursday evening in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue. Richard Finnegan, Chicago newspaper man, will be the speaker.

Mrs. E. E. O'Reilly, 7919 South May street, president of the club, will introduce Mrs. J. B. Simson, president of the 2d district, Federation of Women's Clubs, and her board of directors. Miss Margaret Leddow, dramatic soprano formerly of Vienna, Austria, will sing, accompanied by Max Rudolphe.

The club's Red Cross home nursing class meets every Tuesday afternoon in the Southmoor. Soldiers and sailors will be guests of the club at the National Catholic community center, 1122 South Wabash avenue, Saturday evening, March 14.

SOUTHEAST SIDE NAMES MOST OF BLOCK CAPTAINS

Volunteer Workers Show Enthusiasm.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The great majority of southeast side block captains in the civilian defense organization have been elected, a survey of communities in that section revealed last week. Southeast side community commanders also reported that the spirit and enthusiasm of volunteer workers is encouraging. "We can't give them enough work to do," many commanders said.

The southeast side takes in all of Civilian Defense division 1 and about half of the communities in division 2. Community commanders were appointed by Mayor Kelly, the United States coördinator for the Chicago area. They are responsible for the election of block captains and for all defense problems in their communities. Usually they rank among the most patriotic, civic minded, and hard working members of their neighborhoods. Their occupations range from the juke box business to the law profession.

Division Chiefs Business Men.

James Gately, 10655 Hoyne avenue, and Clarence Poffenberger, 3944 Cottage Grove avenue, are chiefs of division 2 and 1, respectively. Mr. Gately is the owner of a department store in Roseland and a member of the Calumet Commercial club. Mr. Poffenberger is vice president of the Drexel National bank, where he has worked for 33 years, and has been active in community affairs. His home is at 10925 Bell avenue.

Communities included in division 1 and their commanders are as follows:

Armour Square. Frank Cacciatore, 2554 Wentworth avenue, also is president of the First Ward Young Republicans club, Red Cross representative in the district, and a member of the St. Francis Xavier council of the Knights of Columbus and the Chicago and South Central Real Estate boards. He has always resided in the community.

China Town. Hone Wu, 2216 Wentworth avenue, has been secretary of the Chinese Merchants association 12 years and is a social worker with the Chinese Relief association. Previously he was in the restaurant business. He has resided in the community 45 years and was registered in the draft during the first World war.

Hyde Park. George X. Rosenthal, haberdasher, who lives at 1003 East 55th street, is a member of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club, the Hyde Park-Kenwood-Oakland Community council, the Hyde Park Property Owners association, and the Sinai Temple Men's club. He says he is "very much eligible for the army." In 1918 he was in the Tuley High school ROTC. All the block captains in Hyde Park have been elected and are working, he reports.

Kiwanis Club President.

Jackson Park. Ralph Silverwood, 1505 East 67th street, is president of the Woodlawn-South Shore Kiwanis club and a member of the Chicago Real Estate association. All block captains in the community have been elected. Headquarters are maintained at 2324 East 71st street.

Kenwood. Frank Rainey, 1222 East 47th street, undertaker, is a past president of the Kenwood Chamber of Commerce and currently chairman of the board, as well as a member of the Hyde Park Lions club. He served in the last war as a major, but is ineligible for this war. All his block captains have been elected.

Oakland. Andy Nelson, 1119 East 42d street, a coal dealer, has lived in the community 35 years and is a past president of the Oakland Business Men's association, director of the Oakland-Kenwood Property Owners league, and a member of the local chamber of commerce and American Legion post. He served in the last war and is eligible for this one. Community headquarters are located at 3935 Drexel boulevard. All block captains have been elected.

Juke Box Dealer Named.

Near South Side. Fred Morelli, 2132 Wabash avenue, a juke box dealer, is 42 years old and has a family of four. His 30 employés are coöperating with him on civilian defense work in the community, he says.

Douglas. Oscar C. Brown, 454 East Pershing road, an attorney, is president of the Chicago branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a director of the Chicago Urban league. He was a major in the last war and is eligible for this war. Seventy-five per cent of his block captains have been elected.

Pekin. Corneal Davis, 3201 Wabash avenue, who is employed as a city clerk, is a Scout executive of the South Side Settlement house, and activities director of Quinn chapel. A veteran of the last war, he is eligible for this one. Ninety-eight per cent of his block captains have been elected.

Active in YMCA Work.

Washington Park. A. W. Williams, 4719 Indiana avenue, is active in the Wabash Avenue YMCA and has resided in the neighborhood 15 years.

DEFENSE HEADS BEGIN TASKS ON SOUTHEAST SIDE

Block Captains Nearly All Elected; Open Quarters.

He is in the life insurance business. Community headquarters are at 4703 South Park way.

Park Manor. Frank Maguire, 7004 Calumet avenue, an attorney, was not eligible for the last war but may see service in this one. Community headquarters have not been located yet, but 85 per cent of the block captains have been elected.

Woodlawn. Joseph Fitzgerald, 1436 East 65th street, an attorney, is a member of the Chicago Bar association and may see service in the war.

List Southeast Heads.

Southeast side communities in division 2 and their commanders follow:

Avalon Park. Gerald Getty, 8152 Stony Island avenue is a lawyer and has been in the district 15 years. He is a member of the Avalon Park Business Men's association and Genoa council of the Knights of Columbus. All the block captains have been elected. Headquarters are at 8210 Stony Island avenue.

Calumet Heights. George Nelson, 2117 East 93d street, has resided in the community only three years, but has been working with civilian headquarters in the loop since it wa established. He is 27 years old, and youth director of an insurance company. His home is the community defense headquarters. All his block captains have been elected. Nine of them are women.

Chatham. John D. Harris, 7900 Drexel avenue, a retail druggist, is president of the Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Rhodes Community club. He is 31 years old, and has lived in the community for seven years. Ninety-five per cent of his block captains have been elected. Headquarters are in the Chatham branch library.

Wants to Be in Navy.

Chesterfield. Pat C. Noonan, 709 East 87th street, a lawyer, has resided in his block for 36 years—all his life. He is a member of the Irish club and the Rose Community club, and is anxious to be accepted by the navy.

Grand Crossing. Walter Feldhoff, 7350 Cottage Grove avenue, an undertaker, is past president of the Chatham Lions club and program chairman of the Grand Crossing Business Men's association. He has resided at his present address for 20 years, and has four children. The new community headquarters at 7447 Cottage Grove avenue, he says, is being opened this week-end. Ninety-two per cent of the block captains have been elected. There will be a meeting of them at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

East Side. George Deming, 10448 Avenue F, a correspondence school supervisor for the last 12 years, has been in the neighborhood since 1926, and is active in the East Side Chamber of Commerce. Because 40 per cent of the city's electricity is generated in the district and several major trunk lines cross the Calumet river there, he says, the community has been carrying on civilian defense work for a year. Only one more class is necessary to complete the training of the first Red Cross group.

Youngest Commander Is 25.

Hegewisch. Eugene Czachorski, 13304 Brandon avenue, 25 years old, is the youngest of the south side commanders. He is attorney for the community and president of the local chamber of commerce. He is anxious to join any branch of the service that will take him. So far he has been consistently turned down because of poor eyesight. Most of his block captains have been elected.

Russell Square. Stephen Bubach, 3160 East 83d street, has lived in the neighborhood all of his 32 years, and is program director of the St. Michael's Boys club and organizer of the St. Michael's Fathers' club. All zone and block captains have been chosen, he reports, and the eager volunteers are waiting for instruction. The community takes in groups of 25 different national descents.

South Chicago. Edward A. Dovick, 8101 Houston avenue, was born and has lived for 48 years in the district. He is in the roofing business. During the last war he was a sergeant in France. Now he is a member of the South Chicago American Legion post and a director of the local bank and the chamber of commerce. One hundred sixty-eight out of 180 block captains have been elected.

South Deering. Carl G. Buck, 10317 Bensley avenue, formerly was president of the South Deering Improvement association for six years. He is in the painting and decorating business, and has lived in the community for 18 years.

South Shore. John P. Quigley, 2221 East 71st street, is in the real estate business. He i also president of the local community council and a director of the local chamber of commerce, the Woodlawn-South Shore Kiwanis club, and the St. Philip Neri council of the Knights of Columbus. He has lived in the neighborhood for 27 years. Over 95 per cent of the block captains have been elected, and the organization is coöperating with 13 first aid classes in the district. General meetings are held at 75th street and Essex avenue, where the administrative staff is located.

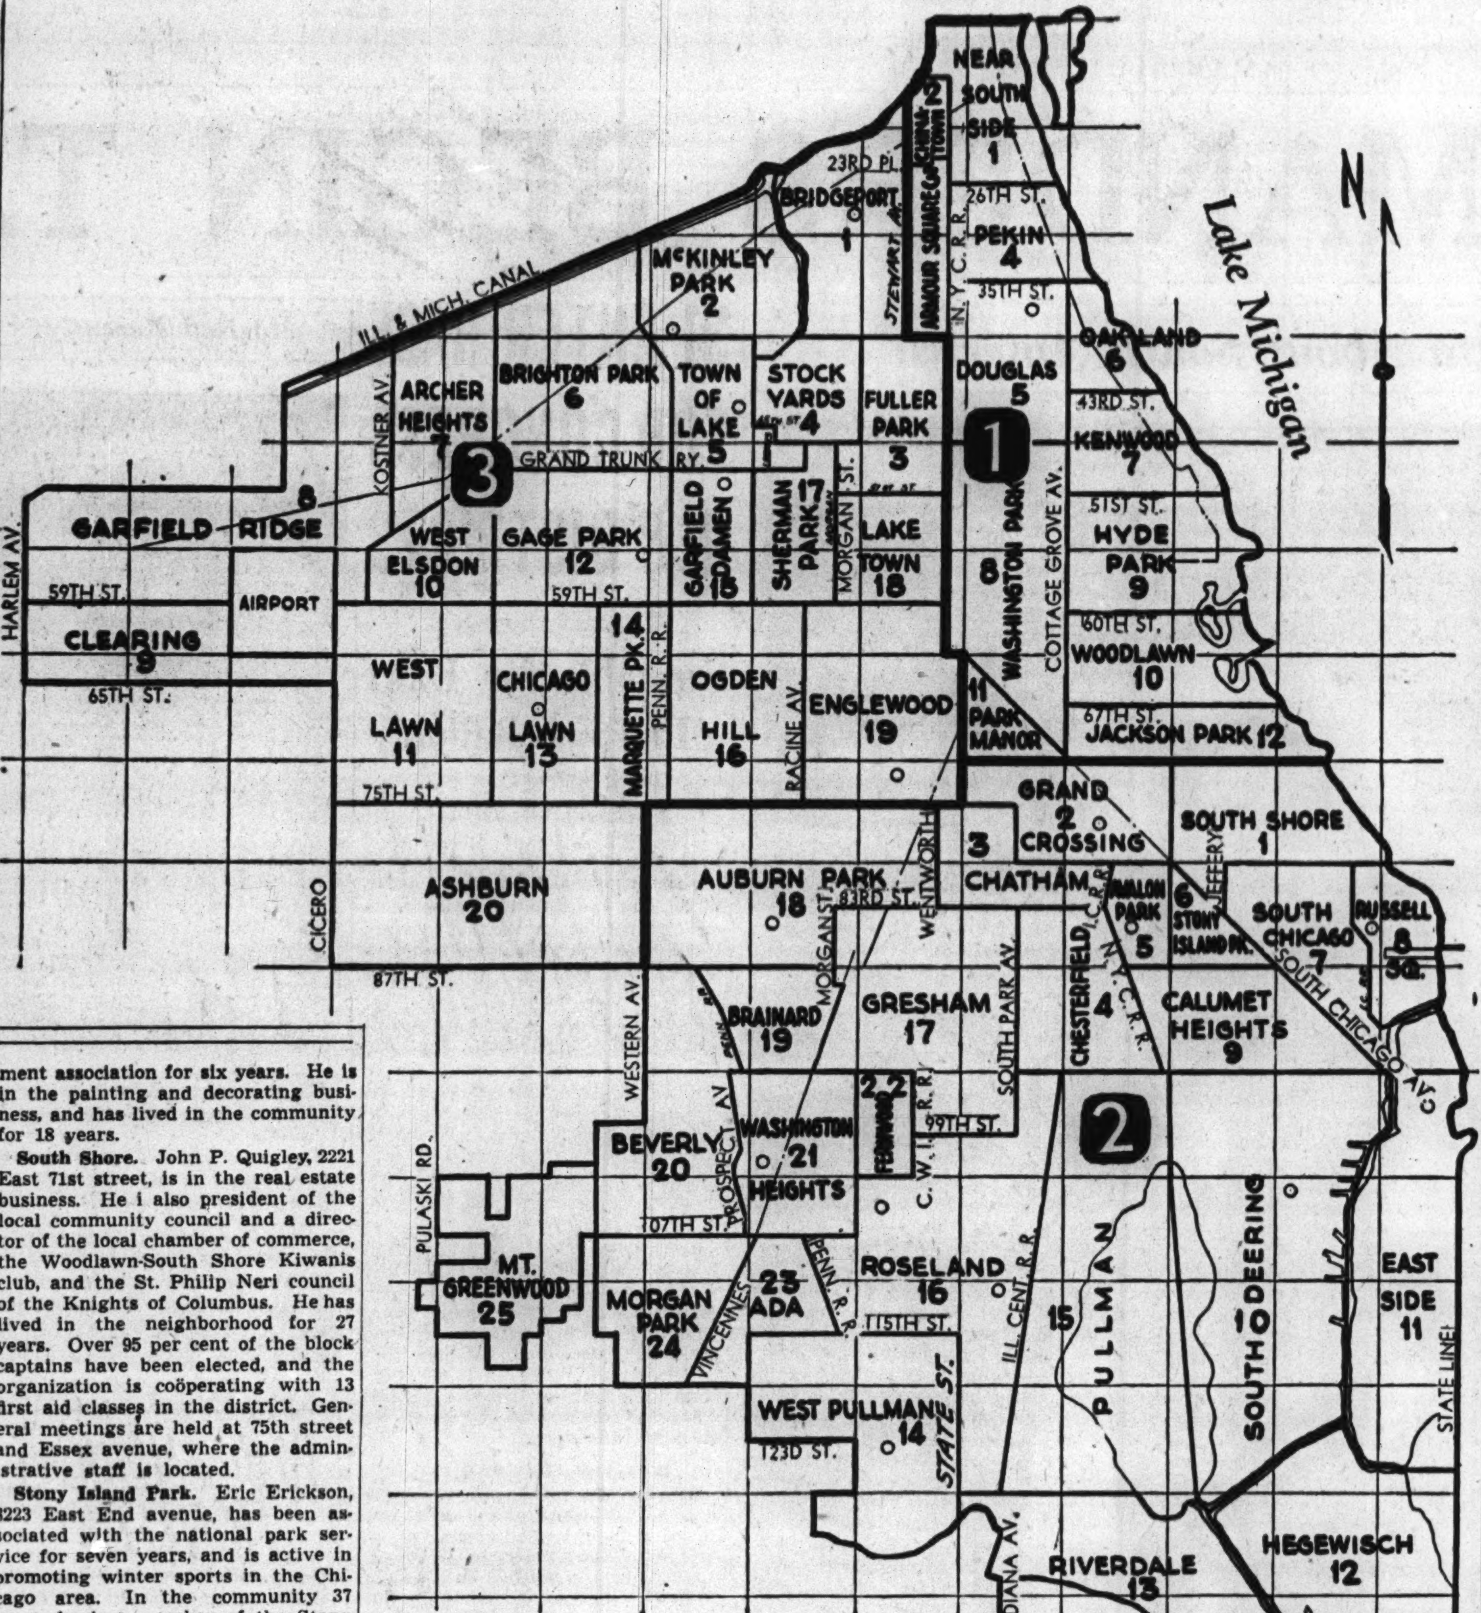
Stony Island Park. Eric Erickson, 8223 East End avenue, has been associated with the national park service for seven years, and is active in promoting winter sports in the Chicago area. In the community 37 years, he is a member of the Stony Island Park Civic association. All his block captains have been elected, tho permanent headquarters have not been established yet.

Meat Dealer Included.

Gresham. James E. Smith, has been a retail meat dealer in the community for 20 years. A World War I. veteran, Smith also is president of the Kiwanis club of Southwest Chicago, a past president of the Gresham Business Men's association, a member of the board of the Beverly YMCA, and a voting member of the Chicago YMCA. His district is comprised of 295 blocks.

Pullman - Riverdale - Roseland - West Pullman. These four adjacent communities have been entrusted to Leslie Beck, 10832 Forest avenue. Mr. Beck also is director of civilian defense division 2, which takes in all communities south of 71st street. He was born in Pullman 40 years ago, and has made his home in that district since. He's a member of the Porcupine club, a business men's organization in Pullman; the Elks club, and has been secretary of the 9th ward Democratic organization for 10 years. He is a city employé, working as general secretary in the bureau of engineering. In his area, which extends from 95th street to the southern city limits, Ashland avenue to Lake Calumet, there are 896 blocks, and a total of 125,000 residents.

Designate Community Areas for Civilian Defense Purposes on South Side



Civilian defense activities on the south side are directed thru three divisions. Each division is divided into communities, each with a commander. Inside the communities are block captains and their wardens and assistants. Community commanders have been appointed thruout the area and most of the block captains have been elected. The organization plan places great responsibility on the community commander. Short biographies of the commanders appear in this issue.

Thirteenth district: Walter E. Edin, 7730 Langley avenue.

DEMOCRATIC.

First district: Thomas Muscato, 809 South State street.

Fifth district: John J. Jackson, 214 East 48th street; Hardy B. Ruffin, 5938 Indiana avenue; Henry Moore, 4809 Calumet avenue.

Thirteenth district: Stanley Fryzel, 11841 South Morgan street.

Members of senatorial committees determine how many candidates each party shall nominate in each district for the Illinois house of representatives. These party committees also are empowered to fill vacancies on the ballot if nominees die or are disqualified before the November election.

CCC Adviser to Address Pan-Hellenic Council

The Pan-Hellenic council, coöperating with Grace Presbyterian church, 3600 Vincennes avenue, will present Edgar G. Brown at the Community forum in the church at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Brown is adviser on Negro affairs to the office of the director of the CCC. The council consists of eight national Greek letter fraternities and sororities.

JACK AND JILL PLAYERS TO GIVE OPENING DRAMAS

Seven children from the south area will participate in the opening of the Jack and Jill Players' new theater and training school at 180 East Delaware street Friday evening and Saturday afternoon.

They are Mary Necasek, 5418 Woodlawn avenue; Jackie Dvorak, 5506 Honore street; Greta Goldberg, 7038 East End avenue; Therese Gregalunas, 2720 East 76th street; Roland Butterfield, 8754 Elizabeth street; Jack Chalbeck, 8143 Ellis avenue, and Holly Woodcock of Gary.

A bill of one act plays will be given Friday evening and the next afternoon there will be a presentation of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

31 ENTER RACE FOR CONGRESS IN SOUTH AREA

17 G.O.P., 14 Democrats Seek Five Posts.

H. McCarthy, 6428 South Maplewood avenue.

Fred E. Busbey, 9144 South Hoyne, for many years an Americanism worker in the Illinois department of the American Legion, leads the G. O. P. list. Next is Arthur R. Ayers, 11118 Artesian avenue, teacher of architecture in Lindblom High school since 1922, a political newcomer. In last spot is the name of former Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, who has been practicing law since the Democratic landslide of 1936 dislodged him from the bench. Lyle ran for mayor in 1932.

FOURTH DISTRICT

The 4th includes all the 12th ward and parts of the 2d, 3d, 11th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th wards.

Master in Chancery Martin Gorski of the Superior court heads the Democratic list as the city hall organization's man for the spot from which Congressman Harry P. Beam, incumbent since 1930, is retiring to run for municipal judge in the Democratic primary. Beam's house voting record is said to have displeased Polish elements in his district. The other Democratic names in order are those of Leo F. Flynn, 518 Root street; John A. Shulmistras, 4016 Archer avenue, and Frank Wozniak, 5000 South Racine avenue, all rated as secondary candidates.

Five men little known in politics make up the Republican roster. They are, in order of their filing: Max F. Rynkar, 4240 South Washtenaw avenue; Arthur Joseph Rutshaw, 852 West 50th place; James A. McGrath, 3612 South Union avenue; Edward A. Chill, 2831 West 23d street, and Walter Skalecki, 4213 South Albany avenue. All but Rynkar were in a last day scramble for last place on the G. O. P. ballot.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

The 11th is made up of the counties of Du Page, Kane, Will, and McHenry, which hem the first 10 districts against Lake Michigan from the Indiana state line to Wisconsin.

Sam Joseph Perry of Glen Ellyn, in Du Page county, former state representative from the 41st senatorial district, is the only Democrat filed for congress in this district.

Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, also in Du Page county, incumbent since 1934, has only one challenger in the Republican primary. He is Thomas M. Jennings, 80th avenue and Woodvale road, Frankfort [in Will county], former carpenter now a shipping department employé in a Whiting chemical plant.

Weds South Sider

Mr. and Mrs. George Cowen of Lanesboro, Minn., announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to James T. Donahue, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donahue of 4539 Ellis avenue, at St. Patrick's church in Lanesboro. The bride is the daughter of one of the pioneer families of Minnesota.

Service to Honor Memory of Robert S. Abbott Today

The annual memorial service for Robert S. Abbott, founder of The Chicago Defender, will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Metropolitan Community church, 4106 South Park way. Roscoe Conkling Simmons will be the principal speaker. The service will be held under auspices of the Wabash Avenue YMCA religious work committee. Edward M. Graham is chairman.

TWO CLUBS PICK COMMITTEES TO CHOOSE OFFICERS

Second District Groups Meet This Week.

Mrs. E. W. Arnold.
[Corboy photo].

Nominating committees to choose candidates for next year's officers were named last week by the Hyde Park Travel club and the Chatham Fields Woman's club. The groups are members of the Second District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Chairman of the travel club committee is Mrs. Robert C. Jordan, 6905 Crandon avenue. Other members are Mrs. M. N. Lovewell, 7631 Luella avenue, and Mrs. Edward L. Berry, 5807 Dorchester avenue.

At 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon members will see a sound movie entitled "Wheels Cross India," showing a journey from Taj Mahal to Tibet. Mrs. E. W. Arnold, 6806 Jeffery avenue, program chairman, arranged the presentation.

Chosen for the Chatham Fields nominating committee are Mrs. L. J. Van Horn, 8116 Kenwood avenue; Mrs. C. C. De Muyt, 8238 Champlain avenue; Mrs. George Weathered, 8210 Champlain avenue; Mrs. E. C. Bing, 8212 Champlain avenue, and Mrs. H. G. Carlson, 8032 Ingleside avenue.

Arche Club.

Members will hold a business meeting at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Castillian room of Hotel Shoreland. Nomination of officers, directors, membership committees, and delegates to the 1942 state convention will take place.

Bryn Mawr Woman's Club.

E. Gordon Fox, engineer in Russia and Holland for nine years, will present "Holland Highlights," a color movie, before members tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Paul Burns, public welfare chairman, will have charge of the program. Mrs. Floyd Peckham will preside at the monthly business meeting at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. STUDENT REVUE OPENS THURSDAY AT U. OF CHICAGO

Men and Girls to Pool Talent This Year.

(Picture in rotogravure section.)

The Mirror and Blackfriars student groups of the University of Chicago will combine their annual shows for the first time in the school's history Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings when they present "Include Me Out," a musical revue. The show, which will be given in Mandel hall on the campus, is a benefit for the Fort Sheridan Community Fund.

"Include Me Out," created entirely by the students, deals with a Hollywood producer who is perturbed over the poor reception of his pictures in a midwestern college. The authors of the book are Frank Kenney, 7555 Yates avenue, and Dick Lieber of Carmel, Ind.

Thirty-six Girls in Chorus.

There will be 25 students in the show plus 36 girls and 25 men in the choruses. Members of the Mirror board are Dorothy Teberg, 7428 Phillips avenue, president; Shirley Borman of St. Charles; Shirley Latham, 1159 East 56th street; Dorothy Wendrick, 10436 Hoyne avenue, and Ruth Wehlan, 6239 Ellis avenue.

Thirty-sixth Blackfriars' Show.

The Blackfriars, one of the oldest all-male groups in the country, will be staging its 36th consecutive production. It will be the 17th annual Mirror show. The groups pooled their talent for this year's revue because of war conditions.

Maj. Gen. James M. Cummins and Col. F. P. Rogers and their wives have been named sponsors of the show.

SOUTH CENTRAL PTA COUNCIL TO STAGE PLAY DAY

Units to Compete Tuesday at Ruggles School.

The South Central council of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold its annual Play day at 12:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Ruggles school, 7831 Prairie avenue. Competition of choral groups, dramatic groups and kitchen bands will be held among local units in the council. Judges will be Mrs. C. W. Balch, Mrs. M. K. Griswold, and Mrs. W. C. Broaddus.

De La Salle Mothers—Members will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the school library. A program will be presented by the freshman department.

Mount Carmel Mothers—A board meeting and luncheon will be held at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Del Prado hotel. Mrs. John Rieman and Mrs. Robert La Dow will be hostesses.

ASK NIGHT TIME ROUTE MARKERS ON HIGHWAY 312

The necessity for reflector buttons for marking route 312, Chicago avenue, between Hammond and East Chicago and for traffic signals at the crossing of the Nickel Plate railroad at Ridge and Grant streets in Gary were discussed at the last meeting of the Lake County Area council of the Chicago Motor club in Gary.

Chief of Police Thomas Martinson of Hammond pointed out that motorists on route 312 become confused where the tracks of the South Shore railway turn off Chicago avenue and drivers tend to follow the tracks instead of the main highway. F. E. Bernoske, district engineer for the state highway commission, said that the state would consider putting in these markers.

Engineers for the city of Gary, the state highway department, and the Nickel Plate railroad reported to the meeting that traffic signals were being considered for the road's crossing at Ridge and Grant streets in Gary. During four years there have been 23 recorded accidents at this intersection, only 3 of of which involved trains. Fifteen of the accidents were right angle collisions between automobiles.

15 SOUTH SIDERS ARE HONORED AT ROSARY COLLEGE

Fifteen south side girls were listed on the honor roll published recently at Rosary college in River Forest. Rannking highest among them was Betty Ryan, 7742 Clyde avenue, a sophomore who maintained a straight A average.

Three seniors, Mary Ann Lund, Margaret Lally, and Jane Gleason, also made the honor roll.

Player in Melodrama Tonight

Mrs. Robert Nathan, 7203 Yates avenue, has a role in the old-fashioned melodrama, "Who Will Pay the Mortgage?" to be given this evening by the Sinai seniors in the Sinai Temple congregation house at 4622 South Parkway. The program is entitled "The March of Fun No. 2."

SINAI SENIORS GIVING VARIETY SHOW TONIGHT

Drama Group to Offer Old Fashioned Revue.

Dorothy Schumann.

Fun instead of discussion will be the purpose of the meeting of the Sinai congregation seniors this evening in the community house at 4622 South Park way. In place of the customary lecture period, the drama group will present the "March of Fun No. 2" under the direction of Marshall Zeman.

A burlesque entitled "Who Will Pay the Mortgage?" will be a highlight of the old-fashioned revue. Playing in the skit, which was written by Miss Charlotte Libman with music by Mrs. Victor Herzog, are Louis G. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Herzog, Miss Dorothy Schumann, Mr. Zeman, Miss Libman, Miss Jeanne Rice, Robert A. Hart, Solbert Levinson, Herbert Vehon, Robert Herzog, David Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nathan, and Milton Falker.

Soloists will be Miss Frances Heller, Richard Lowenstein, Miss Rose Snitzer, and Miss Doris Samuels.

The South Side Council of Jewish Clubs will hold its annual bowling tournament at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Hollywood Bowl, 6855 Stony Island avenue.

* * *

The ancient festival of Purim will be observed at the College of Jewish Studies at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in Bialik hall, 220 South State street. Dr. S. Felix Mendelsohn, author of "Let Laughter Ring," will speak on "Ancient and Modern Purim Lore."

* * *

Morale in war time will be the theme of the meeting of the sisterhood of Temple Isaiah Israel Wednesday afternoon in the Community house. The speaker will be the Rev. Robert Turner of the First Unitarian church. A talk also will be given by Miss Marjorie Reis of the disaster canteen service of the Red Cross.

PULLMAN SCHOOL HONORS FOUNDER TUESDAY NIGHT

The 111th anniversary of the birthday of George M. Pullman will be celebrated Tuesday evening with an open house at Pullman Free School of Manual Training. The school was started by Mr. Pullman for the benefit of children of his car shop employés. The celebration will be a homecoming for alumni.

All the shops and classes will be open for inspection during the evening and students will illustrate the way they work. This will start at 8 o'clock after a concert by the school band. Children will be admitted only if accompanied by their parents.

During the evening the class of 1922 will observe its 20th anniversary. Donald Goldie is president of the alumni and Urban G. Willis has been principal for 22 years.

W-G-N TO NAME MARION CLAIRE SONG WINNERS

Fans Will Be Guests at Special Broadcast.

Members of the Theater of the Air club chapters from Chicagoland and other points as far east as Brooklyn and as far south as Austin, Tex., will be guests of W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday for a special Marion Claire night honoring the soprano prima donna of the operetta broadcasts. The program will be aired on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual.

A feature of the broadcast will be the announcement of the winners in the $1,000 Marion Claire contest to select "which song from which operetta you best like to hear Marion Claire sing."

Miss Claire will read the names of the winners and will sing the operetta selection chosen by the winning contestant.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Judges reviewed thousands of entries received from 27 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the Marion Claire contest. During the program Miss Claire will sing her favorite operetta selection as well as that chosen by the radio audience as its favorite.

The Theater of the Air club lists more than 300 chapters from coast to coast with a membership of 7,156. The chapter members meet every Saturday night to listen to the operetta broadcasts on W-G-N and Mutual and many of the chapters have become active forces for the "best in music" in their communities.

Singing with Miss Claire in the broadcast will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of many of the operetta programs, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire will extend a personal welcome to the club members who will be guests at the broadcast.

Emanuel Feuerman to Be Symphony's Guest Soloist

Emanuel Feuerman, famous concert cellist, will be the guest soloist with the Philadelphia orchestra during its exclusive broadcast on W59C and the Mutual network at 1:45 p. m. Friday. The complete program:

Concerto in A minor..........Vivaldi
Concerto in D major for 'cello, orchestra..........Haydn
Emanuel Feuerman.
Don Quixote..........Strauss
Emanuel Feuerman and Violinist Samuel Lifschey.

The concert will originate in the Philadelphia Academy of Music. Norris West will be the intermission commentator.

Phil La Follette to Speak on 'Our First Job' Friday

Phil LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will be heard on W59C's exclusive broadcast from the luncheon meeting of the Chicago Executives club, from 1:05 to 1:45 p. m. Friday. La Follette will discuss "Our First Job."

Mary Hurlburt Wed

Miss Mary Hurlburt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hurlburt, 6711 East End avenue, recently became the bride of Joseph Warren McNichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McNichols, 7504 Cornell avenue. The wedding took place in St. Laurence church.

Nation's Morale, Subject of Review Stand Today

The Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will discuss the nation's morale in its broadcast over W-G-N from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today. Dr. Franz Alexander, director of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis, will take part in the discussion with Angus Campbell, psychologist, at Northwestern, and Paul Meadows, sociologist. Parker Wheatley is the moderator of the Reviewing Stand.

Daumier to Be Subject of Great Artists' Show

The means by which one cartoon by Honore Daumier, famed French cartoonist and artist, accomplished a social change in the days immediately following the French revolution will be dramatized on W-G-N's "Great Artists" program at 2:15 p. m. Wednesday.

SHADOW ROUNDS OUT 12 YEARS AS A THRILLER

Onetime Villain Turns to Justice Crusade.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just 12 years ago this week "The Shadow" radio series was launched. For many years it has been an established feature over the Mutual network [currently 4:30 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N]. It has been a trail blazer for all the radio "Ellery Queens," "Sherlock Holmes," "Thin Mans," and other thrillers and whodults.

In the beginning the Shadow [who enjoys the highest listening audience of any day time radio show according to recent surveys] was a shocker. The Shadow was more or less a villain in the days when Frank Readick played the part. The character began improving during the tenure of the spectacular Orson Welles. In recent years, with Bill Johnstone in the title rôle and Marjorie Anderson as his girl friend, Margot Lane, the Shadow has become a hero.

While he still his his eerie laugh, with the aid of a filter microphone, the Shadow doesn't fly thru space, hypnotize characters, and, in general, behave like Superman.

Shadow Is Invisible.

The only edge he has on the other performers is that he can become invisible—the program writers had to do that to give the dramas the kind of zing and suspense they require.

The kids didn't care very much about the enormity of "The Shadow's" early crimes. Bombing of Grand Central station, gassing New York or 'Frisco—they took 'em in stride.

Current "Shadow" episodes don't go that far. But they're gaudy enough—recent scrips had a villain killed by the kiss of a jackdaw with a cyanide tipped beak, a great dane devouring a killer midget, a gorilla cracking his master's skull. Another session has a poisoned fog enveloping a crew of jewel thieves and choking them to death.

Crusades for Justice.

And here's another revision of the early Shadow character. He never kills anybody directly. He just aggravates them to the point of surrendering or confounds them with so much cleverness they commit suicide. He's strictly a crusader for justice.

Sid Slon and Peter Barry are the regular writers and Bill Tutle supervises scripts. They like fantastic ideas. Among those used have been a saga tagged "The Man Who Murdered Time."

Time stopped everywhere in the world and kept repeating itself like a broken record. The same people kept dying, the same auto accidents occurred, the same dictators made the same promises. Finally "The Shadow" found out why—a mad scientist, afraid of dying, had stopped time cold.

"The Laughing Corpse" was another ambitious fantasy. Two doctors laughed themselves to death, but "The Shadow" was suspicious—found out an associate was knocking them off with a drug that caused convulsions resembling laughter.

W-G-N LISTENER PROVIDES CHURCH BELL FOR AFRICA

A church bell that for years called to worship the people of Hamilton, Mo., is now on the high seas, traveling the long road to Rhodesia, Africa, because of an appeal made on W-G-N-Mutual's public service program, "This Is Life." Each "This Is Life" broadcast describes the cases of deserving people who need the listeners' assistance.

A short time ago "This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and Mutual Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 11:15 a. m., broadcast a letter from William B. West, an engineer who had just returned from a church construction project in Rhodesia, Africa. The church was almost completed, wrote Mr. West, but lacked a bell. Nowhere in that dark African region could one be located, and the mission had no money to import one from the outside. So, because he had heard what "This Is Life" listeners had done to find needed articles, West appealed to them.

Many offers were received, but the majority of them—for bells that were too large—had to be rejected. Finally Mrs. Oscar Axton of Hamilton, Mo., offered one that was just the right size. Her offer was accepted. Soon Rhodesians may be hearing a bell that once pealed in the heart of the United States.

Melody Matinee to Offer Favorite American Songs

A new program titled "Melody Matinée," based on the theory that radio holds no finer enjoyment than lovely melodies smoothly played, will be heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 12:30 to 1 p. m. The program is devoted to favorite American songs, arranged and presented by outstanding conductors and singers. Today's program will include selections from "New Moon," "Carioca," Jerome Kern's beautiful "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Among My Souvenirs," "Yours Is My Heart Alone," and "Anniversary Waltz."

STOCK TO LEAD ORCHESTRA IN F-M PREMIER

New Carpenter Song on W59C Wednesday.

Margery Lindquist.
[Carmen-Winger.]

The first Frequency Modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented by W59C, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. Wednesday. The Mutual network will broadcast the concert, conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock in Chicago's Orchestra hall, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

A 240 voice choir from the public schools, observing the centenary of vocal training in the Chicago schools, will be featured during the broadcast. The concert will open with the choir and orchestra presenting "The Star Spangled Banner" under the direction of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

A highlight of the concert will be the world première of "March and Song to Freedom," by John Alden Carpenter, noted Chicago composer. Mr. Carpenter wrote this composition in celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the school system. The choir will sing during the première presentation of this work.

Soloist on the program, one of the regular children's concerts by the Chicago Symphony, will be Margery Lindquist, young soprano of Oak Park. Miss Lindquist will sing the Recitative and Polonaise from "Mignon" by Thomas.

The program also will include: the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini; opus 67 of the Andante con moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony; "The American Patrol" by Meachem; the "Marche Slav," opus 31, by Tschaikowsky, and Sousa's stirring march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

SCHOOL CHORUS WILL SING ON SUNDAY CONCERT

The Greenfield Village Mixed chorus will sing traditional folk songs on the Sunday Evening hour over WBBM-CBS at 8 tonight.

The chorus, formed of school children, will sing Bortniansky's "Cherubim Song" unaccompanied. It is to be joined by the orchestra in Sibelius' "Onward, Ye Peoples!" Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz," Tucker's "Sweet Genevieve," "In a Monastery Garden" by Ketelby, the Campbell-Tipton "A Siprit Flower," and Fletcher's "Song of Victory." The choral program also includes traditional airs from Scotland, Ireland and Wales—"Annie Laurie," "The Ash Grove," and "Bendemeer's Stream."

The program also includes recitation of two poems, Richard LeGallienne's "After the War," recited by Harriet Bennett, and "In School Days" by Whittier.

'Easy Money' to Expose Crooked Gambler Tonight

Mike Romano, radio actor who worked for a time in the state's attorney's office, will be heard in the rôle of Fennette, the operator of a crooked gambling house, on W-G-N's exposé series, "Easy Money," to be aired at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Fennette runs afoul Mike Trent, masked detective, who exposes him.

RUTH SLATER IS GUEST ON 'MUSIC THAT ENDURES'

Ruth Slater, contralto star of opera and the concert stage who is regularly heard on FM station W59C each Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be guest soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's "Music That Endures" program, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be featured with Miss Slater.

Miss Slater will sing "Dedication" by Franz and "Come to the Fair" by Martin. She will also appear with the chorus in Schubert's hymn, "Omnipotence."

The orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber will play the finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and "The Angelus" from Hadley's Third Symphony. They will join the augmented chorus in the presentation of "God's Country," hit tune from the musical comedy, "Babes in Arms."

PROPAGANDA TO BE SUBJECT OF ROUND TABLERS

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, will discuss "Propaganda—Good and Bad" on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

MacLeish, whose office approves the release of information on the war program, will participate in the round table discussion with Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the library of congress, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of the humanities at the University of Chicago.

The speakers will discuss the need for honesty in propaganda and measure the effects of present propaganda procedures in the United States upon morale at home and abroad.

AT 76, SHE KNITS 'ALL THE TIME' FOR RED CROSS

Piles Up 1,700 Hours of War Work in Year.

Mrs. Becky Kalick.

The most productive member of the South Shore Red Cross chapter is Mrs. Becky Kalick, 7116 East End avenue, a small, frail, 76 year old grandmother. Knitting "all the time" five and a half days a week, she has piled up 1,700 hours of volunteer service in a year. It takes two units of the chapter to feed her enough material to keep her busy.

Since the war began for America, Mrs. Kalick has seldom left the house, preferring to stay home and knit shawls, sweaters, baby blankets or anything else the chapter requests. Recently when she took a three week trip to Springfield, Ill., to visit a married daughter, she passed her time there making articles for the local Red Cross chapter.

"My children say I never stop, except when I'm sleeping," she laughs. "But when they tell me to put the stuff down and rest, I say why shouldn't I keep working all the time if it's for such a good cause? Besids, I'd rather knit than do anything else."

Makes Four Shawls a Week.

Mrs. Kalick turns out approximately 3½ or 4 shawls a week. She works right thru the day, listening to one radio serial after another. Friday, however, is her holiday and she quits work at noon Saturdays. Mrs. Sylvia Gould, a daughter who resides with her, supplies the material from chapter headquarters. The finished shawls, which are 44 inches in diameter, are sent to refugees abroad and the sweaters to American prisoners interned abroad.

Tho she never had worked at such a tremendous knitting pace before, Mrs. Kalick has been using a needle dextrously for 65 years. Born in Poland, she came to America when she was 11 years old. At that time she learned to crochet and she acquired a knack for copying patterns in newspapers and magazines. She is especially fond, she adds, of patterns offered in THE TRIBUNE.

Sewed for Her 7 Children.

After her marriage 53 years ago she kept in practice by sewing garments for her seven children. She has made everything from napkins and table cloths to doll clothes for her numerous descendants.

Mrs. Kalick's five daughters also sew for the Red Cross. They are Mrs. Mamie Wolfe, of Evansville, Ind.; Mrs. Fay Fairman, Springfield; Mrs. Effie Thal, 7152 East End avenue; Mrs. Helen Baker, 1734 72d street, and Mrs. Gould. There are three grandchildren.

Russell Bennett to Air Own Concerto on Friday

Russell Bennett's own composition, a concerto for viola, harp and orchestra, will be featured on his "Notebook" program on W59C and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Friday. Bennett will conduct the playing of his concerto, during which Milton Kaye, violinist, and Laura Newell, harpist, will be the soloists.

TIRE ALLOTMENT HITS NEW HIGH FOR ONE WEEK

94 Casings to Residents of South Side.

Thirty-two individuals and companies on the south side received a total of 94 automobile tires and 82 tubes during the week of Feb. 16-20, it was reported by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area. Of these, truck owners were given 60 tires and 51 tubes.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago issued 299 certificates, as compared with 192 for the week previous, marking the largest week's business since tire rationing was begun Jan. 5.

Chicago's quota for February was 1,596 passenger tires and 2,654 truck tires. Up to Feb. 20, the boards had issued certificates for only 19.93 per cent of the passenger tire quota and 47.17 per cent of the truck tire quota.

Individuals and companies on the south side, with their addresses and the number of tires and tubes each was authorized to buy during the third week of February, are as follows:

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 2.

It soon will be spring and gardening will begin with a rush. Prune currants and gooseberry bushes now. All that is necessary is to cut away the oldest wood. Prune grapes as soon as possible before the sap begins to flow or before bleeding begins. Bleeding can be stopped by painting the cut ends with shellac.

When the ground is warm and any perennials or strawberry plants are heaved from the ground, firm the soil around them, pressing them into place. Pear trees, lilacs, and the flowering quince should be sprayed for scale. Destroy all insect cocoons.

Tuesday, March 3.

Home gardeners should plant some fruits, especially a few currants and gooseberries. A grapevine or two used as a screen is always profitable and beautiful. An apple, plum, peach, cherry, or pear tree is excellent for a background, or along the back fence. Plum trees are fine for the chicken yard.

Dwarf apple trees do not grow too large for the average place and many varieties are available. Spring pruning of roses should begin as soon as the dormant buds start along the old canes. The tendency among home gardeners is to prune roses too lightly rather than too heavily.

Wednesday, March 4.

Do not remove all mulching material at the first thaw, for much injury is caused by late frosts. The lawn will soon need attention; a dressing of sifted, rich soil thinly spread over it will add materials to the turf that are greatly beneficial.

Most lawns need a good application of plant food and the best to use is a complete, commercial balanced food applied at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Established lawns that have bare places should be renovated by lightly spading up the areas, carefully raking until a fine seedbed is formed and grass seed sown.

Thursday, March 5.

Order all garden materials—tools, seeds, shrubs, trees, vines, and perennials. New gardeners need tools consisting of a spade, steeltooth rake, hoe, and trowel. A garden line may consist of cord that is handy.

If the ground has previously been in use a spading fork may be used instead of a common spade. A file is useful to keep tools sharpened. New tools should never become rusty. Wash off all soil that adheres every time a tool is used, and wipe with oil—old cylinder oil is excellent. Never permit a tool to remain outdoors when not in use.

Friday, March 6.

The old garage usually can be improved by a covering of an annual vine, such as the moonvine, which flowers at night, morning glories, and the variegated hop. Some vegetables can be sown this month, such as tomatoes and early cabbage.

Sow thinly in boxes and after the seed has started keep in full light or sun, but watch the watering. If a coldframe is at hand use it a little later on for hardening off preparatory to transplanting them to the garden.

Saturday, March 7.

Beans should not be sown until all danger from frost has passed. Onion sets, lettuce, and radishes may be sown quite early. Some annuals are best sown indoors, for they require a considerable time to develop. Some annuals will do fairly well in poor soil, such as the California poppy, calliopsis, corn poppy, feather cockscomb, four o'clock, petunia, sweet alyssum, spiderflower [cleome], nasturtium, gaillardia, and balsam.

ATTIC, ONCE IDLE, BECOMES HANDY SPACE IN HOME

Playrooms or Storage Easily Provided.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Attics these days are coming to the fore as more space is needed in hosts of families the country over. Perhaps there are defense workers in town who could use living quarters converted from storage hideaways for trunks and portraits, walnut dressers and iron bedsteads. Or perhaps the boys of the family would take it over gleefully and hang a sign on the stair door: "For boys only—grownups and girls please stay out."

The spirit of 1900 won't sit prim and stiffnecked in so many attics this year. The spirit of 1942 is determined to make the best of what we have—and keep it fit and working for use as far as possible.

Bathroom in Corner.

One very interesting attic modernization converted the attic into the children's domain. Tucked in one corner is the children's bathroom, with a low cast-iron enameled tub and small lavatory that matches in color and design. This lavatory is wall hung, with shelf back and low, too, so there's no straining on tip toe for the children to reach it. At the end of the tub is a dual purpose little cabinet, with drawers for towel storage and a handy ledge on the top for the youngsters' treasured trinkets. A water saving shower head is over the tub.

On the floor there's a serviceable dark blue mottled linoleum with a red and white band and an anachronistic white centaur to harmonize with blue and cream walls and ceiling.

Drawers for Storage.

A bathroom is only one of the attic conveniences you may have. Sloping eaves and short walls are no discouragement to the modern attic modernizer. Under those eaves can be shelves and drawers galore and built-in seats and bunks and doors to conceal trains and carts and blocks and footballs and space for seasonal decorations the whole year round.

In planning an attic room or rooms for the children, wall board samples should be carefully checked. There is a wide choice on the market in varying thicknesses and costs. There are wallboards with insulating qualities and also those which require no papering or painting or finishing of any sort. This type of board has definite advantages since later on, if a change of treatment is desired, it can always be refinished with paper or paint.

Plywood or Paper.

In almost every attic there are opportunities for walling off ends or corners for large closets and to provide a cedar closet of real worth.

If accessories are to be in the nautical vein the side walls of the stairway can be papered with a heavily waxed paper in the imitation of pine boards. Or they can be covered with plywood. Real ship's rope at least two inches thick can be run thru large rings fastened to the stair walls. It isn't hard to tie both ends with shipshape knots. As stairs to an attic are often steep this is a measure of safety as well as decoration.

A ship's lantern can hang at the top of the stairs, its light controled from the foot of the stairs as well as the top.

May Be Playroom.

Desks and bunks and even chests of drawers can be built in. And such a room, if desired, can serve more than one purpose. It can serve as a playroom for the children, but not as their bedroom. In the evening it can be used by the adult family members.

If the attic is not overly light, and the budget is too limited to spend money for new and larger windows, the general lightness of the space can be aided by wise use of light contributing paint. Overhead a very light yellow can be used to give a sunshiny effect to the room. Then woodwork can be painted a slightly darker yellow, while walls, doors, and frames can be coated with a soft shade of cream.

Dr. Roy L. Smith.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate magazine, will speak at the 8 o'clock meeting of Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight on the subject, "Carrying Bones to Canaan." John L. Clarkson of Lake Forest will preside in the absence of Clifford W. Barnes. Charles F. Grey of Evanston will read the Scripture.

Dr. Smith was pastor, until last year, of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles and recently was selected as one of the seven men most representative of the Methodist church in America. He was Pacific chairman of the Stimson Committee for Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression and was awarded the Order of the Jade by the Chinese government. Dr. Smith was a foreign correspondent in the orient for a number of years and is author of the syndicated "Sentence Sermons."

The 7 o'clock meeting will be under the direction of the University of Dubuque, Dubuque, Ia. Dr. Dale D. Welch, president, will speak and the university's choir under the direction of Noel Logan will sing.

NORWOOD PARK FACTIONS CLASH ON ANNEXATION

Supervisor Asks Delay in Action.

BY HARRY FISHER.

Three views on the proposed annexation of a portion of Norwood Park township to Chicago clashed at a hearing before a city council finance subcommittee last week. The petition of 243 residents of an area bounded by Irving Park road, Ozanam avenue, Montrose avenue and Oriole avenue was aired after lying dormant in the committee chambers for more than a year. Dr. Joseph C. Ross [40th], chairman; Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], and Ald. P. J. Cullerton [38th] compose the subcommittee.

Alfred W. Larsen, representing the petitioners, pleaded for annexation, asking only for police, fire, and health protection, which he said has been lacking under township rule.

Raymond G. Gregory, who was elected township supervisor 10 months ago, asked the committee to deny the appeal and to give the township government time to correct its own problems.

Two Taverns Cited.

The city's problem in assuming an undeveloped territory and the expense of providing it with police, fire, street lighting, and improvements is too great, he said, and suggested that the area incorporate as a village and make its own improvements.

The moral and spiritual benefits of annexation were emphasized by the Rev. Roy Addy, pastor of the Acacia Park Lutheran church, "If Norwood Park township is to be saved it will have to be done by Chicago," he pleaded. Residents have complained of the "wild-west" atmosphere of two taverns in the area. The title to the site of one tavern, Larson said, is held by State Rep. Charles H. Weber [6th].

The district under consideration is mainly residential, with 367 homes and few stores. Property valuation for 1940, according to Larsen, is $340,004. Streets are unpaved and there are no street lights. There are 652 eligible voters in a population of approximately 1,500. A total of 394 persons signed the annexation petition presented to County Judge Edmund J. Jarecki last year. In an advisory election ordered by Jarecki the vote was 243 to 235 in favor of annexation.

Says Sentiment Changes.

"If another election were held tomorrow," said Gregory, "the tables would be turned. Politics has been thrown out of township government and the majority of the people are behind us. The township is going thru a transition period. In a few years I believe it will be incorporated as a village. After 10 months we have a surplus of $1,500 in the township fund, an unheard of amount."

"We have had administrations come and go," retorted Larsen, a resident in the territory for 18 years. "All we ever get is promises. We have been using Chicago libraries, parks, and playgrounds. We owe the Chicago fire department $2,000. We're tired of stealing what we should pay for. We're not asking for improvements, merely good government which Chicago can give us."

Gregory pointed out to the committee that it would be taking over an undeveloped district, a disgruntled populace, a school district with a $43,000 bond issue and an $8,000 pay roll debt. "Give us just three more years to satisfy them," he pleaded. "Nothing has been done to satisfy them before."

Says They Prefer Status.

"You don't want to lose any of your constituents, do you, Mr. Gregory?" added Ald. Orlikoski. "Is there a possibility that the entire township would seek annexation?"

"Not a chance," replied Gregory. "The new property owners moving into the township don't want to be in Chicago." Larsen, however, said he believed if this district were annexed the rest of the township would follow.

Closing the hearing Dr. Ross predicted that the entire problem of Chicago, township, and suburban rule would some day resolve into single government of the entire metropolitan area as a complete unit. No recommendation will be made by the committee for several weeks, he said.

Meanwhile another attempted secession from Norwood Park township was pending before the county board of commissioners. Nearly 100 per cent of the residents of the part of the township lying within Park Ridge have signed a petition asking that the territory be annexed to Maine township. The remainder of Park Ridge already lies in Maine. Fred Haack Jr., Park Ridge alderman, said the matter would probably be placed before the voters of both townships in the fall election.

Irving Park Young Women to Give Literature Festival

Irving Park Catholic Young Woman's club will sponsor a literature festival tomorrow afternoon in the Independence park community bungalow, Hamlin avenue and Byron street. Mrs. William Barts, program chairman, will direct a "names of authors and books" quiz. Book reviews will be read by Mrs. Nicholas Oehlberg, Miss Mary Bunting, and Mrs. Thomas Williamson.

Prayers, Speaking and Food Fill Evenings for Farmers' Fellowship

Members of the Farmers' Fellowship of Harvard, Ill., gather every other Thursday evening for a few hours of prayer, amusement, and food. The farm homes of members are used as meeting places. Dr. William J. du Bourdieu (standing) leads the singing of hymns and later reads a sermon.

Promptly at 8 o'clock cars begin to arrive. George McClelland, the son of the host, attempts to park the automobiles in uniform manner. The yard is lighted by a spotlight at the top of a tall post, thus illuminating the yard from the house to the barn. Each of the more than 90 guests enters thru the back door of the McClelland home, tho the hostess leaves the front door lighted and ajar.

The host, "Hutch" McClelland, at whose home a recent meeting was held, helps guests to extra pieces of cake. Food is served on paper plates, but many cups remain to be washed after the meeting. Elden Stenerson looks on approvingly as he watches "Corky" Wyse sample the frosting of a chocolate fudge cake. Tables and shelves in the kitchen are laden with sandwiches and cake brought by members. The hostess provides coffee, great pots of which rest on the stove until eating time arrives.

Mrs. J. W. H. McClelland assists a guest. Typical of a Harvard fellowship hostess, Mrs. McClelland has worked all day to prepare for the party, and yet is a smiling and gracious hostess. Jovial Mr. McClelland was kept busy supplying chairs for late arrivals.

Farm Families Add Religion to Social Life

BY JUNE GESERICK.

Every other Thursday evening brings excitement into the lives of Harvard farmers, for that is the meeting time of the Farmers' Fellowship, an organization which was started 15 years ago to give farm families an opportunity to combine religion with a biweekly social function. [Many farmers are too busy with morning chores to attend Sunday services.]

The Rev. W. H. Taylor, a Presbyterian minister, was the founder of the fellowship, which then counted a membership of 30 Presbyterians. The organization has continued to grow, and today, under the direction of Dr. William J. du Bourdieu, boasts of more than 100 members of various denominations. Meetings are held on the first and third Thursdays of each month, and each family has its turn at being host—a turn which is awaited with mingled feelings of joy and fear—for many of the homes are not large, and to squeeze some 100 people into the allotted space is a trial.

Whole Family Helps.

A recent meeting was held at the Harvard farm home of the J. W. H. McClellands, and is typical of past and future gatherings.

Mrs. McClelland had the entire house in apple pie order several days before the meeting. Son George [he's 21] carted stacks of folding chairs from the church in town and put them on the back porch. Mr. McClelland worked feverishly all day in order to finish his chores early, and then after the 5 o'clock milking [nearly all Harvard farms specialize in dairy cattle] into the house he hurried to don his Sunday clothes—pre-

PUPILS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF SCHOOL MUSIC

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public school system, a chorus of 400 students from Emmet, Peirce, Ruggles, and Wentworth elementary schools will participate at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Children's Symphony concert at Orchestra hall.

The children will sing John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Freedom," a selection written for the occasion. More than 3,500 public school pupils will be in the audience. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education, is organizer of the chorus. Vocal music was introduced into Chicago's schools three years after Lowell Mason, known as the "father of public school music," carried music into Boston schools.

The program will be broadcast at 3:45 o'clock over W-G-N. The Wentworth school is at 6950 South Sangamon street, and the Ruggles school is at 7831 Prairie avenue. The address of the Peirce school is 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue, and Emmet school is located at 5500 Madison street.

New Alumnae Group.

The recently organized Notre Dame Alumnae association will hold a business meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Notre Dame High school, Wellington and Mango avenues. Miss Pat O'Connell is president.

Veteran of '98 Again Called to Serve Country

Erect and youthful for his 71 years, Barney A. Warrick, 3535 North Linder avenue, a Spanish-American war veteran, is back in his country's service, this time on the home front. By a two to one majority, he was elected defense captain last week of block 5, zone 67, in the Belmont-Cragin community.

Mr. Warrick joined the army in 1897 and served for almost five years as bandmaster and drum major of the 4th infantry regiment band. He remained in the army after the peace with Spain and was stationed in the Philippines with the outfit that finally captured the insurrectionist, Aguinaldo.

Traveled Around World.

In the course of his military career, Mr. Warrick traveled across the entire globe. He enlisted at Fort Sheridan, left a few months later for Tampa, Fla., and finally landed in Cuba.

The next year he, his cornet and his band retraced their steps to Fort Sheridan, headed for the Philippines by way of New York, Suez canal, Port Said, and Nagasaki. The return trip was made across the Pacific ocean.

In Chicago 40 Years.

He has lived in Chicago since 1902 and for eight years was director of the Mooseheart band. Since retired, Mr. Warrick is devoting his efforts at present to appointing air raid wardens and other defense officials in his block.

"Take it from me," he recalls, "Gen. MacArthur isn't fooling about the courage of his Filipino soldiers. We fought against them, and know from bitter experience."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Aviation Cadet Russell A. Holtz, 1025 Prairie avenue, Park Ridge, has completed the first phase of his army flight training and will proceed to an advanced school. After 10 weeks' training he will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air corps. He took his primary schooling Minter field, Cal.

Otto P. Teaschner, 4019 Bernard street; Robert J. Corty, 4218 Lawrence avenue; Charles L. Riefenberg, 3930 North Francisco avenue, and Joseph T. Pielichowski, 1420 Chestnut street, were graduated recently from Chanute field, Ill., branch of the army air corps technical schools.

Paul P. Tuckey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tuckey, 2310 North Moody avenue, was graduated recently from the Chanute field branch of the army air corps technical schools.

Northwest siders recently inducted into service at the Fort Sheridan reception center include Ted Perzanowski, 5455 Melrose street; Steve Lopianetzky, 1444 North Maplewood avenue; Brad Tillman, 4831 Belle Plaine avenue; Clifford Harrington, 1922 North Kedzie avenue; Ed Klunk, 1508 Larrabee avenue, and Chester Tollick, 2935 North Ridgeway avenue, Perzanowski formerly was employed as a physical education instructor by the board of education.

Edward F. Wade, 5016 Berteau avenue, and Marshall E. Taken, 5031 West End avenue, have been promoted to sergeants at Scott field, Ill., headquarters for the army air corps radio communications school.

In target practice at Camp Croft, S. C., five northwest siders have qualified as marksmen using Springfield model 1903 rifles. They are Chester J. Mayer, 1818 North avenue; Joseph C. Chudik, 4257 Fullerton avenue; Walter J. Laszczak, 2028 Shakespeare avenue; Walter Wnek, 1451 Cleaver street, and Harry S. Stefanini, 3416 Lowell avenue.

PRIMARY FOES SNIPE AT RECORD OF INCUMBENT

G.O.P. Has 2 in Race; Democrats, 6.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The political ghosts of two Illinois governors will enliven the battles for Republican and Democratic nomination for the state senate in the populous 25th district which covers most of the northwest side.

E. C. Sandquist.

On the Republican side the shade of Charles S. Deneen, governor from 1905 to 1909, is involved. John A. Nordstrand, 4151 North Long avenue, has the indorsement for state senator of the present legal possessors of the name "National Republican Party," which was founded by Deneen. Most of the persons well known in connection with the so-called Deneen organization have severed their relations with the NRP.

Nordstrand is the only opponent of Frederick B. Resag, who has the support of the regular Republican organization and is a friend of John T. Dempsey, Cook county chairman. Raised in the Portage Park district, Nordstrand attended Schurz High school and De Paul university. Now 39 years old, he has been an active lawyer for 12 years.

Would Aid Green.

"It is high time that this district again have a Republican senator who will coöperate with Gov. Green," Nordstrand said. "The Democratic incumbent votes in the senate according to Kelly-Nash dictates. His record shows he lacks initiative."

On the Democratic side the political ghost is that of Gov. Henry Horner, who served in Illinois from 1932 until his death in 1940.

Of the six candidates filed against Sen. Frank J. Huckin Jr., one claims the support of remnants of former Horner organizations. He is Adam S. Przybyszewski, 2898 Milwaukee avenue, attorney and president of the Drake Realty company.

Przybyszewski was the Horner ward leader in the 35th ward. He has been a candidate for congress and for ward committeeman in previous races in which he ran well, but not first. Because of handicaps in his early schooling, he attended night school for 11 years to get a high school and legal education.

Five Others in Race.

Other candidates when filings closed last week were Walter F. Cebelin, 7175 Wrightwood avenue; Frank Slowinski, 4506 North Springfield avenue; Alex Noto, 4948 St. Paul avenue; Sol Gertz, 4647 North Lawndale avenue, and Mitchell M. Tomaszewski, 2115 Webster avenue.

Cebelin has taught accounting and history in the Schurz, Austin, and Kelvyn Park High schools. Many northwest side residents remember him as the owner of a newspaper stand at Central and Fullerton avenues which enabled him to work his way thru high school and college.

"If elected, I will devote all of my time and energy to being a state senator instead of holding down two political jobs as Sen. Huckin is doing now," Cebelin said. "I would be more outspoken on the senate floor in promoting the interests of my district than he has been during 12 unproductive years."

Cebelin said he intended to do everything possible to aid Rep. Raymond T. O'Keefe, who last week claimed gains in his fight against ouster from the legislature by the Democratic machine.

O'Keefe Ousted Over Roads.

Because Rep. O'Keefe voted for the Cook county superhighways bill at Springfield he was denied his usual place on the regular Democratic organization ticket. There are six other candidates for the Illinois house of representatives who do not have this support.

The organization indorsed Rep. Stanley R. Kosinski, ending his first term, and gave O'Keefe's place to Jacob A. Mueller, 4014 North Leamington avenue, an employé in the county treasurer's office.

The remaining candidates are George Le Brint, Frank L. Murray, 5125 Warwick avenue; Morton L. Zaslavsky, 5009 North Harding avenue; Edward W. Cleary, 3656 Cornelia avenue; Michael M. Mullane, 3949 North Long avenue, and Stanley A. Lesniewski, 2314 Charleston street.

Rep. O'Keefe announced that labor headquarters in his behalf had been opened at 5558 Belmont avenue with the intention that his friends there would campaign systematically for him. He also received among other pledges of support a letter from John M. Fewkes, vice president of the American Federation of Teachers in charge of the Illinois-Indiana area.

Cites Teacher Support.

"It is no surprise to me that you have been double-crossed by the Kelly-Nash machine," Fewkes wrote. "We recall that we were all double-crossed at the last session of the legislature by the Kelly-Nash ma-

29 CANDIDATES IN RACE FOR FOUR CONGRESS SEATS

Many Lag for Bottom Spot on Ballot.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Twenty-nine candidates for congress, including 16 Democrats and 13 Republicans, have filed their nominating petitions from the four districts that cover northwest Chicagoland. This was announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes at the close of filings last Monday.

The four districts are the 7th, 8th, 10th, and 11th. These and the other 21 districts in Illinois will nominate one Republican and one Democrat each in the April 14 primary. The party winners in each district will be opponents in the Nov. 3 election, the survivor to serve two years in the national lower house.

In the 11 districts of the Chicago area a total of 76 candidates filed for the 22 nominations to be allotted by the voters. Of these, 34, or slightly more than half, delayed until the last day. Of the 34 last minute filers 13 were from the four northwest districts.

Seek Bottom Listing.

The final rush is customary. It is actuated by the desire of the tardy filers to be listed at the bottom of their party columns on the ballots, which is regarded as the most desirable spot in contested districts after top position. The theory is that the ordinary voter can locate a candidate's name most easily in either of these two positions.

Candidates had until last night to withdraw their names from the primary ballots. Such withdrawals, which are not unusual, are impelled by various reasons. Some weak candidates quit when they realize the hopelessness of their chances. Others who have failed to win organization support retire to aid party harmony. Still others fade from the picture by order of political moguls.

This is the stackup in the four northwest districts at the close of filings:

SEVENTH DISTRICT

Nine Democrats are filed. Top spot on the list is held by Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, incumbent since 1930, who the city hall organization seriously considered dumping. The others, in order, are Benjamin D. Leavitt, 2640 Logan boulevard; Michael Swiatkowski, 2732 North Kedzie avenue; James C. McGloon, 1258 North Central avenue; Harry S. Dolgoff, 3615 Leland avenue; Otto E. Gorski, 5417 Higgins avenue; George J. Piepiorka, 2318 North Western avenue; Walter Jagodzinski, 6151 North Moody avenue, and Stanley M. Kaminski, 4032 Nelson street. All but Schuetz, Leavitt, and Swiatkowski filed on the final day.

Four Republicans entered the race. First was James C. Moreland, real estate man and former alderman of the 41st ward, who was the G. O. P. nominee in 1930, 1936, 1938, and 1940, making his best showing two years ago. Second was Meyer Fink, 5869 North Kilbourn avenue, a poor third in the 1936 primary. John W. Lorenz, 5116 West Wolfram street, and George T. Foster, 2607 Lawrence avenue, filed in that order on the last day.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

Four Democrats filed, including Congressman Leo Kocialkowski, incumbent since 1932, who the Nash-Kelly organization replaced on its regular slate with City Treasurer Thomas S. Gordon, business manager of the Polish Daily News. Kocialkowski, who has top spot on the ballot, has not indicated whether he will withdraw. In second place in the list is Vincent A. Gadacz, 1834 North Paulina street. Gordon is third, and in last place is Stanley Adamkiewicz, 1029 North Milwaukee avenue, who filed just before the deadline.

There are four G. O. P. candidates also. First is William W. Carron, 1521 Warren boulevard. Second is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, 1702 Chicago avenue, attorney, who was the nominee in 1938. Joseph Polep, 1315 Bosworth avenue, and Earl C. Mertes, 1112 South Sangamon street, filed in that order on the last day.

TENTH DISTRICT

The 10th, or North Shore district, consists of all the 48th and 49th wards, parts of the 41st, 43d, 44th, 45th, 46th, 47th, and 50th, and the townships of Evanston, Niles, New Trier, and Northfield, as well as all of Lake county.

Jack Bairstow, Waukegan corporation counsel, is opposed for the Democratic nomination only by Alexander J. Moody, 1441 Albion avenue. Bairstow will have most of the organization support.

Congressman George A. Paddock of Evanston, who is rounding out his first term, tops the G. O. P. ballot. Next comes the name of former Congressman Ralph E. Church, also of Evanston, who retired in 1940 to run for the Republican nomination for United States senator. He filed for the senatorship spot again this year, and late last week had not indicated whether he would withdraw from either race. Last place in the Republican list is occupied by James M. Crume, 7657 North Greenview avenue, insurance man and a distant kin of Abraham Lincoln. Crume was a candidate in the 1940 primary.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

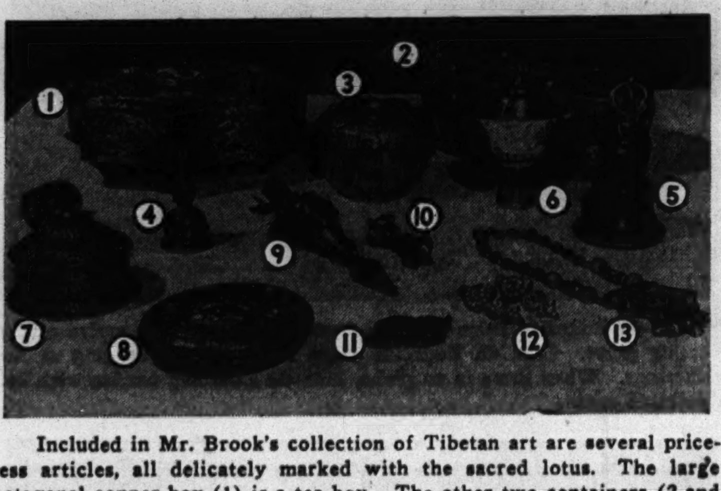
Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, also in Du Page county, incumbent since 1934, has only one challenger in the Republican primary. He is Thomas M. Jennings of Frankfort, former carpenter now a shipping department employé in a Whiting chemical plant.

Shows Mementoes of Tibet

Thomas J. Brook, 2420 North Kedzie avenue, former British trade consultant in Tibet and India, portrays the Tibetan high lama calling his worshipers to prayer. The robe and cap are orginal dress of the Asiatic priest. The prayer wheel in his left hand incloses 300 hand written prayers which are "said" by merely twirling the wheel. The horn is made of a human thigh bone from the body of a high lama. Blowing of the horn heralds the arrival of a funeral procession in the monastery courtyard. Mr. Brook lived among the Tibetans for two years.



Included in Mr. Brook's collection of Tibetan art are several priceless articles, all delicately marked with the sacred lotus. The large octagonal copper box (1) is a tea box. The other two containers (2 and 3) are for yak butter. The ornate bells (4 and 5) are wielded by lamas during a funeral ceremony to regulate the volume and speed of the chants. A china teacup (6) is equipped with a lotus flower shaped charcoal heater. The Tibetan pulverizes his tea, mixes it with yak blood and yak butter. This forms a nutritious soup. The self-contained heater keeps it from congealing. In the foreground are Tibetan silver jewelry (7) and nut boxes (8). The figured objects in the center (9 and 10) are called dorjis and are waved heavenward by the lamas to call down thunderbolts. Turquois inlaid women's jewelry, includes breastplate (11), earpieces (12), and necklace (13).

chine, leaving the teachers of Chicago still suffering a 5½ per cent cut in salaries.

"Your record on school legislation will not be forgotten by the teachers of Chicago. The fact that you have been dropped by the Kelly-Nash machine only raises you in our estimation. I am sure that whether they are Democrats or Republicans the teachers of your district will rally to your support."

The Republican regular organization house candidates are Rep. Elroy C. Sandquist and Ward Committeeman Eugene L. Nusser of the 34th ward.

Other candidates are James C. Alberti, 2040 North Lawler avenue; Frank Schultz, 2116 Concord place; George F. Witteman, 5527 Cullom avenue; Nino J. Persello, 4501 Foster avenue, and John Mozart Johnson, 1623 Humboldt boulevard.

NRP Backs Johnson.

Johnson is indorsed by the National Republican party described previously in this story.

Each party will nominate two men for the house in the April 14 primary, and the four will battle it out for three house seats in November.

Following are the names of Cook county candidates for senatorial committees who filed their petitions after last Sunday's list went to press:

REPUBLICAN.

21st—Flora J. Mostillar, 258 North Washtenaw avenue; Thomas E. Trages, 616 North Avers avenue; Herman P. Mazza, 537 North Lawndale avenue.

23d—George Pilarski, 1527 Wicker Park avenue.

25th—Rocksell K. Bowder, 4553 North Keating avenue.

27th—Frank A. Skrzenta, 1953 Dickens avenue; Harry Poulopuolos, 815 West Adams street.

DEMOCRATIC.

23d—Frank Lystarczyk, 1237 North Artesian avenue; John P. Gogola Jr., 1733 Potomac avenue.

27th—Joseph E. Kosinski, 1418 West Division street.

Senatorial committees determine how many candidates each party shall nominate in each district for the Illinois house of representatives. These committees also are empowered to fill house vacancies on the ballot if nominees die or are disqualified before the November election.

ARCHAEOLOGIST TALKS TUESDAY AT NORTH PARK

Count Byron de Prorok, archaeologist and explorer, will lecture on "North Africa from Sheba to Selassie," Tuesday evening at North Park college.

Count de Prorok was 12 years old when he started digging for ancient remains, and when 23 he was put in charge of the excavation of Carthage by the French government. The count was one of the first to use airplanes and diving apparatus in archaeological research.

Recalls Manila

This photograph of Barney A. Warrick, 3535 North Linder avenue, was taken 42 years ago in Manila where he was stationed as drum major of the 4th infantry regiment band. Today, at 71, he has taken on the duties of defense captain for his block in the Belmont-Cragin community.

SALE OF DUCKS RAISES FUND FOR BRAILLE BIBLE

When the 15 members of the junior auxiliary of the Mothers' Drama club went about this winter inquiring of their friends, "Do you want to buy a duck," they weren't recalling the comedy line of the late Joe Penner. They really meant that they'd like to exchange one of their handmade stuffed calico ducks for 50 cents. And the money was destined for the club's special project fund with which the juniors have just completed the purchase of a Braille Bible, a 20 volume work.

The club is enrolled in the 9th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Presentation of the Bible to the Lutheran library for the blind was a feature of the recent district meeting at the Belden Stratford hotel. Arrangements for buying the Bible and contacting the recipient were made by Mrs. Albert W. Seidel, 9th district welfare chairman.

More than 300 ducks were made and sold by the junior club women, nearly all of whom have regular jobs thru the day. They completed their project by meeting one evening a week to sew and doing additional sewing at home. The Lutheran library for the blind is now housed at 8336 Green street.

TRADE EXPERT GIVES VIEWS ON INDIA'S FUTURE

Cites Conflicting Religions as Complication.

What will India do in the present world crisis? The answer is complicated not only by its insistent demand for independence, but by the tremendous influence of religion on the lives and minds of its 350,000,000 people, says Thomas J. Brook, 2420 North Kedzie avenue. Brook, for six years trade consultant in India for the British government, returned to Chicago recently after traveling 75,000 miles thruout the orient.

His mission consisted of surveying almost every government industry, educational system and native institution. His travels also have taken him to Ceylon, Burma, Indo-China, Malaya, Japan, and China.

Religion Pervades Whites.

"It is hard for the western world to conceive of the effect of deep-rooted religious dogma on the political structure of India," says Mr. Brook. "The conflict between the two great religions, Hinduism and Mohammedanism, pervades and complicates the political beliefs to an extent unbelievable to an occidental.

"The Hindus, split into more than 3,000 castes, number more than 240,000,000. They are a peace loving people, typified by Mohadas K. Gandhi. They are vegetarians and consider the cow and other animals as sacred. They are fatalistic. They have thousands of gods whom they worship noisily and auspiciously.

"The Mohammedans, worshipping one god, Allah, are fighters. They, too, are fatalistic but believe that they are God-chosen people who must do all in their power to serve Allah. The axis powers might well attempt to stir this religious zeal against Britain. Von Papen's recent interview with the Moslem leader of Afghanistan may presage such an attempt."

Nation Split Into Many Divisions.

The question of independence is also clouded by the division of India into provinces ruled directly by the British crown, with a total population of 270,000,000, and the more than 560 states ruled independently by native princes. The cry for independence, says Mr. Brook, has come mainly from British India [ruled from London] and not from the princes who have enjoyed comparative freedom.

"The religious mixup can be readily seen in the native provinces," he continues. "The Nizam of Hyderabad, for example, is a Mohammedan yet his subjects are predominantly Hindus. The exact reverse is true of the prince of Kashmir, a Hindu, whose people are chiefly Mohammedan. The British have not tampered with the problem. What success they have attained in the past has been due to Queen Victoria's pledge at the time she was proclaimed empress of India that the British "Raj" would not interfere in the country's religions.

"Giving India immediate independence will not solve its problem unless some plan of federation is worked out first by the political groups of British India and the federated states. India's problem is in uniting, not only politically but religiously, all its people in one common cause—perhaps defense against the aggressor will serve as this cause."

British Rule Helped Nation.

India has benefited immensely under British rule in industry, transportation, agriculture and education, says Mr. Brook. "But even in the free schools the Hindu system of caste presents a great problem. In one school there were 30 or 40 high caste children. Since the schools were free, a father, formerly a low caste Hindu who had been converted to Christianity, decided to send his son.

"Since the boy was a Christian the other lads reasoned that he was no longer a member of the caste and approved of his fellowship. Later a boy of the same caste entered the school, but since he was still of Hindu faith, the high caste boys decided they could not associate with him and removed themselves en masse from school. When I viisted it the two remaining lads sat alone at their desks, their teacher asleep at the front of the room.

Superstitions Are Prevalent.

"The people of India are highly superstitious. When some one dies they perch his shoes aloft in a basket atop a bamboo pole, as an offering to the gods. They are afraid of high buildings and one day while building a two story house I found such a basket beside the structure. 'Some one dead?' I asked. 'No,' was the reply, 'but will be'."

Mr. Brooks travels have taken him into the remote valleys of Tibet. For two years he lived in the Himalayan monutains on the borders of Tibet.

He believes the present conflict is changing the life of the Tibetan, since the Japanese are pushing the Chinese to the interior, bringing a more modern civilization with them. The invasion of Burma, severing former supply routes to China, have caused strategists to propose new roads over the ancient caravans thru Tibet. Should the Burma road be closed, says Mr. Brook, Chiang Kai-shek with the coöperation of Indian authorities will open the almost complete China-Assam-India road.

Used as Buffer State.

Tibet has been closed to the outside world because of a British trade pact with the dalai lama, pope of Buddism in Tibet. By this measure Britain has tried to keep Tibet as a buffer state between India and China.

The people of Tibet have no pockets, he explains. Their coats are belted tightly around their waists and a miscellany of prayer wheels, shoes, knives, food, and dishes are carried inside the coat against their chests.

Mr. Brook has brought back many objects of Tibetan art, all of which are used to depict the teachings of Budda. Among these is a human thigh bone used as a horn to direct prayeers during a funeral procession.

Orders Des Plaines to Let Drug Stores Sell Liquor

Judge John F. Bolton in Superior court last week entered an order to compel the city of Des Plaines to issue licenses for the sale of package liquor to Walgreen drug stores in the suburb. Last year a Des Plaines ordinance forbade the issuance of package liquor licenses to stores selling any other type of merchandise. The company protested the action, contending that a recent state law took from municipalities the power thus to restrict liquor sales. Kenneth G. Meyer, city attorney, indicated he will appeal Judge Bolton's ruling.

33 MAINE HIGH SENIORS TAKING AVIATION COURSE

Thirty-three Maine Township High school seniors, selected from fourth year mathematics classes, are members of a primary course in aerodynamics and meteorology for pilots and aeronautical engineers—part of the recently arranged extra-curricular program.

Physics and mathematics are studied after school Tuesday afternoons under direction of O. T. Herrell, head of the school's mathematics department. L. J. Brown, general science instructor, directs a Thursday after hours class in meteorology.

Purpose of the course is to acquaint students with elementary aviation and its opportunities.

Equipment, assembled last year by Mr. Brown in a course in student pilot training at Maine Junior college, is used for illustrative material. Texts are those approved by the Civil Aeronautics administration.

In Brown's 1940-'41 student pilot training class, 17 students completed the training. Of that number, nine men are now pilots in the United States army air corps, while five other former pupils have been granted pilots' licenses.

The high school also offers additional classes in physical education, rifle target shooting and Red Cross first aid.

NAME DIRECTOR OF FITNESS FOR DEFENSE AREA

Job Is to Give Wardens Physical Training.

George Olson, director of physical education at North Park college, has been appointed physical fitness director for the northwest division of the Chicago Commission on Civilian Defense by Roy I. Levinson, divisional director. He will coördinate activities of the community fitness chairmen who are outlining a program of physical education for their air raid wardens, rescue squads, and auxiliary firemen and police.

Mr. Olson is president of the Illinois Junior College Coaches association and a graduate of Wheaton college and Northwestern university. He has headed the athletic department of North Park college for the last five years, coaching football and baseball teams.

Civilian Defense Meeting.

Mr. Levinson also announced a civilian defense meeting in the Albany Park community at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Eugene Field park fieldhouse, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue. Representatives from more than 35 organizations will form an advisory committee to serve as a liason board between the defense council and the community's civic groups. Speakers will include Leo R. Cohen and Dr. Samuel Perlman, co-commanders of the district; Dr. Milton D. Bayley, pastor of the Albany Park Methodist church, and Rabbi Abraham E. Abramowitz of the Albany Park Hebrew congregation.

An all-community rally in the Belmont-Cragin district has been announced by John C. Robinson, acting commander, for 8 o'clock Friday evening at Foreman High school, 5300 Belmont avenue. H. J. Newhouse, 5135 Fletcher street, community civilian defense head, will preside.

Waste Paper Donated.

Residents of Jefferson Park have been responding to requests of the conservation and salvage committee for waste paper, rags, and iron. Two large bins have been erected at Victory Square, Higgins and Milwaukee avenues, where residents may leave their donations. Arrangements have been made for pickup trucks to carry away large bundles. Residents may phone the community headquarters at Pensacola 5616, or Morton Steinman, committee chairman, at Kildare 7627.

FARM FAMILIES MIX RELIGION AND SOCIAL LIFE

Bi-Weekly Rallies Held in Rural Homes.

pared to help his wife greet the guests.

Mrs. Du Bourdieu, wife of the pastor and the organization's pianist, was a dinner guest at the McClelland home, and she helped the hostess prepare for the onslaught of guests. George and his dad set up chairs—more chairs than it seemed possible to get into the living and dining rooms. Then George took his place in the yard, ready to direct the parking of cars.

Rush of Members.

One of the first guests to arrive was the president, Mrs. Ida Burton of Chemung, a town just outside Harvard limits. Just at 8 o'clock, guests were arriving in rapid procession.

Mrs. Fred Wyse and 13 year old Frederick [Corky to his friends], arrived in the family car, which was driven by Letha, Corky's teen aged sister. Mr. Wyse arrived late, for he and Ray Lush came directly from Chicago, where they had gone to be blood donors for a friend in a hospital.

At each meeting, some one is sure to ask Mr. Wyse about four of his sons who are serving in the armed forces. Altho the family has had no word recently from Howard, who is in the army medical corps, Kenneth and Gilbert, also in the army, and Bernard, in the navy, are reported to be well.

Tell of Home Burning.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Davidson were the center of attention as they recounted the story of the burning of their home, a loss which occurred while the Davidsons and other congregation members were enjoying a dinner at the church. Bob and Mary, son and daughter of the family, were kept busy telling the younger guests about the fire.

After guests had joined in singing hymns from, "Praise and Service," the Harvard hymnal, Dr. Du Bourdieu read the evening's service. Then came the entertainment.

Nine year old Gene Darmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Darmon of Harvard, was glad that he had agreed to sing, for after his solo was finished he had a front seat from which to view the tricks of Carl Johnson, who used to be a professional magician.

The guests joined to sing, "Happy Birthday," to Fred Moede, president of the Big Foot Farmers' fellowship, and Mrs. Leroy Petersen.

"This is my first fellowship meeting," announced Miss Mary Freer, a cousin of Mr. McClelland, as she helped the hostess prepare coffee. Mrs. Philip Ames and Mrs. Claude Pagles joined the women at work in the kitchen. Lyle Fell and Fred Today watched the workers—and the cake.

Food and Conversation.

Little effort was needed to persuade the guests to eat, and paper plates were soon loaded with sandwiches and large cuts of cake. Cups were filled to the brim with steaming coffee. The men gathered in the dining room, where between bites, they discussed the price of eggs and the latest style in dairy equipment. The women discussed gardening, and Mrs. Du Bourdieu told the others how branches can be cut from cherry trees, placed in a bowl of warm water and made to blossom. The children remained with their dads, but their attention was riveted to the food.

The growing sleepiness of children brought the evening to a close. Ronald Burton, 2½ year old grandson of the club's president, slept with his head on the shoulder of his grandfather, Ezra Burton. Ruth and Hannah Pagles, 11 year old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pagles, impatiently pulled at their beaver furred hoods as they waited for their parents to take their leave.

They're Early Risers.

Men and women who rise at 5 o'clock each morning do not keep late hours, and shortly after 10:30, every guest had left the house. The last galoshes had been found, and the last cup of coffee had been downed.

"If you need any help on that barn, let me know," shouted one man, as he drove away. And just before she got into her car, one woman called to the hostess, "Try to get to my house tomorrow for sewing. We're all neighbors, you know."

North Shore Hiking Club Schedules Two Jaunts

Plans of the North Shore Hiking club for next Sunday include two hikes. The morning hikers will meet opposite the Winnetka Village hall between 9 and 9:30 o'clock. The second group will leave the same place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Fort Dearborn hiking club members will be guests on the afternoon five mile jaunt. The North Shore club has no dues, no rules, no officers. Anyone may participate in the hikes.

W-G-N TO NAME MARION CLAIRE SONG WINNERS

Fans Will Be Guests at Special Broadcast.

Members of the Theater of the Air club chapters from Chicagoland and other points as far east as Brooklyn and as far south as Austin, Tex., will be guests of W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday for a special Marion Claire night honoring the soprano prima donna of the operetta broadcasts. The program will be aired on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual.

A feature of the broadcast will be the announcement of the winners in the $1,000 Marion Claire contest to select "which song from which operetta you best like to hear Marion Claire sing."

Miss Claire will read the names of the winners and will sing the operetta selection chosen by the winning contestant.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Judges reviewed thousands of entries received from 27 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the Marion Claire contest. During the program Miss Claire will sing her favorite operetta selection as well as that chosen by the radio audience as its favorite.

The Theater of the Air club lists more than 300 chapters from coast to coast with a membership of 7,156. The chapter members meet every Saturday night to listen to the operetta broadcasts on W-G-N and Mutual and many of the chapters have become active forces for the "best in music" in their communities.

Singing with Miss Claire in the broadcast will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of many of the operetta programs, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire will extend a personal welcome to the club members who will be guests at the broadcast.

RUTH SLATER IS GUEST ON 'MUSIC THAT ENDURES'

Ruth Slater, contralto star of opera and the concert stage who is regularly heard on FM station W59C each Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be guest soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's "Music That Endures" program, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be featured with Miss Slater.

Miss Slater will sing "Dedication" by Franz and "Come to the Fair" by Martin. She will also appear with the chorus in Schubert's hymn, "Omnipotence."

The orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber will play the finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and "The Angelus" from Hadley's Third Symphony. They will join the augmented chorus in the presentation of "God's Country," hit tune from the musical comedy, "Babes in Arms."

MAC LEISH TO DISCUSS PROPAGANDA ON RADIO ROUND TABLE TODAY

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, will discuss "Propaganda—Good and Bad" on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

MacLeish, whose office approves the release of information on the war program, will participate in the round table discussion with Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the library of congress, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of the humanities at the University of Chicago.

The speakers will discuss the need for honesty in propaganda and measure the effects of present propaganda procedures in the United States upon morale at home and abroad.

W-G-N LISTENER PROVIDES CHURCH BELL FOR AFRICA

A church bell that for years called to worship the people of Hamilton, Mo., is now on the high seas, traveling the long road to Rhodesia, Africa, because of an appeal made on W-G-N-Mutual's public service program, "This Is Life." Each "This Is Life" broadcast describes the cases of deserving people who need the listeners' assistance.

A short time ago "This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and Mutual Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 11:15 a. m., broadcast a letter from William B. West, an engineer who had just returned from a church construction project in Rhodesia, Africa. The church was almost completed, wrote Mr. West, but lacked a bell. Nowhere in that dark African region could one be located, and the mission had no money to import one from the outside. So, because he had heard what "This Is Life" listeners had done to find needed articles, West appealed to them.

Many offers were received, but the majority of them—for bells that were too large—had to be rejected. Finally Mrs. Oscar Axton of Hamilton, Mo., offered one that was just the right size. Her offer was accepted. Soon Rhodesians may be hearing a bell that once pealed in the heart of the United States.

Bulldog Drummond Faces Auto Tire Robbery Gang

A priority problem, involving an auto tire robbery combine, confronts Bulldog Drummond in his adventure to be heard on W-G-N and Mutual from 5:30 to 6 p. m., today. The title of the exciting episode is "The Case of the Hot Rubber Ring."

KOUSSEVITZKY AGAIN CONDUCTS PHILHARMONIC

Making his final appearance of the season with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will present a program of American, Russian, and French compositions over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. The concert will open with Arthur Foote's fugue from the E Major Suite for String Orchestra; continues with Debussy's "La Mer" and concludes with Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony in E Minor.

Melody Matinee to Offer Favorite American Songs

A new program titled "Melody Matinée," based on the theory that radio holds no finer enjoyment than lovely melodies smoothly played, will be heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 12:30 to 1 p. m. The program is devoted to favorite American songs, arranged and presented by outstanding conductors and singers. Today's program will include selections from "New Moon," "Carioca," Jerome Kern's beautiful "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Among My Souvenirs," "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

NEW CAR PERMITS GRANTED 84 ON NORTHWEST SIDE

450 Autos Are Rationed in City First Week.

Permits for new automobiles went to 84 individuals and companies on the northwest side during the week of Feb. 16 to 20—the first week of rationing of 1942 passenger cars in Chicago.

During that week the eight rationing boards in Chicago, which also have jurisdiction over tire and tube purchases, received 1,174 inquiries concerning new car deliveries. Nearly 900 made applications to receive cars. Some were withdrawn, others are pending, and still others were rejected, with the net result that certificates were issued for 450 cars.

Here is the key to the abbreviations of car makes used in the list: Bu., Buick; Cad., Cadillac; Ch., Chevrolet; Chr., Chrysler; De S., De Soto; Do., Dodge; Fo., Ford; Hu., Hudson; Li., Lincoln; Me. Mercury; Na., Nash; Ol., Oldsmobile; Pac., Packard; Pl., Plymouth; Po., Pontiac; Stu., Studebaker.

Following are the boards which issued the certificates, the northwest siders who received the certificates, and the make of car:

Benny Goodman Starts Spotlight Bands Parade

Five well known dance bands will be presented over W-G-N and the Mutual network Monday thru Friday this week when Benny Goodman, Guy Lombardo, Henry King, Woody Herman, and Raymond Scott are heard in that order on "Spotlight Bands" at 8:30 p. m. All five bands have been featured on the Spotlight show at earlier dates and all five are among the nation's top favorites. Goodman, Lombardo, and Herman will be heard from the Mutual Radio theater in New York while King's band will be presented from Philadelphia and Scott's show will originate in Amherst, Mass.

Daumier to Be Subject of Great Artists' Show

The means by which one cartoon by Honore Daumier, famed French cartoonist and artist, accomplished a social change in the days immediately following the French revolution will be dramatized on W-G-N's "Great Artists" program at 2:15 p. m. Wednesday.

Show Products of Sewing for Defense Saving

STOCK TO LEAD ORCHESTRA IN F-M PREMIER

New Carpenter Song on W59C Wednesday.

Margery Lindquist.
[Carmen-Winger.]

The first Frequency Modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented by W59C, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. Wednesday. The Mutual network will broadcast the concert, conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock in Chicago's Orchestra hall, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

A 240 voice choir from the public schools, observing the centenary of vocal training in the Chicago schools, will be featured during the broadcast. The concert will open with the choir and orchestra presenting "The Star Spangled Banner" under the direction of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

* * *

A highlight of the concert will be the world première of "March and Song to Freedom," by John Alden Carpenter, noted Chicago composer. Mr. Carpenter wrote this composition in celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the school system. The choir will sing during the première presentation of this work.

Soloist on the program, one of the regular children's concerts by the Chicago Symphony, will be Margery Lindquist, young soprano of Oak Park. Miss Lindquist will sing the Recitative and Polonaise from "Mignon" by Thomas.

* * *

The program also will include: the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini; opus 67 of the Andante con moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony; "The American Patrol" by Meachem; the "Marche Slav," opus 31, by Tschaikowsky, and Sousa's stirring march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

W-G-N SERVICES TO COME FROM S. SIDE CHURCH

The Chicagoland Church hour, heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 9 to 10 a. m. thruout March, will broadcast from the Monumental Baptist church at 729 Oakwood boulevard. The Rev. James L. Horace has arranged for a number of guest preachers.

Today the Rev. A. Wayman Ward of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church will be heard. The following Sunday will see the Rev. Mr. Horace in the pulpit. The Rev. W. A. Johnson is scheduled for March 15. He is pastor of the Greater St. John Baptist church, at 4821 South Michigan avenue. The Rev. Dr. Harold Roupp of Central church in Orchestra hall will be heard on March 22.

In W-G-N Army Show

SHADOW ROUNDS OUT 12 YEARS AS A THRILLER

Just 12 years ago this week "The Shadow" radio series was launched. For many years it has been an established feature over the Mutual network [currently 4:30 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N]. It has been a trail blazer for all the radio "Ellery Queens," "Sherlock Holmes," "Thin Mans," and other thrillers and whoduits.

In the beginning the Shadow [who enjoys the highest listening audience of any day time radio show according to recent surveys] was a shocker. The Shadow was more or less a villain in the days when Frank Readick played the part. The character began improving during the tenure of the spectacular Orson Welles. In recent years, with Bill Johnstone in the title rôle and Marjorie Anderson as his girl friend, Margot Lane, the Shadow has become a hero.

While he still his his eerie laugh, with the aid of a filter microphone, the Shadow doesn't fly thru space, hypnotize characters, and, in general, behave like Superman.

The only edge he has on the other performers is that he can become invisible—the program writers had to do that to give the dramas the kind of zing and suspense they require.

The kids didn't care very much about the enormity of "The Shadow's" early crimes. Bombing of Grand Central station, gassing New York or 'Frisco—they took 'em in stride.

Current "Shadow" episodes don't go that far. But they're gaudy enough—recent scrips had a villain killed by the kiss of a jackdaw with a cyanide tipped beak, a great dane devouring a killer midget, a gorilla cracking his master's skull.

Phil La Follette to Speak on 'Our First Job' Friday

Phil LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will be heard on W59C's exclusive broadcast from the luncheon meeting of the Chicago Executives club, from 1:05 to 1:45 p. m. Friday. La Follette will discuss "Our First Job."

TIRE RATIONING HITS PEAK SINCE START OF QUOTAS

160 Allotted to Owners on Northwest Side.

Forty individuals and companies on the northwest side were rationed a total of 160 automobile tires and 76 tubes during the week of Feb. 16-20, it was reported by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator. Of these totals truck owners were given 119 tires and 53 tubes, the remainder going to passenger car owners.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago issued 299 certificates, compared with 192 for the week previous. It was the largest week's business since tire rationing was begun on Jan. 5.

Chicago's quota for February was 1,596 passenger tires and 2,654 truck tires. Up to Feb. 20, the boards had issued certificates for only 19.93 per cent of the passenger tire quota and 47.17 per cent of the truck tire quota.

Individuals and companies on the northwest side who received permits for tire and tube purchases during the third week of February are:

SALUTE HIRSCH AND D. M. NELSON ON CITIZENS HOUR

The achievements of Hirsch High school will be saluted on Citizens of Tomorrow on W-G-N from 1:30 to 2 p. m. today. The program is presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which honors an outstanding Chicagoland school each week.

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, assembled students from Hirsch in the main audience studio of W-G-N last Wednesday when the program for today was recorded. Thaddeus J. Lubera, principal of Hirsch, recounted some of that school's achievement and told of its history. The Choral club under the direction of Helen Kane sang "When Day Is Done" and the rustic song titled "The Peasant and His Oxen."

During the program Mr. Maxwell paid tribute to one of America's foremost executives, Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production board. Nelson attended the Hannibal, Mo., High school, where he ranked highest in his senior class and was noted for his participation in extracurricular activities. Nelson's motto of doing "first things first" was suggested as an excellent motto for the students of Hirsch to adopt.

Names of two more Chicagoland high school students were added to the Citizens of Tomorrow honor roll. They are Allen Pfnister of Hirsch and Eloise Taylor of Bloomington, Ill.

MAID IN AMERICA SERIES STARTS ON W-G-N TUESDAY

A new variety show utilizing stars of the stage and radio whose careers are living proof that in America any one who has ability and works hard can rise to great heights, will have its inaugural broadcast on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday. The series, titled "Maid in America," will be heard on W-G-N at the same hour every Tuesday.

"Maid in America" will each week have as its mistress of ceremonies, Heather Tweed, who has appeared on many network radio programs and on the legitimate stage in "Blossom Time" and in "This Thing Called Love."

Tuesday's guest stars will be Curt Massey, radio singer, and Mary Jane Howard, songstress now being featured in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel. Bob Trendler, director of the W-G-N dance orchestra, will conduct the musical portion of "Maid in America."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 2.

It soon will be spring and gardening will begin with a rush. Prune currants and gooseberry bushes now. All that is necessary is to cut away the oldest wood. Prune grapes as soon as possible before the sap begins to flow or before bleeding begins. leeding can be stopped by painting the cut ends with shellac.

When the ground is warm and any perennials or strawberry plants are heaved from the ground, firm the soil around them, pressing them into place. Pear trees, lilacs, and the flowering quince should be sprayed for scale. Destroy all insect cocoons.

Tuesday, March 3.

Home gardeners should plant some fruits, especially a few currants and gooseberries. A grapevine or two used as a screen is always profitable and beautiful. An apple, plum, peach, cherry, or pear tree is excellent for a background, or along the back fence. Plum trees are fine for the chicken yard.

Wednesday, March 4.

Do not remove all mulching material at the first thaw, for much injury is caused by late frosts. The lawn will soon need attention; a dressing of sifted, rich soil thinly spread over it will add materials to the turf that are greatly beneficial.

Most lawns need a good application of plant food and the best to use is a complete, commercial balanced food applied at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Established lawns that have bare places should be renovated by lightly spading up the areas, carefully raking until a fine seedbed is formed and grass seed sown.

Thursday, March 5.

If the ground has previously been in use a spading fork may be used instead of a common spade. A file is useful to keep tools sharpened. New tools should never become rusty. Wash off all soil that adheres every time a tool is used, and wipe with oil—old cylinder oil is excellent.

Friday, March 6.

The old garage usually can be improved by a covering of an annual vine, such as the moonvine, which flowers at night, morning glories, and the variegated hop. Some vegetables can be sown this month, such as tomatoes and early cabbage.

Sow thinly in boxes and after the seed has started keep in full light or sun, but watch the watering. If a coldframe is at hand use it a little later on for hardening off preparatory to transplanting them to the garden.

Saturday, March 7.

Beans should not be sown until all danger from frost has passed. Onion sets, lettuce, and radishes may be sown quite early. Some annuals are best sown indoors, for they require a considerable time to develop. Some annuals will do fairly well in poor soil, such as the California poppy, calliopsis, corn poppy, feather cockscomb, four o'clock, petunia, sweet alyssum, spiderflower [cleome], nasturtium, gaillardia, and balsam.

Emanuel Feuerman to Be Symphony's Guest Soloist

Emanuel Feuerman, famous concert cellist, will be the guest soloist with the Philadelphia orchestra during its exclusive broadcast on W59C and the Mutual network at 1:45 p. m. Friday.

The complete program:

Concerto in A minor	Vivaldi
Concerto in D major for 'cello, orchestra Emanuel Feuerman.	Haydn
Don Quixote Emanuel Feuerman and Violinist Samuel Lifschey.	Strauss

The concert will originate in the Philadelphia Academy of Music. Norris West will be the intermission commentator.

SCHURZ OFFERS ADULT DANCING CLASS $ERIES

Miss Bernice Crimmins.

The 1942 adult dancing classes at Schurz High school will open at 6:45 o'clock tomorrow evening in the boys' gymnasium, 3601 Milwaukee avenue. Beginners will be instructed from 6:45 until 7:40, and at 7:45 general social dancing will start. The advanced class will convene at 8:45 o'clock. Miss Ernestine I. Badt is director of the classes, which are sponsored by the board of education. Miss Bernice Crimmins is instructor of the classes, which will meet each Monday evening thru March 30.

Nation's Morale, Subject of Review Stand Today

The Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will discuss the nation's morale in its broadcast over W-G-N from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today. Dr. Franz Alexander, director of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis, will take part in the discussion with Angus Campbell, psychologist, at Northwestern, and Paul Meadows, sociologist. Parker Wheatley is the moderator of the Reviewing Stand.

DRAMATICS HOLD IMPORTANT ROLE IN YOUTHS' LIVES

Pair Hope They'll Emulate Orson Welles.

"The play's the thing," said Shakespeare, and altho many years have passed since the great playwright put those words on paper, the phrase is remembered and followed by two youthful northwest Chicago writers—Stanley Orzey Jr., and Sheldon Harnick.

Stanley, a senior at Schurz High school, became interested in the writing end of dramatics about two and one-half years ago. By now he even devotes his supper hour to writing plays. Stan is employed as assistant pharmacist in a drug store at Milwaukee avenue and Irving Park road, a job which begins at the close of school.

Partner Also Violinist.

The second member of the partnership is Sheldon Harnick, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry M. Harnick, 4130 North Lawler avenue. Previous to his meeting with Stan, Sheldon was interested only in music—he frequently appears as voilin soloist at Chicago social functions. However, during their first meeting, both boys realized that they had a great deal in common. They liked the same musical artists—Heifetz, Shaw, and Goodman. They both thought that Kauffman was tops as a playwright, and they both agreed that they would like to collaborate on a play.

During their next two years in school, Stanley and Sheldon wrote numerous skits, in several of which they played the leading rôles. Altho the boys' slapstick comedy productions were well received, Miss Elizabeth Keenan, dramatic coach at Schurz, suggested they try a play of a more serious nature. The boys followed the advice, and turned out the successful, "Shades of Business," presented in the school's Little theater before an invited audience.

Works as Shipping Clerk.

Sheldon graduated this year with the February class, and is employed as shipping clerk for a chemical supply house. Stanley, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Orzey, at 4447 Lowell avenue, hopes to finish his studies at Schurz in June.

The boys share one ambition—a dream which closely parallels that recently realized by Orson Welles. Some day in the not too distant future, they hope to write, produce, direct, and take part in a play of their own creation. Stan's sister, Eleanor, is now playing in a New York show. She, both young men agree, is just the person to play the lead in the play of their dreams. The leading male rôle will be played—if Stan and Sheldon have their way—by none other than the man around whom many of their acts are built—Groucho Marx.

ATTIC, ONCE IDLE, BECOMES HANDY SPACE IN HOME

Playrooms or Storage Easily Provided.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Attics these days are coming to the fore as more space is needed in hosts of families the country over. Perhaps there are defense workers in town who could use living quarters converted from storage hideaways for trunks and portraits, walnut dressers and iron bedsteads. Or perhaps the boys of the family would take it over gleefully and hang a sign on the stair door: "For boys only—grownups and girls please stay out."

The spirit of 1900 won't sit prim and stiffnecked in so many attics this year. The spirit of 1942 is determined to make the best of what we have—and keep it fit and working for use as far as possible.

Bathroom in Corner.

One very interesting attic modernization converted the attic into the children's domain. Tucked in one corner is the children's bathroom, with a low cast-iron enameled tub and small lavatory that matches in color and design. This lavatory is wall hung, with shelf back and low, too, so there's no straining on tip toe for the children to reach it. At the end of the tub is a dual purpose little cabinet, with drawers for towel storage and a handy ledge on the top for the youngsters' treasured trinkets. A water saving shower head is over the tub.

On the floor there's a serviceable dark blue mottled linoleum with a red and white band and an anachronistic white centaur to harmonize with blue and cream walls and ceiling.

Drawers for Storage.

A bathroom is only one of the attic conveniences you may have. Sloping eaves and short walls are no discouragement to the modern attic modernizer. Under those eaves can be shelves and drawers galore and built-in seats and bunks and doors to conceal trains and carts and blocks and footballs and space for seasonal decorations the whole year round.

In planning an attic room or rooms for the children, wall board samples should be carefully checked. There is a wide choice on the market in varying thicknesses and costs. There are wallboards with insulating qualities and also those which require no papering or painting or finishing of any sort. This type of board has definite advantages since later on, if a change of treatment is desired, it can always be refinished with paper or paint.

Plywood or Paper.

In almost every attic there are opportunities for walling off ends or corners for large closets and to provide a cedar closet of real worth.

If accessories are to be in the nautical vein the side walls of the stairway can be papered with a heavily waxed paper in the imitation of pine boards. Or they can be covered with plywood. Real ship's rope at least two inches thick can be run thru large rings fastened to the stair walls. It isn't hard to tie both ends with shipshape knots. As stairs to an attic are often steep this is a measure of safety as well as decoration.

A ship's lantern can hang at the top of the stairs, its light controled from the foot of the stairs as well as the top.

May Be Playroom.

Desks and bunks and even chests of drawers can be built in. And such a room, if desired, can serve more than one purpose. It can serve as a playroom for the children, but not as their bedroom. In the evening it can be used by the adult family members.

If the attic is not overly light, and the budget is too limited to spend money for new and larger windows, the general lightness of the space can be aided by wise use of light contributing paint. Overhead a very light yellow can be used to give a sunshiny effect to the room. Then woodwork can be painted a slightly darker yellow, while walls, doors, and frames can be coated with a soft shade of cream.

EDITOR OF CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE SPEAKS AT SUNDAY CLUB TONIGHT

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate magazine, will speak at the 8 o'clock meeting of Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight on the subject, "Carrying Bones to Canaan." John L. Clarkson of Lake Forest will preside in the absence of Clifford W. Barnes. Charles F. Grey of Evanston will read the Scripture.

Dr. Roy L. Smith.

Dr. Smith was pastor, until last year, of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles and recently was selected as one of the seven men most representative of the Methodist church in America. He was Pacific chairman of the Stimson Committee for Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression and was awarded the Order of the Jade by the Chinese government. Dr. Smith was a foreign correspondent in the orient for a number of years and is author of the syndicated "Sentence Sermons."

The 7 o'clock meeting will be under the direction of the University of Dubuque, Dubuque, Ia. Dr. Dale D. Welch, president, will speak and the university's choir under the direction of Noel Logan will sing.

CANDIDATES FLOCK TO G. O. P. BANNER

WOMEN'S TOUCH MAKES SALVAGE A SIMPLE TASK

Highland Pk. Group Shows the Way.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Many city housekeepers who have rallied to the nation's call to save old papers, razor blades, tooth paste tubes, and bottles until they have their small apartments and storerooms bursting with their accumulations will admire the action of the Highland Park women. When community residents assembled for a civilian defense planning session early in February Mrs. Philip Ringer, president of the Highland Park League of Women Voters, was appointed chairman of conservation.

Mrs. Ringer, in turn, appointed a committee of nine. Mrs. Harry M. Pier, a member of the executive board of the Highland Park Social Service group and first vice president of the Highland Park League of Women Voters, was chosen to head the survey group. Mrs. Pier's task was arranging to contact the families living in all of Highland Park's 4,000 houses.

150 Make Canvass.

The first step was to appoint 50 women for house to house calls. Each of the 50 enrolled two helpers so that from Monday to Friday of the third week in February every Highland Park family had a call from one of these conservation workers. Each family received literature, including a broadside of instructions and cards to fill out.

The broadside informed residents that four charities would come to the suburb to collect papers. The Salvation Army has the first week of each month; the Goodwill Industries, the second; Volunteers of America, the third, and Chicago Christian Industrial league, the fourth.

In addition, pupils of the elementary schools will collect papers in their own home districts. The children will not go into the business sections—these are in charge of high school students, and there are special collection boxes at the railroad stations.

Quantity for Salvage.

Housewives may call one of the local salvage companies, but are advised to have a stack of papers as high as a broomstick before calling. Finally, a householder who wishes immediate collection of paper may get it by calling the local civilian defense office, Highland Park 1400.

The householder signs his card indicating how he wishes to have his paper collected or whether he will dispose of it himself. The card is filed by the committee, and the right collection agency receives the householder's name. A second broadside tells him how to go about preparing his paper.

Scrap metal, old rubber, and rags may be saved for the charity trucks or for a city-wide collection which will be announced later. Medicine bottles, glass bottles with screw tops of quart size and smaller, cold cream and salve jars are to be saved for hospitals. Collections may be taken to the Highland Park hospital or to the local Red Cross headquarters.

Tubes to Drug Stores.

All collapsible tubes are to be dropped in boxes at Highland Park drug stores. Grease will be collected by the local meat dealers. The instruction sheets, all mimeographed at the Highland Park High school, are illustrated with line drawings.

A second card distributed for filling out was for motorists who drive to the stations to commute and would share their cars with others. The Highland Park women hope to work out a plan, precinct by precinct, block by block, wherein each car will carry a capacity load to the station.

A survey made of the traffic for an 8:10 train in the morning showed 169 cars coming to the station carrying only 224 commuters. Of the total, 127 cars carried only one commuter; 31 carried two; six carried three each; three carried four, and one had the record of five.

Hope to Save Tires.

This, the survey report shows, makes an average of 1.3 persons per car. By forming station groups from the different neighborhoods, the Highland Park conservation committee hopes to raise the average to three with an estimated saving of 78,000 car miles annually. This is equal to 312,000 tire miles.

Members of Mrs. Ringer's committee are: Mrs. James Stannard Baker, vice chairman [is editor of the Sigma Kappa sorority publication]; Mrs. Lee Supple, education [is a former home economics teacher and will hold a consumer forum early this month].

Mrs. Daniel Gutman, school liaison officer, will be in charge of relating the work of the committee with that of the various PTA groups; Mrs. George Lyman, who will be in charge of speakers, is on the board of the Highland Park Music club, a member of the Ravinia Woman's club, and Highland Park representative on the Fort Sheridan Volunteers committee.

Leaders in Work.

Mrs. Edward P. Norcross, experienced lecturer and organizer, will be the speaker's school leader; Mrs. Walter L. Rubens, special projects, is a member of the coördinating council for Highland Park and a former president of the Highland Park League of

Girls of Evanston High School Will Give Gym Demonstration Saturday

Gwen Jardine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jardine of Evanston, demonstrates the modern technique with Indian clubs, dressed efficiently in contrast to the full length ensemble that hampered mother when she was a girl. Gwen is a senior. Girls of the high school gym classes will give a public demonstration in the gymnasium at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

These very pretty Evanston misses are demonstrating the square dance, America's contribution to the world's folk dances. Popular when the older folks were young, this dance, clearly embodying the democratic philosophy in rhythm and spirit, is becoming increasingly popular with today's youth. Russian and English folk dances also will be performed at the gym show. On the left, clapping the rhythm, are Bette Lane and Bonnie Steinbrecher. Forming the rear bridge are Pat Loy and Sue Lamb. In the front row are Mary English, Shirlie Gushwa, Carolyn Stroben, and Mary Howard.

The slogan of the physical education department is "Make America strong by making Americans stronger." Building the body beautiful with rhythmic exercises in the row on the left are Marian McLeod, June Lottes, and Helen Goff. In the right row are Shirlee Strickler, Hilda Facklam, and Frances Jackman.

The curly headed Russian "boy" is Marcia Kuhnen, the "doch" (girl) is Elinor Mayer, and the dance is Russian, which like the American square dance or Virginia reel, is full of dash and life.

This is how mother looked swinging dumbbells and encumbered as she was with baggy bloomers, apparently she did pretty well. Demonstrating the dumbbell technique of the gay '90s, from left to right, are Carol Carper, Jayne Pabst, Marion Gilliland, Clarie Jean Daniels, and Mary C. Jenkins. In contrast other girls will demonstrate how dumbbells are pushed and pulled by today's high school miss.

Signals to Guide Traffic at Two Hazardous Points

Two new sets of traffic signals are being installed on north side streets, the North Area council of the Chicago Motor club announced last week. Underground work for signals at the intersection of Lincoln avenue, Paulina street, and Roscoe street, is completed. Signals will also be installed at Howard street and Damen avenue.

Joyce Kilmer League to Hear Father Gallagher

The Rev. Ralph Gallagher, S. J., will speak at a meeting of the Joyce Kilmer league at 8 o'clock this evening in the Rogers Park Woman's club. Mrs. Virgil Clary, president, will conduct the business session. Hostesses will be Mrs. William J. McCarthy, Mrs. Jere J. Shea, and Mrs. Margaret Holland. Mrs. Harold E. Jalass is social chairman.

N. U. NAVAL ROTC CADETS AWARDED TRIBUNE MEDALS

(Picture on page 7.)

Three cadets of the Northwestern university naval ROTC received Chicago Tribune medals of military merit Thursday afternoon in Lutkin hall on the Evanston campus. Commander S. D. A. Cobb presented the trio of outstanding naval cadets before Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE, who distributed the awards as follows: Gold medal to the lieutenant commander, John K. Hoffrichter of Pontiac, Ill.; silver medal to Student Ensign Victor S. Peters of 6927 Constance avenue, Chicago; bronze medal to Student Lieut. Carl A. Hotze of Wilmette.

SALE OF DUCKS RAISES FUND FOR BRAILLE BIBLE

When the 15 members of the junior auxiliary of the Mothers' Drama club went about this winter inquiring of their friends, "Do you want to buy a duck," they weren't recalling the comedy line of the late Joe Penner. They really meant that they'd like to exchange one of their handmade stuffed calico ducks for 50 cents. And the money was destined for the club's special project fund with which the juniors have just completed the purchase of a Braille Bible, a 20 volume work.

The club is enrolled in the 9th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Presentation of the Bible to the Lutheran library for the blind was a feature of the recent district meeting at the Belden Stratford hotel. Arrangements for buying the Bible and contacting the recipient were made by Mrs. Albert W. Seidel, 9th district welfare chairman.

More than 300 ducks were made and sold by the junior club women, nearly all of whom have regular jobs thru the day. They completed their project by meeting one evening a week to sew and doing additional sewing at home. The Lutheran library for the blind is now housed at 8336 Green street.

Naturalist to Give Academy Talk on North Woods

Sam Campbell, naturalist, will speak on "Rediscovering Our Great North Woods," at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Chicago Academy of Science, 2001 North Clark street. Campbell supervises a wild life preserve called the "Sanctuary of Wegimind," in northern Wisconsin.

Plan Program at Mundelein on Conserving

Students at Mundelein college will spend this week learning the meaning of conservation in the home with every department of the school participating in a program designed around four watchwords. These are "Plan Well," "Buy Well," "Conserve," and "Salvage." Booths in the student lounge will dramatize each.

The exhibit on planning, conducted by the education and economics departments, will include pie charts illustrating wise and unwise use of money. Smart buying will be dramatized by the home economics department and will include a study of labels, informing the housewife how to judge what is in the cloth, can, or package she is buying.

Health Topics on Program.

Conservation of health, by proper posture, exercise and nutrition will be demonstrated by the physical education department while conservation of utilities such as gas, coal and water will be supervised by the home economics department. Students will show how old clothing may be salvaged and remade into new models.

The week's program will open Tuesday with a lecture to the entire student body by Mrs. Mary J. Byrd of the Washington office of production management followed by a student discussion.

A panel discussion Wednesday noon will discuss "What the Inflation Spiral Means to the Consumer," "Our Program of Price Control," and "Consumer Coöperation with the Government."

Leaders of Discussions.

Leading the discussions will be Anne Goode, 1218 Albion avenue; Peggy Schweisthal, 8108 North Kostner avenue; Barbara Ohab, Evanston, and Marjorie Linnehan, 225 West 118th street.

Thursday noon the College tea room will serve a conservation luncheon featuring soy beans, vegetable soup, made with beef broth to which has been added vitamin rich liquid from boiled vegetables usually thrown away, and dishes using molasses and honey instead of sugar.

Friday morning the clothing laboratory of the home economics department will demonstrate ways of revising clothes. At 1 o'clock Friday afternoon the drama department will given an original dramatic skit "Drafted for Victory," at a general assembly. Consumer chalk talks will be given by Mary Jane Harvey, 4144 Sheridan road; Dorothy Clark, 8801 South Bishop street; Ruthe Bransfield, 399 Fullerton parkway, and Meta Shifris, 7656 Greenview avenue.

Symposium on Consumers.

At 2 o'clock a symposium entitled "We, the Consumers" will be held. Geraldine McGarry, 1249 Granville avenue, is chairman. Leading the discussion will be Jeanne Kane, 424 Armitage avenue; Sallie Cahill, 4523 Lowell avenue; Jane Champion, 6532 Oshkosh avenue; Ruth Conway, 4501 Magnolia avenue, and Dorothy Hein, 1619 Bryn Mawr avenue.

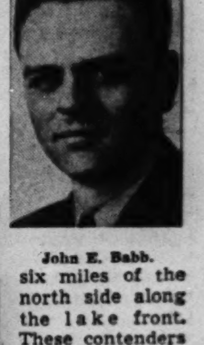
The public is invited to attend all consumer week activities at the college.

31ST DISTRICT HAS 9 IN STATE SENATE FIGHT

Presage '42 as Good Year for Party.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Two strong opponents bristled with charges last week to bar the path of Emerson C. Whitney to the Republican nomination for state senator in the 31st district, which stretches over more than six miles of the north side along the lake front. These contenders in the April 14 primary are Lionel G. Thorsness and John E. Babb.



John E. Babb.

Lionel Thorsness.

A third opponent, Sidney E. Kramer, awarded top spot on the ballot with the reported help of Attorney General George F. Barrett, also stands in Whitney's way. Crowding the field are these candidates also: William D. Henry, 4717 North Winthrop avenue; M. D. Coe, 911 Buena avenue; Walter S. Rady, 907 Winona street; Frank Haggerty, 1214 Glenlake avenue, and John W. Bennett, 3807 Fremont street.

The unusual number of aspirants for the GOP state senate nomination attests to the growing belief among political observers that 1942 is a good Republican year.

Drafted to Beat Whitney.

Thorsness said that a group of Republican leaders, aroused by Whitney's candidacy, sought him out to oppose Whitney.

Thorsness agreed to make the race and managed to get the bottom place on the ballot—considered second best—by filing his petition in person at Springfield. Altho still suffering painful bruises sustained in an automobile accident in Indiana last fall, when he was a candidate for chief justice of the Municipal court, Thorsness said he will make an intensive campaign.

A former master in chancery of the Superior court and active in World war veterans' circles. Thorsness resides in the 44th ward at the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West. The district also includes the 48th ward and portions of wards 42, 43, 46, and 49.

Hits Subversive Elements.

"If the 31st district Republicans will nominate a real American as their candidate for state senator he will win over the Democrat whomsoever he may be," he said. "But with the people alert to the dangers from within and without, every candidate will be subjected to the closest scrutiny. No man having the slightest connection with un-American or subversive organizations will be given the opportunity to pursue his twisted beliefs and practices in the legislative or executive offices of Illinois or the nation."

Then a statement was issued from Thorsness' office by the 31st District War Veterans' association, of which Edward W. Turk, 1431 Victoria street is chairman.

"We are glad that Thorsness has tossed his hat into the ring," this statement said. "Whitney's membership and activity in such organizations as the Civil Liberties league and the National Lawyers' guild make him extremely distasteful as a candidate for state senator.

"In times like these we must have in our Illinois legislature men of proven patriotism and loyalty to country."

Revolt Against Whitney.

Whitney, who became 48th ward committeeman in 1940, was first reported to have the support of all of the regular G. O. P. organizations in the district. During the past week, however, there was said to be a minor revolt among many party workers against his candidacy. Whitney is an attorney in the firm of Whitney, Teitelbaum, and Freeman.

Babb is not pulling any punches in assailing Whitney. Also a lawyer, in the firm of Trimborn and Babb, he is former state chairman of the Illinois Young Republicans and was editor of the Republican Reporter, a newspaper of party activities.

"Now let's find out whether we, the Republican voters and workers, meant it when we said bossism must go," Babb said. "Whitney has a $4,200 a year job with the state department of registration and education while carrying on his law practice. Four members of his law firm are on the pay roll.

Assails "Pink Groups."

"At the same time many Republican workers who have been loyal party helpers for 10 and 12 years have gone unrewarded. The selection of Whitney as the supposed candidate of the regular organization was an example of bossism in our midst. His connections with the pink groups are not what the party needs in a state senator."

32 ENTER RACE FOR CONGRESS IN FIVE DISTRICTS

12 Scramble for the Final Spot on Ballot.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Thirty-two congressional candidates filed their nominating petitions from the five districts that make up the northern sector, it was announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes after the filing deadline at midnight last Monday.

Each major party will nominate one candidate for each district in the April 14 primary. The two winners in each district will fight it out in the Nov. 3 election, the winner representing the district in the national lower house for a two year term.

12 File on Last Day.

The five districts that embrace northern Chicagoland are the 1st, 7th, 9th, 10th, and 11th. Of the 32 candidates who filed in these five, 19 were Democrats and 13 were Republicans. Seven of the Democrats and five of the Republicans filed on the last day.

In the 11 districts of the Chicago metropolitan area a total of 76 candidates filed for the 22 nominations to be made. Of these, 34, or slightly more than half, waited until the last day to file.

This last minute rush is not unusual. Its principal cause is the desire of candidates in contested districts to have their names appear last on the ballots if they cannot get top listing. These two spots are deemed most desirable because they are supposed to help ordinary voters locate candidates' names more easily.

Expect Some Withdrawals.

Candidates had until midnight last night to withdraw their names from the official primary ballots, which must soon go to press. Such withdrawals are prompted by a variety of reasons.

Some weak candidates quit as soon as the hopelessness of their campaigns becomes apparent. Others who had been hopeful of attracting organization support retire when the aid passes them by. Still others are ordered to quit by party leaders to whom they are subservient. Some fade out after the conclusion of a political deal in which they have advantageously used their nuisance value.

Here is the stackup for the five northerly districts as it existed at the close of filings, but before withdrawals had been concluded:

FIRST DISTRICT

This district includes the loop, all of the 1st ward and parts of the 2d, 4th, and 11th wards.

On the Democratic side Former Ald. William L. Dawson [2d] is in top ballot position. Dawson was the Republican nominee from the district in the 1938 election, but lost to Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, incumbent since 1934 who is retiring because the Democratic organization turned thumbs down on his labor voting record in the national house.

Next appears the name of Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, who was sent to the city council in 1939 after a three cornered fight among himself, Dawson, and William E. King. Dickerson was victorious over King in the council run-off.

In third and last spot is William S. McNamara, attorney who ran for municipal judge in the 1938 primary. He is the only white man filed in the 1st district Democratic race, both Dawson and Dickerson being colored.

On the Republican side Former State Sen. William E. King heads the ballot list. The second name is that of Dr. Benjamin W. Mach, dentist who ran 10th in the 2d district primary two years ago. The tail ender is Bindley C. Cyrus, 764 East Oakwood boulevard, a political unknown.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

The 7th district, largest in the United States, contains 10 whole wards, parts of 10 others, and the townships of Hanover, Schaumberg, Elk Grove, Maine, Leyden, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, and Norwood Park.

Nine Democrats are filed. Top spot on the list is held by Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, incumbent since 1930, whom the city hall organization seriously considered dumping. The others, in order, are Benjamin D. Leavitt, 2640 Logan boulevard; Michael Swaitkowski, 2732 North Kedzie avenue; James C. McGloon, 1258 North Central avenue; Harry S. Dolgoff, 3615 Leland avenue; Otto E. Gorski, 5417 Higgins avenue; George J. Piepiorka, 2318 North Western avenue; Walter Jagodzinski, 6151 North Moody avenue, and Stanley M. Kaminski, 4032 Nelson street. All but Schuetz, Leavitt, and Swaitkowski filed on the final day.

Four Republicans entered the race. First was James C. Moreland, real estate man and former alderman of the 41st ward, who was the G. O. P. nominee in 1930, 1936, 1938, and 1940, making his best showing two years ago. Second was Meyer Fink, 5869 North Kilbourn avenue, a poor third in the 1936 primary. John W. Lorenz, 5116 West Wolfram street, and George T. Foster, 2607 Lawrence avenue, filed in that order on the last day.

NINTH DISTRICT

This district, which includes the wealthy gold coast as well as crowded river precincts, takes in all of the 42d ward and parts of the 43d, 44th, and 46th wards.

There are four Democratic candidates, all of them of minor importance except the first to file, Attorney Irwin N. Walker, attorney and vice president of the Chicago Board of Education, who has the full strength of the Democratic organization behind him. The others, in the order of their filing, are: Albert Lagerstedt, 25 West Ontario street, who was a Minnesota congressman from 1922 to 1928 and who has been a minor candidate in previous Illinois elections; Monte Randall, 48 East Chicago avenue, a radio announcer, and Henry Lee Bowlby, 429 West Arlington street. Bowlby filed on the last day.

Congressman Charles S. Dewey, who unseated the Democrat, James McAndrews, in 1940 on his second try, is unopposed for the G. O. P. nomination.

TENTH DISTRICT

Jack Bairstow, Waukegan corporation counsel, is opposed for the Democratic nomination only by Alexander J. Moody, 1441 West Albion avenue. Bairstow will have most of the organization support.

Congressman George A. Paddock of Evanston, who is rounding out his first term, tops the G. O. P. ballot. Next comes the name of former Congressman Ralph E. Church, also of Evanston, who retired in 1940 to run for the Republican nomination for United States senator. He filed for the senatorship spot again this year, and late last week had not indicated whether he would withdraw from either race. Last place in the Republican list is occupied by James M. Crume, 7657 North Greenview avenue, insurance man and a distant kin of Abraham Lincoln.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

The 11th is made up of the counties of Du Page, Kane, Will, and McHenry, which hem the first 10 districts against Lake Michigan from the Indiana state line to Wisconsin.

Sam Joseph Perry of Glen Ellyn, in Du Page county, former state representative from the 41st senatorial district, is the only Democrat filed for congress in this district.

Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, also in Du Page county, incumbent since 1934, has only one challenger in the Republican primary. He is Thomas M. Jennings, 80th avenue and Woodvale road, Frankfort [in Will county], former carpenter, now a shipping department employé in a Whiting chemical plant.

Queen of the USO in Waukegan

Queen of the USO Catholic center in Waukegan is Miss Anne Durkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Durkin of Waukegan. Her quartet of admirers are D. J. Phelps of Hibbing, Minn.; L. M. Hammes from Pocahontas, Ia.; A. C. Accurson from Mason City, Ia., and Pat Walsh, Houston, Tex. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

1,500 EVANSTON SCHOOLGIRLS TO GIVE GYM SHOW

Acts to Have 'Health for Victory' Theme.

(Picture on page 1.)

With "Health for Victory" as the keynote, every able bodied girl in the physical education program of the Evanston Township High school, numbering more than 1,500, will participate in a 16 act gym extravaganza at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in Beardsley gymnasium.

A verse chanting choir, modeled after the ancient Greek chorus, will open the show and interpret acts.

"When evil forces jeopardize
Our peace and freedom, which we prize,
American women rise to defend
Their priceless heritage, and to spend
Their strength and energy that there may be An endless Peace—after Victory."

Mauve Decade to Be Portrayed.

High lighting the show will be a "Gay Nineties" number in which girls, clad as were their mothers in baggy bloomers, black hose and high collar middies, high white tennis shoes and elevated coiffures, will demonstrate typical exercises of the times. The chorus will chant:

"Victorian women felt the urge
To exercise, then came the purge
Of garments sweeping to the floor.
The movement ran from shore to shore,
Encouraged by the shocking rumor,
Of trousers worn by Mrs. Bloomer."

Folk Dances a Feature.

Another colorful part of the program, which will be almost two hours in length, will be folk dances—Russian, English, and American—performed by girls dressed in native costume.

Other numbers will include an abbreviated hockey game, rhythmic gymnastics including a 12 foot wand exercise by 240 girls, top dancing, marching, and mass calisthenics.

In the finale the entire group will form a United States shield in red, white, and blue and in this formation join with the audience in the singing of the national anthem.

Director of the show is Elfreda Maine, head of the girls' physical education department, who explained that the show was but one phase of the year's activities.

HARRY ASH HITS SUGAR REGISTER PLAN AS WASTE

The sugar rationing registration plan as announced by Michael Mulcahy, Chicago rationing administrator, is a "monstrous imposition" on the city, Harry A. Ash, attorney and candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 29th district, asserted last week. Ash, who has been chairman of draft board 142 since its organization has asked to be relieved of that duty during the campaign.

A letter sent by Ash to Mulcahy said the plan would cost the city $2,500,000 and cause the loss of millions of man hours that are needed for defense.

Ash suggested that the registration machinery set up for the draft, which has handled more than 40 million men, be utilized to make the sugar registration a simple thing.

Plan to Use School Halls.

Mulcahy, under orders from Washington, has secured the use of 275 public school assembly halls and the assistance of teachers for the four day registration. He said it would take each person who registers about 25 minutes to fill out the complicated questionnaire.

School officials have promised rationing authorities that pupils would be dismissed for registration days if that is necessary. A decision has not been made. It is expected that the registration will be held the last week in March.

In his letter, Ash declared it costs $360,000 to operate the 275 schools for one day. For a four day registration, the cost would be $1,400,000.

Likewise, the man hours of work by 50,000 registrars at $5 a day represents a cost of $1,000,000.

Urges System Used in Draft.

"I pass over the countless unnecessary hours spent by some 3½ million citizens in waiting and answering detailed questions," Ash's letter continued.

"I submit that the ideal, simple, and proven plan—as proved by the draft system—is to let the registrants go to any properly designated place on the proper day and give only their names and addresses.

"Rationing questionnaires can then be mailed to each registrant. These questionnaires can be filled out at the registrants' leisure in their own homes, under oath.

"This is the plan, Mr. Mulcahy, which works with 40 million draft registrants and which surely should work with some future customer of the neighborhood food shop!"

HELEN JACQUARD ON PROGRAM OF JEWISH WOMEN

North Shore Unit Will Hear Play Excerpts.

A dessert luncheon at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the North Shore Congregation Israel Community house at Lincoln and Vernon avenues, Glencoe, will open an afternoon devoted to a dramatic program by Helen Jacquard for members of the North Shore committee of the National council of Jewish women.

Mrs. Harry L. Canmann, chairman of the north side committee, has announced that in Miss Jacquard's program, "Bringing Broadway to You," she does not tell the stories of the plays she discusses; rather, she stimulates the playgoer's interest by reading salient bits from various dramas.

Temple Emanuel Sisterhood.

Members' day will be celebrated Tuesday afternoon in the temple at 701 Buckingham place. There will be a picnic luncheon at noon in the community room. Members will make up the cast for a playlet at 2 o'clock.

The afternoon has been designated as a mothers' and daughters' event giving the old and the new in club life, in the home, in family finance planning, in dance and song.

There will be a sisterhood meeting of years ago with members in old-fashioned costumes carrying on conversations of long ago "current topics." On another side of the same stage will be a modern setting for a modern meeting.

Temple Sholom Sisterhood.

Mrs. Erwin Mautner, president, will call a meeting to order at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Frankenstein center of Temple Sholom, 3520 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Sidney Aronson will read the opening prayer. There will be a series of reports.

Mrs. A. James Riffkind will be in charge of the program. Selections will be given by Leonard Sorkin, violinist, and Margaret Leddow, vocalist.

W-G-N TO NAME MARION CLAIRE SONG WINNERS

Fans Will Be Guests at Special Broadcast.

Members of the Theater of the Air club chapters from Chicagoland and other points as far east as Brooklyn and as far south as Austin, Tex., will be guests of W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday for a special Marion Claire night honoring the soprano prima donna of the operetta broadcasts. The program will be aired on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual.

A feature of the broadcast will be the announcement of the winners in the $1,000 Marion Claire contest to select "which song from which operetta you best like to hear Marion Claire sing."

Miss Claire will read the names of the winners and will sing the operetta selection chosen by the winning contestant.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Judges reviewed thousands of entries received from 27 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the Marion Claire contest. During the program Miss Claire will sing her favorite operetta selection as well as that chosen by the radio audience as its favorite.

The Theater of the Air club lists more than 300 chapters from coast to coast with a membership of 7,156. The chapter members meet every Saturday night to listen to the operetta broadcasts on W-G-N and Mutual and many of the chapters have become active forces for the "best in music" in their communities.

Singing with Miss Claire in the broadcast will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of many of the operetta programs, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire will extend a personal welcome to the club members who will be guests at the broadcast.

RUTH SLATER IS GUEST ON 'MUSIC THAT ENDURES'

Ruth Slater, contralto star of opera and the concert stage who is regularly heard on FM station W59C each Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be guest soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's "Music That Endures" program, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber will be featured with Miss Slater.

Miss Slater will sing "Dedication" by Franz and "Come to the Fair" by Martin. She will also appear with the chorus in Schubert's hymn, "Omnipotence."

The orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber will play the finale from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and "The Angelus" from Hadley's Third Symphony. They will join the augmented chorus in the presentation of "God's Country."

Melody Matinee to Offer Favorite American Songs

A new program titled "Melody Matinée," based on the theory that radio holds no finer enjoyment than lovely melodies smoothly played, will be heard each Sunday on W-G-N from 12:30 to 1 p. m. The program is devoted to favorite American songs, arranged and presented by outstanding conductors and singers. Today's program will include selections from "New Moon," "Carioca," Jerome Kern's beautiful "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Among My Souvenirs," "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Greek Church Club.

The youth club of the St. James Greek Orthodox church, 2727 Winona avenue, will give a dance at 9 o'clock Saturday evening in the church hall.

MAC LEISH TO DISCUSS PROPAGANDA ON RADIO ROUND TABLE TODAY

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, will discuss "Propaganda—Good and Bad" on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

MacLeish, whose office approves the release of information on the war program, will participate in the round table discussion with Harold D. Lasswell, director of war communications research for the library of congress, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of the humanities at the University of Chicago.

The speakers will discuss the need for honesty in propaganda and measure the effects of present propaganda procedures in the United States upon morale at home and abroad.

Elizabeth Schumann Sings on America Preferred Hour

Elizabeth Schumann, a leading soprano of the New York Metropolitan Opera company, will be the featured soloist on "America Preferred" to be heard on W-G-N at 10:30 a. m. today. Alfred Wallenstein's orchestra will accompany Miss Schumann in the program which consists largely of compositions by Mozart and Strauss.

The program:

"Il Re Pastore"	Mozart
"Alleluja"	Mozart
"Voi che Sapete" [from "Nozze de Figaro"]	Mozart
"Morgen"	Strauss
"Staendchen"	Strauss

Deems Taylor, music critic, will give the intermission commentary.

Daumier to Be Subject of Great Artists' Show

The means by which one cartoon by Honore Daumier, famed French cartoonist and artist, accomplished a social change in the days immediately following the French revolution will be dramatized on W-G-N's "Great Artists" program at 2:15 p. m. Wednesday.

RACE FOR SHERIFF HOLDS SPOTLIGHT IN LAKE COUNTY

Chief Deputy, 3 Others on G. O. P. Ticket.

Complete filings for the primary elections in Lake county indicate that the race for sheriff on the Republican ticket may be the chief contest. The quartet of aspirants include the present chief deputy sheriff, Walter L. Atkinson of North Chicago, and a former sheriff, Lester T. Tiffany, also of North Chicago. Since no one filed for sheriff on the Democrat or any other ticket, victory at the primaries may be regarded as tantamount to election.

That statement applies generally to all county offices in the area. All present office holders are Republicans. The legend has been broken only once since the Civil war. The lone Democratic winner was Russ. Alford who won the county clerk's race in 1934. Alford sought reëlection in 1938, but was decisively defeated by the incumbent, Jay. B. Morse.

Atkinson Chief Contender.

Atkinson, leading candidate in the sheriff's race has been chief deputy since December, 1938. For four years before that he was financial secretary in the sheriff's office. From 1925 to 1935 he served two five year terms as mayor of North Chicago, and he has the support of the nonpartisan organization formed in North Chicago several weeks ago headed by Mayor John P. Dromey of North Chicago, a leading Democrat in Lake county.

Tiffany was Lake county sheriff from 1930 to 1934. He became a deputy in the sheriff's office in 1922, serving four years and becoming chief deputy the last two. He was Lake Forest police chief from 1926 to 1930. The present sheriff is Thomas E. Kennedy, elected on the Republican ticket in November, 1938. Under Illinois law, a sheriff cannot succeed himself.

The other two candidates are Napoleon Joseph Meunier, Waukegan, a World war veteran, jeweler, and operator of a delivery service along the north shore, and John DeSmidt, Highwood, also a war veteran. DeSmidt has been Highwood chief of police for the past six years.

Judge Seeks Another Term.

Perry L. Persons, county judge since 1910, has filed on the Republican ticket for reëlection. His nomination is being contested by Paul D. Doolen and Herman C. Litchfield, both Waukegan lawyers, on the Republican side. Both are members of the Republican county central committee, each representing Waukegan precincts. Doolen represents Precinct 1, and Litchfield, Precinct 2. Philip W. Yager, young Waukegan lawyer, is the lone aspirant on the Democratic ticket.

The Republican race for nomination for probate judge is between Martin C. Decker, Waukegan, who has held the office since it was established in 1922, and Charles E. Mason, Gurnee, Lake county state's attorney from 1932 to 1940, when he was defeated for a third term by the incumbent, Harry A. Hall.

Charles Noll of Waukegan and Robert P. Sullivan, Prairie View, has filed on the Democrat side.

Allen J. Nelson, Waukegan, present probate clerk, and Warren O. Siver, also Waukegan, are contestants for the clerk nomination. Nelson was elected in 1938. Before that he served a term as county treasurer, and he was a deputy in the treasurer's office for several years. Siver is a Waukegan merchant. Charles Cermak Jr., Antioch, has filed for the Democrat nomination.

Jay B. Morse, now in his first term as county clerk, is the sole Republican asking for the Republican nomination. He is a resident of Libertyville. Morse, a former county treasurer, has served in the treasurer's office as deputy and in the clerk's office as chief deputy. The Democrat is Ivan R. Harlow of Zion.

Deputy Seeks Treasurer's Post.

The county treasurer, like the sheriff, cannot succeed himself. Therefore, the incumbent, Garfield Leaf, is not on the ticket for another nomination. The Republican candidate is Gustaf H. Fredbeck, Waukegan, now chief deputy and cashier in the treasurer's office. He began in the office as deputy and bookkeeper in 1934. He has been chief deputy and cashier since December, 1938. The Democrat is Anthony Macrowski of North Chicago.

W. C. Petty of Antioch appears once more on the Republican slate for nomination as county superintendent of schools, a position he has held since 1930. He is now completing his third term. Petty is unopposed within his own party. Henry C. Eads of Waukegan is asking for the nomination by the Democrats.

Charles E. Jack, Waukegan, is the Republican asking for the place of senatorial committeeman for Lake county from the 8th senatorial district. Harold J. Riley, North Chicago, and Eugene Gimbel, Mundelein, are in the Democrat race. Jack and Riley are now the Republican and Democrat incumbents, respectively.

SALUTE HIRSCH AND D. M. NELSON ON CITIZENS HOUR

The achievements of Hirsch High school will be saluted on Citizens of Tomorrow on W-G-N from 1:30 to 2 p. m. today. The program is presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which honors an outstanding Chicagoland school each week.

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, assembled students from Hirsch in the main audience studio of W-G-N last Wednesday when the program for today was recorded. Thaddeus J. Lubera, principal of Hirsch, recounted some of that school's achievement and told of its history. The Choral club under the direction of Helen Kane sang "When Day Is Done" and the rustic song titled "The Peasant and His Oxen."

During the program Mr. Maxwell paid tribute to one of America's foremost executives, Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production board. Nelson attended the Hannibal, Mo., High school, where he ranked highest in his senior class and was noted for his participation in extracurricular activities. Nelson's motto of doing "first things first" was suggested as an excellent motto for the students of Hirsch to adopt.

Russell Bennett to Air Own Concerto on Friday

Russell Bennett's own composition, a concerto for viola, harp and orchestra, will be featured on his "Notebook" program on W59C and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Friday. Bennett will conduct the playing of his concerto, during which Milton Kaye, violinist, and Laura Newell, harpist, will be the soloists.

In W-G-N Army Show

SHADOW ROUNDS OUT 12 YEARS AS A THRILLER

Onetime Villain Turns to Justice Crusade.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just 12 years ago this week "The Shadow" radio series was launched. For many years it has been an established feature over the Mutual network [currently 4:30 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N]. It has been a trail blazer for all the radio "Ellery Queens," "Sherlock Holmes," "Thin Mans," and other thrillers and whoduits.

In the beginning the Shadow [who enjoys the highest listening audience of any day time radio show according to recent surveys] was a shocker. The Shadow was more or less a villain in the days when Frank Readick played the part. The character began improving during the tenure of the spectacular Orson Welles. In recent years, with Bill Johnstone in the title rôle and Marjorie Anderson as his girl friend, Margot Lane, the Shadow has become a hero.

While he still his his eerie laugh, with the aid of a filter microphone, the Shadow doesn't fly thru space, hypnotize characters, and, in general, behave like Superman.

Shadow Is Invisible.

The only edge he has on the other performers is that he can become invisible—the program writers had to do that to give the dramas the kind of zing and suspense they require.

The kids didn't care very much about the enormity of "The Shadow's" early crimes. Bombing of Grand Central station, gassing New York or 'Frisco—they took 'em in stride.

Current "Shadow" episodes don't go that far. But they're gaudy enough—recent scrips had a villain killed by the kiss of a jackdaw with a cyanide tipped beak, a great dane devouring a killer midget, a gorilla cracking his master's skull.

Crusades for Justice.

And here's another revision of the early Shadow character. He never kills anybody directly. He just aggravates them to the point of surrendering or confounds them with so much cleverness they commit suicide. He's strictly a crusader for justice.

Sid Slon and Peter Barry are the regular writers and Bill Tutle supervises scripts. They like fantastic ideas. Among those used have been a saga tagged "The Man Who Murdered Time."

Time stopped everywhere in the world and kept repeating itself like a broken record. The same people kept dying, the same auto accidents occurred, the same dictators made the same promises. Finally "The Shadow" found out why—a mad scientist, afraid of dying, had stopped time cold.

MAID IN AMERICA SERIES STARTS ON W-G-N TUESDAY

A new variety show utilizing stars of the stage and radio whose careers are living proof that in America any one who has ability and works hard can rise to great heights, will have its inaugural broadcast on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday. The series, titled "Maid in America," will be heard on W-G-N at the same hour every Tuesday.

"Maid in America" will each week have as its mistress of ceremonies, Heather Tweed, who has appeared on many network radio programs and on the legitimate stage in "Blossom Time" and in "This Thing Called Love."

Tuesday's guest stars will be Curt Massey, radio singer, and Mary Jane Howard, songstress now being featured in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel.

W-G-N LISTENER PROVIDES CHURCH BELL FOR AFRICA

A church bell that for years called to worship the people of Hamilton, Mo., is now on the high seas, traveling the long road to Rhodesia, Africa, because of an appeal made on W-G-N-Mutual's public service program, "This Is Life." Each "This Is Life" broadcast describes the cases of deserving people who need the listeners' assistance.

A short time ago "This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and Mutual Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 11:15 a. m., broadcast a letter from William B. West, an engineer who had just returned from a church construction project in Rhodesia, Africa. The church was almost completed, wrote Mr. West, but lacked a bell. Nowhere in that dark African region could one be located, and the mission had no money to import one from the outside. So, because he had heard what "This Is Life" listeners had done to find needed articles, West appealed to them.

Many offers were received, but the majority of them—for bells that were too large—had to be rejected. Finally Mrs. Oscar Axton of Hamilton, Mo., offered one that was just the right size. Her offer was accepted.

Phil La Follette to Speak on 'Our First Job' Friday

Phil LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will be heard on W59C's exclusive broadcast from the luncheon meeting of the Chicago Executives club, from 1:05 to 1:45 p. m. Friday. La Follette will discuss "Our First Job."

STOCK TO LEAD ORCHESTRA IN F-M PREMIERE

New Carpenter March on W59C Wednesday.

Margery Lindquist. [Carmen-Winger.]

The first Frequency Modulation broadcast by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented by W59C, from 3:45 to 4:45 p. m. Wednesday. The Mutual network will broadcast the concert, conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock in Chicago's Orchestra hall, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

A 240 voice choir from the public schools, observing the centenary of vocal training in the Chicago schools, will be featured during the broadcast. The concert will open with the choir and orchestra presenting "The Star Spangled Banner" under the direction of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

A highlight of the concert will be the world première of "March and Song to Freedom," by John Alden Carpenter, noted Chicago composer. Mr. Carpenter wrote this composition in celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the school system. The choir will sing during the première presentation of this work.

Soloist on the program, one of the regular children's concerts by the Chicago Symphony, will be Margery Lindquist, young soprano of Oak Park. Miss Lindquist will sing the Recitative and Polonaise from "Mignon" by Thomas.

The program also will include: the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini; opus 67 of the Andante con moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony; "The American Patrol" by Meachem; the "Marche Slav," opus 31, by Tschaikowsky, and Sousa's stirring march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Priest Honored.

Parishoners of St. Vincent's church, 1010 Webster avenue, last week held a farewell party in honor of the Rev. Michael Reis in De Paul auditorium.

WALLER SERVICE PLAQUE BEARS FIRST GOLD STAR

Honors Sergt. Zurchauer, Fallen at Wake Island.

Sergt. Robert Zurchauer.

A gold star will honor the memory of Sergt. Robert Zurchauer on the new Waller High school ROTC service plaque completed last week by Alex Nerroth Jr., a former Waller cadet. Zurchauer's parents, who reside at 619 Armitage avenue, recently received a telegram from the U. S. Marine corps, while Nerroth was visiting at the Zurchauer home, reporting their son had been killed in the Japanese attack on Wake Island Dec. 9. He was placed on the list of marines cited for bravery.

Nerroth, employed at a printing press supply house on the near north side, had known Zurchauer 10 years. They had been classmates at Lincoln grammar school and at Waller, where they were graduated as captains in the ROTC.

Memorial in Drill Hall.

"I wanted to do something for him," said Nerroth. The result is the four foot high wooden memorial that honors former Waller cadets who have joined the armed forces. After Zurchauer's name is a gold star—the only one to date on the plaque which will hang permanently in the Waller ROTC drill hall.

Nerroth, who lives at 2003 Howe street, said that no one is prouder of the Waller memorial than Mr. and Mrs. Zurchauer. Mr. Zurchauer is a retired druggist. When the parents received the insurance money after their son's death they purchased $1,200 worth of denfense bonds. "These bonds will aid other boys in picking up the fight where my son left off," Mrs. Zurchauer said.

Soldier Praises Mother.

Last week she received a letter from Private Irwin L. Kagan, another former Waller cadet, who is in the air corps training detachment at Oakland airport, Cal. Kagan had read of Zurchauer's death and of his mother's decision to use the insurance money for defense bonds.

"When you talked about us boys picking up where he left off, truer words were never spoken," Kagan wrote. "There is one aim of the boys out here, and that is to wipe those yellow bellies off the map. If all the mothers in America were like you, there wouldn't be a thing to worry about. I think you are a very brave and wonderful woman." Kagan had never met his correspondent.

Zurchauer was a popular student at Waller and took part in its social activities. He was awarded the Chicago Tribune silver medal as an outstanding cadet in 1937.

Others in Service.

Other service men on the Waller tablet are:

Army—Second Lieut. Michael Ried, in the officer's school at Camp Forrest, Tenn.; Staff Sergt. Edward Chesko; Recruiting Sergt. Chris Walters at Detroit; Sergt. Oscar Suchier, John Sargis, and John Bilder, all in the 33d Division at Camp Forrest; Tony Prietto at Fort Snelling, Minn.; Robert L. Chapman at Fort Benning, Ga.; Peter Paulmann, Frank McCormick, Louis Lambros, John Krier, Henry Mueller, Carl Kressen, Charles Goetz, George Proffit, August Schmitz, David Kreuger.

Navy—Chris Landis, Marshall Spikings Jr., Lon Dawson, Carl Weight, Mark Phelps, Irwin Kagan, Ralph K. Parker.

Marines—Henry Gruden, Donald Castri, Thomas Herringshaw, Elmer Augustine.

Nerroth asks parents and friends to notify Sergt. John D. Delaney at Waller so that other former Waller cadets serving in the armed forces may be placed on the roll.

JEWISH GROUPS OBSERVE PURIM FESTIVAL TODAY

The festival of Purim, commemorating an ancient day when Jews of Persia narrowly escaped an extermination plot, will be celebrated this week-end at Anshe Emet synagogue, 3760 Pine Grove avenue. At 10 o'clock this morning children of the Sunday schools will hold their annual party to which parents have been invited. All children will be dressed in ancient biblical, modern Palestine, and comic costumes.

Synagogue groups will present skits and stunts, dramatic and musical. A committee of judges, headed by Todros Geller, artist, will award prizes for the funniest, most original, and most distinctively Jewish costumes. Pupils will elect a Mordecai and Queen Esther.

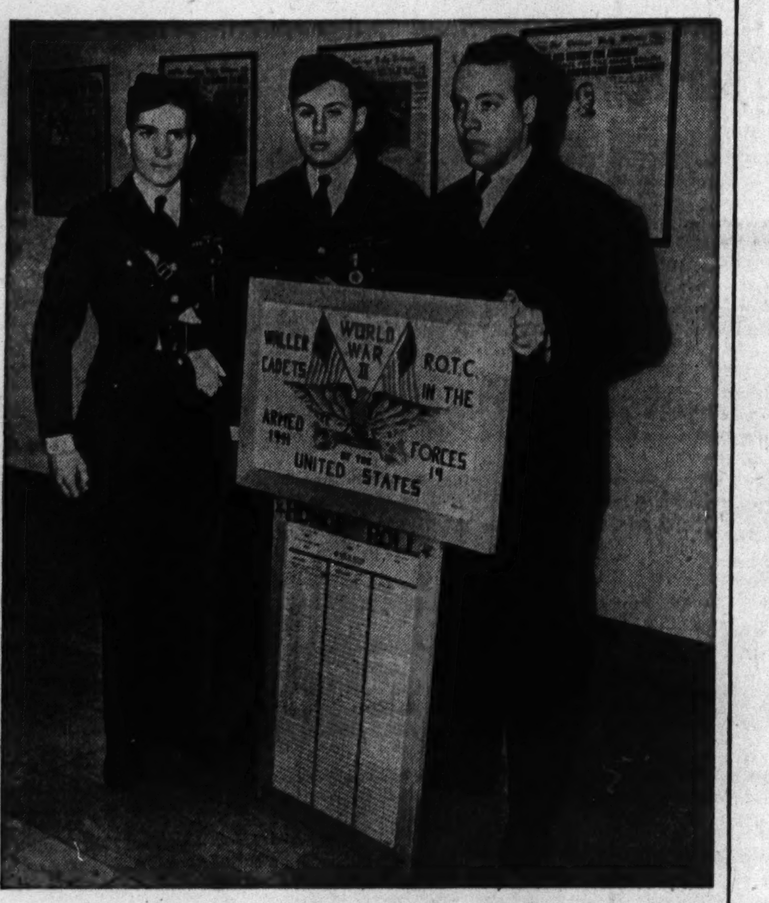
At 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening families will gather in the synagogue to hear the reading of the "Megillah," ancient scroll.

The final lecture in this season's Men's club forum series of Congregation B'nai Zion, 1447 Pratt boulevard, will be held at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening in the synagogue. Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the People's church, will speak on "Democracy, Tragedy, or Triumph."

The festival of Purim, including the serving of a Seudah meal, will be observed at the College of Jewish Studies at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in Bialik hall, 220 South State street. Following the traditional meal will be a program of Jewish drama and music directed by Ben Aronin and Human Reznick of the board of Jewish education.

Dr. Louis Binstock will use as the topic of his sermon at 11 o'clock this morning Pierre Van Paassen's "That Day Alone," at Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive. The annual Purim party for children of the religious school will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Memorial to Hero Classmate



Because he wanted a memorial to his Waller High school classmate who was killed by the Japanese at Wake Island, Alex Nerroth Jr. (right) made this tablet to honor Waller ROTC cadets who have answered the call of the armed service. Nerroth's younger brother, Leo, a cadet captain at Waller, stands at the left. In the center is the new regimental commander of Waller's 305 cadets, Lieut. Col. Frank Sauer.

129 NORTH SIDERS GET PERMITS TO BUY NEW AUTOS

450 Cars Are Rationed in City First Week.

Permits for new automobiles went to 129 individuals and companies on the north side during the week of Feb. 16 to 20—the first week of rationing of 1942 passengers cars in Chicago.

In that week the eight rationing boards in Chicago, which also have jurisdiction over tire and tube purchases, received 1,174 inquiries concerning new car deliveries. Nearly 900 made out applications for cars. Some were withdrawn, others are pending, and still others were rejected, with the net result that certificates were issued for 450 cars.

Robe Is Six Months Project.

This is not Joseph's coat of many colors. It's a robe that the wearer, Mrs. Belle Weinberg, 73 years old, 755 Buena avenue, made for herself out of pieces of silks, satins, and embroidered goods left from the stock of the wholesale and retail store she and her husband, Samuel, used to operate at 1355 Roosevelt road. The quilt she is holding is also made from pieces from the old stock. It took Mrs. Weinberg four months to complete it. The robe took six months. A widow, now, Mrs. Weinberg says she is still eager to be in business. "Working keeps you young," she says, "or at least you think it does, and that's what counts." She has three sons—Ben, who operates a dental laboratory in Washington, D. C., Joseph in Alabama, and Al Weinberg with whom she resides.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

A MEMBER of the last class of registered nurses to join Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, Marian Martini of Evanston, Northwestern university graduate, will fly the Kansas City-Chicago-New York run. Since TWA recently abolished the regulation requiring hostesses to be registered nurses because of the need for them in the armed services, the next class will be composed of college girls. Miss Martini, a graduate of Evanston hospital, is the daughter of Mrs. Theressa Martini of Vulcan, Mich.

SEVEN large cakes were needed to satisfy more than 50 relatives, embracing four generations, and friends attending a birthday party for Mrs. Hulda Kaden, 80, of 1437 Belmont avenue. The fête was given for her recently by her children, Anna, Martha, and Edward of the same address. Mrs. Kaden, born in Germany, came to Chicago 60 years ago. The four generations included Mrs. Kaden, Mrs. Jacob Hirsch, Mrs. Thomas Glaser, and Carla Dean Glaser.

TIRE RATIONING FOR ONE WEEK SETS NEW MARK

78 Allotted to North Side Residents.

Thirty-one individuals and companies on the north side were rationed a total of 78 automobile tires and 42 tubes during the week of Feb. 16-20, it was reported by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator. Of these totals, truck owners were given 51 tires and 27 tubes, the remainder going to passenger car owners.

The eight rationing boards in Chicago issued 299 certificates, compared with 192 for the week previous. It was the largest week's business since tire rationing began Jan. 5.

Still Short of Quota.

Chicago's quota for February was 1,596 passenger tires and 2,654 truck tires. Up to Feb. 20 the boards had issued certificates for only 19.93 per cent of the passenger tire quota and 47.17 per cent of the truck tire quota.

Individuals and companies on the north side who received permits for tire and tube purchases during the third week of February are:

31ST DISTRICT HAS NINE G. O. P. IN SENATE RACE

Rivalry for State Position Bodes Well for Ticket.

of Republicans, who are among his indorsers, Babb opened up on Thorsness.

"We want no carpet-bagging in this district," Babb said. "Thorsness knows that the Illinois constitution requires two years residence in the district to be a candidate for the legislature. But look in the suburban telephone book for 1941 and you will find him listed at 93 Robsart street, Kenilworth.

"It is possible that if he were nominated and elected, the senate would refuse him the seat because of the question of residence. Then the Republican small majority in the senate would be reduced."

Makes 600 G. O. P. Speeches.

Babb has made over 600 speeches for Republican candidates since 1934, including radio talks. He was senior class president at the Chicago Kent college of law, and also attended Loyola university and the Bradley Polytechnic institute.

The Democratic regular organization has indorsed Attorney Milton D. Smith, 2300 Lincoln Park West, for the attempt to succeed Harold G. Ward, who was senator for ten years until his election to the Superior court last November.

Opposing Smith are Albert McGrath, 540 Surf street; Anthony Parisi, 502 Wisconsin street, and J. Arthur Kealy, 6019 Winthrop avenue.

Each party is nominating two for the house of representatives, with the four to be in a run-off for the three district seats in November.

Six Republicans in Race.

When filing closed last week the Republican house candidates were Rep. Edward P. Saltiel, Rep. George A. Williston, Carl Emil Liedberg, 3114 North Clifton avenue; Helen Nelson Englund, 400 Deming place; August B. Singer, 839 Wellington avenue, who has so-called Deneen support, and Seymour Rady, 4017 Clarendon avenue, a brother of the Walter Rady filed for the senate.

Democrats will find the following candidates on April 14 ballots for the house [barring withdrawals]: Rep. Pierce L. Shannon, James J. O'Toole, 1706 Crilly court; Anthony Parisi, 502 Wisconsin street, who also has filed for the senate; Milton S. Robins, 5046 Glenwood avenue, and Patrick D. Roche, 5457 Broadway.

The 25th district includes that portion of the north metropolitan section between the river and Western avenue from Belmont to Devon avenue.

In this district Frederick B. Resag, attorney with regular organization support for the Republican nomination for state senator, acquired an opponent last week. He is John A. Nordstrand, 4151 North Long avenue, a lawyer who has the indorsement of the present legal possessors of the name "National Republican party," which was formerly representative of the Deneen organization.

Huckin Has Six Opponents.

Sen. Frank J. Huckin Jr., Democratic incumbent, had six opponents when filing closed. They are Adam S. Przybyszewski, 2898 Milwaukee avenue, a former Horner ward leader; Walter F. Cebelin, 7175 Wrightwood avenue, a school teacher; Frank Slowinski, 4506 North Springfield avenue; Alex Noto, 4948 St. Paul avenue; Sol Gertz, 4647 North Lawndale avenue, and Mitchell M. Tomaszewski, 2115 Webster avenue.

The regular Democratic organization is supporting Rep. Stanley R. Kosinski and Jacob A. Mueller, an employé in the county treasurer's office, for the two party nominations for the house of representatives. Their opponents include Frank L. Murray, 5125 Warwick avenue; Morton L. Zaslavsky, 5009 North Harding avenue; Edward W. Cleary, 3656 Cornelia avenue; Michael M. Mullane, 3949 North Long avenue, and Stanley A. Lesniewski, 2314 Charleston street.

Republican regular organization choices for two house nominations are Rep. Elroy C. Sandquist and Committeeman Eugene L. Nusser of the 34th ward. Their opponents are James C. Alberti, 2040 North Lawler avenue; Frank Schultz, 2116 Concord place; George F. Whitteman, 5527 Cullom avenue; Nino J. Persello, 4501 Foster avenue, and John Mozart Johnson, 1623 Humboldt boulevard. Johnson is indorsed by the Deneen group.

Following are the names of Cook county candidates for senatorial committees who filed their petitions after last Sunday's list went to press:

REPUBLICAN.

25th district: Rocksell K. Bowder, 4553 North Keating avenue.

31st district: Robert S. Diehl, 4454 Malden street; Fred B. Hubbard, 538 Wrightwood avenue.

DEMOCRATIC.

No additional candidates filed.

Senatorial committees determine how many candidates each party shall nominate in each district for the Illinois house of representatives. These committees also are empowered to fill house vacancies on the ballot if nominees die or are disqualified before the November election.

Naval Cadets Receive ROTC Medals

Three cadets in the Naval ROTC at Northwestern university received Chicago Tribune medals in a recent ceremony. They are, left to right, Jack Hoffricher, Carl Hotze, and Victor Peters. Commander Smith D. A. Cobb, U. S. N. retired (right), is in charge of the training.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 2.

It soon will be spring and gardening will begin with a rush. Prune currants and gooseberry bushes now. All that is necessary is to cut away the oldest wood. Prune grapes as soon as possible before the sap begins to flow or before bleeding begins. Bleeding can be stopped by painting the cut ends with shellac.

When the ground is warm and any perennials or strawberry plants are heaved from the ground, firm the soil around them, pressing them into place. Pear trees, lilacs, and the flowering quince should be sprayed for scale. Destroy all insect cocoons.

Tuesday, March 3.

Home gardeners should plant some fruits, especially a few currants and gooseberries. A grapevine or two used as a screen is always profitable and beautiful. An apple, plum, peach, cherry, or pear tree is excellent for a background, or along the back fence. Plum trees are fine for the chicken yard.

Wednesday, March 4.

Do not remove all mulching material at the first thaw, for much injury is caused by late frosts. The lawn will soon need attention; a dressing of sifted, rich soil thinly spread over it will add materials to the turf that are greatly beneficial.

Most lawns need a good application of plant food and the best to use is a complete, commercial balanced food applied at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Established lawns that have bare places should be renovated by lightly spading up the areas, carefully raking until a fine seedbed is formed and grass seed sown.

Thursday, March 5.

If the ground has previously been in use a spading fork may be used instead of a common spade. A file is useful to keep tools sharpened. New tools should never become rusty. Wash off all soil that adheres every time a tool is used, and wipe with oil—old cylinder oil is excellent.

Friday, March 6.

The old garage usually can be improved by a covering of an annual vine, such as the moonvine, which flowers at night, morning glories, and the variegated hop. Some vegetables can be sown this month, such as tomatoes and early cabbage.

Sow thinly in boxes and after the seed has started keep in full light or sun, but watch the watering. If a coldframe is at hand use it a little later on for hardening off preparatory to transplanting them to the garden.

Saturday, March 7.

Beans should not be sown until all danger from frost has passed. Onion sets, lettuce, and radishes may be sown quite early. Some annuals are best sown indoors, for they require a considerable time to develop. Some annuals will do fairly well in poor soil, such as the California poppy, calliopsis, corn poppy, feather cockscomb, four o'clock, petunia, sweet alyssum, spiderflower [cleome], nasturtium, gaillardia, and balsam.

SKOKIE LIBRARY OPEN TO PATRONS IN NEW QUARTERS

Club Project Is Taken Over by Village.

The Skokie library, started a dozen years ago as a public service project of the Cosmos club, one of the community's women's clubs, is now settled in a new home. Like many another public service undertaking, the library outgrew its quarters in the Skokie Municipal building long ago. But the Cosmos club could provide no larger quarters, so the library grew more and more crowded. Last fall the voters of Skokie cast a majority of ballots for a municipal library.

With an outlook of increased income, the library celebrated its birthday month [it was opened Feb. 9, 1930] by moving into new quarters. Now it is housed in a newly completed building on Oakton street, several blocks east of the Municipal building.

The library, in its new home and as a municipal organization, will be dedicated next Sunday. There will be little ceremony. The event is simply announced as an open house from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and all Skokie residents are invited to call, to meet the board members and inspect the premises.

In Postoffice Building.

It still retains a neighborly relationship marking it as a project for and by the people. The fellow tenant in the two tenant building is the Skokie postoffice.

The book inventory is nearly 7,000 volumes. Board members plan to begin a book purchasing program soon.

Mrs. William C. Griffin, a past president of the Cosmos club, is president of the library board. She devoted a major share of her time last month to the chores of moving.

Others on Board.

Other members of the board: Mrs. Miles T. Babb, a past president of the Niles Center Woman's club, vice president; Richard S. Cutler, an investment business man in Chicago, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Leo J. Regan, a past president of Cosmos club; the Rev. Paul Winger, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church, and Carl C. Hunter, Chicago branch manager of a play equipment company. Mrs. Bertha Rosche is the librarian.

PUPILS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF SCHOOL MUSIC

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of vocal music in the Chicago public school system, a chorus of 400 students from Emmet, Peirce, Ruggles, and Wentworth elementary schools will participate at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Children's Symphony concert at Orchestra hall.

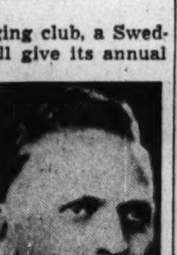
The children will sing John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Freedom," a selection written for the occasion. More than 3,500 public school pupils will be in the audience. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education, is organizer of the chorus. Vocal music was introduced into Chicago's schools three years after Lowell Mason, known as the "father of public school music," carried music into Boston schools.

The program will be broadcast at 3:45 o'clock over W-G-N.

SVITHIOD CHORUS TO GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT TODAY

Opera Singer to Appear as Soprano Soloist.

The Svithiod Singing club, a Swedish male chorus, will give its annual concert at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Civic theater of the Civic Opera house.



Grover A. Peterson.

Miss Beal Hober, a soprano who made her debut last season in New York with the Metropolitan Opera company, will be soloist. Other soloists include: Swen Webner, tenor, 1740 Normandy avenue; Gustaf Bjorn, baritone, Park Ridge; Everett W. Westman, tenor, 2943 North Lockwood avenue, and Axel Trauberg, baritone, Gary, Ind.

Knute Hansen Director.

Knute Hansen is director of the chorus. The group will be accompanied by Leo Terry at the organ and Charles Lurvey at the piano. Featured on the program will be "Country Wedding," by August Solderman. The selection, a Swedish classic, will be sung in the language in which it was written. The works of Grieg, Sebelius, and Franz also will be heard.

Proceeds will go to the Red Cross and other charitable organizations. Purpose of the singing club is to keep alive the music of Sweden, as well as that of the United States and other lands. Grover A. Peterson, 6444 North Rockwell street, is president. The club was organized 60 years ago this month.

North Side Represented.

North siders who will take part in the concert include Einar Brager, Oscar Henry Iverson, Elmer Ohrn, Gus Soderblom, Einar Anderson, Thure Bodine, Henri Elmlund, Fred Erickson, Howard C. Gartner, Albert Kellberg, August Nordmark, Olof A. Ramsey, Lambert Shodeen, Roy J. Sunden, Allan Wennerstrand, Melvin C. Werner, Sven Ahlstedt, Gus Bergh, Fred Henry Carlson, Elmer W. Ehrenborgh, Theodor Ekstrom, Eric V. Erickson, Walter Hallin, G. Tate Hultman, Gunnar S. Noreen, Paul Ramsey, Carl G. Sutherland, Everett W. Westman, Arbid Benson, Robert A. Borg, Carl Erickson, Axel Gusting, Carl A. Johnson, Frank Johnson, Simon Johnson, Carl Lundius, Einar B. Olson, Gustaf Rickan, Eskil Steen, and Werner Wennerstrand.

EDGEMERE CLUB CHAIRMEN PLAN PARLEY TUESDAY

Directors and chairmen of the Edgemere Woman's club will meet at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Burt E. Steenson, first vice president, will preside. The conservation department will meet in the afternoon with Mrs. Irvin L. Scott, chairman, in charge.

Lake View Woman's Club.

Members will meet at the Granada hotel at noon Tuesday for a talk, "Watts and Romance," by Miss Mercedes Hurst. This program will be sponsored by the civics and economics department, Mrs. Herbert Archut is chairman.

William Benes, violinist, will play at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Mary Meyer Bacon, reviewer and lecturer, will speak on "Thoughts, Pertinent and Impertinent."

Women's Club of Peoples Church.

Members will meet in Channing hall, 941 Lawrence avenue, at 1 o'clock tomorrow. The topic will be international relations. Mrs. Clyde Bassler, chairman of that department, will introduce Miss Margaret Fleck Brown in a program of music and discussion called "Music and Social Life of South America." Club members will make up the cast of a one act play directed by Miss Lenora Brown.

ATTIC, ONCE IDLE, BECOMES HANDY SPACE IN HOME

Playrooms or Storage Easily Provided.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Attics these days are coming to the fore as more space is needed in hosts of families the country over. Perhaps there are defense workers in town who could use living quarters converted from storage hideaways for trunks and portraits, walnut dressers and iron bedsteads. Or perhaps the boys of the family would take it over gleefully and hang a sign on the stair door: "For boys only—grownups and girls please stay out."

The spirit of 1900 won't sit prim and stiffnecked in so many attics this year. The spirit of 1942 is determined to make the best of what we have—and keep it fit and working for use as far as possible.

Bathroom in Corner.

One very interesting attic modernization converted the attic into the children's domain. Tucked in one corner is the children's bathroom, with a low cast-iron enameled tub and small lavatory that matches in color and design. This lavatory is wall hung, with shelf back and low, too, so there's no straining on tip toe for the children to reach it. At the end of the tub is a dual purpose little cabinet, with drawers for towel storage and a handy ledge on the top for the youngsters' treasured trinkets. A water saving shower head is over the tub.

On the floor there's a serviceable dark blue mottled linoleum with a red and white band and an anachronistic white centaur to harmonize with blue and cream walls and ceiling.

Drawers for Storage.

A bathroom is only one of the attic conveniences you may have. Sloping eaves and short walls are no discouragement to the modern attic modernizer. Under those eaves can be shelves and drawers galore and built-in seats and bunks and doors to conceal trains and carts and blocks and footballs and space for seasonal decorations the whole year round.

In planning an attic room or rooms for the children, wall board samples should be carefully checked. There is a wide choice on the market in varying thicknesses and costs. There are wallboards with insulating qualities and also those which require no papering or painting or finishing of any sort. This type of board has definite advantages since later on, if a change of treatment is desired, it can always be refinished with paper or paint.

Plywood or Paper.

In almost every attic there are opportunities for walling off ends or corners for large closets and to provide a cedar closet of real worth.

If accessories are to be in the nautical vein the side walls of the stairway can be papered with a heavily waxed paper in the imitation of pine boards. Or they can be covered with plywood. Real ship's rope at least two inches thick can be run thru large rings fastened to the stair walls. It isn't hard to tie both ends with shipshape knots. As stairs to an attic are often steep this is a measure of safety as well as decoration.

A ship's lantern can hang at the top of the stairs, its light controled from the foot of the stairs as well as the top.

May Be Playroom.

Desks and bunks and even chests of drawers can be built in. And such a room, if desired, can serve more than one purpose. It can serve as a playroom for the children, but not as their bedroom. In the evening it can be used by the adult family members.

If the attic is not overly light, and the budget is too limited to spend money for new and larger windows, the general lightness of the space can be aided by wise use of light contributing paint. Overhead a very light yellow can be used to give a sunshiny effect to the room. Then woodwork can be painted a slightly darker yellow, while walls, doors, and frames can be coated with a soft shade of cream.

Dr. Roy L. Smith.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate magazine, will speak at the 8 o'clock meeting of Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight on the subject, "Carrying Bones to Canaan." John L. Clarkson of Lake Forest will preside in the absence of Clifford W. Barnes. Charles F. Grey of Evanston will read the Scripture.

Dr. Smith was pastor, until last year, of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles and recently was selected as one of the seven men most representative of the Methodist church in America. He was Pacific chairman of the Stimson Committee for Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression and was awarded the Order of the Jade by the Chinese government. Dr. Smith was a foreign correspondent in the orient for a number of years and is author of the syndicated "Sentence Sermons."

The 7 o'clock meeting will be under the direction of the University of Dubuque, Dubuque, Ia. Dr. Dale D. Welch, president, will speak and the university's choir under the direction of Noel Logan will sing.

Let Smart Coiffures and Hair Ornaments Keep Your Head High

By Eleanor Nangle.

These are times to hold your head high, with hair well brushed and crisply coiffed, and a feather or a frou-frou tucked in for courage. A good cut, shining hair, and a chic altho inexpensive ornament are essential to winter glamor. 1. Upswept hairdress with a softened pompadour effect over the brow. On the ears, round rings which may be imitation sapphire with topaz center or amethyst with ruby center. 2. Small velvet bows, used in pairs, may be worn at the back, the front, or the sides of the hair. 3. Demi-shell combs tucked into the two, sleek wings of hair that fold back from a center part. 4. A fluff of ostrich feathers in orchid, blue, or emerald is brightly spattered with rhinestones. 5. A snow white, artificial gardenia with waxy green leaves is the favorite hair ornament of the long-haired deb and subdeb. 6. A simple cut and a good permanent achieve this "brushed up" hairdress for the mature woman. 7. Little hair bows of wool are a new whim for day and evening. In brown, emerald, yellow, pink, blue and white. 8. A sequin ornament, anchored to a comb that holds fast, may be in gold, silver, or royal purple. It's to be worn at the side or directly in the center. 9. Waves, wide and soft, are the chief feature of this coiffure, with a left part and a pronounced dip over the forehead. 10. Long hair is deftly rolled in a V for trimness. 11. Large, flat bows worn in the back for day or evening are grosgrain in gold, fuchsia, pale pink, aqua blue, or emerald. They also may be of black velvet or cerise felt. 12. Coiffure with cross-sweep to crown, upswept side rolls, and reverse curl over forehead.

For information telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200, or write to her in care of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. Inclose stamped, self-addresed envelope for written reply.

Revival of 'The Rivals' Opens Here Tomorrow Night

Boston Comic Opera Troupe Cancels Visit

By Cecil Smith.

The Boston Comic Opera company, which had been scheduled to begin a season of Gilbert and Sullivan repertory at the Studebaker theater on March 9, has unbooked itself with sudden and unexpected resolution, because of continuing capacity business in New York. Our local theatrical season is thus bereft of one of the bright prospects for early spring.

Yet despite this unwelcome defection, the month of March still offers a brace of attractive incoming productions. Tomorrow evening brings a stellar revival of Sheridan's "The Rivals" to the Grand Opera house, as the fourth subscription play of the Theater Guild and American Theater society. The engagement of this hearty classic is limited to two weeks.

Other openings follow thick and fast, with "Papa Is All" commencing a second Chicago engagement at the Blackstone on March 9; the Chicago company of "Angel Street" at the Selwyn on March 15; and Helen Hayes in Maxwell Anderson's "Candle in the Wind" at the Erlanger on March 16.

• • •

To this impressive array of stage attractions should be added "American Side-Show," which opened at the Civic theater last evening. This new musical revue, produced by Charles K. Freeman, is a local venture in every regard; its book and music are by Chicagoans, and its cast was recruited in this city. The opening performance is reviewed in the main news section of today's final editions.

Mary Boland.
[Vandamm Photo.]

For its "modern" revival of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The Rivals," whose boisterous humor has now survived for 167 years, the Theater Guild has brought together a prepossessing cast. The rich rôle of Mrs. Malaprop, whose misuse of impressive polysyllables is the archetype of hundreds of similar comic devices in subsequent plays, has been awarded to Mary Boland, who has been rescued from Hollywood to undertake this valuable classical chore. The rustic and crude Bob Acres will be impersonated by that choice and irrepressible comedian, Bobby Clark. Walter Hampden, more famous in Shakespeare, Ibsen, or Charles Rann Kennedy than in 18th century comedy, will play Sir Anthony Absolute.

The rest of the cast is studded with well known players—Haila Stoddard as Lydia Languish, Helen Ford as Lucy, Donald Burr as Capt. Absolute, and Philip Bourneuf as Sir Lucius O'Trigger. New incidental music has been composed and arranged by Macklin Marrow. Watson Barratt designed the settings and costumes. The production was staged by Eva Le Gallienne, who is in charge of the Theater Guild's present series of revivals.

Altho most playgoers talk about "The Rivals" with an air of familiarity—and, in all justice, it must be conceded that most playgoers have probably read it—very few of the younger generation, at least, have seen a professional production of Sheridan's comedy. The last professional performance in Chicago took place 17 years ago. On Feb. 2, 1925, Minnie Maddern Fiske brought a company to the city and herself appeared with great sweep and unction as Mrs. Malaprop. Apart from Mrs. Fiske's superb characterization, I remember with vividness only Chauncey Olcott's debonair manner and agreeable lyric singing in the rôle of Sir Lucius O'Trigger. My playbill shows, however, that the cast included James T. Powers as Bob Acres, Thomas A. Wise as Sir Anthony Absolute, and Iola Fisher as Lydia Languish. The production was staged by Mrs. Fiske's husband, Harrison Grey Fiske.

Mary Boland has seldom been associated with costume plays, having preferred to devote her talents to modern comedy. Her last stage appearance in Chicago occurred in the musical comedy, "Face the Music," a full decade ago. This piece, with a score by Irving Berlin, presented Miss Boland as a Mrs. Meshbesher, who was mixed up in the then celebrated Seabury investigation of New York politics. In the years immediately before "Face the Music," Miss Boland's greatest successes were in "Cradle Snatchers" and "The Vinegar Tree."

Bobby Clark, who has given up painting spectacles onto his countenance for the duration of "The Rivals," made his last visit to Chicago in "The Streets of Paris" in the spring of 1940. A year later he took his first leap into period comedy when he appeared in New York for a week in the Players' club revival of Congreve's "Love for Love."

Playgoers will welcome the return of Walter Hampden, who is no stranger to either the theater or the history of the past. Among his best remembered rôles have been those in "Cyrano de Bergerac," "An Enemy of the People," "Hamlet," "Richelieu," and "Caponsacchi."

SCORES IN 'BLITHE SPIRIT'

A local triumph has been scored by Estelle Winwood as the whacky medium, Madame Arcati, in "Blithe Spirit," Noel Coward's comedy hit at the Selwyn theater.

Roller Skaters Win Plaudits in Walnut Room

By Will Davidson.

Like the whirling dervish twins, Gaynor and Ross have been going around together for a considerable time. But not until they brought their roller skates to the Bismarck and disrupted the staid calm of Walnut room patrons had I seen them perform.

My experience with good roller skating teams is, I suppose, somewhat limited, but I've seen so many who by comparison with Gaynor and Ross seemed to be standing still in a daze that I am quite willing to string with the champs until a challenger comes along.

The daring performance on an elevated platform is the best flash act the Bismarck ever has had. And it gives punch to a very happy little revue. Staples and Cerny, familiar to Chicago café goers for their neatly tailored singing of favorite musical comedy tunes, occupy the other featured spot. And the Jane Hadley dancers, who always have been Harriet Smith's girls, are back, bearing this time their producer's name. Beautiful Gloria Lee Fox is their captain and proud she is of the line's unique feature—very cute and capable twins, Gem and Jett.

Art Kassel is pretty proud, too—of his new singer, Gloria Hart. She is little and vital and possessed of a very pleasing voice. I like particularly the way she sings "You Made Me Love You." Art himself is pining for a Florida vacation to break up a persistent cold, but it hasn't affected his song writing ability. Witness a very catchy "You Ain't Got No Romance."

[Seymour Photo.]

Garb may not make the man, but Garber has made the band that the Trianon kids like. Genial Jan came back to the south side ballroom last Tuesday and, judged by his reception, will have a happy six weeks there. Garber's music is danceable and entertaining altho thru it runs a whisper undercurrent which is the rustling of the maize. Exuberant Jan is all over the place, as usual—a musical Little Flower, getting a great, bubbling delight out of his hit parade.

Jan's north side colleague, Dick Jurgens, is in his 11th Aragon week and going great guns. Buddy Moreno, Harry Cool, et al. are piling up laurels for their singing selves.

The entertainment business being what it is, a good showman with a mediocre voice generally can draw better notices than a fine singer who acts like a very slightly animated loud speaker. Betty Allen, the new singer in the Drake's Camellia House, strikes a very happy medium. Neither a great singer nor a great actress, she has enough talent in both fields to make a very pleasant appearance in an intimate café such as the Draper dream room. Trained to the gestures of the stage [she's understudying Frances Williams in "Panama Hattie"], Miss Allen uses them with effective restraint. She has a charming way of singing with her eyes and her smile, too. Of her songs, "The Nearness of You" and "Do I Love You?" are particularly good.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Russell Morrison, singing drummer of the Ambassadors in the Hotel La Salle's Pan-American café, started his show career as an actor. . . . For some reason champagne sales are spurting at L'Aiglon restaurant. Perhaps to assist the new toast, "Sink Fast, Mr. Moto!" . . . Stuff Smith is bending the walls of the Garrick Stage bar, the town's new jam closet. June Price, singer; the Ascot Boys, and Jimmy Noone's hot trio make this a superb jive show.

Understand one Cecil Davidson brings his band into the Edgewater Beach hotel next week. Couldn't be my old Uncle Cecil. All he played was the bagpipes. . . . Alterations note: Chez Paree has dropped the Smoothies; Harry's New Yorker delayed its opening until last Friday; Gene Krupa will open at the Panther room this Wednesday, instead of last.

A glimpse of Ralph [Cookie] Cook at the Golden Gloves banquet last week reminded me that three years ago the army said I was a picture of health—not well enough developed.

ETAOINSHRDLU runs a whispering

Vaudeville

The Oriental theater's stage show gives way to the "jivin', jumpin'" crew of Count Basie in an offering called "The Rhythm Swing Revue." The featured entertainers with the band are Gordon and Rogers, James Rushing, Earle Warren, and Jo Jones. On the screen in "Honolulu Lu."

Lou Breese.
[Krugimann photo.]

At the Chicago theater the Andrews Sisters have been held over for a second week of personal appearances and are presenting a new program. Lou Breese and his orchestra, with Skip Morr, Barry Warren, and Nita Norman—all allied to the band—plus Alan Carney, comedian, and Evelyn Farney, dancer, complete the stage bill. "All Thru the Night" is the film.

Three Soloists, Guest Conductor on Week's Music Program

Arrau to Make 2d Appearance With Orchestra

By Edward Barry.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra and its junior partner, the Civic orchestra, will bring three soloists and a guest conductor to Orchestra hall this week.

Claudio Arrau.

At the Thursday night and Friday afternoon concerts of the senior organization the Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau, will make his second pair of appearances this season. It was not merely respect for the good neighbor policy which caused the management to offer the South American the almost unprecedented honor of an immediate reëngagement. When he played here on Jan. 1 and 2 his quiet competence made a deep impression. He took the Liszt E-flat Concerto, a work at which it has long been the fashion to sniff, and proved that it has a great deal more musical substance than it is usually credited with.

Another possible reason for the reëngagement was the fact that Edward Collins, Chicago pianist and educator, who had been scheduled to introduce his own new concerto on March 5 and 6, was forced to cancel his appearances because his recovery from a recent illness had been slower than he had expected. This left two open dates, and Arrau was quickly slipped into them.

Altho Arrau did manage to prove that the Liszt concerto is a better piece than it had been believed to be, he still did not satisfy those members of the audience who like to hear a strange pianist in a work which will put all his powers of penetration and interpretation to the test. Such a work is the Brahms D minor Concerto, Arrau's choice for next Thursday and Friday.

At the Young People's concert of next Wednesday afternoon the orchestra will present a 16 year old soprano, Margery Lindquist, as soloist. She is a serious and talented youngster who is said to know 150 songs and 2 operatic rôles. From this huge répertoire she has selected the Polonaise from Thomas' "Mignon" for her Wednesday appearance. By the way, John Alden Carpenter's "March and Song to Freedom" will receive its first performance Wednesday. It celebrates the 100th anniversary of the Chicago public schools.

The Civic orchestra, playing in the popular concert series next Saturday night, will share the spotlight with Alice Martz, a Dayton, O., pianist who has been studying in Chicago for the last several years. She placed first in the 1940 competition conducted by the Adult Education council and the Society of American Musicians and, as a reward, appeared in recital in the distinguished Musical Arts series on Feb. 3 in Orchestra hall. She was extremely successful, playing with the naturalness and fluency and wealth of apt detail which mark the born musician. Miss Martz will be heard Saturday in Powell's Negro Rhapsody.

The guest conductor is Edward Collins, whose health will permit him to accept the relatively light task of directing the Chicago Symphony orchestra in his own Tragic Overture next Thursday night and Friday afternoon. The overture was introduced to the orchestra's subscribers 15 years ago.

Frederick Stock will direct on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday; Hans Lange, on Saturday. Programs for the adult concerts follow:

Thursday at 8:15 and Friday at 2:15.
Chicago Symphony orchestra.
Symphony No. 2, D minor .... Dvorak
A Tragic Overture .... Collins
[The composer conducting.]
Concerto for Piano, No. 1, D minor .. Brahms
Claudio Arrau.

Saturday at 8:15. Civic orchestra.
Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg" .... Wagner
Negro Rhapsody, for Piano and Orchestra .... Powell
Alice Martz.
Symphony No. 5, C minor .... Beethoven
Alborado del Gracioso .... Ravel

The Illinois Symphony orchestra returned to the Eighth Street theater last Monday after a three week absence and will continue its series there until further notice. Izler Solomon, who has long been identified with the orchestra and who is responsible in large measure for the big following it has won, will conduct the next two Monday concerts. His soloist tomorrow is to be Catherine Saurer, a pianist, who has made several concert and radio appearances during the last few years. The program, oddly enough, promises no novelty, but the delightful Dohnanyi Variations on a Nursery Theme and the Kalinnikoff G-minor Symphony are so seldom heard that they will seem brand new. Basil Sergeivitch Kalinnikoff was a late 19th century Russian composer whose works have never caught on in this part of the world. However, the G-minor symphony is an attractive and melodious work which could probably achieve great popularity if it were played often enough. The complete program for tomorrow night follows:

Izler Solomon.
[Du Bois the Drake Photo.]

Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini" .... Berlioz
Symphony No. 1, G minor .... Kalinnikoff
Variations on a Nursery Theme ... Dohnanyi
Catherine Saurer.
Rhapsody, "Espana" .... Chabrier

Orchestra hall has released the revised list of soloists who will take part in the performances of the Bach B-minor mass on March 12, 13, and 15. It is as follows: Harriet Henders, soprano; Lilian Knowles, contralto; Frederick Jagel, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. The Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Swedish Choral club will unite their forces for these performances. The March 12 and 13 dates fall into the orchestra's regular subscription series [Thursday night and Friday afternoon]. The March 15 [Sunday] performance is an extra one.

PLAYS FOR RELIEF FUND

Zlatko Balokovic, violinist, plays this afternoon in Orchestra hall on a program for the Jugo-Slavian relief fund. The Chicago Symphonic choir, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, also will be heard.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Ballet Theater concludes its brief engagement at the Civic Opera house with tonight's bill, consisting of "Les Sylphides," "Russian Soldier," and "Bluebeard." "Russian Soldier," choreographed to Prokofieff's "Lieutenant Kije" suite by Fokine, will be danced by Jeannette Lauret, Sono Osato, Muriel Bentley, and Miriam Golden in the important rôles. "Bluebeard," another Fokine work, but with an Offenbach score, boasts a cast headed by Anton Dolin, Anthony Tudor, Simon Semenoff, Alicia Markova, George Skibine, Irina Baronova, Annabelle Lyon, Miriam Golden, Jeannette Lauret, Maria Karniloff, Nora Kaye, Rosella Hightower, and Lucia Chase.

Howard E. Preston, Chicago bass-baritone, who will offer a recital in Curtiss hall this afternoon, has been affiliated with many opera companies, including resident, Ravinia, St. Louis Municipal, Cincinnati Zoo, and Washington, D. C., National opera organizations. In concert and oratorio he has likewise been an active participant. Accompanied by Robert MacDonald he will sing the following program:

Il lacerato spirito, from "Simon Boccanegra" .... Verdi
To rest, to rest; From her balcony green; Would'st thou behold thy lover sadly dying; Wandering; New love .... Wolf
The Seminarian; After the Battle; The Goat; Siege of Kazan, from "Boris Godounoff" .... Moussorgsky
Wotan's Farewell, from "The Valkyrie" .... Wagner
May, the Maiden .... Carpenter
Evening .... Hageman
The Sea .... Shaefer
Shadrack .... MacGimsey

The Sythiod Singing Club of Chicago celebrates its 60th anniversary this year by giving its annual concert downtown in the Civic theater this afternoon. Sixty male voices comprise the ensemble, which Knut Hansen directs. Being largely Swedish in its constituency the chorus will devote its efforts to representative Scandinavian composers, including August Söderman, Karl Wohlfarth, Edward Grieg, and Jan Sibelius. Two of the featured numbers are Grieg's popular "Landsighting" and Söderman's "Swedish Country Wedding," a cycle of four songs. The guest soloist for the occasion is Beal Hober, American soprano, who made her Chicago debut earlier this season with the Business Men's orchestra. Her portion of the program lists the aria, "Pace, pace mio Dio," from "The Force of Destiny," by Verdi, and six songs. Charles Lurvey will officiate at the piano.

Anne Rudolph and her group of dancers, called the Anrudic Motion choir, will dance Miss Rudolph's latest choreographic composition, "American Horizons," next Sunday afternoon in the Goodman theater. The work occupies the entire program.

•

Material concerning the eminent British musician, the late Sir Donald Francis Tovey, is being sought by Hubert J. Foss, music editor of the Oxford University press, for a biography commissioned by Lady Tovey. Copies of letters to Sir Donald's many American friends and associates or personal reminiscences will be gratefully received by Dr. Foss. He can be addressed at 60 Corringham road, London, N. W. 11, England.

•

Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, returns after several seasons' absence as a recitalist to sing on the History and Enjoyment of Music series in the Civic Opera house next Sunday afternoon. Thought of as the ideal American artist because he achieved fame without resorting to European training, Mr. Tibbett can also be proud of his pioneering American forebears. His father, for example, was a sheriff in Kern county, California, in the '90s. At the head of a posse which cornered Wild Jim McKinney, he was shot and killed by that bandit. Revenge came a second later when the singer's uncle, also a member of the posse, returned fire and mortally wounded the killer.

The North Shore Choral society, Madi Bacon, director, has prepared an excellent program for presentation at its fifth annual winter concert in the New Trier High school auditorium on Friday night. Mozart's Requiem Mass will be sung on the second half of the concert with Miss Bacon conducting and with Edith Mason, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Virgilio Lazzari, bass, as the distinguished quartet of soloists. The Woman's Symphony orchestra will furnish the accompaniment to the mass and also will play the first half of the program under Izler Solomon's direction. This will include Bach's Fifth Brandenburg Concerto and various arias and one duet from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," sung by Miss Mason and Mr. Lazzari.

Midday Victory concerts is the name given to 10 free half hours of music, which will be played on Wednesdays in Fullerton hall of the Art institute from the middle of this week thru May 6. This morale sustaining series was planned by the institute, the first American museum to copy London's famous National Gallery, which instituted similar concerts under the direction of Dame Myra Hess at the beginning of the war with enormous success. The Illinois WPA Symphonic ensemble will play all 10 programs under the direction of Izler Solomon. The first program on Wednesday will include the following numbers:

First movement, from Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, G major .... Bach
Romanza, A minor, for string orchestra .... Reger
Scherzo, from octet for strings, opus 20 .... Mendelssohn
Valse Triste .... Sibelius
Rondo, from "Haffner" Serenade, D major .... Mozart

The Northwestern University Symphony orchestra will play under the leadership of George Dasch this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Cahn auditorium, Scott hall, Evanston. Sibelius' Second Symphony and David Van Vactor's "Gothic Impressions," first performed last Thursday night by the Chicago Symphony, are listed for performance together with Franck's Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra, in which Louis Crowder, a member of Northwestern's school of music faculty, will be the soloist.

•

Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, and Daniel Ericourt, pianist, have scheduled a joint recital this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Sherwood music hall of the Fine Arts building.

Sigmund Spaeth, the well liked popularizer of music, will lecture before the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue, on Tuesday at 2 o'clock. As a "tune detective" and commentator on "songs you forgot to remember," he will illustrate his remarks at the piano. Dr. Spaeth is currently president of the National Association for American Composers and Conductors.

•

Raymund Koch, Chicago baritone and teacher, will sing the title rôle in a dramatic version of Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" to be presented at Florida Southern college, Lakeland, Fla., next Tuesday and Wednesday. The presentations will be under the direction of George L. Tenney, who is well known in Chicago as a conductor of large scale choral performances.

MarthaGraham Lauded as True Creative Artist

By Cecil Smith.

[Martha Graham and her dance company will return to Chicago for a single program in the Civic Opera house on Saturday evening, March 14. A new American ballet will be given its world première, and the bill will also include "Letter to the World" and "Every Soul Is a Circus."]

Ever since her Blackstone theater appearances two weeks ago, Martha Graham has haunted my memory. In this occult phenomenon I have been a willing accomplice, for I should not want to forget "Letter to the World," even if I could. Such surpassing beauty and perfection are rare in art, and right now we all need particularly to come under the restorative spell of thought and emotion as lofty as this.

Martha Graham.

No single generation produces many genuinely great creative artists. I have always been slow to attribute greatness to any artist, for it has seemed desirable to preserve the full meaning of a word which has too often been debased by trivial and commercial use. I mean the word to carry a carefully considered and unqualified value, therefore, when I call Martha Graham the one great creative personality the American dance has produced in our time.

The key to Martha Graham is found in her utter integrity of purpose. Her gifts are not of the facile kind. Despite her immense technique as a dancer, she did not come by her skill easily, but devoted many arduous years to the process of training her body to express all she wanted to demand of it. As a dance composer she also works at a slow pace, arduously creating and developing the proper movement and the most effective structure, and eliminating or revising passages which seem inadequate to her.

"Letter to the World," one of the important monuments of 20th century dance history, took shape slowly over a two year period. Even after its first performances at the Bennington, Vt., festival, the work underwent wholesale revision. In its present form it is as carefully and economically conceived, and as forcefully objectified, as a Beethoven symphony. Its freshness, directness, and continuity result from the fact that every inappropriate or inconclusive element has been eliminated, leaving the most perfect expressive structure its composer could possibly attain.

The subject matter of "Letter to the World" must have been hard to work with. The work is a drama of personal frustration, using as its central character Emily Dickinson, the ingrown New England poet whose intensely human inner life was almost wholly channeled into her poetry rather than into her everyday living. Miss Graham has achieved the exceptional feat of externalizing this passionate inner life, of finding movement and choreography and symbolism which present its tragedy believably and conclusively. "Letter to the World" is one of the finest biographical documents of the modern stage.

During Martha Graham's earlier professional years, when she and her group were developing their means of expression with ardent concentration and self-denial, she did not always seem to possess much sense of humor. With the assurance that has come with artistic adulthood, however, she has uncovered a remarkable gift for satire and for sheer tomfoolery. "Punch and the Judy," tho a somewhat less finished work than "Letter to the World," made glorious sport of the alleged boredom of domestic life, spoofing the Freudian jealousies which are said to arise among father, mother, and child, and presenting a double triangle [with the father falling for a trashy hoyden and the mother dreaming of a faunlike creature named Pegasus] in a mood of delightful banter and raillery.

"Every Soul Is a Circus," which Miss Graham and the group will dance here on March 14, is an affair of similarly bubbling spirits, in which Miss Graham boldly uncovers the secrets of her conscious and her unconscious in terms of the highest good humor and wilful nonsensicality.

No other modern dancer has discovered so wide an emotional range as Miss Graham, and no other choreographer has been so inspired and yet so intelligent in finding meaningful dance terms in which to set valuable ideas forth. In Martha Graham may be seen the focus of all that is progressive and forward-looking, all that is most deeply honest, and all that is technically most competent, in our native dance.

Current Music News

Josef Lhevinne, a long standing favorite among Chicago concertgoers, returns to play the fifth of the six piano recitals on the Musical Arts piano series, sponsored by the Adult Education council in Orchestra hall. Previous programs on the series have included so much unfamiliar music that Mr. Lhevinne's choice of numbers was dictated by popularity rather than anything else. Thus, at his only concert appearance in Chicago this season he will play the following program:

Josef Lhevinne.

Toccata, C major .... Schumann
Sonata, C major, Op. 53 ["Waldstein"] .... Beethoven
Fantasie, F minor; Valse, A-flat major, Op. 64; Nocturne, F-sharp major, Op. 27; Polonaise, F-sharp minor .... Chopin
Evening in Granada; Goldfish .... Debussy
Islamey .... Balakireff

H. Johann Eschbach, bass-baritone, makes his Chicago debut with a recital in Kimball hall this afternoon. Robert Reuter will be the accompanist in his program, which follows:

I'll sail upon the dog star; Evening Hymn; I envy not a monarch's fate .... Purcell
Four Serious Songs, Op. 121 .... Brahms
Voila donc la terrible cité, from "Thais" .... Massenet
Four Jester Songs .... Bantock
Gute Nacht; Das Hemd; In meiner Heimat; Mir glaensen die Augen ..... Trunk
White Horses of the Sea; Sailing Homeward .... Warren
At Midnight .... Rohlfing
Strictly Germ-Proof .... Sacco

Jugo-Slav benefit concert. The Chicago Symphonic choir, Walter Aschenbrenner, conductor, and Zlatko Balokovic, Jugo-Slavian violinist, will share a program in Orchestra hall this afternoon for the benefit of the Jugo-Slav Relief Fund association, Inc., formed to aid war sufferers in that Nazi occupied country. Many folk songs from the nation concerned will be sung by the choir in arrangements made by its director, altho the choral music of the Russian Orthodox church is equally well represented on the program. On his part Mr. Balokovic will play Smetana's "From My Country," Szymanowski's "The Fountain of Arethusa," and Lhotka's Croatian Rhapsody. He will be accompanied by Mme. Jasna Bjankini.

John Cage. Tonight the Arts club emerges with another of its novel musical programs, a concert of percussion music directed by John Cage. The young westerner first became attracted to this unique type of ensemble when he was commissioned to write a score using only wood sounds for an abstract film by Oscar Fischinger. Then Cage wrote a quartet for precussion, which he persuaded friends to perform on all sorts of metal bits, and which was given several private performances in and around Los Angeles. His first complete concert was given at the Cornish school in Seattle in 1938. His success led to more programs and the establishment of a sort of workshop at Mills college. He contributed the music for Marian Van Tuyl's recent dance, "Fads and Fancies in the Academy," and is currently at work on a radio drama with Kenneth Patchen, author of the "Journal of Albion Moonlight." In past months he has been in Chicago as a guest lecturer at the Moholy-Nagy School of Design. The two other composers listed on tonight's program are Lou Harrison, a member of the Mills college faculty, and William Russell, a hot-jazz authority. The program:

Construction in Metal .... Cage
Counterdance in the Spring .... Harrison
March Suite .... Russell
Imaginary Landscape No. 3 .... Cage
Canticle .... Harrison
3 Dance Movements .... Russell

The American Opera company has collaborated with the Women's Economic Foundation on a home defense program for the conservation of foods. With a series of seven operatic performances in Kimball hall the two organizations hope to raise funds for the establishment and equipment of stations for food conservation. The initial presentation will be "Carmen," to be sung in English next Saturday night. Subsequent operas will be "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," March 14; "Rigoletto," March 15; "La Traviata," March 20; "Il Trovatore," March 21; "Lucia di Lammermoor," March 27, and "Faust," March 28.

Ernest Englund, a Chicago technician working in the physics department of the University of Illinois, was unable to get the score of a trumpet concerto by Haydn which his son, Ernest Jr., wanted to play at a concert of the Champaign-Urbana Symphony orchestra tonight at the Urbana High school. So the father bought a recording of the composition, played it over and over, writing down the various orchestral parts as he heard them. It took 50 hours of intensive work, but the end was reached, and the performance will come off this evening as planned. The son will play the trumpet solo part, while the father carries the second trumpet passages.

The Russian trio plays the fifth of its six concerts in the Arts club on Tuesday morning. Beethoven's Trio No. 1, opus 70, and Chausson's Trio in G minor, opus 3, will be performed.

College Steps Up Training of Therapists

By the Rev. John Evans.

Milwaukee-Downer college, said to be the first American college to incorporate a course in occupational therapy in its curriculum, recently instituted an extension of that course in view of the increasing demand for well trained therapists. Dr. Henrietta McNary, director of occupational studies, made the announcement.

"The demands of the second World war, added to the casualties of defense industry, will create a growing need for occupational therapists, when there are not enough to supply all the demands of civilian hospitals in peacetime," Dr. McNary explained. "Rehabilitation of the war-maimed is a need which goes on long after hostilities have ceased."

The registered therapist is required to have three to five years of training, including a nine months' term of clinical practice. The therapist also must have a thoro knowledge of anatomy, physiology, psychology, pathology, injuries, and their treatment.

Milwaukee-Downer's first course, established during the first World war, offered 18 weeks of intensive study at the college, and three months of hospital practice. The department grew out of a call issued by Gen. John J. Pershing for 1,000 women volunteers for overseas "bedside occupational nursing."

Action taken last week by the Illinois State Academy of Science council in Urbana made provision for the formation of a collegiate section to bridge the gap between the Junior Academy of Science and the Senior academy. According to Dr. T. H. Frison, president, and chief of the Illinois Natural History survey, the section will give college students in all parts of Illinois an opportunity to present results of their research and to discuss their common science problems. Sections are maintained in only two other states, Texas and Kansas.

Thousands of marine shells from the seven seas have been presented to the University of Cincinnati museum, Cincinnati, O., by Mrs. Mary B. Cist, Sanibel Island, Fla. Officials of the campus museum say the collection is one of the largest and finest in this section of the country.

Specimens range from a giant 200 pound shell of the great bear-trap clam from Australia's Great Barrier reef to the tiny cowry shell, used as money by natives trading along the African coast and among South Sea Islands. Twenty thousand cowry shells is believed by museum officials to be the current price of brides among the Fiji islanders—provided the war hasn't recently boosted the price.

Questions concerning higher educational problems resulting from the country's entrance into the war, including promilitary service opportunities offered by the various institutions, may be directed to Dr. Evans, Education Editor, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

Honorable Mention Pictures: Blue, White and Perfect, Bahama Passage, Blues in the Night, Sullivan's Travels, Confessions of Boston Blackie, Glamor Boy, Yank on Burma Road, Four Jacks and a Jill.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Checking back over reviews of last month's pictures thumbnailishly:

"Cadet Girl"—". . . An honest, entertaining, and inspiring program movie . . . gives John Shepperd bow after bow. . . . Sings of West Pointers on furlough. . . . The girl—Carole Landis."

"Girl from Leningrad"—". . . first Russian film concerning World War II. . . . A masterpiece . . . one of the greatest tributes ever paid to the great war nursing sisterhood which had its inception in the selfless, shining service of Florence Nightingale."

"You're in the Army Now"—". . . the belly laugh is solicited and the belly laugh is gotten. . . ." Features Jimmy Durante and Phil Silvers.

"Playmates"—". . . Fun—and so deef-erent! . . . The 'Playmates' are John Barrymore and Kay Kyser—and both Hamlet and Hepcat are doing very nicely, thank you!"

"Remember the Day"—". . . A charming picture. . . . Claudette Colbert gives the best performance of her career as Nora Trinell. . . . John Payne's portrayal as Nora's lover puts him in the front ranks of romantic leading men."

"H. M. Pulham, Esq."—". . . Dignified and thoughtful novel has been made into that sort of a picture which is drawing that sort of audiences. . . . Hedy Lamarr and Robert Young are in the leading rôles."

Signing off.

See you tomorrow.

Royer to Give Recital.

A piano recital by Wilbur L. Royer is scheduled for the little theater in Kimball hall on Friday, March 13, at 8 o'clock.

Adviser Lists Virtues Every Mother Should Have

Most of Them Are Exercised Intuitively

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We make all kinds of lists in the course of a day of living, laundry lists, and lists of groceries, lists of sewing we have to do and telephone calls we have to make, all to remind us of things we have ahead of us that are important or necessary.

Suppose that right now we stop and make a list of another kind, a list of virtues. Here are some:

VIRTUES FOR A MOTHER OF A YOUNG CHILD.

Patience
Kindness
Gentleness
Reasonableness
Clearness
Consistency

That's a lot of virtues, isn't it? And yet, if you're a successful mother, you are intuitively exercising them most of every day.

Or perhaps not always intuitively. Perhaps sometimes, you force yourself to exercise them very consciously, such as when you're overtired, or more than usually rushed and busy. At those times you have to keep yourself in hand.

For any mother who is a good mother has times when her rôle requires a lot of self-discipline. Haven't you ever seen big blue eyes fill with tears at a quick word when you're irritable; or brown eyes look puzzled when you're unreasonable and impatient; or a sweet young mouth quiver when, at the end of a trying and worried day, you reprove sharply an innocently annoying act? It makes you think twice before you do the same thing again. Of course, we all slip, but the successful mother, if she analyzes things, will undoubtedly find that, most of the time in her days with her 2 or 3 year old, she is exercising practically all of those virtues we listed.

Do you suspect that, somewhere, there's a hitch in the way you're managing your little boy or your girls? If so, run over these virtues that mothers need in order to have happy young children; young children who fall in with the things that we parents must require of them, for their health and general well being. And now let's examine each one.

There's patience. If you can't wait, in little things as well as big, for your very small boy or girl to do what he or she should, you're lost. They have everything to learn. Their muscles and minds are new at so many things that we grownups do automatically, they can't help being slow, inept, making mistakes. You must try to get into their tempo. You must be patient or everything will go awry.

Then there's kindness, which we listed second. Of course you love your baby, but when that baby gets older and busier and more of a handful, don't let your lovingness get overlaid with annoyance or chores. Kindness doesn't mean a cooing voice, but is rather a certain practical aspect of your deeper lovingness.

And there's gentleness. That, also, is not necessarily a soft and saccharine quality. It is rather, O well, you know what things are implied in the word "gentle," lovely things, a certain special quality. If you're gentle with your child, you guide him, you actually touch him with a sort of wholesomely tender quietness.

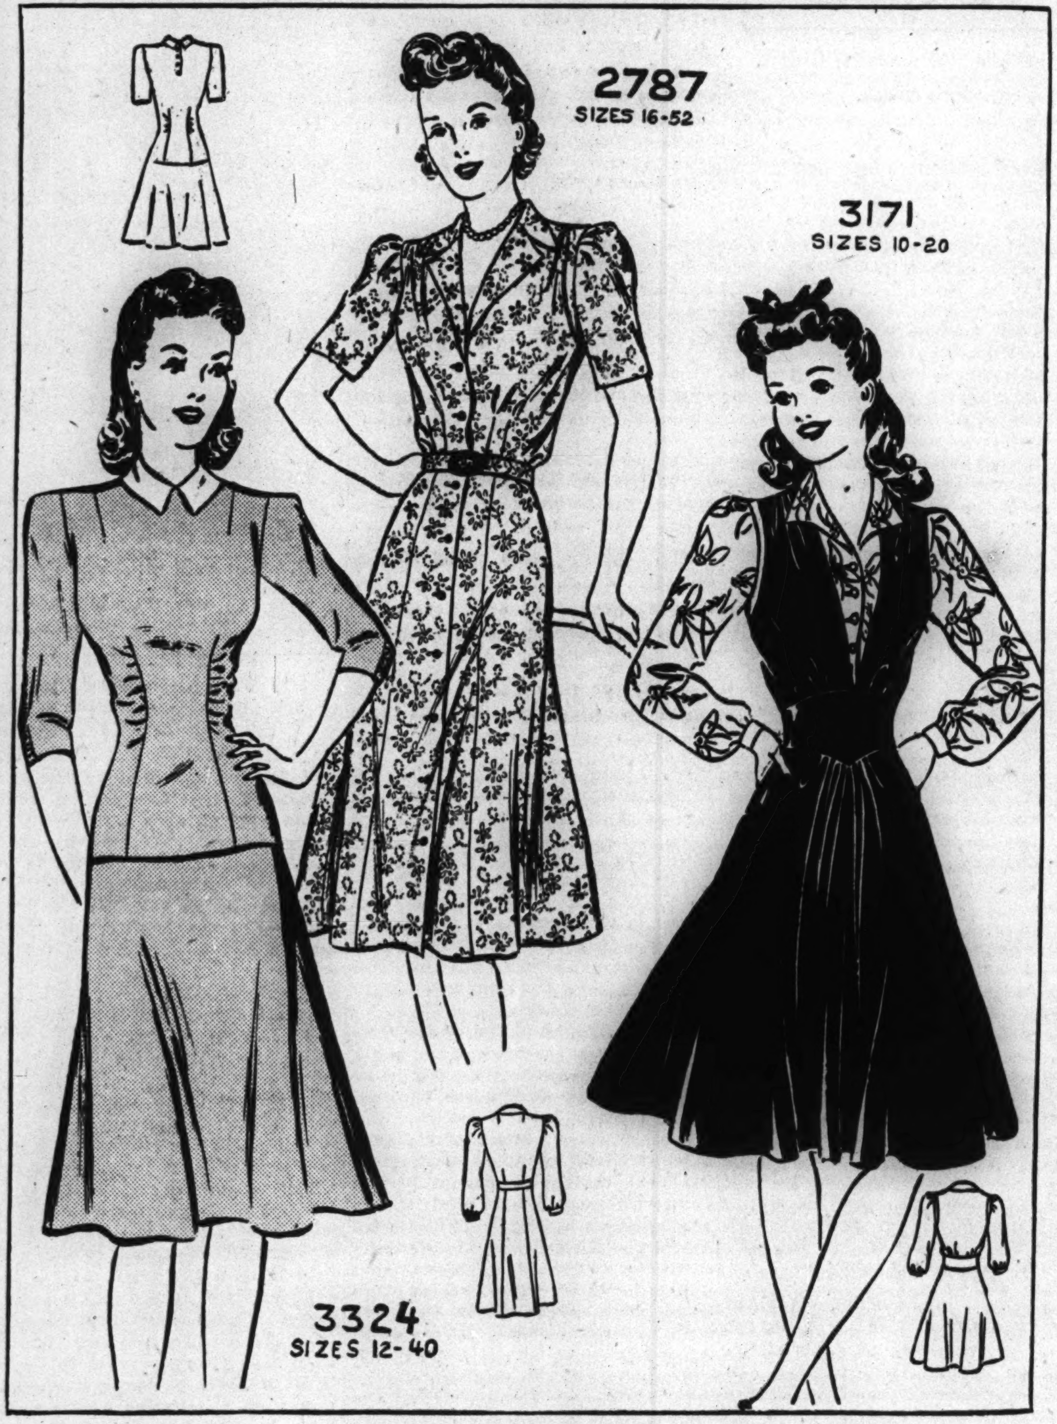
Reasonableness is the next virtue mothers need to help their young children to learn. That means, don't expect the impossible. By that I mean, don't expect the impossible of them for their age. If your little girl is learning to set the table or dry the dishes and breaks one, it's unreasonable for you to scold. It confuses her. She was joyfully helping you, and you scold her for something that wasn't her fault. That is an example of what I mean by being unreasonable.

There are still two other important virtues on our list that we haven't analyzed: clearness and consistency. But since each is really worthy of a full explanation let us leave them until tomorrow.

Patterns by Clotilde



By Coltilde.

Here are three simple, but dressy, spring frocks you'll like for your busy days, whether they're spent in an office, war work headquarters, classroom, or at informal social occasions. Make them of plain or figured crêpe, rayon, cotton, or sheer woolen.

Left: Two piece frock with molded and longer torso with nipped-in waistline, bracelet sleeves, and contrasting collar. The skirt is cut for flare, without benefit of plaits or paneling.

Center: Buttoned-down-the-front shirtwaist dress with softly styled bodice, rever collar line, short sleeves, and self-fabric or contrasting belt.

Right: Jumper frock with plain skirt and contrastingly vivid, printed blouse. The latter has a casual neckline, full sleeves, and buttons down the front. The jumper, with its fitted midriff, has a skirt shirred only in front, and wide, comfortable shoulders.

Style No. 3324 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard contrasting.

Style No. 2787 is designed for sizes 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3171 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material for jumper; 2 yards of 39 inch for blouse.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

For 15 cents buy the spring Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Ten cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to New York address in coupon.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

With the generous coöperation of our readers we frequently are able to supply a majority of the needs mentioned in the letters of appeal which fill our files. One file which we are seldom able to diminish in size, however, contains many urgent requests. At present we have numerous pleas for washing machines, an item which we find difficult to provide.

The case of Mrs. S., on the north side, is typical. She is a frail woman, weighing only 98 pounds. The family income is large enough for only necessary food and rent. With the aid of an old fashioned washboard this woman washes for six persons, since she cannot afford to send this work out. If any reader has a discarded machine she would like to donate, Mrs. S. would be grateful for it.

There are six children in the D. family, living on the south side of the city. The family is being assisted by an agency which cannot provide an allowance for laundry. There is a tremendous amount of washing to be done for the youngsters and the mother does it all by hand. Since she recently underwent a serious operation and has not regained her strength, a machine would be of immeasurable help to her.

Mrs. M. is the mother of five small children. She suffers with a respiratory infection and often is in pain. Since she is able to do only a little washing at a time, it frequently takes three days to complete the laundry work by hand. Under these circumstances it is almost impossible for her to keep up with other household tasks. The address is on the north side of the city.

• • •

Mrs. H. has six children. The oldest daughter has a cardiac disorder and Mr. H. is ill and unable to work. They are receiving relief and do not have a sufficient allowance to send clothing and linens out to be laundered. Washing for such a large family is a great strain on the mother, who also is in poor health.

• • •

From Miss M., who lives in a suburb north of Chicago:

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: For years I have visited a 'shut-in' who enjoyed many hours of handiwork with yarns provided by the readers of your column. Now I, myself, am a shut-in, and wonder if I might be so fortunate as to receive odds and ends of material from your readers."

Offers will have to be mailed to Miss M., whose address will be furnished upon request.

• • •

Mrs. S. has asked our assistance for a young woman who has been confined to a sanitarium for over 20 years. She has requested a piece of canvas, oil cloth, or awning, large enough to cover a wheel chair and protect it from rain and snow. It is necessary that it be left outdoors on a porch when not in use. We will be glad to provide further details to any interested reader.

• • •

From Mrs. D., on the south side:

"Dear Miss Brown: Do you think you could help me to find a medium sized bathrobe for our sick son? I would be happy to make any necessary adjustments on it. You may remember that we are the elderly couple you helped two years ago. Thru your kindness we found our own place and the necessary items to furnish it. My husband is so badly in need of clothing, that I hope you will remember him if you ever receive men's shoes, size 6, or a pair of trousers, size 36 waist, 35 in. length."

Copies of Old Spreads for Colonial Beds

"Beautiful Bedrooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, goes into detail in explaining ways to furnish and decorate three different types of bedroom: The colonial, the Early American, and the modern. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

One of the best loved types of American bedrooms is that furnished in colonial mahogany. This furniture, because it is simple and in good taste and because it is available in a wide price range, never goes out of favor.

If the room is spacious and has a fairly high ceiling one can indulge one's liking for the fine old four poster beds of our ancestors. With or without a canopy top they bring beauty and dignity to any interior. A number of excellent reproductions of the four posters found in stately old colonial mansions of Charleston, Salem, and Boston are being made today. And what with our own modern mattresses and box springs they're a lot more comfortable to sleep on than the originals!

Especially appropriate for use on these beds are bedspreads made in Georgia, artistic copies of old candlewick and punchwork spreads. The work is done on heavy sheeting which has been preshrunk and which wears like iron and tubs beautifully. Skilled artisans guide the power-driven needles and punches that make the lovely, intricate designs, many of them accurate copies of the patterns of colonial days.

We saw an exhibition of these bedspreads recently, and were impressed by the charming, pastel colors. We were told that the embroidery yarns were especially dyed for the purpose, and that in the case of a colored spread, the sheeting, too, was dyed to match the yarns. All the popular tones—peach, pink, rose, soft blue, yellow, and light green are to be found here.

One of the models, shown in the photograph today, owes its beauty to an old valentine. Joseph Platt, the designer, owns a fine collection of these billets doux and employed the patterns of several of the prettiest in creating new bedspreads.

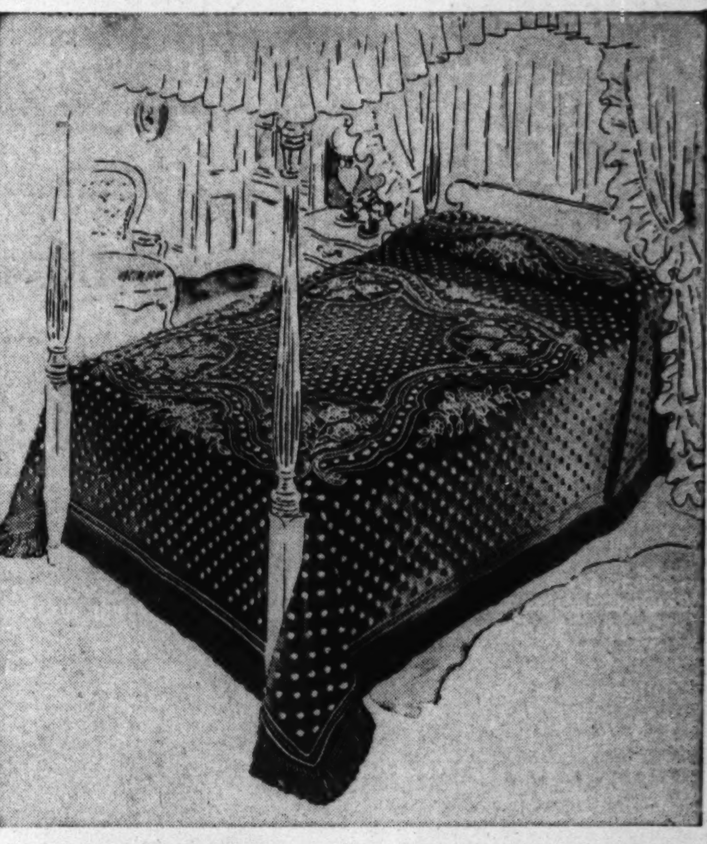
The delicate lines in this spread are in tiny French knots, little dots come out as fluffy candlewick tufts, and frills and scallops are repeated in smooth, unbroken lines of punchwork embroidery. Carried out in half a dozen of the most usable decorating shades, this model is very lovely in a colonial mahogany bedroom.

• • •

In one newly furnished bedroom the other day we saw a clever young woman had purchased three inexpensive white candlewick spreads. One was on the bed, the other two had been cut in two and thus made a pair of long draperies for the two windows in the room. She had edged them with a heavy cotton ball fringe. The effect was extremely pretty against the larkspur blue of the walls.

The simplest of the candlewick spreads are priced for the small budget. The more elaborate ones rise in price to $25.



The design of this interesting candlewick bedspread was inspired by an old valentine. Tiny French knots, tufting and punchwork create the effect of scallops, scrolls and flowers.

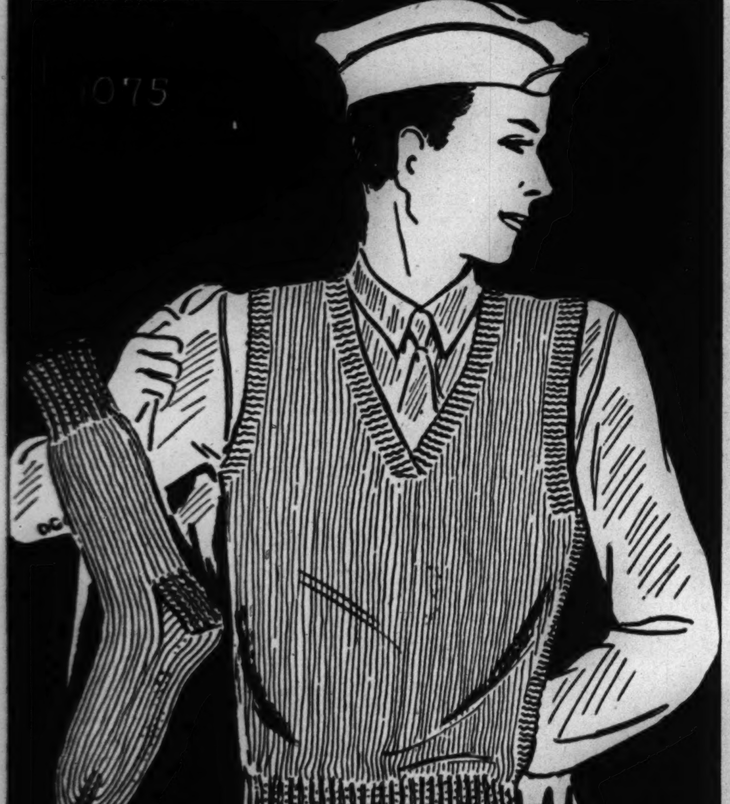
Sweater and Socks



By Jean Macdonald.

Whether he is with the armed forces or working for civilian defense, every man likes these sleeveless, pullover sweaters. This is not a difficult knitting job, and the sweater is available in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch sizes. The socks are made from soft stocking wool. The directions are easy to follow and include instructions for any size.

For the knitting pattern of the sleeveless sweater and socks, No. 1075, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

Bob Hope writes he wishes he was as funny as his handwriting. Since handwriting is a direct reflection of the brain, and Mr. Hope is happily uninhibited, that ought to be easy. Some people have a sense of humor but can't express it because of personal reserves. Mr. Hope is NOT reserved.

His writing is an amusing reflection of his nervous, darting, exaggerated gestures. Mr. Hope, however, gets his laughs more on what he says than what he does, and so we naturally look for inflated loops above the line. And do we find them? We certainly do! His "I's" are one-winged airplanes, his "D" a fat balloon, and in his signature you can see his winged thoughts in that first "B", and the talkative urge in the "b" and "p." The tendency to be lavish and wasteful in making a point is also shown. He'd get sharper reactions if he'd point his fun sparingly, but he happens to be the irrepressive type and breaks out all over the place like his writing.

Navy Blue Is Star of Spring Suit Collections

Contrasting Shades Used for Accents

By Rea Seeger.

A spring preview of navy blue fashions includes every needed costume for any wardrobe and for each individual and occasion. There are streamlined suits that have been a sort of a uniform idea for women for many seasons, the trim skirt and jacket combine, with which unnumbered variations are achieved with costume accessories such as blouse [tailored or frilled], taffeta ascots or larger scarfs, bags and matching gloves, or hat and matching gloves.

Equally popular are the dress and short jacket duets of navy blue, designed to be worn together, or separated and worn with other jackets or skirts in a wardrobe. In the same group are the teamed dresses and long coats, and the three-quarter box coats which may be used in the same obliging way.

• • •

Dressmaker suits, severely tailored suits, bolero suits, and cape suits all come in navy blue, or you may select striped, checked, and plaid fabrics with basic navy blue contrasted with lighter blue, white, or colors, with the navy blue, of course, predominating. This time honored spring color is more popular than ever before. There are limitless supplies of distinctive, one piece dresses that look somewhat like coats; there are afternoon dresses with considerable frou frou, such as sheer white, pale pink, or baby blue organdy accents. And the fabric combines offer another ideal way to be different: Taffeta with sheer wool, sheer wool with lace, smooth silk crêpe with grosgrain ribbon, with net and, sometimes, with chiffon.

Stunning color contrasts are new: Navy blue with gold, with cinnamon, with lime green, with cerise and again one of the most effective contrasts, blue with mauve pink. Dotted materials, bold bright prints, strong striped materials, dizzy plaids all make the blues of fashion this spring.

Capt. Molyneux again uses midnight or dark navy blue as his favorite and basic color for a most unusual spring collection. He also reuses the never old accent of spanking white, to achieve fresh, crisp, spring costumes. Full, graceful, youthful skirts, flattering bodice tops, very feminine details such as knife plaited frills, and the sleek distinction of sharp lines of white pique make his 1942 fashions particularly timely and desirable during this wartime period.

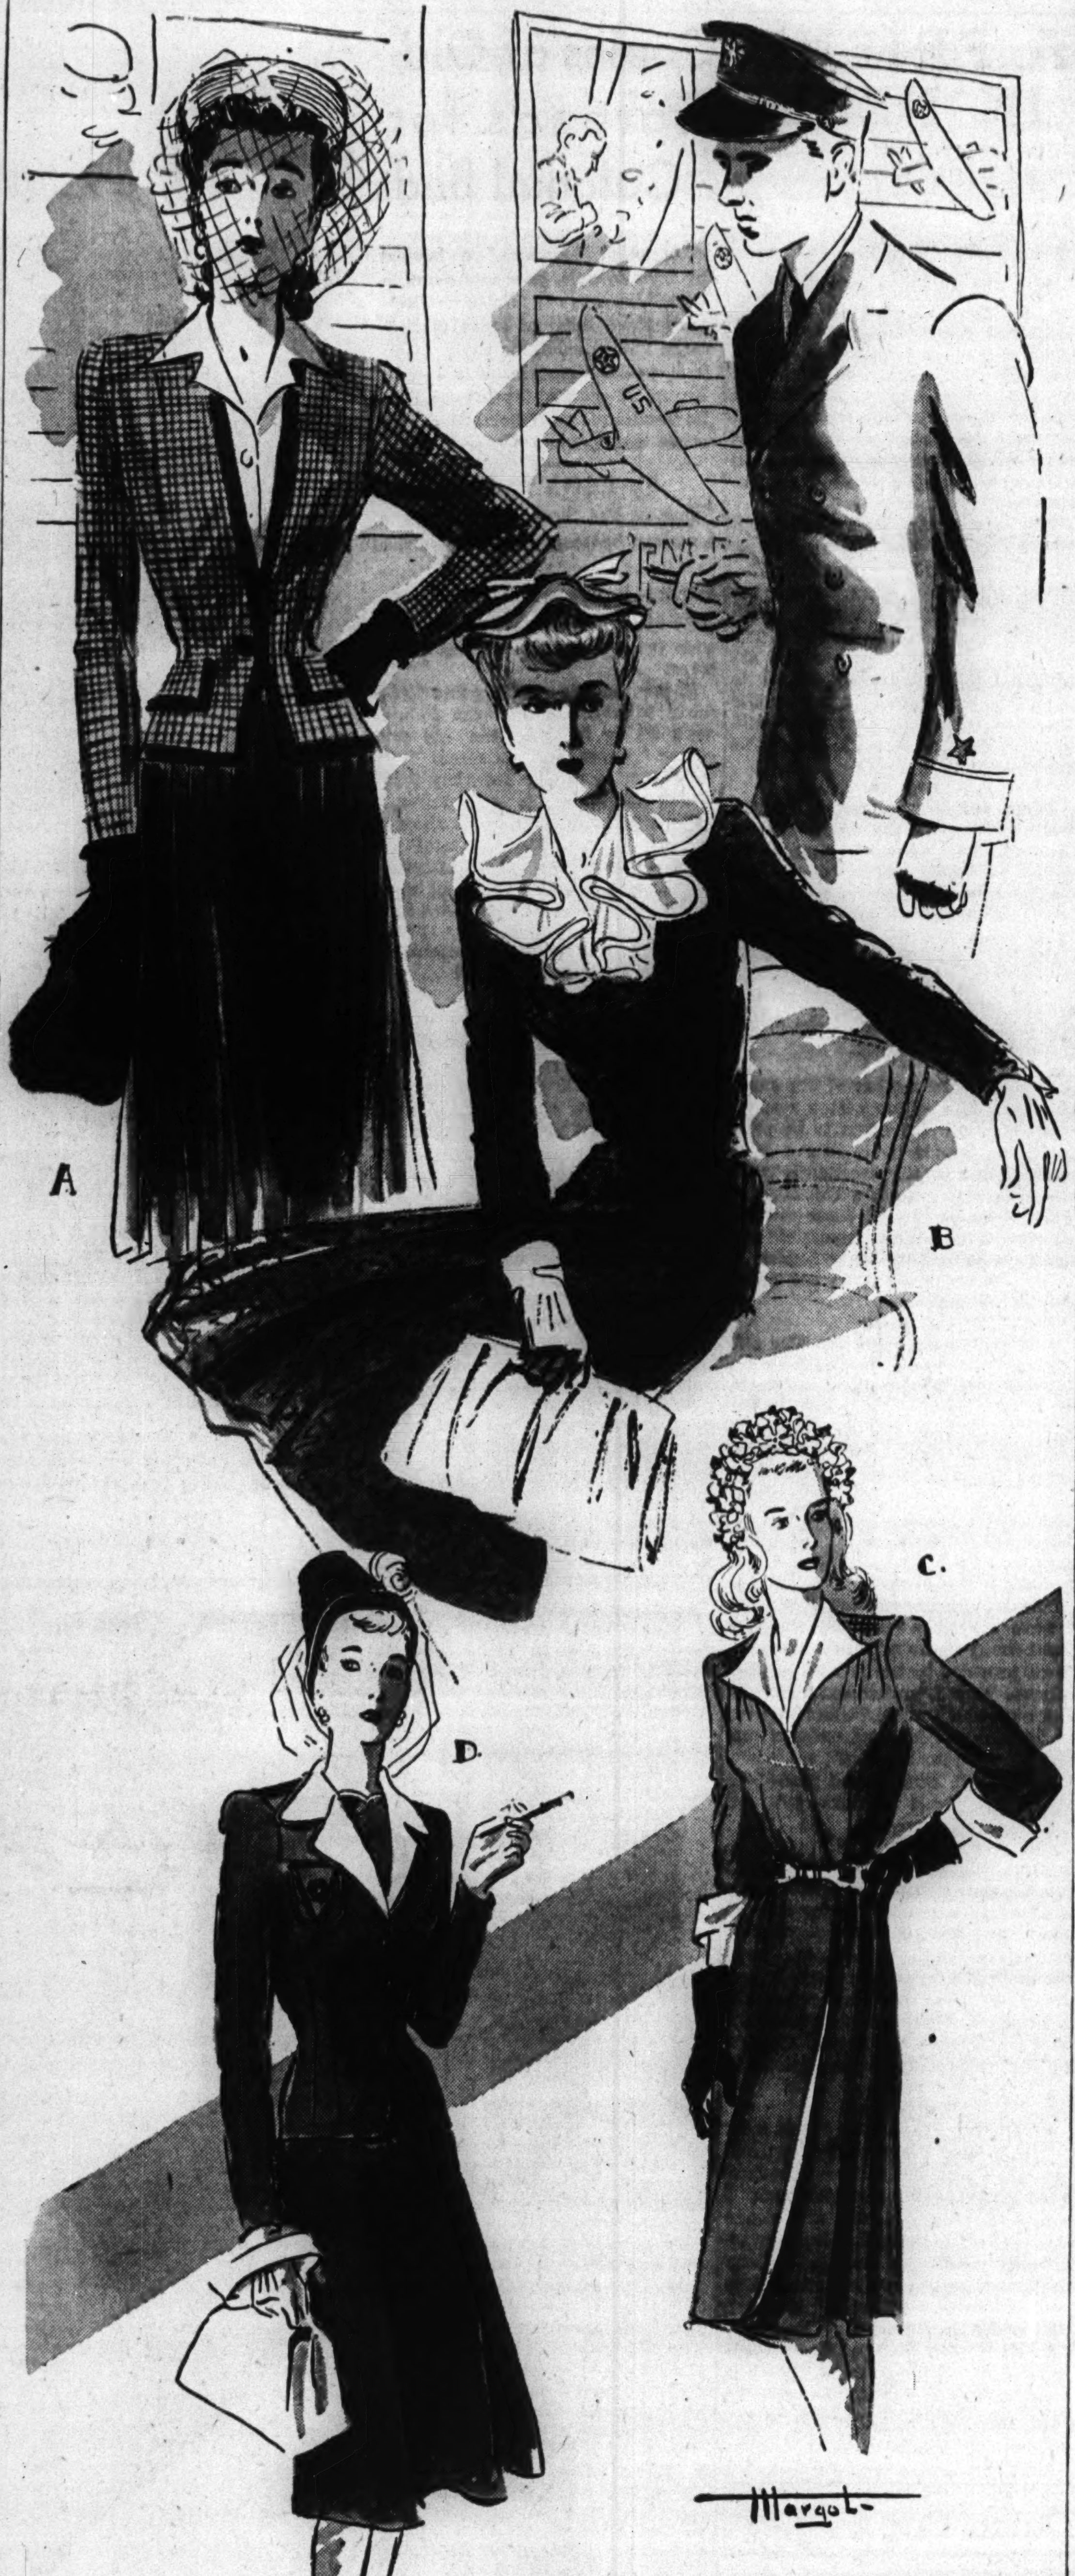
There are many new details to check this spring in the navy blue showings . . . the semi-fitted jackets, the sideswept skirts, the soft, flattering lines of bodices, the clever, softly fashioned sleeves that, for the most part, end just above the elbow, and the many interesting new weaves and textures in the synthetic silks, the woolens, and the fabrics used for daytime dresses. And while many of the navy blue costumes are frankly uniform, appealing with the usual contrasts of glittering buttons, braid, and red and white colors, there are dozens and dozens of finds that are good looking designs for all purpose duty in year 'round wardrobes.

Sketched, four new models in a spring showing, all featuring navy blue with some color or fabric variation to make them high and new fashion. These are basic models around which to assemble a spring wardrobe. All will be found in a Chicago store. For information call Superior 0200.



A . . . Fresh-as-a-daisy, semi-tailored outfit consisting of snappily plaited skirt attached to snowy white blouse top, with top interest in precisely checked blue and phite jacket. B . . . Smart two-piece costume of dress and short jacket uses all-over matelasse pattern as new fashion interest. Sheer white frills are only accent. C . . . Daytime dress of navy blue combined with old gold achieves spring distinction because of new side-saddle cut. D . . . Classic and traditional spring suit of navy blue, smooth wool contrasted with crisp white pique.

Past difficulties and mistakes are likely to rise to the surface today; best treatment is to relax against them, without losing sense of alertness. Week ahead continues critical in big matters, but offers several minor opportunities.

Where to Look.

We all do as well as we understand. This is a terrible indictment of man as a collective whole—look at the state of destruction he has brought himself to. With all our progress, with all our achievements, with all our increase of information on countless subjects, we have not yet been able to eliminate war. What is lacking in our understanding? Let us seek the truth in ancient wisdom.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

Fashion indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

Remove facial hair with Phelactine Depilatory—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

Try Saxolite Astringent, the delightful skin freshener. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Lady of the House

Aunt Ella's Almanac for Ladies. This Week.

1. Today—Comes 'ie in like a lamb, or with "grief doth howl and rave," March is here and that's something.
2. Monday—Full moon but no heat wave. Unsettled conditions withdrawing to new strategic positions.
3. Tuesday—Look for pussywillows. They may be under snow, but look anyway.
4. Wednesday — Weather will probably launch new offensive—violent squalls, gales, rain, or snow. Don't plant anything. The United States Constitution went into effect and look what's happened to it!
5. Thursday—Not a very good day for fried parsnips. Give 'em stuffed spareribs and kraut. [Poor Aunt Ella forgets. Make it "liberty cabbage." It will smell and taste just the same.]
6. Friday—Clearing off cloudy, but no rain. Remember the Alamo, the Maine, Pearl Harbor, Manila, Singapore. . . . Look for the first robin.
7. Saturday—Just fairish for fishing, if you want to go. Mr. Bell got his patent for the telephone, so call up somebody and keep that line busy.

Agreeing with Somerset Maugham that "there is no free person except an author, who may set down his innermost thoughts and feelings and be forever free of them," N. T. sets down an unhappy experience:

"Recently I became a member of a board of directors of a woman's club. I loved every one of the women on that board. But, now I am so disillusioned! I give you one of them.

"She is vindictive, loving her own way; happy if in getting her way, she has triumphed over another; just a bit more glad if she senses she has made that other feel humiliated; very sure of her own information on all subjects and wishing others to know her as she believes herself to be—all knowing.

"Yet with all this, a young, clean, wholesome appearing woman—some beauty of face and a quiet deliberate voice that commands attention. One cannot believe the voice and face belong to a nature so set in mind, and we wonder what influence a daily contact develops in her children. . . ."

My Country 'tis of thee . . .
"Dear son, go 'cross the sea
And help make all men free.
. . . by the dawn's early light . . .
"Have good faith when you fight
For the things that are right.
. . . for the red, white, and blue.
"You must stand firm and true,
To the flag that shields you.
. . . from sea to shining sea.
"Wherever you may be,
Protect our liberty.
. . . His truth is marching on.
"Good-by, my strong young son;
Come home when you have won.
". . . My God I trust in thee . . .
To bring him back to me—
Pray near him ever be!"

Friday.

Frjadagr, Frigadaeg, Friatag, Freitag, sixth day of the week, is the Mohammedan Sabbath, and a day of abstinence in Roman and Anglican churches. The superstition that it is an unlucky day probably comes from the fact that Friday was long known as hangman's day, because it was the customary day for hangings.

Friday is another feminine day of the week, being named after Frigga, or Freya, wife of Odin and mother of Thor, so that this Saxon Venus might not be jealous of the honor to husband and son—having Wednesday and Thursday named after them. In Norse mythology Freya was the goddess of beauty and love. Perhaps that is why "Friday's child is loving and giving."

Great ice floes storming across the blue lake from the east, then calmly putting out to sea again. Warm, sheltered, sunny nooks and wind torn stretches. Sparrows twittering at the eaves, a bright little nuthatch topsy turvy on a twig . . . a horned lark on a post . . . a gay cardinal calling from a snowy bush.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. As a result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids for feminine hygiene which can actually burn, scar and harm delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

So Easy. No Cooking. Saves Dollars.

No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, can't be surpassed, for real results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really amazing cough relief—about four times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it—and it never spoils.

You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and lets you sleep. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

C. Malmedahl of Chicago sent this Norwegian cover for illustration. The "V" surcharge and cancelation are shown, as well as a recent commemorative stamp.

On May 31, 1861, the United States postoffice ceased to function in the seceded states and this was the occasion for an editorial in The Chicago Tribune of that date which read: "No More Mails. Today the United States mail service in all the rebel states is closed. Hereafter the men, who, for months past have, while defying the authority of the government, become content to receive their mail matter at its hands, and at the expense of the hated Yankees of the north, must now provide for themselves. The cost of a postal system like that, which they have caused to be withdrawn, will exhaust the already impoverished exchequer of the rebels; and unless their prospects brighten, or they get a chance to steal something, they will be compelled to take another backward step toward barbarism and give up the receipt and carrying of letters, except by the methods yet in vogue in Dahomey on the other side of the water. After this date all letters deposited in northern postoffices for any places in the seceding states, except so much thereof as are included in Tennessee and western Virginia, will be sent to the dead letter office in Washington."

Actually the formation of the Confederate postal service was not as difficult an undertaking as might be imagined after reading the editorial above quoted. John Henninger Reagen, postmaster general of the Confederate States of America, states in his memoirs that as soon as he had accepted the position he wrote to several southern employés of the United States postal service requesting them to accept positions in his department and to bring with them copies of all forms used by the United States in handling the business of the postoffice and copies of the maps of the postal routes in the southern states.

In this manner Reagen was able to staff the new department with experienced men among whom were Henry Saint George Offut, chief clerk of the sixth auditor, who became chief of the contract bureau; Benjamin Clements, chief clerk in the office of the postmaster general, who became chief of the appointment bureau, and many others. As Mr. Reagen writes, he was able to obtain the services of all to whom he wrote except Third Assistant Postmaster General Hobby and a clerk whose home was in Florida. Thus in May, Reagen was able to report to President Davis that his department was as well organized as that in Washington and in addition he had made several improvements.

On May 13, 1861, Postmaster General Reagen issued a proclamation announcing that Confederate service would start on June 1, and directing all postmasters, contractors, route agents, and special agents, in the service of the postoffice department, and engaged in carrying the mails, etc., within the limits of the Confederate states to continue in the discharge of their duties in conformity with existing laws except where such laws are inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the Confederate states. He further admonished each to keep strict account of receipts and expenditures up to May 31, in order that the United States might receive proper credit for all money, stamps, etc., remaining on hand on that date.

Thus during the period between the acts of secession of the various states and June 1, 1861, the United States government continued to carry the mail thruout the south. It has been explained that there was no desire for a sudden severance of postal relations between the two countries as it was then supposed to be possible to effect peaceably the separation from the United States and to settle questions of public property by the use of accountants rather than by force of arms.

There is much doubt that postmasters and others ever turned over to the United States the stamps and money on hand on June 1, 1861, for on June 14, 1851, the National Intelligencer states editorially: "In consequence of the retention and improper use of postage stamps by delinquent postmasters in some of the seceded states, the postmaster general has ordered a new stamped envelope, which will be ready for use in a few days, and that by Aug. 1 there will be a new stamp with devices altogether different from the present. Since it was impossible to furnish the new stamps to all postmasters at once it was ordered that the old stamps should be accepted for postage in Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Maryland, and Pennsylvania until Sept. 10, 1861, and in other loyal states east of the Rocky mountains until Oct. 1, and in the states of California and Oregon, and the territories of New Mexico, Utah, and Washington, until Nov. 1. Subsequently these several dates were extended to Nov. 1, and Dec. 1, 1861, and Jan. 1, 1862.

The Pan American Union has recognized the growing interest in the stamps of the western hemisphere by instituting an exhibit in the Union building in Washington, D. C. The display is changed from month to month and was started with a general Latin American exhibit of stamps, journals, covers, and associated material. During February the Argentine collection of Ralph A. Kimble, Chicagoan and editor of the American Philatelist, was shown and in March another outstanding collection will take its place.

The second Chipex show of the Central Federation of Stamp Clubs will be held March 20-22, at the Morrison hotel. There will be the usual sideshows and a philatelic homecoming party. The leading stamp clubs of Chicagoland coöperate in this exhibition and it promises to be one of the largest national shows of the season. Philatelic seals have been prepared and information concerning these as well as entry blanks for the show may be obtained from Fred W. Peters, 5000 West Warwick avenue.

The Collectors Club of Washington, D. Here's one of the best ways to get that weekly supply of liver into the menu.

Liver and Spaghetti Casserole.
[Serves six.]
1½ pounds beef liver
Flour, salt, pepper
3 tablespoons lard
1 8-ounce package spaghetti, cooked
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 small onion, minced
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar

Scald liver, drain, and dice. Dust with flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt fat, add meat, and cook slowly until browned. Cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain, arrange in layers with browned meat in a greased casserole. Combine tomatoes, onion, and seasonings. Pour over ingredients. Cover and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, then uncover and brown for 15 minutes.

Spanish Rice.
[Serves five.]
1 cup raw rice
1 medium onion, chopped fine
2 slices bacon or 1 slice salt pork
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup diced celery
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook rice until tender in 1 quart water with 1 teaspoon salt. Drain. Brown onion lightly in fat from cooking bacon or salt pork. Cut up meat and add with cooked rice to fat and onion. Add green pepper, celery, tomatoes, salt, and pepper. Simmer for 30 minutes on top of the stove, or bake in a greased casserole in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for the same length of time.

Steamed Prune Pudding.
[Serves six.]
2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lard or vegetable shortening
1 cup milk
2 cups cooked prunes, seeded
Sauce

Sift flour with baking powder, salt, and sugar. Cut in shortening and add milk, stirring vigorously for about 30 seconds to make a soft dough. Grease a pudding mold or the top of a double boiler and drop in alternate layers of the dough and the prunes, which have been coarsely cut. Have a layer of the dough on top. Cover tightly and steam for 45 minutes to an hour. Serve warm with prune-honey sauce.

PRUNE-HONEY SAUCE: Use 2 cups prune juice [liquid in which prunes were cooked]. Blend 6 tablespoons flour with enough of the juice to make a smooth paste. Add ⅔ cup honey, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and the remaining prune juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add 1 tablespoon butter.

Hot Liver Sandwiches.
[To use up leftover cooked liver.]
1 cup cooked, chopped liver
3 eggs, slightly beaten
⅓ cup milk
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons ham or bacon drippings
Buttered toast
Bacon strips or tomato slices

Combine liver with eggs, milk, salt, and pepper. Cook in fat, scrambling the mixture with a spoon. Serve on buttered toast. Garnish each serving with a cooked strip of bacon or with a broiled or fried slice of tomato.

Pumpkin Drop Cookies.
[About 3 dozen.]
½ cup margarine or vegetable shortening
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup canned pumpkin
3¼ cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon extract
1 cup raisins

Cream fat with sugar. Add pumpkin. Sift dry ingredients and stir to mix thoroly. Add vanilla, lemon extract, and raisins. Drop by spoonfuls onto greased baking sheet and bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees.

Rice and Date Pudding.
[Serves five.]
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water
2 cups boiled rice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon butter, melted
⅔ cup brown or white sugar
½ cup pitted dates, finely cut
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

Combine ingredients and bake in greased casserole for 1 hour, at 350 degrees. Prunes, figs, or raisins may be used in place of dates, honey in place of sugar.

Brisket and Beans.
[Serves five.]
1 pound beef brisket
1 pound [2 cups] navy beans
3 tablespoons molasses
1 large onion, sliced
Salt, pepper

Simmer beans very gently for 2 hours, in water to cover. Brown brisket in a little hot fat, season with salt and pepper. Add molasses, onion, salt, and pepper to taste, to the beans and place brisket on top. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven 3 hours, or a little longer, until beans and meat are tender. Add more water when necessary.

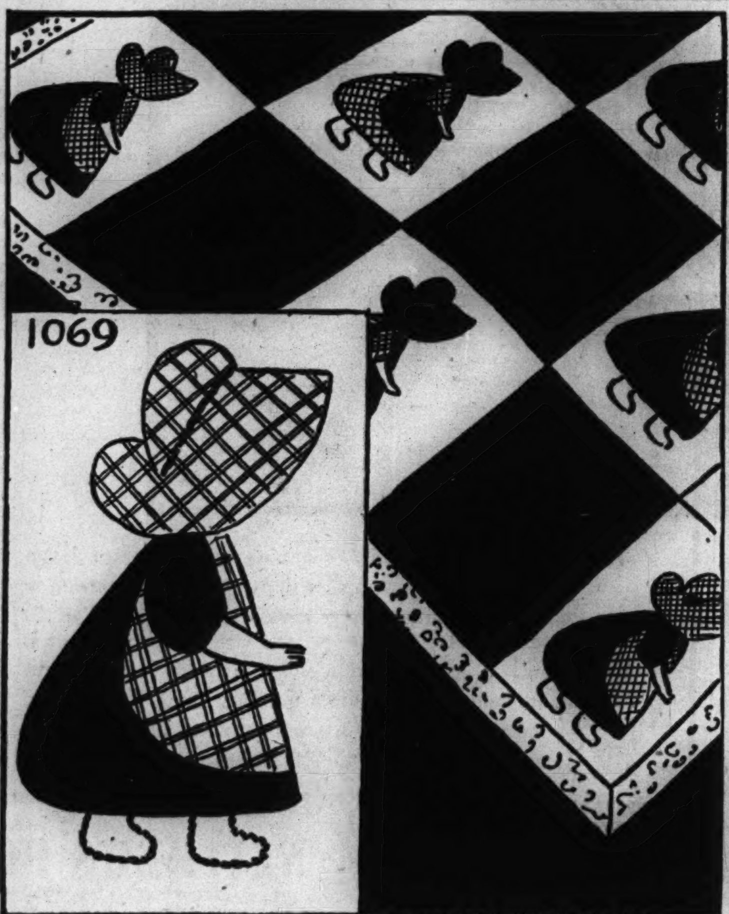
"Mary Lou" Quilt Motif



By Nancy Cabot.

"Mary Lou" is the name of this attractive applique pattern of a motif for a child's crib. The apron and hat are of print materials, while the dress is of solid color. The alternating blocks may match the dress or be in contrast to the applique block on which Mary Lou is sewed.

For the quilt pattern, Mary Lou, No. 1069, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Great Lakes Supervisor to Address City Club

Capt. T. De Witt Carr who, as executive officer, is supervising the expansion program that will make Great Lakes the largest naval training base in the world, will speak before the City Club of Chicago at lunch at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Hotel La Salle. His subject will be "Manning the Fleet." Graduated from the United States Naval academy in 1916, Capt. Carr served in the first World war on an American battleship operating with the British fleet in the North sea. When last on sea duty he was commander of the 7th destroyer division of the Pacific fleet.

Army Etiquet Like the Other, Only More So

By Helen Bartlett.

Army men realized, 'way back in the early days of the organization, the importance of strict adherence to the rules of etiquet in their desire to promote a smooth running order, an attitude of respect for superior officers, and the establishment of discipline in the hierarchy. Their code of ethics has been long established and diligently practiced. In the armed forces the necessity for such a code and the control it provided over their large unwieldy groups was appreciated more than the observance of its counterpart in ordinary social relationships. That is doubtless why they are adhered to so strictly.

There are some sections of the military code that apply solely to military life, such as those governing life at any army post, the professional relationship between members of the service, military weddings and funerals, rules of precedence, military ceremonies in general.

But, in general, the army code is the same as the social code, only more so. By that I mean it is much more rigidly observed and a great deal more in the way of courteous behavior is expected of the army officer than of the man in civilian life. It is not society that makes these demands, but the high standards of his own group. And the reason these standards have been made high is because it has been expedient to do so.

An army officer is in the nature of an unofficial representative of the government. He is expected to uphold that responsibility by his gentlemanly courtesy, his tact, his poise, his ability to take his place in informal, official, or diplomatic circles, as well as perform active duty in the service.

• • •

Like any other set of behavior rules, the military code is a changing thing. There are many practices which have held over from year to year because they continue to serve a purpose . . . others that are adopted when the need is presented . . . and still others that have fallen out of existence thru disuse. But the rules that are made are made to be observed.

Fashions

The restraining influence of priorities is not yet noticeable, to the casual observer, at least, in the new spring shoe collections. There are patents, suede and calf, snake and reptile, with the usual sprinkling of gabardine. The interesting thing about the new spring shoes is the brilliant color chart—startling, stunning colors that will make your feet fairly leap into the fashion parade.

At the top of the heap today is a shiny black patent pump, small open toe, grosgrain bow for trim. Most important of all is the tremendously high "skyscraper" heel. Puts you right up on your toes. Under $4.

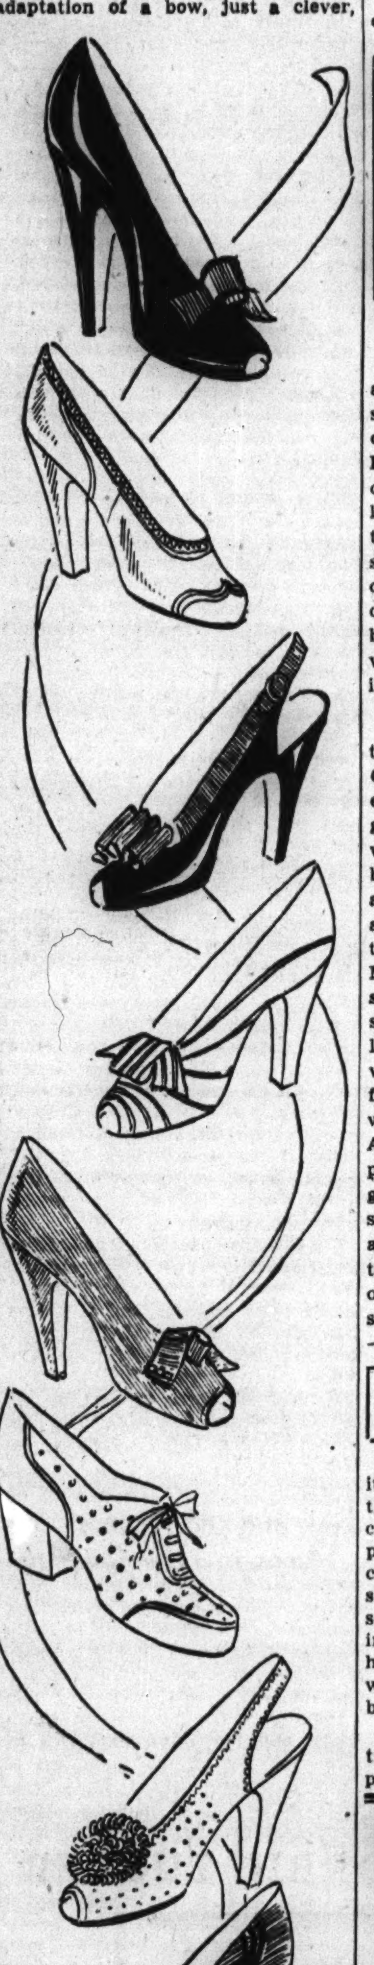
• • •

A more modest and more practical shoe is the second model, very appropriate for tailored suits. This spectator pump is available in blue, black, and beige.

Another patent, dressier than the first by virtue of the strap heel, is trimmed in gabardine with a cartridge bow at the instep. The same style may be had in either a medium or a high heel.

If color is what you're after, you'll get it in this shoe, number 4. It's a suede shoe with a very narrow braid trim, high heel, open toe. And it comes in Kelly green or red suede, black patent, and black, brown, or blue gabardine.

A simple daytime shoe is fashioned of gabardine, and in keeping with this same simplicity is a tailored adaptation of a bow, just a clever, little twist to the gold-studded grosgrain ribbon. Under $3.



• • •

For walking, sports wear, anything casual, the blue tie will rate first. It has a very medium heel, walled toe, perforated side leather. And it has a dull, rather than high, luster.

The open toe, strap heel pump sketched in seventh position is suede, a rich beige suede, with a flat rosette of looped leather fringe decorating the toe.

Conservative persons will like the black gabardine with the modest patent trim. Spaghetti strings of black patent are knotted into a bow. The shoe is available in either a medium or high heel. Under $4.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Perhaps because of the wool shortage, this spring sees an emphasis on suits and wool frocks in the fashion world. Women are buying wools with an eye to wearing them for years to come, and the costumes seen in smart places these days are the finest money can buy. . . . The suit which Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr. wore to a recent Council on Foreign Relations meeting is typical of the chic costumes suitable to wartimes. Mrs. Woods' suit is man tailored of beige covert, and with it she wears a matching felt hat whose wide brim is caught back at one side, in pirate fashion, with white, beige, and brown feathers. . . . At this same meeting Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke was wearing a tailored, navy wool suit and a crocheted navy hat with a wide, floppy brim. Since the day was cold, Mrs. Paepcke topped her suit with an exquisite mink coat. Another smart woman in mink was Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey, who topped her costume with a gay red and Erin green feather hat. . . . Both Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, who sat at adjoining tables at this meeting, wore smart, softly tailored wool frocks. Mrs. Hodgkins' was of pistachio green and she wore a disc hat laden with pink roses and swathed in green veiling. Mrs. Brewster, who so often wears blue, had chosen the new blue violet shade for her frock and she wore a tiny felt visor hat which exactly matched the dress.

The audiences which are seeing "Blithe Spirit" are almost as smartly gowned as the spirit, Annabella, herself. Mrs. James C. Thompson, who saw the gay Noel Coward play on opening night, wore a black crêpe dinner dress with square neckline outlined in embroidered bead flowers. Mrs. Thompson topped her gown with a white fox cape. Another smart woman in the audience that night was Miss Martha Schuler in aqua satin and ermine. . . . There's nothing like a really cold night to bring out warm fur coats, whether styled for evening wear or night. Mrs. Hugh M. Johnston came to the theater the other night wearing her swagger cut beaver coat over a printed evening gown in a pretty shade of aqua green.

Mrs. Gordon Kelly was in the same audience, wearing a slim black dinner gown brightened by a flame red peplum and topped by a brief bolero of bleached wolf. Looking very grande soirée that same night was Mrs. E. Hall Taylor in a champagne satin gown with large, floppy roses pinned to the front of the bodice. Talking together in the foyer between acts were the daughters of the assistant secretary of the navy, Ralph A. Bard, formerly of Highland Park. The former Janet Bard, now Mrs. Thomas J. Johnson Jr., and her actress sister, Mrs. Martin E. Manulis, [Katharine Bard], wore jeweled clips at their ears. Mrs. Johnson was wearing a blue fox jacket; her sister was in a full length, dark colored, cloth evening wrap with a mink collar, to which she pinned a single, full blown gardenia. . . . Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine wore a stunning, white crêpe dinner dress to a recent party at the Casino club. The dress was cut in shirtwaist style and had a tiered skirt of silk fringe. Mrs. Valentine wore two corsages that night, gardenias on one shoulder and purple orchids on the other. Mrs. Charles E. Brown wore another fringed gown seen at this party. Hers was of black crêpe and she wore gardenias with it. . . . The three strand pearl necklace and pearl earrings which Mrs. John P. Cohane wore that night seemed to reflect the coloring of her sleeping blue jersey gown. Actually, each strand of the necklace was of a different shade, one white, one gray, and one soft gray-blue. . . . Erin green slipper satin was Miss Betty Bennett's choice. Her dirndl style gown boasted a cluster of pink flowers on its bodice. Another young woman in slipper satin was Miss Mary Ryerson, who wore a square-necked dinner gown of aqua. The neckline was edged in a band of "jeweled" studs.

Miss Mary S. Adams sometimes wears a formal gown which is particularly suited to the wintry weather which has been sweeping down on Chicago. It is of burgundy velvet with drop shoulders edged in mink tails. Quite different from this party gown of Miss Adams' was the gay frock which she wore to a recent luncheon at the Palmer House. Of black crepe, it had a jerkin effect of pale blue, pink, and chartreuse plaid. With this frock Miss Adams wore a dark green velveteen hat with a visor brim made of two ruffles of the velveteen. . . . At this same luncheon Mrs. Howard F. Gillette Jr. topped her black crêpe shirtwaist with a corduroy calot in the new nasturtium shade. Miss Jane Zimmerman, who sat next Mrs. Gillette, wore a calot, too. Hers was of black feathers with a pouff of black and pale blue feathers at the front. . . . Another smart woman at the same table was Mrs. Secor Browne in a Quaker gray and white checked wool frock. A pearl necklace sparkled in the dress' square neckline. Mrs. Browne completed her costume with a gray felt visor hat with a pompom of gray-green yarn bobbing at the front. . . . There are enough buttons on a stunning blue dress Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr. wears to take care of an average wardrobe, but, oddly enough, Mrs. Browne depends on a zipper to get in and out of the frock. The buttons, of blue to match the dress, outline the shoulders, as if the sleeves were buttoned in, and trim both sides of the skirt, which is slit to just above the knee.

BETTINA BEDWELL SAYS:

There still are some silk lingerie items to be picked up, but as far as the lingerie styles for spring are concerned, they deal in other fabrics 100 per cent. The new story is one of cottons and fine rayons. Rubber shortages and priorities alter the corset picture drastically, too. This most intimate of all garments still is to be had, but before long women may be wearing the old-time, laced-up-the-back corset that sported no rubber.

There is still no dearth of laces to trim the new wartime lingerie, experts in this field assure me, but they will be domestic and machine-made, not the foreign-born laces used so exclusively in the past on fine lingerie for Americans.

[Answer on page five.]

'Plan M' Is Preposterous Play About Fifth Column

Author Grant Is Skilled in Suspense

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Up to now our war play writers have been content to show, or to attempt to show, what has happened or what is happening on one of the various fronts. Now comes James Edward Grant, an imaginative and successful concocter of motion picture scenarios, to indulge a fantastic speculation as to what might happen, as tho we didn't have enough to worry about as things stand!

Leonard Doyle.

It is Grant's idea, written into a melodrama called "Plan M," that a superfifth columnist organization in England might conceivably take over Britain's war office, substitute a false plan of defense for the protection of the island against invasion, and all but end the war right there.

It is, of course, a preposterous play and a silly idea. But, such is the appeal of a stage story well told that audiences sit before it, apparently fascinated by its absurdities. At the end, when the wicked plans of the spying Nazis are fortuitously exposed, there is sufficient emotional relief to convince some people that "Plan M" is worth while theater entertainment. Perhaps it is, but not for this audience. Sitting for two hours in a theater waiting for an author to drop his other shoe, as the insomnia sufferer did in the Paris hotel, may be an experience, but it isn't any fun.

What attention "Plan M" attracts is due more to Grant's skill in building suspense, once you accept his premise, than to any hold the story takes upon you. Gen. Sir Hugh Winston, Britain's chief of staff, suffers a rheumatic ailment for which he is taking electric cabinet treatments.

Using a muddle headed physician as an English fifth columnist, the Nazis are able to introduce as his assistants a couple of German military leaders, one of whom has been transformed by plastic surgery and careful coaching to represent a living duplicate or Sir Hugh.

With the real Sir Hugh smothered in the cabinet, the Nazi substitute is able to take over, fooling not only the office personnel but the contracting heads of the army, navy, and air services as well. Immediately he substitutes an enemy plan M for England's defense. A feint landing is made at the channel ports, while the real landing threatens in the north. For the better part of two acts and a half the Nazis have everything their own way. Orders are transmitted realistically by teletype and a field phone service. A huge map of England flashes with red and white lights showing troop progress as the invasion and the disorganized defense progress. It looks pretty tough for good old Britain.

Then the false Sir Hugh swells his chest and sticks out his abdomen a little too far. This characteristic of the arrogant German has been his one suspect weakness. Until he begins to hear of Germany's success with the invasion he has been able to keep it reasonably under control. But now he swells, and bang goes his disguise. Incidentally, he also has made a little quick and lusty love to his English secretary, arousing her suspicions. In the crisis she shoots him, the plot is uncovered and, we assume, Britain is saved.

There is literally no reasonable excuse for "Plan M" as a play. If there were, this certainly is not a good time in which to try to prove it. And yet there should be words spoken in praise of Author Grant's boldness of imagination and his skill in the projection of his nightmare. Leonard Doyle doubles the rôle of the two Sir Hughs with fair cleverness, and he is helped by an excellent supporting cast, including the Anne Burr who was the effective heroine of "Native Son," Margery Maude, Lumsden here, and Reynolds Denniston.

• • •

Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, prize fugitives from the west who have rolled up a couple of fortunes in the east, and still are having fun living, give two performances of their "Sons o' Fun" on Sunday at the Winter Garden, which leaves them free on Monday. So last Monday they went over to Brooklyn's Albee theater, where their "Hellzapoppin" picture was being shown for the first time, and made a personal appearance. Took along two or three of their troupers and gave Brooklyn quite a party, according to Arthur Pollock.

Ole Olsen.

It seems that among the guests was Olsen's mother, who has been east from Fort Wayne, Ind., visiting her comical son since New Year's. She is 79 years old and a great pet, not only of the Olsens but the Johnsons, too. She doesn't smoke, Ole tells you, but she does take a little ginger ale with her Scotch, which could be true, or could be a gag. You can't tell about the Olsens. Ole [she calls him Johnnie] also insists that whenever they stay out as late as 4 in the morning he always asks mother to stir up a mess of fried potatoes when they get home. She loves that.

The boys got away from Brooklyn early because it was Mrs. Johnson's birthday and there was a party on at the Johnson farm, a party and a reception. Johnson had ordered 65 cows from out west and they had just arrived. You can make successful comedians of those old midwest boys, make them rich, too, but you don't change them much. They are still cornfed, and proud of it. They tried to get Mrs. Olsen up on the stage with them in Brooklyn, but she wouldn't budge. Mother knew best.

We've been going in pretty strong for "The Pirates of Penzance" recently. Two revivals of that Gilbert and Sullivan favorite last week, and both popular. One was sung uptown by the Boston Opera company, an organization of mostly new faces and voices which R. H. Burnside, the old Hippodrome maestro, has gotten together for the Shuberts. The other was sung downtown by an earnest group calling themselves the Savoy Opera guild.

The Boston singers have been splitting their evenings with the Jooss ballet, giving one or two ballets in addition to a G. and S. number and at a $2 price. The combination hasn't proved as popular as was hoped for, so next week the ballet moves out and the Boston company puts in more opera.

Its young people include Kathleen and Mary Roche, a couple of pretty Worcester, Mass., girls who have sung their way into local prominence and are evidently headed for a musical stage career, even as Bettina and Natalie Hall started with the Winthrop Ames Gilbert and Sullivan revivals years back, and came thru to prominence later as musical comedy prima donnas.

The downtown Savoy guild is an ambitious and persistent coöperative group that has taken over the tiny stage of the Cherry Lane side street theater and has gone on singing there for many weeks, come booms, come slumps, come wars, come rumors, come Lent. Nothing stops them. These Savoyards just like to sing, and especially they like to sing Gilbert and Sullivan.

Theremin Recital.

Lucie Bigelow Rosen will give a recital on the theremin, an electrical instrument, in the Great Northern theater on Sunday afternoon, March 15.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

Copyright: 1942: by Ely Culbertson.

Time and again a declarer must decide whether or not the defenders are false-carding, that is, whether an unexpectedly high card is "honest" or whether the player has a lower, equal card, back of it. Decision in these cases must be based largely on whether a false card would have been logical under the circumstances. Let me explain this by means of the following hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH
♠10 8 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened his fourth highest heart and declarer captured East's jack with the queen. After surveying his resources, declarer's first thought was that the safest and most constructive plan involved the establishment of dummy's club suit. If the adverse clubs were divided 3-2, all declarer need do was pass one club, then run off the rest of the suit. After that, he could pick up whatever tricks were available in the other suits. Before embarking on this plan, however, declarer could see that it would do no harm to lay down one high spade honor. [After all, many a blank queen has been captured by this means.] When nothing significant happened on the lead of the spade ace, declarer swung into the club establishment plan. He led the club nine with the intention of letting it ride, but when West promptly came up with the queen, declarer reconsidered. He saw that if the queen really were a singleton, East would have a second club stopper.

In that case, it would be impossible to establish clubs and any attempt to do so would end in disaster. The opponents would establish their own heart suit long before declarer had established any long suit, and the result probably would be disastrous. The next question, however, was whether West was false-carding with the club queen and whether he really had the jack or J-10 back of it. Declarer pondered this question carefully. Eventually he concluded that West would have had no conceivable reason to play the queen if he had any lower card. West hardly could know what plan the declarer was about to launch and he probably would think twice about misleading his own partner thru the use of a false card.

Of course, if no other plan of attack had been available, declarer would have been forced to rely on his club establishment plan, but this was not the case. He had an alternative line that was at least as good, and in view of West's club queen play, probably a great deal better. So, instead of passing the club trick, as he had first intended, declarer went right up with dummy's king and led the diamond jack thru East. The latter covered, and declarer's ace won. The queen was cashed and the diamond nine was continued. East won with the 10 and knocked out declarer's heart ace. Declarer cashed two more diamonds, while East discarded his last heart and a club. The club ace then was cashed and, when West showed out, declarer had the "nerve" to throw East on lead and finesse against the spade return.

The particular discards made by each defender had thoroly convinced declarer that the spade queen was being held guarded by East. Hence, having already taken nine tricks for his contract, he went out for the maximum overtricks. When the spade jack held East's return lead, declarer could lay down the spade ace for his eleventh trick and a top on the board.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Hearts are trump. South leads. North and South are to win all the tricks.

Solution: South leads the jack of clubs, upon which North plays the eight. This is to prepare the position for a possible tenace over East. The next lead is a spade, which North trumps. North leads his remaining trump, on which South discards the queen of diamonds. The rest depends on what the East and West players do.

If East discards a club, both of South's clubs are good as he discards his losing spade on North's diamond ace; therefore, East must keep two clubs. If West discards the club, both of South's clubs are good against East. If he sheds a diamond, both of North's diamonds are good, therefore he discards a spade. East, having foreseen this, keeps the spade with his clubs.

North makes his diamond trick, and East must let go the spade or unguard the clubs. It does not matter which.

This problem, the famous "Whitfield Six," has been camouflaged a hundred different ways, but the key always is the same. It is supposed to be the most difficult six-carder ever composed.

Notes of the Theater

By chance last spring Estelle Winwood remarked that she would rather tell fortunes than act. Also by chance Miss Winwood saw as her first play in New York last fall Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit." Upon viewing the character of Madame Arcati the actress saw the way to combine her two leading wishes by playing the part of that unique medium. Fortunately—and wisely—John Wilson, producer of the play, offered her the part in the Chicago company, and she is currently to be seen practicing a very funny brand of witchcraft at the Selwyn theater. Away from the footlights Miss Winwood has been generous enough with her time to tell fortunes at innumerable benefits held by war relief organizations. America has good reason to claim Miss Winwood as its own, in spite of the fact that she was born in England. Certainly most of her career has been spent in this country, and her most notable triumphs are connected with the American theater. Her brilliant characterization of Mme. Arcati tops a long career of vivid portrayals that have done credit to the stage as we know it. She played the heroine in the first Pulitzer prize play, Jesse Lynch Williams' "Why Marry," Emmie in "A Successful Calamity," the runaway girl in Rachel Crothers' "A Little Journey," and Mona, the girl in the streets, in "Spring Cleaning," by Frederick Lonsdale. She co-starred with Fay Bainter in Noel Coward's "Fallen Angel," was in Somerset Maugham's "The Circle," acted with Ethel Barrymore in "Scarlet Sister Mary" and with Laurette Taylor in "The Furies." She toured twice thruout the country in the all-star casts of "The Admirable Crichton" and "Trelawney of the Wells." Rôles in "The Distaff Side," "The Bishop Misbehaves," the road company of Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," and her astonishing, mad sister in "Ladies in Retirement"—one of last season's lingering memories—mark other high points in her career.

This department guessed correctly on the dates of the local engagement of "Macbeth," starring Judith Anderson and Maurice Evans. It will be here from April 27 to May 9 and will be housed by the Erlanger.

As it enters its last two weeks at the Erlanger theater "Panama Hattie" is looking forward to its subsequent tour. On March 16 it will open in Cleveland for a week's run, and on March 23 it goes to Detroit's Cass theater for a two week stay. Pittsburgh gets a one week return engagement starting April 6, and on the 13th it embarks on an indefinite run in Philadelphia.

Burton Holmes, On Wednesday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoon of this week the genial lecturer will discuss the Canadian Rockies, illustrating the travelog with a new set of Kodachrome motion pictures. ◆

Edmond Breon, who looks offstage very much like the squire he portrays in "The Corn Is Green," comes from a Scotch family with military leanings. Born in Hamilton, Scotland, in 1882, he attended preparatory school at Mostyn house, Cheshire, which, oddly enough, is just across a river from Mostyn, Wales, where Emlyn Williams, author of "The Corn Is Green," lived as a boy. With the intention of following family tradition by preparing for the army, young Breon went to the United Services college. Unfortunately, at a hockey game there he received a "lick in the eye" from a hockey stick, which ruled out an army career. This did not prevent him from bluffing his way thru a physical examination in the first World war to win a lieutenant's commission in the Hampshire regiment. Breon's first engagement in the London theater was an auspicious one, a part in the original production of "Raffles," which boasted a year's run. Among the countless other plays he later appeared in five rated equally long engagements, including Maugham's "Lady Frederick," Lonsdale's "Spring Cleaning" and "On Approval," Galsworthy's "Loyalties" and "Spring Meeting," by M. J. Farrell and John Perry. Before he played with Ethel Barrymore in "The Corn Is Green" Breon appeared twice in this country, once with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in a California production of "The Man in Possession" and once with J. C. and Elliott Nugent in a Broadway failure known as "Fast Service." Several noteworthy American pictures, filmed in England, also have made good use of the actor's abilities.

"Clash by Night," Clifford Odets' latest play, has been published by Random House. Its production in New York by Billy Rose, with Tallulah Bankhead, Lee J. Cobb, and Joseph Schildkraut, was one of this season's many interesting failures.

"The Corn Is Green" has reversed the schedule of its first two days on its post-Chicago tour. It will visit Madison, Wis., on Monday, March 16, and Rockford, Ill., on Tuesday, the 17th, instead of vice versa as originally announced. Milwaukee will see it from March 18 thru 21.

"Angel Street," due at the Harris on March 15, is as good an example as any of a "sleeper." This theatrical term refers to an unheralded and unpromising production that turns out to be a hit. The New York company opened quietly after the producer and director, Shepard Traube, had paid out some $12,500, considered the season's smallest production budget. Critical and public approval have brought sold-out houses to the melodrama, which means a gross of $14,000 weekly. The running expenses amount to less than $6,000 a week. After the initial costs were paid off, the weekly profit amounted to a tidy sum—a state of affairs which still holds good. No one of the backers, according to Mr. Traube, will get particularly rich from his or her investment, because there are so many who own small shares in the production.

◆

There is talk of keeping "Spring Again," starring Grace George and C. Aubrey Smith, in New York longer than planned, which would prevent the comedy from reaching our territory this season. But if this drops out of the spring's theatrical calendar, a musical called "High Kickers" may take its place. Sophie Tucker and George Jessel are the leading entertainers in this one.

Tributary theater notes:

The Canterbury Players offer "Kind Lady" tonight in Curtiss hall under the direction of Anna Helen Reuter.

James Hargis Connelly's "Drama Cavalcade" continues to pack his playshop in the Kimball building each Saturday and Sunday night. The latest addition to the program is "Curse You, Jack Dalton," described as "the show that broke your grandpa's heart."

Play Parade will give the world première of "Sing Another Song" next Sunday evening in Curtiss hall. The play is the work of a Chicago interior decorator, Harold S. Darling, whose "The Sympathetic Touch" was one of two prize winning scripts in the Drama League-Little Theater federation contest.

The Goodman theater gives another performance of its popular revival of Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" tonight. On Saturday morning and afternoon Charlotte B. Chorpenning's dramatization and staging of "Huckleberry Finn" will be given for children. The theater's March production will be G. Martinez Sierra's "The Romantic Young Lady," opening on March 19.

Jack and Jill Players Move to New Quarters

The Jack and Jill Players have moved to larger quarters at 180 East Delaware, which they will formally open on Friday evening with a series of one-act plays, including "Box and Cox," "Keeping Kitty's Dates," and a radio play. On Saturday afternoon "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be given for the group's audiences of children. Marie Agnes Foley continues as director of the organization.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

It is now possible to have a small record library in which almost every type of music is represented and neatly classified. In an attractive album you can obtain a compendium of the symphony, the piano concerto, the waltz, or of music that fits into any of dozens of other categories.

Victor has lately released a six part album of coloratura arias—brilliant music which displays the agility and range of a singer's voice. The sterling Polish soprano, Miliza Korjus, records the arias and reveals a flexible, well focused voice that can climb to an F sharp without any apparent strain. The new album consists of "The Shadow Song" from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah," "Una voce poco fa" from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," the Mad Scene from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," and two less familiar songs by Sir Julius Benedict and Wilhelm Taubert.

Operatic arias for the male voice, tho not bound in a special album, are also featured among new Victor releases. Tenors James Melton and Jan Peerce, and Baritones Igor Gorin, Leonard Warren, and Donald Dickson have recorded excerpts from "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "La Juive," "Attila," "The Queen of Sheba," "The Tales of Hoffmann," "Faust," and "Don Carlos." Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, has recorded a nonoperatic song, Beethoven's "Adelaide."

The Boston "Pops" orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting, is heard in the waltz from Tschaikowsky's "Eugene Onegin" and in clever arrangements of "Sally in Our Alley," and "Oh, Susannah!" Other recent individual pressings are Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" waltzes played by the Philadelphia orchestra under Eugene Ormandy's direction, and Saint-Saëns' "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale" played by the National Symphony orchestra under Hans Kindler's direction.

POPULAR RECORDINGS

If you've been clapping hands to "Deep in the Heart of Texas" [and if not, why haven't you?] you'll want Horace Heidt's Columbia waxing of this new habit forming tune. It's infectious. On the other hand, if you want to forget "Texas" get Kay Kyser's "A Zoot Suit." It is wacky, it's hep, and it's hot. And Okeh.

Benny Goodman has two for Columbia that are all-time greats—"Jersey Bounce" and "A String of Pearls." Benny cuts loose for sure in these.

Columbia calls for the asbestos gloves in handing out the newest Metronome all-star band duo, "Royal Flush"—"I Got Rhythm." You'll hear Goodman, James, Eldridge, Williams, Basie, and others demonstrate how jive can be music instead of noise.

The album of almost any year is Columbia's "Boswell Sisters." No need to describe these reprints other than to mention some, such as "Everybody Loves My Baby," and "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

Composers Urged to Send Works to Music Festival

The 19th festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music will be held at the University of California in Berkeley, Cal., during the latter part of May. Composers who have written works suitable for these programs during the last five years are urged to send their scores [not parts] to the society's secretary, Henry S. Gerstle, 654 Madison avenue, New York City, before March 31. They also are urged to retain one copy of their music to safeguard against loss. The compositions must fall in one of these classifications: For symphony orchestra, small orchestra, chamber orchestra, small chamber music combinations, small a cappella chorus, small chorus with piano accompaniment, solo voice with instrumental accompaniment, and piano solo. The distinguished set of judges for the festival includes Béla Bartók, Carlos Chavez, Aaron Copland, Albert Elkus, and Darius Milhaud. At the festival the works will be performed by the Werner Janssen orchestra of Los Angeles, the San Francisco string quartet, the San Francisco trio, the Woodwind ensemble of San Francisco, the Municipal chorus of San Francisco, the Music Lovers' society of San Francisco, and sundry individuals.

Writer Tells Plans for May Music Festival

By Cousin Eve.

Time gallops on—and behold us again in windy, wayward March!

Crocuses bloom in florists' windows, crocuses purple, yellow, and white, but little heart have we to buy them. For the crocus harks us back to better days and memory of one now for 18 months a prisoner of war in Germany. He had a poet's fancy for spring flowers and sent them anonymously among his friends—like aimless little vagrants from the greenhouse. Many have tried to ship food and comforts to this war prisoner, but if they reach him safely nobody knows.

On Tuesday afternoon at three Max Vivier will address the Cercle Français in the Fine Arts building. The topic of the noted French conferencier and wit is intriguing, "Five Women I Have Known," and one can imagine the crowd of members who will rush to hear the brilliant Frenchman weaving spells in his native tongue. M. Vivier is not only a great student and historian, but terribly amusing, and one can hardly wait for Tuesday to roll around to be amused. Mrs. Francis Gunn is president of the Cercle, which is a flourishing, nonpolitical society that will hold an election March 17.

The best of good news came by mail yesterday when Giovanni Cardelli at long last gave forth the facts for the May Music festival to be held at the Auditorium for art's sake and also for the benefit of the Auditorium Foundation fund. The dates are from May 4 to May 16, with a series of 10 performances. The artists already engaged include the Chicago Symphony and Dr. Paul Breisach, Dr. Fritz Busch, Sir Thomas Beecham, and Albert Spalding. There will be in all four gala symphonic evenings.

But the event that toppled musical New York out of its seats and flat upon the floor, according to the picturesque narrative of Count Cardelli, was "Macbeth" as conducted by Dr. Fritz Busch, second only to Toscanini in his brilliant leadership.

Other operatic performances planned as given at the Manhattan theater with the backing of Mrs. Lytle Hull [formerly Mrs. Vincent Astor] are an up to the minute "Barber of Seville" and Mozart's "An Abduction from the Seraglio" in English. When we have heard these musical treats as given in England at the Nunburnholme outdoor theater, we will indeed have heard "something."

May was chosen for the music fête rather than February, as it is easier to heat the Auditorium at that season, Mayor Kelly is giving his support to this artistic venture, which is due to pass over a part of its profits to Chicago's war charities. It is wonderful to have our town making a stride comparable to prewar Salzburg, and the May Music festival should attract vast numbers of patrons.

Lovely archaic Salzburg! How far we once journeyed to hear those great artists and that glorious music now being brought to the door and laid in our lap.

The two Horowitz concerts with the Chicago Symphony orchestra must be included in the high spots of last week, when Orchestra hall was seething with enthusiastic ticket holders. Patrons rushed madly for their seats and boxes as if they might somehow lose them, at the Friday concert. The great Russian pianist, looking sleek and up-to-date as any young millionaire, put his artistic all into Tschaikowsky's B-flat minor concerto, and swept his hearers off their feet. There were shouts, bravos, the wonderful tusch when the orchestra gives its own personal salvo of applause, prized above rubies by the artists. In short, there was an exciting time, when girls with bright new floral hats seemed minded to hurl them at the hero's feet. Vladimir Horowitz announced he was giving his fee for the two Chicago concerts to Russian war relief.

Apropos of that, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies left their golden Palm Beach villa on the ocean last week for Chicago, to meet up with Mme. Maxim Litvinov, wife of the soviet ambassador. Mr. Davies in the not far past was American ambassador to Russia, but after a few months in Moscow arranged to be transferred to Brussels. In Belgium there was a royal court with the pomp and circumstance pleasing to his handsome wife, who has magnificent jewels and the gorgeous costumes and trappings suitable to diplomatic life that could not be used in soviet Russia.

Mme. Ivy Litvinov was in Chicago to raise funds for soviet war relief and was the guest of honor at a Sunday luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Davies in a private dining room at the Drake. Mrs. Davies acted as toastmistress, speaking clearly and well, and Mme. Litvinov, who was British born Ivy Low, made an impassioned plea to the score of guests.

When Dr. Duncan Browne, dean of St. James' cathedral, heard the Davieses were coming, he engaged Mr. Davies to speak from the pulpit of St. James on Washington's birthday. Dr. Browne, it seems, was best man at Mrs. Davies' first wedding, and was spurred on to honor the diplomatic couple with a special military Sunday service with the music, flags, and representatives of 28 nations. Dr. Browne has a genius for organizing, for in two shakes of a lamb's tail our local diplomats, the army and navy, church members, and society at large were all set to come. The old cathedral church fairly bubbled with men at arms. The transept was solid with the blue of navy cadets and Capt. Edward Wygant, their leader, read the day's lesson from the lectern. On duty were St. James' famous vestrymen, ushers headed by Col. Robert Peck, smart and valiant were they in gray morning dress, a red carnation in the lapel, Joseph Ryerson, Alan Dixon, William K. Otis, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Chester Brundage, Dr. Fremont Chandler, Blake Blair, Lewis Bernays, all, in short, but Orville Taylor, caged in a hospital with a broken ankle.

The pews overflowed with dignitaries: Commander and Mrs. Wolleson for the navy, and Gen. Joseph Cummings, deputy for the army. On the right, Denmark and Britain sat in the persons of Reimund Baumann and Lewis Bernays with his three fine stalwart sons, Robert, Richard, and Peter. Outstanding among the consuls were Holland's Dr. Jan and Mrs. de Noest, Pero and Mrs. Cabic of Jugo-Slavia, and the Greeks with Mr. and Mrs. Benetatos.

The sky blue flag of Greece was one of the loveliest in the long procession, where 22 national emblems were staffed before the altar. There were China, Norway, Denmark, Jugo-Slavia, Cuba, etc. Never have we heard Leo Sowerby make such a smashing to-do at the organ, or the great co-choir shout so effectively, indeed triumphantly. One could almost have imagined it was a peace Te Deum instead of a wartime ceremony.

As gray frocked Joseph Davies climbed into the pulpit Dr. Browne presented him to his flock in a gracious review, his public career, his new book in the book stores. Unluckily, no one anywhere in the church could hear Mr. Davies' address. He spoke in a low voice, a bit haltingly, and none of it came over. Maybe it was about Gen. Washington, or perhaps it had to do with the world economic upheaval.

After the service a long queue of church members wended its way to the parish house for a closeup of the Davieses. They received alone in Dr. Browne's study, and a few old friends were greeting them. Mrs. Davies is a tall, slim woman with an elaborate do to her prematurely white hair. She wore dark gray tailleur with a small leaf green sailor tilted over jade eyes, wide awake and far seeing.

I have been at times a guest in her mosquelike house at Palm Beach, oriental in its magnificence. Carpeted in ancient Persian rugs, hung with splendid tapestries and adorned with old Russian art objects in silver, gold, and enamel, it shows a love of splendor quite beyond the ordinary purse.

Apropos of the Litvinovs and their parties at the Russian embassy, an entertaining letter comes from Washington written after one of these luxurious Russian routs. Mr. Litvinov, it seems, is the great organizer of the soviet state and my correspondent had known them both in other days in Moscow, where Mme. Litvinov, being British, was delegated to receive foreigners, who found her not only very agreeable but intelligent.

For tea at the Russian embassy they have huge steaming brass samovars full of boiling water, for this last item is the basis of a good cup of tea. Also there are pyramids of black bread, large babas au rhum, caviar, and pyramids of ices and little cakes. All sounds most delectable.

Coming here from Washington last week on a surprise visit was that extra large Pole, "Zazu," known in diplomatic circles as Thaddeus Zazulinski, husband of Catherine Lytton, granddaughter of Henry Lytton. Zazu is now Polish councillor at Cairo and flew to the United States apparently in the train of Gen. Wladislav Sikorski.

Mme. Zazulinski is living with her mother, Mrs. George Lytton, in Boston, but the most upsetting news concerns another member of the family, the younger daughter of Rosemary, wife of H. Sutton Sheppard, a young British naval officer stationed at Tientsin. Rosemary is a beautiful girl, tall, slim, dashing, courageous. I met her late in the autumn when she was about to leave for California to take the China Clipper. She was flying without companionship, and when last heard from had landed safely in Manila at the very moment of the Japanese outbreak. Since then not an iota of news has reached the family.

War work in Chicago is going along at a spanking pace and the newest unit of the nation-wide Bundles for America movement is a branch for the army and air corps. An organizing meeting for this Bundles for Doughboys will be held next Sunday afternoon in Evanston at the residence of its chairman, Mrs. Millard Kennedy. Guests will include both women and men interested in keeping contacts with the fighting men in our war services, and committees will be formed at that time. Mrs. Kennedy has selected for her headquarters rooms on the street level at 424 South Michigan avenue which are being rapidly scrubbed, painted and furnished into shape.

Bundles for Bluejackets at 333 North Michigan avenue was nicely outfitted by friends of the United States navy, even to carpets and typewriters, rugs and easy chairs. So friends of the army will have a chance to show what they can do for our doughboys. Contributions of this and that will set the new unit in motion.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick flew unexpectedly to Miami on Tuesday to see her mother, Mrs. Charles Deering, who is ill. Two sons of this branch of the McCormick family are already in the country's service. Roger, the youngest, who would have been graduated from Yale in June, rushed away some weeks ago and enlisted in the army. And now Brooks, the married son of the three, is in uniform. Other men who have just gone or who are expecting an early call are Arthur Cummings, Brayton Slade, Michael Cudahy, Howard Gillette Jr., and Gerald Hollins, Betty Armour's husband.

Another Chicago man already six months at sea is Harold Bodman Jr. And Gar King, who lost Kay Goodman King, his lovely young wife, last month in Sun Valley, has broken up his Scott street home and has his uniforms and kit ready for the country's call. Sheila, the baby daughter of Garfield King, has gone to the New Jersey home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., who has a little girl of the same age.

The Junior league seems to be very sure that spring is here. Its green and yellow invitation to tea Tuesday afternoon at Field's affirms that spring not only has come, but that visibility is good for spring bonnets. You also may bring a book for the Victory Book campaign, and perhaps win a hat.

The ingenuity of the Junior league at raising money is wonderful. Not long since it invented the "bridge flights" that have wafted over our town and suburbs in interweaving series of tournaments. The same partners play together thruout, and in the finals all the winners compete. Each player gives a nominal sum, and the grand total is divided among war charities, at least the Illinois Opera Guild is "bridge flighting" with that end in view. Hitherto the proceeds have been large.

The American Friends of China celebrated its coming of age last Thursday with a tea at the Arts club. Twenty-one years ago the Chicago branch came to life and 15 of the charter members still belong. Mrs. A. H. Patterson was hostess. Seated at the tea table were Mrs. George Langhorne and Mrs. Quincy Wright and the vista over the river to the granite mountains of our city was charming in the late afternoon.

Miss Frances Whedon took the chair, having been appointed in the continued absence of the beloved Mrs. McNair. She is a good presiding officer and at once presented young Dr. George Taylor of Chunking to a small but interested audience. Dr. Taylor belongs to the Institute of Pacific Relations and spoke on "China as an Ally." There isn't very much news coming from China now that the storm center has moved down over India.

The Institute of Pacific Relations has political backing and supports a magazine or two and many field secretaries.

BRIDE OF MAYOR'S NEPHEW

Mrs. William Austin Kelly Jr. was Miss Loretta Rita Delaney before her marriage on Feb. 7 to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly of South Damen avenue. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry William Delaney of Oak Park, formerly of Detroit, Mich. Following the ceremony in St. Giles' church, Mr. and Mrs. Delaney gave a wedding breakfast and reception in the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mr. Kelly, a nephew of Mayor Edward J. Kelly, met his bride while attending an aeronautical school in Detroit.

Volunteers for Victory Active in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Life in Palm Beach isn't all beer and skittles nor yet champagne and caviar, as the driftwood of war washes up on these golden shores.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The Volunteers for Victory office teems with activity which reaches in every possible direction. The huge trailer wagon is ready for any emergency. Members of V. for V. who made possible the purchase of this completely equipped trailer are: Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, Mrs. J. Dennison Lyon, Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Mrs. Hope E. G. Slater, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, and Henry Oliver Rea. On the day of the disastrous railroad wreck, the trailer was not yet ready, but Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Gunster hastily mobilized a corps of young women and motored down as near to the scene as it was possible to get. Here under an improvised tent, they served coffee and sandwiches in a drizzling rain to the men who were working to remove wreckage.

If all the rumors now in Palm Beach were stacked on top of each other, they would form a totem pole that would frighten the most stouthearted. Many prominent Palm Beach leaders go about loudly and publicly denying rumors still in the whispering campaign stage. In the meantime, this resort continues to eat, drink and be merry, and, so far, shows few signs of toil and tears and sweat.

Artists and writers are swarming all over the Biltmore, the Sun and Surf, and the Palm Beach Country club. An overflow even penetrates into the marble vastness of the nearby Whitehall. These merry men are especially evident at the cocktail hour when the Whitehall blooms out with music and dancing and laughter.

John Golden is crusading to have the treasury department waive the tax on theater tickets for army and navy officers. Mr. Golden is an excellent crusader and he is said also to be planning a new play during his stay in Palm Beach. This resort is to be the inspiration for a satirical musical comedy by Vernon Duke if present plans materialize.

Garden Tours, sponsored by the Garden club of Palm Beach, are devoting proceeds to the recreational department of army camps in this area and to home defense canning. Among the Palm Beach gardens visited this week was that of Mrs. Charles Strout Davis of Chicago. This year Mrs. Davis is featuring amaryllis lilies in a galaxy of bright hue, with red and white lilies predominating. These are used on the loggia. Mrs. Davis has had fine success with roses, the blooms being absolutely perfect. These roses are from Texas. The Davis gardens dramatize a giant ceiba tree now in full bloom. These blossoms are about the size and color of a pink carnation and when seen against a background of blue satin sky and fleecy white clouds, the effect is one of consummate artistry. Visitors to the gardens are not only thrilled by the flowers but by the tropical fruit. These include oranges, grape fruit, tangerines, kumquats, and calemondings. The last named are a small golden fruit, smaller than a golf ball, and the tree is extremely decorative.

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Davis entertained at luncheon at the Bath and Tennis club for Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hall of Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Hall is national president of the Boys' club.

Betty Jean Chandler has been granted a divorce from Byron Chandler. Mr. Chandler was the Tommy Manville of his day, and his heyday was in the 1900s. As a college boy he was known to perform such mischievous stunts as riding a horse into the lobby of a conservative Boston hotel and swinging merrily à la Tarzan from the chandelier of another hotel. He was the joy of the Sunday supplement writers, who dubbed him the Million Dollar Kid. Other pranks written up by the journalists of the day included a duel with ripe peaches in a New York café with Harry K. Thaw, and throwing strawberries at the broad shirt fronts of dignified men from a balcony at Maxim's in Paris, just because he liked to see the splash. He had paid a dollar each for the strawberries. It was Byron Chandler who mourned not so long ago that Broadway "is only a hick street now." He has been married four or five times. This marriage lasted 13 years.

As spring advances, the importance of lace or lace combined with satin for evening frocks is noted. At a recent Whitehall dinner-dance, Mrs. Cornelius Dresselhuys of New York was in all white. The lace skirt featured draping reminiscent of the '80s, while the bodice of white satin had modified leg o' mutton sleeves. Her pretty young daughter, Miss Lorraine Manville Gould, wore an exquisite model of lace.

Mrs. Stanley Charles Nott's filmy black gown glittered with black sequins. Mrs. Ralph Hubbard Norton chose black lace. Miss Ann Mitchell wore a breath-taking combination of satin and lace in a rich rose color. The satin bodice featured an elongated torso. The lace sleeves were long and the lace skirt swirled delightfully as she danced. Miss Mitchell wore a pink flower pin in each side of her dark hair. Miss Dolly Corbin of Washington, D. C., wore a bright tropical print combined with a darker shade.

Mrs. Eugene Howard of Chicago wore a dance frock in bright floral print on a white background. She draped a white fur jacket on the back of her chair.

The hatless vogue continues popular at the cocktail hour. The custom of wearing fresh flowers in the hair gains in popularity, but some girls seem to forget that a hibiscus, exotic when open, looks like Kipling's "tube that is twisted and dried" when closed.

Auxiliary of Railway Mail Group to Meet

There will be a meeting of the Chicago Woman's auxiliary of the Railway Mail association at noon Wednesday in Garrick hall, 64 West Randolph street, Mrs. Clive Pettis presiding. In the order of business candidates will be nominated for the annual election, and for entertainment there will be motion pictures of the south.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 4, 1894.

Dear Julia: This has been a sad week for us. Out in Evanston two of our friends have died, two men who had a wide influence on the life and culture of Chicago.

Dr. R. W. Patterson.

Dear old Dr. Patterson, often called "the untitled bishop of the northwest," was one of these. He had been here since 1842; indeed, a little earlier than that, for he had supplied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church while its minister, Dr. Flavel Bascom, was absent. When the Second Presbyterian church was formed in 1842 he became its first pastor and was one of the best known religious leaders in the country. Will says no other person did so much for his church, and he thinks no auditorium would have held the crowd if only one representative from each church he has helped establish had attended his funeral.

Dr. Patterson's orthodoxy was never questioned, but he kept abreast of modern thought and had been active in the revision of our creed. In the famous heresy trial of Prof. David Swing, Dr. Patterson championed the cause of the great liberal, his opponent being Dr. Patton, who had brought the charges against Dr. Swing. The funeral service for this man of God was held at the old Second church, at 20th street and Michigan avenue, of which he had been minister for 35 years.

The Patterson family has been active in Chicago always, Robert W. Patterson Jr. being editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, our influential morning paper, while another son, Raymond, is a newspaper man also, writing articles from Washington for that paper. As I attended the funeral, and heard the eulogies on the life and work of the old pastor, the past rose vividly before me and I saw, as in a dream, a group of people gathered in the beautiful home of William H. Brown at a reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln in November, 1860. Mr. Lincoln had just been elected President and we all stood much in awe of him, but he was most affable and friendly and insisted on Dr. Patterson's standing back to back with him, to see which was taller. It turned out that Mr. Lincoln had a little the advantage of the minister in height. How far away those days are now!

The second friend to go was Dr. William F. Poole, long connected with our libraries, first with the Chicago Public library and then with the Newberry. These will be his monuments. Dr. Poole was a born librarian. At the time he was graduated from Yale it was taken as a matter of course that any young man of liberal education would choose one of three professions, the law, medicine, or theology. Even teaching hardly ranked as a profession. Young Mr. Poole rejected all these and instead chose to work with books, developing his occupation into a distinctly recognized profession, and standing in its front rank. He began his labors in Boston and after a few years in other cities, mainly Cincinnati, came to Chicago. His career here began in 1874, when he was called to organize a library whose nucleus was a collection sent us by foreign countries under the leadership of Thomas Hughes.

Dr. Poole was widely known for his "Index to Periodical Literature," an invaluable work to writers. He began this compilation in early life and during his term of service at the Chicago Public library, issued a new edition. From the public library he went to the Newberry library, merely an endowment at that time. I'm glad he lived to see the new building erected, and the library in working order.

May heaven send us other men to take the places of these two who have left us this week! Much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Annuals.

Mary B. Day, 8319 South St. Lawrence avenue, lists for us the annuals she owns: "Christmas Blossoms and New Year's Wreaths" [1852]; "Good Company for Every Day in the Year" [1866]; "Odd Fellows' Offering for 1859." . . . From Louise S. Do[illegible], Chandlerville, Ill., comes an account of a juvenile annual, "Child's Bijou" [1861]. Why doesn't some publisher revive the children's Christmas gift books so popular 60 years ago?

Victorian Keepsake.

If you didn't receive this for a valentine you'll want to get one of the little books for yourself. You really must have it if only for the gay and highly moral verse, "The Cow and the Ass," by Jane Taylor. Price 50 cents, at The Tribune Public Service office. Add 5 cents for handling charges if ordered by mail. In quantities of 10 or more, the price is only 40 cents, plus handling charges of 3 cents per copy.

Eat, Drink, Be Merry Is Motto in Miami Beach

By India Moffet.

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

Eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow—may bring almost anything is the way Miami Beach is paraphrasing Whyte-Melville's well known quotation from "The Object of a Life."

One tomorrow recently brought 500 soldier students to the resort, the vanguard of four or five thousand who will receive training as ground officers of the air force in this super-duper resort. Some thought this was good, others thought it was bad, depending upon whether they are in business in Miami or the Beach, or whether they're just on pleasure bent. If you're a business man, you are glad Miami Beach has enlisted in the war, but if you're down here for sun and gayety and that general feeling of "getting away from it all," you're not too pleased to have the municipal golf course and several big hotels surrounding it taken over by the boys in khaki, for it makes you realize that there IS a war going on, and that bombs might drop anywhere on the coast.

There were no complaints, however, from the lads who moved into the luxurious quarters provided for them two days before Washington's birthday. The privates, who are to be trained as officers, found these "barracks" decorated in ivory and pink, definitely to their liking, and, as for the outdoor surroundings, well, the lads kept rubbing their eyes as if they expected the palm trees and the glistening buildings, all looking as if they had been covered with cake frosting in various colors, to vanish or to be mere camouflage. Ssh, there was no sun that day, for southern Florida had two days of steady rain at that time, but the sun came out gloriously the next morning, altho the temperature was not conducive to taking a dip in the water. The first hotel that was taken over by the army is one of four owned by the same company, so the guests who were enjoying vacations in the Boulevard were moved to the Flamingo, King Cole, or Nautilus.

It's a terrible season, those who depend upon the tourist trade for their livings tell one here, but there is not much evidence of this fact in the best hotels on Collins avenue. The Versailles, the Pancoast, the Tower, the Whitman, and several others are filled almost or completely to capacity, and the cocktail bars at the Beach are doing a rushing business. Hialeah Park is having the biggest year in its history, both in attendance and at the mutuels.

There is as much of a traffic jam at busy intersections, and there are as many parking problems as ever before, it seems to us. The night clubs, tho, are suffering sadly, but we wonder if the ban on gambling, rather than the war, is responsible for this. There is no gambling of any sort in Miami or Miami Beach we have been told by every one, and we have been unable to find any evidence to the contrary. One must go to Hialeah to place a bet.

Gov. Spessard Holland is proving that he meant what he said when he promised opponents to gambling that there would be none of that vice here this winter. He must have meant the Miamis, not the whole state, tho, for a Miamian who has the entrée can go 72 miles north to Palm Beach and play to his heart's content or to his wallet's bottom.

The large beach clubs are showing signs of the season being a flop, too, for their parties are small, there are few persons on the beaches, and there is a general air of gloom and depression around the clubs. Red Cross work is being done at both the Surf and the Bath under the most delightful of conditions, for the Surf has set aside several rooms in the tower for this work, and the Bath has turned over the Seaside café to the war workers.

The Indian Creek Golf club had first aid classes earlier in the season, but they have been transferred to the Surf now.

A Chicagoan, David J. Molloy, is president of the Indian Creek, and another Chicagoan, Frederick A. Poor, is the former president of the Bath. Eugene B. Clark of Chicago is a governor of the Surf, where he and Mrs. Clark are spending the winter. The Molloys have a home in Pine Tree drive, and Mr. Poor's Miami Beach house is located in North Bay road. Mr. and Mrs. Molloy have been south since early in the season and will stay here until late, as will Mr. Poor, who now is in Chicago but returns to the Beach today.

We have heard so much conversation, most of it jocose, to be sure, about the possibility of this section being bombed that we began to investigate whether any one had taken the subject seriously enough to take precautions against such a contingency. We found two air raid shelters, one built by an attorney in Miami, and the other by an ex-Chicago newspaper man, Spearman Lewis, in Surfside, north of Miami Beach. Both are above ground, of course, for basements are practically unknown down here. We did not see the one in Miami, but after a visit to Mr. Lewis' we decided we'd take a chance in the open if an enemy bomber flew over while we were here. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis live at Treasure Trove, a little community in the southern part of fashionable Surfside, which Mr. Lewis started a dozen or more years ago.

Business may not be so good here, but several of the most expensive hotels still are supplying their guests with stationery engraved with the guests' names, and rates in hotels and prices in shops and restaurants have not been cut. The manager of one of the best hotels here predicts, however, that his top rate next season will be $10 for a room; that is about the low on Collins avenue this year, and some three room suites in the highest priced hotels on the Beach run as high as $110. This is on the European plan. Drinks are 65 cents and 75 cents apiece, and except in a few places they're so weak that one is sure there'd be a profit if the drink were 15 cents.

We do think Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey should investigate the draft situation here, for the army seems to have passed up a lot of young men who might better be learning to tote rifles or man anti-aircraft guns than what they're doing. We've never seen so many gigolos here as there are this winter. Tall ones, short ones, thin ones, fat ones, young ones, not-so young ones, well dressed ones, flashily dressed ones, but all alike in at least one particular—they can dance.

In a cheap—not the drinks, only the patrons—dump that is packed to the doors each afternoon by 5, we saw a dozen or more gigolos making the rounds of the tables, dancing with the fat mammas, most of them in slacks. In the swankiest night place—and it really has an air of elegance and respectability—we saw one old, old woman who had two gigolos with her, and she wore them both out before she called it a night and left for home. She reminded us of a turkey gobbler for her chins hung down so flabbily. She was not very tall and not very fat, but her shoulders were humped, her legs were knotty, and her poor old feet that moved correctly but with no grace or rhythm were encased in black suede sandals with thick platform soles and four inch heels. They fastened high around her ankles, in much the same way in which little girls' patent leather Mary Janes are fastened. She must have been 70, but for four or five hours she danced every time the excellent orchestra made a sound, first with one gigolo and then with the other.

The gigolos were in their early twenties, we judged, and they danced like dreams, but we couldn't help but think that if we were their mother we'd much rather have them soldiering, even until death, than dancing with an old woman for pay. No, she wasn't their grandmother, out for a lark with her grandsons, for the beautiful young girl who danced in the floor show and is the wife of the orchestra leader told us the trio had been there almost every night so far this, and all of last winter.

Miami Beach expects to have a summer season this year, for the resort's officials, publicists, apartment, hotel, and home owners have started a campaign to get persons who reside in crowded defense areas to come here for the duration. Rents will be reasonable, fixed, and guaranteed, the Miamians promise.

ENGAGED TO BE MARRIED

Miss Frances Farwell and Frank Alan Reker Jr., whose engagement to be married is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frederick Farwell of South Shore drive. Mr. Reker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reker of Vernon avenue. Miss Farwell attended Ward-Belmont school and the University of Chicago and with her mother and her fiance spent last summer visiting Lieut. Arthur Farwell Jr. in Hawaii. Mr. Reker is a graduate of the University of Chicago. Lieut. and Mrs. Farwell now are in California.

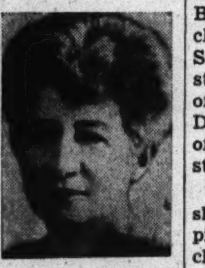
Miss Bernice Guttenberg and J. B. Tauber Wed

Mr. and Mrs. William Lederer of Winnetka announce the marriage of their daughter, Bernice Guttenberg, to Sergt. Joseph B. Tauber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Tauber of Chicago. The ceremony took place in San Bernardino, Cal. The former Miss Guttenberg attended Northwestern university, where Mr. Tauber received his degree.

Radio to Span the Feminine World Today

By Irene Steyskal.

This is a day of hands across continents and seas for business and professional women. In a warring world a great confraternity of friendliness unites, by means of radio, to pledge sympathy, encouragement and understanding on another International day.



Dr. Lena Madesin Phillips.

International day, an annual observance sponsored by the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, dates from 1935, five years after the founding of the federation by Dr. Lena Madesin Phillips in Geneva, Switzerland. Dr. Phillips' will be one of the voices heard on programs broadcast by three major national networks on this continent and sent to Europe and the far east by two short wave stations. Nine other nationally and internationally known women, representing five different nations, will speak.

Local stations will carry two of the broadcasts. The first of these, a morale program, will be heard at 9:15 o'clock this morning on WCFL, when instances of high courage exhibited by their countrywomen will be recounted by Sonia Tomara, New York newspaper woman of French citizenship and Russian birth; Jan Struther, British born novelist, and Mrs. C. L. Hsia, formerly professor of English at two universities in Shanghai. Mrs. Hsia is the wife of the president and director of the Chinese News service in this country.

At 6:15 o'clock WBBM will offer an overseas broadcast. This program will bring from England the voice of Miss Irene Ward, member of the British parliament and chairman of the famous woman power committee, which has been effective in maintaining the industrial and professional status of British women during the war.

Miss Ward is to tell how the women of England are facing war problems and conditions. To many in America hers is a familiar voice, for Miss Ward was one of the principal speakers at the international congress held by the federation in Paris in 1936, a meeting that drew a large representation from this country.

Dr. Phillips, Dr. Minnie L. Maffett of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Alva Myrdal, noted Swedish educator, and Dr. Winifred Cullis of the British Information service in the United States will speak to Britain and Europe on a 15-minute broadcast over station WRCA in New York at 1:30 o'clock, eastern war time, and at 11:15 o'clock tonight, eastern war time, Dr. Phillips, Dr. Maffett, Dr. Cullis and Pearl Buck, the novelist, will speak over the same station and WBOS in Boston to Australasia.

The Mutual Broadcasting system will broadcast at 4 o'clock, eastern war time, when Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former United States minister to Norway, Mr. Myrdal, and Mrs. Lin Yutang, wife of the Chinese author, will speak. No local outlet has scheduled this program.

In New York, where the federation has its headquarters, there is to be an International tea at the Biltmore hotel, which will be attended by members from all the neighboring states and scores of guests from countries where the federation has branches.

Grapefruit in Slaw.

You can put extra vitamins and minerals into cabbage slaw with diced grapefruit.

The Weekly Club Calendar

The public health division is presenting two programs this week at the Chicago Woman's club. The first will be a lecture at 4 o'clock Tuesday on "Use of Plasma and Serum in Wartime," by Dr. Carroll L. Birch, and the second a talk at 2 o'clock Friday on "What Happens to the Child in the Underhearing Group in Civilian Defense?" by Dr. Elizabeth B. Ball. Dr. Birch, a member of the club, is an authority on hemology. She has been in Canada recently to study methods there for the handling of blood and plasma for war use. Dr. Ball is acting chief of the division of maternal and child hygiene of the state public health department.

Interest in the influence religion should have on shaping the world picture after peace comes has led the club to arrange a program of religion on the theme, "Unity Under Diversity," for Wednesday afternoon. Four speakers will be heard: Swami Vishwananda, head of the Vedanta Society of Chicago; Sufi M. R. Bengalee, leader in America of the Ahmadiyya Movement in Islam; Leo J. Muir, northern states mission president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints [Mormon], and Horace Holley, national secretary of the Bahai movement. Dr. Charles S. Braden, chairman of the department of religion at Northwestern university, and the author of numerous books on religion, will be the discussion leader.

A series of benefits, sponsored by the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago, to raise funds for the Red Cross will be opened by Mrs. Camille Rathbun with a travel lecture on "Islands of the Pacific" at 8:15 o'clock Friday night in the Arts club. Mrs. Rathbun will show colored pictures taken on recent trips. She is the international relations chairman of the alliance. Reservations should be made with Miss Marguerite Heinrichs, Brookes and Sons company, 801 South Wells street.

Mrs. Camille Rathbun.

Mrs. Rathbun will give a similar travelog for the "I Will" club at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the Ivory room at Mandel Brothers. She will be presented by Mrs. George Burk, the art chairman. Mrs. Luther C. Snyder will conduct a brief business session at 11:30 o'clock.

Teacher training sections of the Central Council of Childhood Education have arranged for a panel discussion of "Adequate Teacher Preparation and Growth in Time of Crisis" at their annual luncheon meeting, to be held Saturday in the Medical and Dental Arts building, 185 North Wabash avenue. The speakers will be Dr. Paul Misner, superintendent of the Glencoe schools; Dr. John DeBoer of the Chicago Teachers college, who will serve as chairman; Louise Meyer, student at the National College of Education in Evanston; Ruth Base, teacher at the Nobel school; Mrs. Frances Horwich, student teacher counselor at the Teachers college; Grace Boyd, supervisor of primary education in Cicero, and Leonard Aries, educational director of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews. Miss Blanche Breed and Miss Elizabeth Engle are co-chairmen on arrangements.

The Women's Bar Association of Illinois will study "Woman's Place in Civilian Defense" at a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock Thursday at the Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street. J. Bryan Allin, chief of research for the Chicago metropolitan area, is to speak, and there will be films made by the British government to show phases of war work done by women in England. The program is under the direction of Miss Irene V. McCormick, defense chairman. Miss B. Fain Tucker will preside.

Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde will address a legislation department conference at the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. S. R. Devin has called the meeting for the discussion of federal legislation in which the General federation is interested, and to lay the foundation for the state federation's legislative work for the year. Mrs. S. F. Mirabella will hold a public welfare meeting at 10 o'clock Tuesday, and at that hour Wednesday Mrs. Charles C. Wells will have program auditions.

Mrs. Laura H. Lunde.

A "men's night" is planned by the Woman's Republican Club of Illinois for Wednesday, when candidates for the primary elections will be introduced at a buffet supper from 6:30 to 8 o'clock in the Grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. Mrs. Luella Canterbury is to give a talk entitled, "Are We Afraid to Face the Future Politically?" With Mrs. Mabel Krutckoff retiring from the presidency of the club, Mrs. Mark A. Miles will preside.

The women of the Democratic party want to know what the wives of candidates for the primaries think of their husbands, so the Federation of Illinois Woman's Democratic Clubs has invited national, state, and county candidates' ladies to attend a 2 o'clock tea Tuesday afternoon in the Palmer House and each give three minute talks about their husbands. In charge of arrangements is Mrs. Lambert K. Hayes, and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey will preside.

At the Woman's City Club of Chicago Friday afternoon, members of the county board and county institutions committee will give their impressions of the public hearing on the Cook county budget and discuss its provisions as approved. The presiding chairman will be Mrs. William H. Welker.

The department of government and foreign policy will convene at 10:30 o'clock Friday at the Cook County League of Women Voters' headquarters, with Mrs. Paul S. Van Auken presiding. Special study classes are scheduled for 1 and 2 o'clock.

Each year the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago presents its Josephine Snapp award to the woman in the United States judged to have made the outstanding contribution to advertising during the preceding year. Established in 1937, the award is a memorial to a former president of the club, who served also as vice president of the Advertising Federation of America. The club has announced that application blanks for entry in the 1942 competition may be procured from Miss Georgia C. Rawson at its headquarters at 307 North Michigan avenue. April 5 is the deadline for entries. The award is to be presented in June at the convention of the federation in New York.

Miss Mabel G. Flanley, vice president of the federation, made known last week the jury of five advertising experts who are to judge this year's contest. They were Elon G. Borton of the La Salle Extension university; Prof. H. H. Maynard, Ohio State university; James Webb Young, and Mrs. Erma Perlham Proetz, executives with leading advertising agencies, and Miss Helen A. Holby, club contact director of the Advertising federation.

Quota club members begin a course in first aid tomorrow, the opening lesson following a 6 o'clock dinner in the Hotel Sherman. Dr. Mattie Jane Bullard, member of the Chicago group and district lieutenant governor of the organization, is to be the instructor. The women also are planning to do canteen work at the Service Men's center. Miss Orpha Han has been elected president of the club. Other newly elected officers are Mrs. Ethel Weymer, vice president; Miss Ethel Hedenberg, recording secretary; Miss Velma McPeek, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edith Engh, treasurer, and Dr. August Webster, Miss Jean Beitz, Miss Caroline Meyer, and Miss Pearl Lewis, directors.

Directed by Robert Muentzer, the Lane Technical High school quartet will give a musical for the Frauenverein of the Altenheim at a luncheon Tuesday in the Belden-Stratford hotel. In the absence of Mrs. Theodore Kuehl, who is in Florida, Dr. Kathryn Swartz will preside.

The Big Sisters' board of directors will meet at 10:30 o'clock Thursday in room 1812 at 203 North Wabash avenue.

Officers' and committee reports and election of delegates to the national council in Washington are on schedule for the annual meeting of the Society of the Daughters of Colonial Wars in Illinois at 2 o'clock Friday. The group will hear a talk by Mrs. B. F. Ramsdell on "Andrew Jackson and His Heritage."

The Woman's Benefit association is making plans for its golden jubilee convention, which is to be held from March 12 to 14 in the Morrison hotel. Designated for special honors at the meeting is Mrs. Bina West Miller, supreme president for 49 years. Miss Dorothea M. Nelson is to direct junior participation, and will have charge of the younger members' banquet on the closing day.

Mrs. Dorothea M. Nelson.

First district members of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs are meeting at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Lyon & Healy concert hall to discuss plans for a benefit concert. The federation is providing phonographs and records for canteens and service centers in army and navy camps, and it is to raise money for this purpose that the concert is to be given. The women will hear the Mozart sonata in D played by Mrs. Roy B. Peck and Miss Mary Louise Corbus, duo pianists. They are visitors from the Amateur Musical club of Ottawa.

The Half Century Civic club will hear a first aid talk by Mrs. Lucille Brizzolara at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Morrison hotel.

In celebration of its 47th anniversary, the Chicago Culture club will give a special program at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Republic building.

300 Million Rubber Trees Along Amazon

[This is the 33d article of a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

ON THE MADEIRA RIVER

When the Victoria got under way at Porto Velho for the long voyage down the river, her lower deck was stacked with about 20 cords of wood. To me it seemed there was sufficient fuel aboard for the entire trip. But it went fast. Stokers were almost continuously throwing the four foot sticks into the fireboxes, and the supply was almost gone when he had been steaming down the river only eight hours and had traveled a distance of 120 miles from Porto Velho. With the aid of the four mile current, the Victoria easily made 15 miles an hour.

Suddenly there was a blast from the boat's whistle. Speed was slowed down while she steered a course like the letter "J" to enable her to moor with her bow headed upstream. In response to the boat's briefly blown blasts of the whistle some 30 Indian men and boys appeared, coming on foot thru the jungle and by canoes.

The stop was only a woodyard on the river bank. The natives started to work immediately, and the long piles of wood corded up along shore were carried on board. They worked at a jog trot for three hours, the men carrying a shoulder load of 10 sticks and the boys five on each trip. In three hours they put on board no less than 20 cords of wood.

At this first stop we learned how fast fuel was consumed, and realized that from four to six hours of every 24 required for our voyage would be devoted to refueling.

We were fortunate in timing our trip. There was a period of high water on the river, but, because of that, we missed the crocodiles and monkeys usually to be seen. The water was so high above normal that all animal life had been driven back into the jungle.

As we sailed mile after mile, hour after hour, we realized how sparse is the population of the upper Amazon region. Thatched huts on the river bank were 5 to 10 miles apart. The huge rubber estates boasted of only two or three huts, tho many of the seringaes were grants or concessions, of more than 40,000 acres each, from the government. The largest hut was the dwelling of the resident overseer, and sometimes was a combined store and residence—where the overseer kept his stock in trade. His merchandise, sold on credit to the rubber gatherers, consisted of axes, hatchets, big knives, pails or buckets, tin cups for attaching to trees to gather the latex or "milk," pitchers for pouring milk during the smoking process, canned foods, salt fish, soap, rice, sugar, quinine, and other simple necessities for their life and work in the jungle.

The Brazilian government estimates that there are 300 million rubber trees in an area of 5 million square miles. There are 300 species of rubber producing plants in Brazil. They include large trees, climbing plants, flexible creepers, and shrubs.

The variety of tree producing the finest raw material is the Hevea brasiliensis, which grows to a height of 60 to 90 feet, with a diameter of 30 to 45 inches. It is truly handsome, with foliage all at the top, for branches do not start until 35 to 45 feet from the ground. The bark resembles that of the northern oak and is ashen gray in color.

These much sought after hevea trees are scattered thru the jungle forests, here, there, and everywhere, but seldom are two or more found close together. One authority says only one tree in every 80 growing in the jungle is a hevea.

The first move in developing a wild rubber estate is to send cruisers into the jungle to locate the trees. These are followed by men with machetes, who cut paths from tree to tree. The paths are called "roads," and each road connects 100 to 120 trees and returns to its starting point.

A seringueiro, or rubber gatherer, will harvest the rubber from two roads, tapping the trees for latex on alternate days. He lives in a hut in the jungle near his roads, and leads a lonely life. His work is simple. For six months of the year he taps his trees, making five or six gashes in each, and attaches the little tin receptacles to catch the latex. The following day he gathers it in a pail, retires to his "smoking hut" to process the liquid for shipment.

Smoking rubber is as simple as gathering the latex. He builds a fire of slow burning jungle wood that produces heavy volumes of smoke, places over the fire, to gather the smoke, a big, inverted funnel made of clay or tin, and is ready to begin.

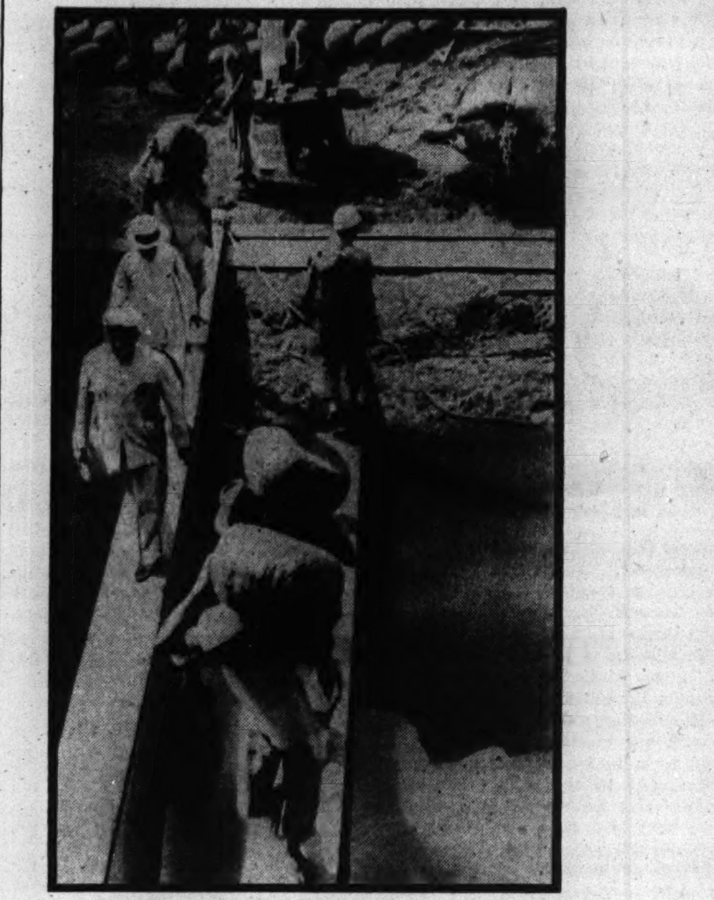
He places across the small top of the funnel a pole resembling a broomstick and with one hand he rotates it slowly, while with the other he takes up a pitcher, dips into the pail of latex, and begins to pour the raw milk in a tiny stream on the revolving pole.

As the pole turns in the smoke the liquid congeals and forms a thin skin on the growing mass which is being made into a "rubber biscuit," resembling a football, 24 to 30 inches long, 15 to 18 inches in diameter, and weighing 80 to 120 pounds. When it is of the right size he removes the oval ball from the pole by just thumping one end on the ground until the rubber ball slides down and off.

An ordinary wild rubber estate employs 25 to 50 men, each working two roads. A tree produces only approximately three ounces of latex daily, and the seringuerio's 20 quart pail easily holds a day's take. Each tree produces 11 to 12 pounds of rubber a year.

• • •

The Victoria stopped at Calama, a group of six huts. On the river shore were 160 rubber biscuits awaiting shipment to Para. This eight tons would have been a fortune in 1910, when rubber was selling for $3.15 a pound. Today, notwithstanding the shortage, it is nominally quoted at 20 cents a pound—not enough to pay for the labor and freight in getting Brazil's scattered wild rubber production to market.



FUTURE TIRES?

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experience are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

MARK TWAIN'S BOYHOOD HOME.

Hannibal, Mo., Feb. 25.—To the Travel Editor: In a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE a reader, C. L. McC., asked what he might expect to see in Hannibal, boyhood home of Mark Twain, and you replied: "Among the attractions are the Tom and Huck statute, the Mark Twain museum, Mark Twain cave, the building in which the author learned the printer's trade, the memorial lighthouse, Riverview park, Jackson Island, and Twain's old home."

C. L. McC. and other readers might be interested in this additional information:

From the top of Memorial Lighthouse hill, referred to here as Cardiff hill, one gets a splendid view of the Mississippi river and the free bridge across it. There is a "new" cave near the old one of Tom Sawyer fame. On the place where "Becky Thatcher" lived, across the street from Tom's house, there is now a good tourist home. At the Mark Twain hotel the food is reasonable and very good.

Many of the Clemens family are buried in the Mount Olivet cemetery. On midsummer days Mark Twain's description of the sleepy river town still holds good. Miles west of here Missouri is creating a state park around Twain's log cabin birthplace. The carved pineapple, low post, maple bed in which he was born is still to be seen in the cabin. The place is Florida, Mo.

Here's hoping C. L. McC. arrives in Hannibal when boats happen to be passing on the river! H. B. THOMPSON.

WE STAND CORRECTED.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—To the Travel Editor: May I correct a statement in a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE?

It set forth that for half a century the ferry across the south arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton, Mich., has had the same skipper.

I was a young teacher in the Ironton public schools in 1891, '92, and '93, and Sam Alexander was a young man of the town then, but was not the skipper.

I had to cross on the ferry very often to go to my home in Boyne City, Mich.

[MRS.] AGNES NUGENT KILBORN.

MAGAZINE FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—To the Travel Editor: Many of your shut-in readers will be interested to learn that for many years a magazine designed for, devoted to, and written and published by shut-ins has been circulated in the United States. It is called, "By the Wayside," and the publication and editorial office is in Charlotte, N. C. FRANK BABRAY.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many kind readers who sent me cards and greetings.

When I was 2 years old I was stricken with infantile paralysis. I have been crippled ever since. Now I am bringing as much happiness as possible to other shut-ins.

May God bless the shut-ins—and the Tribune readers who have taken such a friendly interest in them—thruout the coming year! SYLVIA MAE DRAWNS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—To the Travel Editor: My request was published in your columns several weeks ago. Since then I have received many cards and letters. I want to thank all who responded.

MRS. E. SECOR.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Bob Russell, Oak Forest sanatorium, Onalaska, Wis. [Mr. Russell is 20 years old. He will try to answer all letters received.]

Mrs. John Jacklin, Van Dyke, Mich. [Mrs. Jacklin has been in a wheel chair for the last five years. She is not able to write.]

Mrs. Clarice M. Norgren, 930 Leland avenue, Chicago. [Mrs. Norgren writes: "I have been crippled for more than two years, and am unable to move. I live with my daughter, who has to work to support us. Therefore I am alone all day, and it gets quite lonesome. I cannot do handwork, but will try to answer cards and letters. I would surely appreciate hearing from any one."]

Mrs. Docia Jones, route 1, Sugar Tree, Tenn. [Our correspondent writes: "Mrs. Jones is the young mother of three little boys, 8 years, 7 years, and 18 months old. She has been bedfast for months with a nervous collapse, and it will be a long time before she can be up and around again. She would enjoy cards and letters. She lives on a farm, and gets very lonesome, as her children are with relatives. Her birthday is Jan. 4."]

Martin Greulach, 321½ East Lewis street, Fort Wayne, Ind. [Due to arthritis, Mr. Greulach has been an invalid for 25 years.]

Mrs. Harry Baum, 2708 South Hanna street, Fort Wayne, Ind. [Mrs. Baum has been confined to her bed for 32 years.]

Doris Zimmerman, 932 East Berry street, Fort Wayne, Ind. [Miss Zimmerman has been ill for 15 years.]

Mrs. Michael Blaze, 2434 East Ninety-third street, Chicago. [Mrs. Blaze has heart trouble. She is 50 years old.]

Travel to Smokies Ahead of Last Year

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Travel to the Great Smoky Mountains National park is continuing at a rate far ahead of last year.

In January, 16,471 persons in 6,122 vehicles visited the playground. This was 22 per cent more than for the corresponding month of 1941.

The greatest number of visitors, except those from North Carolina and Tennessee, in which the park is situated, came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Georgia, Indiana, and Kentucky.

For the travel year which began on Oct. 1 the tourist traffic to the park has been 46 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of last year. In 1941 a million and a quarter people visited the Great Smokies.

The park is accessible by all forms of land common carriers and buses. Principal points of interest may be reached by regularly scheduled or chartered buses from Asheville and other gateways.

Spanish Relics.

With one exception, New Mexico's nine state monuments have been set aside to preserve remnants of the Spanish conquest and the work done by Franciscan padres in the seventeenth century.

GRAND TRUNK

Federal Spa Lures Crowds Despite War

By Mildred Peterson.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

Other resort regions may be adversely affected by the war, but this one is having the best year in its history. Hot Springs National park has had more than 300,000 visitors in the last 12 months. At the 200 hotels, apartments, cottages, rooming houses, and tourist courts the percentage of occupancy is much greater this year than last.

The business barometer here is the thermal baths. [The spring waters are owned, controled, and administered by the United States government. They are clear, pure, tasteless, and odorless. There are 47 thermal springs which daily flow 1,000,000 gallons of water at an average temperature of 143 degrees.] Last year 727,360 baths were taken in the 16 pay bathhouses—8 on the "Main Street to Health" or "Bath House Row," and the others in connection with hotels, hospitals, and sanitariums. This was 9,186 more than were given in 1926, the previous record year.

The resort receives its greatest patronage from Illinois and Chicago. But the hotel registers show that patrons come all the way from England, France, Hungary, New Zealand, Central and South America, Mexico, Cuba, and Canada.

New government projects are bringing an increasing number of workers, visitors, and permanent residents.

On Saturday nights, and occasionally on week nights, the visitor sees an old-fashioned square dance given at a tavern or night club. Here congregate the mountaineers and their families, and the old fiddler and caller are important personages.

Sunshine and mild temperatures make winter months the most popular. Peak capacity is reached during the racing season. Since California's tracks are closed because of the war, some unusually fine horses are entered here this season.

• • •

From the east side of Hot Springs mountain come cold springs, while on the west side flow the hot springs.

The 143 degree spring water would not blister the human skin if a person accidentally put his hand into it, and the spray from the boiling water would not kill plants, as ordinary boiling water would.

Many tales are told regarding the bloody battles of the Indians fighting for possession of the "Fountain of Youth," which later became a "Land of Truce."

The Ouachita mountains are among the oldest rock formations in the United States. Here are to be found the only occurrences of real novaculite, which is a massive white, flinty rock found in a bed several hundred feet thick.

A visiting hiker can see more than 60 native species of trees, including white and red oak, sweetgum, blackgum, hickory, locust, basswood, cucumber, dogwood, maple, ash, beech, birch, cherry, walnut, holly, and magnolia. Blossoming dogwood, azalea, service berry, redbud, and wild plum are common in the spring, and the colored leaves in the fall present an oriental carpet.

Camellias Blooming in the Carolinas

CHARLESTON, S. C.—The camellia flowering season is so heavy that the ground beneath the century old allees of Middleton gardens is a solid carpet of "floaters," or fallen flowers. The season continues until about the middle of March.

Cypress gardens, built around a cypress lagoon, also are bedecked. They have special facilities this year for the study of the various species of camellias.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—Retarded by the December freeze, Orton's camellias are now expected to reach their peak about the last of February. Daphne and tea olive precede the camellias, which are followed by azaleas in April.

Orton, the 200 year old estate on the Cape Fear river, is known for its azaleas. It may be reached by a short detour from U. S. 17.

H. Churchill Bragaw, horticulturist, in charge of the garden for several years, has been called for army service and has been succeeded by James Ferger.

Plants Catch Flies.

As many as two hundred flies have been found trapped in one bloom of the Guatemala fly catcher plants in the Jungle Gardens at Vero Beach, Fla. Insects are drawn by the peculiar, fetid odor of the plant into its inner chambers, captured by thousands of tiny hairlike fibers, and held there to die.

Smelt Season Nears Its Peak

BOYNE CITY, Mich.—Smelt fishing is approaching the peak in the Michigan fishing villages.

Smeltania, known as the smelt capital of the world, is reporting unusual catches. One couple from St. Louis caught 600 pounds in one week-end.

Excellent catches are being made at the Smelt Village at Beulah.

Bill Smith, perennial mayor of Smeltania, has issued a bit of advice to anglers making their first try. "All you need is your fishing license," says Mayor Bill.

With the fish shanty that you rent either in Smeltania or the Smelt Village, come fuel for the stove, bait, and fishing tackle. So all that the fishermen have to do is figure out how they are going to carry their catches home.

Tourists Drawn to Indiana Woods

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind.—Interest aroused by a recent magazine story concerning the Cox woods, near Paoli, 10 miles from here, is shown by the stream of tourist traffic.

The tract, the only one of its kind in the country, is soon to be renamed the Indiana Pioneer Mothers' Memorial forest and become a forest museum.

It has been untouched by civilization. No roads pass thru it, and no fires have ever damaged it.

THE IMPERFECT DIPLOMAT

"What's the matter? Am I talking nonsense?"

"Of course it isn't nonsense, Steve. It's what I wanted to hear more than anything in the world. I knew that, last night, when I sat in the cell."

"Forget all that, I tell you, and your worries, too," Steve said firmly. "We'll be married at once. I have diplomatic immunity and I don't think the police will bother my wife very much."

Ellen shook her head. "I was sure you'd come this morning. I knew you'd be sweet. I even hoped you'd forgive me and say the things you've said and mean them."

"Of course I mean them."

"What hurt most last night," Ellen continued, "was knowing that if you did say the things I hoped you'd say, it wouldn't do any good. I can't marry you until this mess is solved."

Steve looked astounded.

"The Brazilian police may consider this a serious case, no matter what I say," Ellen explained, "but they'll be easier on me than Rio gossip. I'm sure the whole American colony knows it now. Who told you I was in jail?"

"One of the men at the embassy," Steve admitted.

"Gossip in diplomatic circles is no pleasant spring shower." Ellen shook her head firmly. "If I married you I know that 20 years from now, whether we were stationed in Auckland or Reyjavik, some one would say, 'O, Mrs. Cunningham! You know, my dear, she was once held in some very mysterious German espionage business in Rio.'"

"That's ridiculous," Steve said. "That's journalistic imagination. If I'm willing to marry you today, tomorrow!"

"You have your career, Steve."

Steve felt his jaw sag. Career? That was ironic! If Brintell made good his threat there would be no career.

"That's what counts," Ellen was saying. "You know how severe they are in Washington in recommending promotion." She looked at him. "Isn't that so?"

He decided not to discuss the Brintell threat now. She had enough worries. He nodded absently. "I guess it's so." Then sharply. "But see here, Ellen——!"

"Don't use that tone, Steve," she said gently. "Let's not quarrel again, ever. I just can't marry you until this spy business is solved."

Steve looked discouraged. "That may be difficult. It lies right at the door of the German embassy."

"Milder mentioned Brintell."

"Yeah." He felt uneasy, lest he give anything away. It seemed ridiculous to suspect Brintell of any German connections. "He's a powerful man, Ellen," Steve said. Then, quickly changing the subject, "We're talking about you. I want you to marry me."

"I won't marry you now," Ellen said firmly.

Almost hopelessly Steve asked. "Do we have to quarrel about that?"

Ellen shook her head. "Promotions and good assignments in the foreign service depend on little things. I wouldn't want you to feel some day that your wife, or something about her, was responsible for any disappointment for you."

"This will blow over in a day," Steve said carelessly.

"The police didn't say that!"

A newsboy went by the café with the latest papers. He was yelling something and Steve understood only part of it. What he understood made his face turn paler. The headlines on the paper said, "Espionage Scandal. Important Arrests."

"That's about me, isn't it?" Ellen swallowed hard. "It will blow over, maybe." Then she forced herself to change the subject. "You should be back at the embassy, hard at work."

Steve agreed unwillingly. "I suppose I should."

"And as my custodian, would you like me to go back to jail, in your absence?"

"Don't joke," Steve said shuddering.

"What do you want me to do, scream?"

"I think you should come with me to the embassy and see Mr. Cord."

"I'm so tired, Steve. I'd like to go to my room."

"Very well." She did look tired. "I'll take you to your hotel. Avoid any reporters and sleep until dinner time. And dream about being the wife of a third secretary."

"If I dream about being the wife of an office boy," Ellen smiled, "I'll be happy, so long as my husband is Steve Cunningham."

When Steve returned to the embassy he was tired. Perhaps Ellen's reaction was right, perhaps wrong. He could not think that out now. He needed all his energy to decide how to get her out of her trouble, how to get himself out of his. Other people's troubles. They had become uniquely his own!

"I merely heard the shadow of a rumor. But I make it my business to listen to legal gossip, and I have come to offer help when it does start."

He went to Cord's office at once, glad that he had a man like that to advise him.

Cord smiled kindly. "Did you get her out, Steve?"

Steve nodded. "It's a bad situation." He told the whole story in detail.

Cord was so interested that he forgot the pipe in his hand. "Most serious," he said, "is the chance that the whole case may become a political football. No one is going to believe Grunow's ridiculous story, of course, but a lot of Nazi interests here may try to use this case to stir up feeling against us." He added decisively, "Arrange for Miss Corning to see lawyers. I'll call the foreign office."

Before Cord could go on, Arnan walked in. Even when casually entering a room he looked as if he were leading an attack. "What's happened?"

"I got the girl out."

"Pretty bad?"

"I don't think Miss Corning's particularly involved."

"Not involved?" Arnan asked suspiciously. "Can she clear herself?"

Steve felt something sink inside himself. This was the attitude that had worried Ellen. It would be difficult to explain her position to a man like Arnan, to Mrs. Arnan, and to others in the diplomatic circle.

Cord changed the subject and told of Milder's suspicion of Brintell.

Arnan looked extremely interested. "That coincides with what Pereira told me," he commented. He said no more and Steve did not want to ask questions. "As for Milder! That girl should know better than to associate with him."

"I don't think that association with Milder proves anything about the girl," Cord said and Steve felt grateful to him. "After all, she's a journalist. That gives her the right to associate with strange characters, even diplomats."

Arnan nodded, unconvinced. When he left the office Steve said to Cord, "I want to marry Miss Corning but this arrest mixes things up."

"I understand," Cord answered quietly. "I can't give you advice and you wouldn't want it."

"You can give me advice on something else." Then Steve told about Brintell and the threatened suit.

Cord hit the ceiling. "That's outrageous! Brintell's had real grounds for a suit against his wife with at least a score of men in the last five years. Why should he pick on you?"

"I don't know," Steve said slowly. "It makes no sense. A lot about Brintell makes no sense. Why should he double-cross his partner, Milder, and lose a nice, fat profit?"

Cord began to pace his office. "It would all make sense if we assume he's working for the Germans."

Steve turned around quickly. "Do you believe that?"

"It doesn't matter what I believe so long as I have no proof," Cord said. "For your own information, Steve, Arnan talked to Pereira this morning. Pereira insists that Brintell was the best friend van Hooten had and that Brintell was always asking questions about his boy."

"He's probably low enough to do that." Steve added thoughtfully, "even if he is a German agent, I can't understand why he wants to involve me in a scandal."

Cord did not answer for a moment as he lit his pipe. "He's a mysterious person and powerful. Brintell's tied up with many interests. He's played with one Brazilian group, then another. A man can make a lot of money in Rio by picking the right groups. There's no more unity in Brazil than anywhere else and no more unselfishness, either." Cord puffed on his pipe.

"He used to come around the embassy frequently, but in recent months he doesn't call. We found he was getting information about prospective American business plans, then going out and buying up real estate that might figure in the developments."

Remembering Brintell's indirect threats Steve asked, "Has he influence in Washington?"

"He's probably tied up with companies who have connections in Washington," Cord answered. "I'd hate to run into him head on."

Steve could agree to that. He had had a small dose of it, and he wouild never run into him again head on, if he could help it.

One of the commercial attachés came into Cord's office. Steve went back to his desk. Proof that Brintell was a German agent would solve all his troubles, but where to get it? Brintell was a dangerous opponent.

Troubles! They were drawing him out to thin, fine breaking point. At least, nothing could add to them.

The telephone rang.

"Mr. Cunningham." It was Doria. "I am so glad you are in. You are not busy?"

"No, not at all."

"I have decided what to do," she said pleasantly, "and I am obliged to you for your advice."

"Advice?" Steve could not remember having given any.

Singer Vows She Is Going to Get Revenge

"I am going to avoid having to pay that very big fine and I am going to get revenge. And thanks to you for your advice." She was laughing, as if this were the funniest of ideas.

"What advice, Doria?"

"Remember, you showed me the clause in my contract about the morals. I am so grateful to you. With that clause I get into so much trouble and scandal that the studio will have to break my contract and then pay me."

"What sort of scandal?"

"A fine one," she laughed. "And thanks to you. My father and my family say you are very smart and very kind. We are all so much obliged to you and to the American embassy."

Steve shuddered at that. He wanted no credit for any such advice. News of it would get around town fast and back to the embassy. His relation to Cord could not stand one more painful explanation. "You must tell me more," he said earnestly.

"More?" Doria was enjoying this. "I shall make the biggest scandal in Rio since the arrival of the mad Queen Maria. That's all I tell now."

"I'm awfully interested," Steve said, trying to hide his concern. "Let's get together this afternoon and talk it over."

"I should like that. I have so much to tell you. I will be at the Monte Carlo at 5."

No more troubles? That fool girl! He began to walk up and down the little office, then made himself stop. This was not a padded cell. Perhaps a padded cell would be better! He noticed the two heavy volumes on international law on his desk. Volume one went flying into one corner of the room; volume two into the other.

He felt better. A lot there was in those volumes about the problems of a diplomat! Where was there a chapter on "Scandals and how to stop them?"

He heard a step at his door. It was Miss Forwell, one of the embassy stenographers. "I heard a noise," she said, pleasantly. "Did you call?"

"No, that was a safety valve exploding."

Miss Forwell looked skeptical. "There are a lot of letters here that concern you."

Steve had forgotten routine work. "Other people's troubles, no doubt?"

"Yes, Mr. Cunningham."

"Let's have 'em." He took a folder and read over problems about the sales of vegetable oils, complaints about export taxes. Such problems at this time were like gnat bites during an earthquake. "Gnat bites," he said aloud.

Miss Forwell looked worried. "Are you all right?"

"Happy as a lark! A lark with a nervous breakdown. Let's start dictating and get these things cleaned up." That damn fool, Doria!

It was nearly 4 when he finished. He was tired. Once upon a time, in the long ago that was last week, he managed to get to the beach for a swim before dinner.

The receptionist called him. "There is a Senhor Stamfaldi here to see you."

Steve wanted no interruptions. "Can he see any one else?"

"He asked for you."

"What's his business?"

The receptionist's answer came back impersonally. "He says he's an attorney."

"An attorney?" Maybe this was the lawyer that Brintell had referred to. Steve said nervously. "Send him in."

Stamfaldi came in. He was a middle-aged man with an extremely dark face, tall, thin, and dressed in formal black. He had on a white shirt, stiff collar, and stiff cuffs. In a purple necktie was a gold pin with a green stone. His entire costume was impressive. And it had probably once been new, but that was long ago. It had probably once been clean. The collar was gray, the cuffs grayer, the suit was shiny, and the stickpin was rusty.

"I," said Stamfaldi, "am an attorney at law." He took a briefcase from under his arm and waved it, as if that were unanswerable proof. He spoke English with a bristling accent.

"How do you do, Mr. Stamfaldi? What can I do for you?"

"There is no chance of being overheard here?"

"No chance."

"Then I will tell you, sir, I come with bad news, about a certain lawsuit that concerns you." As if that were a time bomb that would explode in due order, Stamfaldi gave Steve no chance to answer. "You are younger than I thought, young man." He rubbed his hands together. "Yes, I come about a certain lawsuit."

Steve looked grim and his jaw was set. "Will you please be more specific?"

Stamfaldi looked disappointed. "I always find generalities are more pleasant. You wish me to be specific? I shall be specific. I come about the Brintell case against you."

Steve forced himself to show no nervousness. "Are you Mr. Brintell's attorney?"

"I draw a limit," Stamfaldi said pompously. "There are some sorts of clients I would not take."

Steve wondered what class that would be.

"I am an attorney, but I do not practice very much," Stamfaldi explained. "I have been informed of the case. That is all."

"That's ridiculous," Steve said promptly. "There's been no time for anything to start."

Stamfaldi smiled. His teeth were like an old picket fence. "I merely heard the shadow of a rumor. But I make it my business to listen to legal gossip, and I have come to offer help when it does start."

"What sort of help?" Steve asked coldly.

"As soon as I heard the details, I was shocked," Stamfaldi said, going off on a new line. "It upset me to think of a young man having a fine career ruined by Brintell. That scoundrel. That scoundrel! Taking revenge on his wife in this manner!"

Stamfaldi was a suspicious character, and certainly his motives were questionable. But on the chance that any help might be valuable, Steve asked, "Do you know anything about Brintell?"

"Young man," Stamfaldi said, "ever since Brintell came to Rio, I have studied him closely. I can tell you anything you want to know about him."

This seemed like valuable aid, but Steve held back. Stamfaldi had the manner of a second rate magician, offering an old hat for inspection before pulling out a mangy rabbit.

"I can give you enough information about him to block anything he might try to do," Stamfaldi continued. "I can tell you about his activities in coffee speculation, in land speculation, anything you might want to know."

Steve knew that Stamfaldi was waiting to be asked, which might be a good way to find out whether Steve knew or suspected anything crooked about Brintell. "I can't understand why you should make this offer."

Steve was sickened by sympathy spread so ointment thick. "I still want to know what you want. I have little time and I am busy."

Stamfaldi fingered his stickpin. Then he said brusquely, "Business is business, isn't it?"

Steve was sure he wanted money. He asked, "What do you want?"

Stamfaldi smiled as unpleasant a smile as Steve could remember. "You might think I wanted money, but I know that you have a small salary. You would like the information I have. Very well!" He rubbed his hands together. "I would like information that you have."

"What sort of information?"

Stamfaldi waved his hands to include sea, earth, and sky. "A young man in your position here," he began to finger his briefcase, "must get a lot of information that would be valuable, commercially valuable to a man like myself, in business here."

"You must win if you have to pick up Ludiculous and carry him."

THAT should have been the horse race to end all horse races.

But it wasn't.

It didn't.

It was the Kentuckiest race ever run, tho; and its history was full of bright green grass [called "blue grass" for some unimaginable reason], bright red blood [called "blue blood" for some unimaginable reason], caressing dialect stuffed with "honeys" and tall-columned mansions mossy with mortgages. Everything was in it except magnolia. There was simply no place in it for magnolia.

But there was some honeysuckle down by the old barn where he—the horse—came into the world appropriately during a thunder storm, and was foaled by the glare of lightning and the glow of a lantern, in an ancient stall long since gnawed to shreds and kicked to splinters.

When the stableman, an heirloom of antique ebony, knocked at the kitchen door, he waited outside in the deluge till the fat cook could call old Col. Gordon Pettigrew; then Pompey announced:

"Marse Gaw'n, 'at old mare Whinny, she sut'ny actin' up mahty moneful."

"You don't mean——"

"Ya—Yassa!"

"I'll come right along," said the colonel. But his exquisite daughter, Lee, checked him.

"You better hadn't go out in all this downpour, honey."

"But, honey, I'm just going down to the old barn."

"Then I'm going with you, honey."

"O, no, you're not, honey."

"O, yes I am, honey."

Her sweet voice was high as she comforted Mrs. Whinny until at last the foal was thrown. It was, as usual, all head and legs; and when it tried to stand on its legs it stood on its head. But Ma Whinny licked and nudged and insisted until, like a drunkard on crutches, it worked itself to an erect position and found its way to the dairy-nook.

Colonel Inadvertently Suggests Name for Horse

Lee applauded, but the colonel, who had been consulting his flask during the delay, complained:

"You couldn't ask two finer bloodlines than a broodmare like Whinny and a sire like Neighneigh; and I had great hopes of the produce. But that thing yonder is simply lud-hiculous."

"W'ah, pa!" Lee chided him, then changed her tune. "After all, that's a right good name for him. Let's send it right off to the Jockey club to register. Lawd knows names are hard enough to find with the thousands on tens of thousands ahead of us. And you mock my words, pa, the day will come when this baby Ludiculous will be a real horse, and he'll win the race that saves this old plantation and all of us from ruin."

The colt's exclusive nourishment for two weeks was mare's milk. Then suddenly Whinny passed on to the heavenly Blue Pastures and her son was brought up on cow's milk. This may have had something to do with his character; for when his body grew up to his legs and he entered racing as a profession, he was subject to complete and mysterious shifts from an equine speed to a bovine stolidity.

When he felt like running, nobody could hold him; hardly any horse could head him. When he was disinclined to run, slashing him with the whip had no more effect than shaking it alongside his nose. He might refuse to start at all; or, at the second or third pole, he might leap into the lead and hold it to the wire—or decide to die in front of the judges' stand.

The condition of the track, "fast," "good," "slow," "muddy," "sloppy," meant no more than the distance. He would falter at six furlongs, or finish going away in a two-mile marathon. Or he wouldn't. With or without blinkers, whipped or caressed, he did as he pleased. Carrying 103, he would flatten out and quit badly. With 130 aboard, he would race kindly, meet all bids, and finish full of run. Jockeys? He would make the reputation of an apprentice and in the next race ruin the good name of a Derby winner.

He seemed to know when his friends backed him and to take a fiendish delight in letting them down. When they refrained from betting he would win with ease. And so he became the best-hated horse in Kentucky—perhaps the All-American pest. Smart-money bettors soon learned to avoid him. Whatever the contention or the condition, he was a perennial longshot.

But Lee loved him because nobody else did. She thought his independence proved he was no slave, like the typical model horse that obeys every command of heel or voice or whip. Lee had grown up a bit herself by now, and when her childhood playmate, Beauregard Hazlett, returned from his last two years at college with vacations in the east he exclaimed:

"Why, Lee, honey! Last time I saw you, you were a new foaled filly, all head and legs. But now you are simply puffect. I'll drive over tomorrow and we'll go for a little cross-country canter, if you'll lend me one of your nags."

"Thankya, Beau," she said right chillily, "but I've lost my taste for horseback riding."

Beau was stunned and hurt. He did not know that, during his long absence, her father had been forced to sell off all of his hides except the unsellable Ludiculous. He could no longer even afford to hire a jockey for a race.

Lee had seen a play once, and several movies, in which the daughter of an impoverished planter disguised herself as a jockey and carried the family horse to victory and fortune. But in Kentucky lady jockeys were not countenanced; and Lee's passing herself off for a boy was out of the question for various excellent reasons, which a blouse and breeches would have only emphasized.

But Beau soon learned the truth about the Pettigrew ex-fortunes from his sister, Lee, and from his mother [who had been known as "Lovely Lee Carroll of Baltimore, Maryland"]. He rushed to the Pettigrew plantation to protest:

"You little devil, you! Why didn't you tell me you all were broke? Since when has a southerner been ashamed of poverty? I'm always apologizin' for pa because he's rotten rich. I'll give you one of his saddle-horses — and any money you need. You can pay me back out of your allowance after we're married."

Her heart reared with ecstasy. But the old Pettigrew pride forced her to say:

"Thank you for everything; but no, thank you."

Beau knew better than to accept the first of a woman's "No's." He hurried home to speak to his father, old Col. Jubal Early Hazlett, who, as Beau expected, was clocking his own favorite race horse, the mighty gelding Skedaddle [by Skeets out of Daddle]. If Beau had ever guessed instead of always reckoning, he might have guessed that his father's salvation depended on Skedaddle. But Col. Hazlett was not so ostentatious about his financial difficulties as Col. Pettigrew was.

"Pardon me, pa," said Beau, "I'd like a word with you about Lee Pettigrew."

"I'll never consent to your marriage with a Pettigrew," his father snapped. "And don't ask me for a saddle horse to give her. Don't ask me for money either! Go get yourself a job!"

This vile suggestion Beau could ignore, but he could hardly ask Lee Pettigrew to marry him now. Two negatives may make a positive, but two poverties do not make an income. So he said no more to Lee about marrying her, about giving her a horse, or about lending her money.

She noted the omission, imagined the reason for it, and pinned her last hopes on Ludiculous. Everything would be heaven if he could but win the great Indigenous handicap, so called because only horses of Kentucky birth and breeding could run. The race was held each year at Louisville, known to the residents as "Looavul."

The purse depended, of course, on the number of entries; but there was an added stake of $25,000. The subscription was $25 for each horse, and Col. Pettigrew, happening to have that amount once, had long since sent it in with his nomination of Ludiculous. But there would still be $100 to pay before the start. This had him worried. Besides, a good jockey would demand $100 guarantee and 10 per cent of the winnings—if any. The colonel tried to put a third mortgage on the plantation, but could not manage it.

There seemed to be only one way to find so much cash, and that was for Lee to ask it of "Ule" Simpson, a horrible person of northern pedigree, called "Yank" for short; "Bluebelly" on informal occasions. He was named after his grandfather, Ulysses Grant Simpson, whose father had crossed the Ohio river into Kentucky after the war between the states. He had carried a carpetbag. And filled it.

His great-grandson had never been able to live down such an ancestry, so he lived down to it. Still he revered Lee Pettigrew and rarely saw her that he did not ask for her "hand." He implied, of course, that he wanted all that was attached to it. But Lee always answered:

"Why, thank you, Mr. Simpson. But no, thank you!"

Now, however, she steeled herself at last to the hateful step of asking him to lend her enough to get Ludiculous into the Indigenous. And, O yes, there was a magnolia in it after all—a magnolia grandiflora on her father's lawn. She and Ule were standing by it and it shed great white petals in benediction on her when she sacrificed herself to save her father. Ule could not believe his ears at first. Then his eyes gleamed in triumph and he took from his pocket a disgracefully large roll of bills. But he said:

"All this or any part of it is yours, honey—on one condition. We'll put it in the shape of a little bet. I've already bought up the first and second mortgages on your plantation; and I could foreclose any minute. But I want to enclose you, honey. So this is the bet:

"If Ludiculous wins the Indigenous, or even if he comes in second or third, I'll cancel both mortgages and go back north where my great-grandpappy came from.

"B U T—I F—Ludiculous L O S E S, then you and I get married, and live on my plantation, leavin' yours to your pa with the mortgages paid up in full—as full as he always is after supper. That's the bet. And you'd better take it, seein' I've bought up a lot of your father's other debts. And I could even take Ludiculous away from you. Don't misunderstand me, honey. I'm doing it all from love of you. What d'ya say?"

What could she say? Her heart belonged to Beau Hazlett, but he had no money. He had never repeated his proposal of marriage. If she refused Ule's offer she and her father would be turned out into the cold—forced perhaps even to live with their relations. But if Ludiculous should take it into his head—and feet—to win, he would wipe out the mortgage and the Yankee, too. She and Beau could be married and she could wear the wedding gown her mother and her grandmother and her great-great-grandmother had worn—only once each.

The blood of those stately ladies made her a frail little southern gentlewoman; but her veins also ran hot with the blood of her great-great-etc.-grandfathers, gamblers all. She resolved to let Ludiculous decide whether her life henceforth was to be heaven or hell.

She gave her white but bridle-strong hand to Ule and said:

"You've made a bet, Mister Simpson."

When the cad insisted on putting it in writing she signed her name with little tendril fingers that did not tremble. Then she opened her hand for the cash to pay the final entry fee and the jockey's wage and the cost of vanning Ludiculous to the race track. But Ule laughed:

"I'll pay the fee. I'll furnish the jockey."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," she said. "If you provide the jockey, Ludiculous has lost the race already. You pay the fee. I'll find the jockey."

Girl Keeps Her Bet with Simpson a Secret

He had to agree to her terms; yet she felt hopelessly trapped. The whole situation was so ghastly that she never breathed a word of it to her father, never a word of it to Beau, in whose society she took now a sad and hopeless joy. All ignorant of her plight and his, he spent most of his time with her; and since he usually brought with him a pocket full of sugar from the Hazlett breakfast table, Ludiculous began to find him a very attractive young man. He even permitted Beau to ride him, and displayed unsuspected velocity in getting around the track. Jockeys would have called Beau a monster. Yet Ludiculous carried him as if he were not weight, but wings. And this put a fantastic idea into Beau's mind and simultaneously into Lee's.

One morning Beau faltered: "Honeylee, I'm goin' to ride Ludiculous in the Indigenous. I'm only 5 feet 9 inches tall. The famous jockey Coltiletti was longer than that. I'm taller than Johnny Adams, but not so chunky. I've weighed as low as 130."

He did not tell her that this was after an attack of double pneumonia. She flung her arms about him in rapture, then put his arms away in shame, realizing that she was more or less betrothed to that Blueb—that Damyank. But she could not confess this to Beau. She fetched him the blouse the Pettigrew jockeys had worn and he split it three ways, but she made him one that fitted, out of an old ball gown of her grandmother's.

Beau began to reduce his weight as fast as he could. He skipped breakfast at home altogether, and took his other meals with the Pettigrews. Which was the next thing to not eating at all. Before long his clothes began to hang on him in wrinkles.

When Ule Simpson learned that Beau was to ride Ludiculous he laughed. But when he had the horse secretly clocked he was not so much amused. He resolved to make Beau lose the race and Lee's love at the same time.

The only trick his infertile mind could devise was a plagiarism from certain motion pictures he had seen. He could get Beau too drunk to ride, and then force Lee to accept a jockey of his selection, bribed to pull the race.

Without much difficulty he managed to suborn one of the less honorable barkeepers in the clubhouse—to help him carry out his dastardly design.

On the day of the race, just a little before Beau Hazlett went to don his silks, Simpson crossed his path as if by accident and put forth his hand in a friendly gesture, saying with sirupy courtesy:

"Hazlett, oldboyoldboy, how's about a little snifter?"

Beau Accepts Offer of Small Libation

Beau answered with ill-concealed scorn:

"Much obliged, but I never drink before a race."

This took Simpson aback—wherever that is; but he tried again.

"Surely you can't refuse a little bumper to the success of Ludiculous and his charming owner, Miss Lee."

Ordinarily Beau would not have been seen even in a barroom with what he called "the spawn of a carpetbagger." But it was no time for refusing spiritual aid and there might be merit in the good wishes of a bad man; so he nodded and accompanied Simpson to the bar, at a spot, by a strange coincidence, directly in front of Gilhoogan's section.

"A bourbon straight," said Simpson.

"A bourbon straight," said Beau.

Perhaps famine had made him psychic. In any case he had an occult feeling that the barkeeper lowered one of the glasses beneath the bar and put something in it. And so, when they had poured the bourbon in, Beau said to Simpson:

"Isn't that your father just behind you?"

"I hardly think so," said Simpson, "seeing he's been dead for 10 years."

Nevertheless he turned to examine the person Beau indicated, and Beau—who had also studied the more educational movies—seeing that the barkeeper was too busy to notice the exchange, swiftly shifted the glasses. Simpson, turning back, observed with petulance:

"That's not my father. It's yours!"

"Why, so it is," said Beau.

"Be that as it may," said Yank. "Here's to the success and prosperity of you all! And may Ludiculous come in first at last. He's always been behind before."

"So be it!" said Beau.

He merely lipped his liquor, but Simpson fairly flung the evil fluid into his throat. Then he watched Beau with a peculiar malevolence that swiftly changed to childish bewilderment; next, to adult amazement. For it was his own knees that began to buckle! His eyeballs rolled inward, then upward. He crumpled to the sawdust, stretched out, and lay still as a dying snake at sunset. And was the barkeeper surprised?

"Looks like Mister Simpson don't like his liquor," said Beau, as he left the nefarious place.

Outside, he encountered Col. Pettigrew. The old man was staggering so badly that he clung to Beau for support.

"Colonel!" Beau exclaimed, choosing instinctively the more tactful word, "you're ill!"

"Ill? I'm dyin'. I just met an old acquaintance who said, 'Petty, do you remember lending me $10 10 years ago?' I answered, 'Loss of memory is the exclusive disease of borrowers.' And he said, 'Well, I'm suffering from a rush of memoritis to the head. Here's your tenna.' And, by Gawd, he hands me the money. I'm goin' to put it right on Ludiculous' beautiful nose, along with 10 of my own. Don't ask me where I got it. Pompey gave me $2 to put on him to show. I didn't ask where he got it. Lee gave me $10, and I didn't ask where she got it."

Beau dug money from his own pocket and said:

"Seein' that a jockey can't bet on any but the horse he's riding and has to bet thru the owner, would you oblige me, suh, by laying this $12 on Ludiculous for me? Play him twice across the board."

The Indigenous was the sixth event. As the Colonel hurried to the wicked wicket of a ticket seller's booth he was stopped by a long-faced midwestern puritan who was trying to save a few souls between races.

"Brother, may I have a word with you?"

"I never deal with touts," said the Colonel.

The deacon did not even know he had been insulted. "I want to implore you," he said, "not to risk your cash and your immortal soul on a wager. You'll lose both as shore as shootin'."

"That's what makes it interesting," said the Colonel. "Back in 1912 at the Latonia track I begged a friend of mine not to waste $2 on a horse named Wishing Ring. I begged in vain and they paid him off $1,885.50. Two years ago at Bowie, two young ladies contributed a dollar apiece to a daily double on James Boy and Charles F., and they collected $6,754.50."

The deacon frothed slightly at the mouth and reached for his wallet.

"Do they have a daily double here, Brother?"

The Colonel shook his head. The deacon wheeled:

"Then what horse do you recommend for this next?"

"All gamblers die poor, and I hope to," said the Colonel and would not tell him.

The figures on the great totalizator boards were blinking like heat lightning. Before a single dollar was bet on Ludiculous, there was $5,276 in the win pool, $4,532 in the place, and $4,448 in the show.

When the Colonel bought Pompey's $2 show ticket, the tote board flashed it instantly. The immense throng roared with laughter. A few minutes later the Colonel's $30 gleamed in the win column and there was a round of ironic applause. Shortly afterward Beau's two bets across-the-board were registered in the lights.

And now the whole show world could know that there were quaint people who would risk real money on such a horse as Ludiculous—sometimes called Pediculous. Even when the totals had climbed dizzily to a grand total of over $100,000, the odds against Ludiculous were still set at 99 to 1, tho they were really far higher.

The favorite of favorites was Col. Bush Pagram's Ipecac III., at 1-2. Next in the odds, at 1-1, was Col. Shaw Torrey's superb Dadratit [out of Daddle by Rattle]. His half brother was Beau's father's Skedaddle at 5-2. Col. Fitzhugh Benable's Ziss was rated 9-5. Next came Col. Breckenridge Braxton's Mustardpot [out of Potlikker by Musty], and Col. Hines Clebourne's Fussbudget. Each had much wise money on him, as did Col. Jeb Colquit's Steponit. Then there was the chestnut mare Cici, whose owner was Alexander Stephens Smith, a mere major, tho a real one. Quite without title were the two Louisville merchants who owned Cashancarry and Easy Terms, long shots at 30-1.

When Beau, dressed now in the ancient Pettigrew silks, went to be weighed in, the clerk of sales, who had been stuffing little sausages of lead in the saddles of the other jockeys according to their handicap figures, stared in unbelief, and grinned:

"I ought to pin a few balloons to your tail, Big Boy."

But when Lee, as the trainer, saddled Ludiculous, all the final instructions she could give her jockey were:

"Oh, Beau, don't fall off and get run over. You must win if you have to pick Ludiculous up and carry him."

Faintly in the distance a bugle sounded. Beau swung into seat. The leather creaked. So did Ludiculous. He fell into line as the seventh of the 10 horses behind the pink-coated lead rider. Reaching the track, he had not the spirit to run away as usual, or even to kick another horse in the ribs.

Near the winner's circle in a huddle of owners, idle jockeys and stableboys with blankets, Lee and her father waited their doom.

When finally the little cavalcade reached the starting gate, Lee's heart sank further, for Ludiculous did not plunge or bolt, or refuse to enter. Once in, he did not try to paw down the front gate or kick out the rear one. He stood as if he were asleep in his stall at home. When he was lifeless like that, he was finished at the start. Col. Pettigrew turned to Lee.

"Honey, we're sunk. He's not a-goin' to make it."

He was thinking of the money he had bet; but she was thinking of the soul and body she had bet—and lost. She wanted to die; but life, if not hope, was wakened by the mad rush of the horses as the starting gates flew suddenly open.

Just at this moment three airplanes went overhead towing a long streamer advising everybody to dine and dance at a certain Louisville café. The hum of the huge bees attracted the scientific curiosity of the favorite, Ipecac III. His jockey screamed, kicked, and smote, but Ipecac slowed down to a jog trot, craning his head to follow the aerial trio while the owners of some $25,000 worth of tickets on him vainly screamed. "Come on, Ippy!"

In sharp contrast, Dadratit made such a leap into space that his jockey slid off his back, whereupon Dadratit knocked down Zizz, who rolled over on his rider, luckily breaking only three of his ribs—the rider's ribs. De-jockeyed, Dadratit went right on with the race.

As for Mustardpot, some strange obsession — perhaps a magnetic influence—determined him to go round the track counterclockwise. His little human parasite was helpless to resist him as he whirled round the gate and struck off at what would have been a stirring burst of speed if it had been in the right direction.

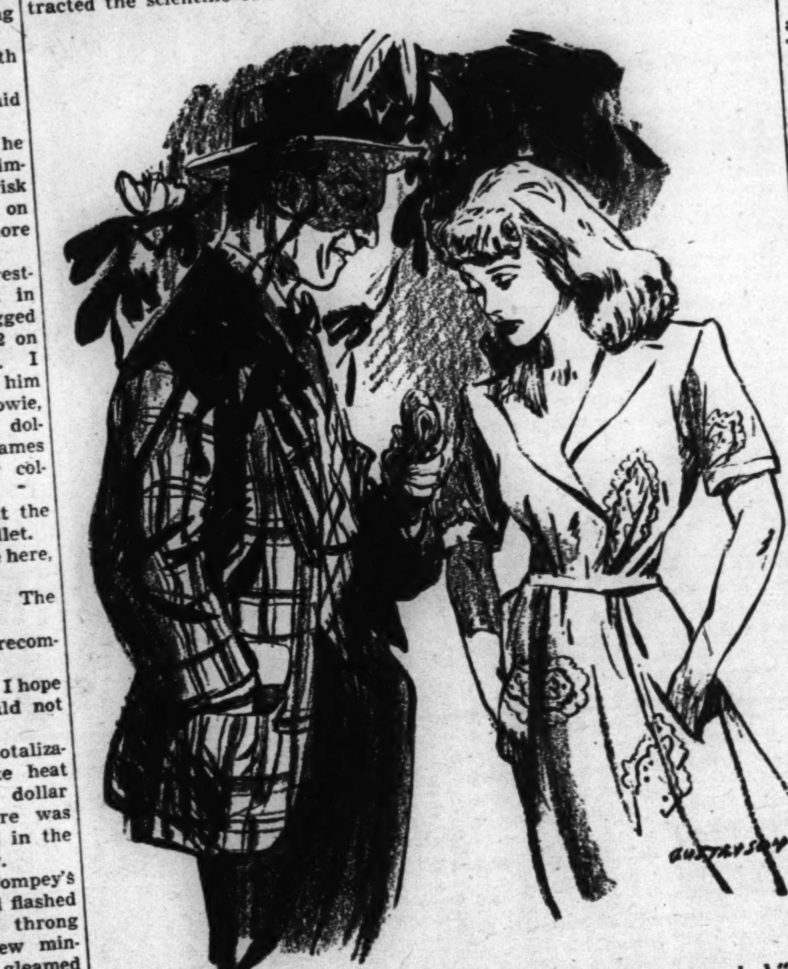
The mighty Skedaddle loved the rail position, but had drawn post No. 10 on the farthest side of the track. He felt cheated and promptly cut across the line of starters, bumping two horses out of their stride. The judges promptly disqualified him twice.

Fussbudget, who had drawn the rail position and liked it, fought Skedaddle for it, only to be bunted against the rail and thrown down under it, narrowly escaping broken legs and a fractured jockey. By now the judges had disqualified Skedaddle three times. But he did not know it. It did not matter to him what they did. He opened up a long exclusive lead on the rest of the pack.

Steponit had been trained and famed as a steeplechaser. On reaching the head of the track he reverted to form and could not resist the fence he saw before him. He kept straight on and took it with the grace that had once led his owner to shout, "God bless you!" This day he changed the verb.

The mare Oioi was a bleeder, and overdid herself. Having no handkerchief she drew aside and came to a stop to blow her nose. Her jockey dismounted and led her slowly back to the stable.

After all this chaos and fireworks, Lee Pettigrew and her father began almost to hope for Ludiculous. Lee began to scream her secret for all the world to hear:



"But if Ludiculous LOSES, then you and I get married."

"Come Ludiculous! Come on! Save me! Save me from that horrible Yankee."

But nobody heard her. Her father was outyelling her with prayers of his own. But Ludiculous went galumphing along like an old cow slogging down a country lane. His very hooves seemed to say:

"I'm not in the mood. Don't wait up for me!"

Beau frantically plied him with word and whip, but he let even Easy Terms and Cashancarry challenge him and pocket him, pass him. Their jockeys made rude jokes about Beau's weight as they left him in their wake. The only horse Ludiculous passed was Ipecac, who had finally stopped short and stood watching the airplanes while his jockey wore his whip to ribbons.

Later Ludiculous passed Mustardpot, who was going the wrong way. But he whirled so sharply that he tossed his rider over the rail. Then, relieved of human interference, he overtook Ludiculous, and with fine intelligence and strategy, gained the rail, and overtook Dadratit. With empty stirrups flogging their shoulders, the two fought it out to the finish line gloriously, tho in vain, passing even Skedaddle, who thundered down the stretch, with Easy Terms and Cashancarry hot on his heels, their commercial jockeys in such a frenzy for a percentage of the place or show money that they began to kick and strike at each other with fist and whip.

For all of Beau's lifting, pushing, lashing, praying, and cursing, and Lee's desperate imploring him to save her, Ludiculous came in sixth and last. Lee collapsed in her father's arms.

Beau tossed his whip to Pompey, and hanging his head in shame, unsaddled and went in to be weighed out. Then he came forth and apologized humbly to the heartbroken Lee and her purse-broken father. He apologized to himself for all the food he had denied himself. He had never dreamed of Lee's lost wager with Ule Simpson, and when she groaned: "But where is my future husband?" Beau answered:

"Right before you, honey."

"No, honey," she wailed. "No, no! I vowed to marry Ule Simpson if Ludiculous lost."

"I won't permit it," Beau roared, but she answered grimly:

"The word of a Pettigrew is sacred."

As her sweetheart and her father stared at her in horror, the loudspeaker shook up the crowd with the official decision of the judges, an historic decision that was forever debated, but could never be repealed:

"Skedaddle is disqualified for bothering three other horses at the start and at the clubhouse turn. Cashanca'y and Easytums are disqualified on account of the misbehavior of their jockeys in the stretch. All three jockeys are suspended for the remainder of the meet. The riderless horses disqualified themselves, of course. There is no second, and no third. The winner is—Ludiculous!"

A moment of awful silence ensued as if all the world had gone deaf. Then came the uproar of 30,000 throats in a jungle rage. And no wonder; they had suffered a collective loss of $300,000. Equal numbers of men and women fainted.

But old Pompey was shouting: "Glory unto de Hallelooyas! It's jes' lak de Good Book say, 'De lastes' shall be fustes'."

Beau flung the saddle back on Ludiculous, tightened the cinch and rode into the winner's circle while the loudspeaker was blaring again:

"It is ruled that all the money wagered—minus, of cos', the tax, the track's percentage, and a matter of $1,000 or so for breakage, leaving a net of about $89,000—it all goes to the holders of tickets on Ludiculous."

The Colonel did not try to divide Golconda; he howled:

"Lee, honey, even Pompey's rich enough now to support us all and pay his own back wages. You and Beau've got money enough to buy Niagara Falls. And me—I'll pay off those two mortgages and—and—"

The owners of the other horses broke in to wring his hands and offer their congratulations. Which was mighty sporting of them since they all had mortgages on their own plantations—except the two merchants, who had no plantation to have mortgages on. They had mortgages on their stores.

Ludiculous Wants No Part of Winner's Cup

Meanwhile Lee had run to Ludiculous and was hugging him hard when he flung up his rocky head and nearly knocked her chin thru her eyebrows. She fell against a well cushioned lady of the highest social position who was stepping graciously forward to present Ludiculous with the famous and hideous Indigenous gold cup. Ludiculous gave it one glance, then whirled and kicked it out of her hands. A bit of an art-critic, he. But what that lady called him!—if she could ever be called a lady again.

Ignoring her and her own aching jaw, Lee darted to Beau's stirrup and shouted up to him:

"Honey, honey, we're rich, and I'm free. I'm free!"

"O, no you're not," Beau answered. "We're getting married this very afternoon!"

With that he swooped her up beside him and she stood with one foot on his and both arms around him. The cameramen shouted:

"It's grand!" "It's cute!" "Hold it!"

Three bulbs flashed at once. Ludiculous had had enough. He whirled, and bolted, scattering scuttering humans like chickens. Finding himself on the race track, he struck out for his stall four furlongs away with a velocity that would have won him the race honestly by at least three lengths. Nobody held a stopwatch on him, but one old clocker said afterward:

"That hide was carryin' mo' weight than I ever seen a hoss carry. Two jockeys up! Two hundred fifty pounds on him, and no other hoss ever done the half mile in half the time."

Beau was hanging on for dear life, with his bride-to-be flying out like a banner in the wind; but they were both in heaven, or on their way there. But that was not where the onlookers wished them; for 30,000 other people, seeing Ludiculous carrying all that weight and all their money at all that speed, were jumping up and down and shrieking:

"Lynch that horse! Lynch Ludiculous!"

Which would seem to point the moral: "Never, never bet on a horse race!"

Or would it?

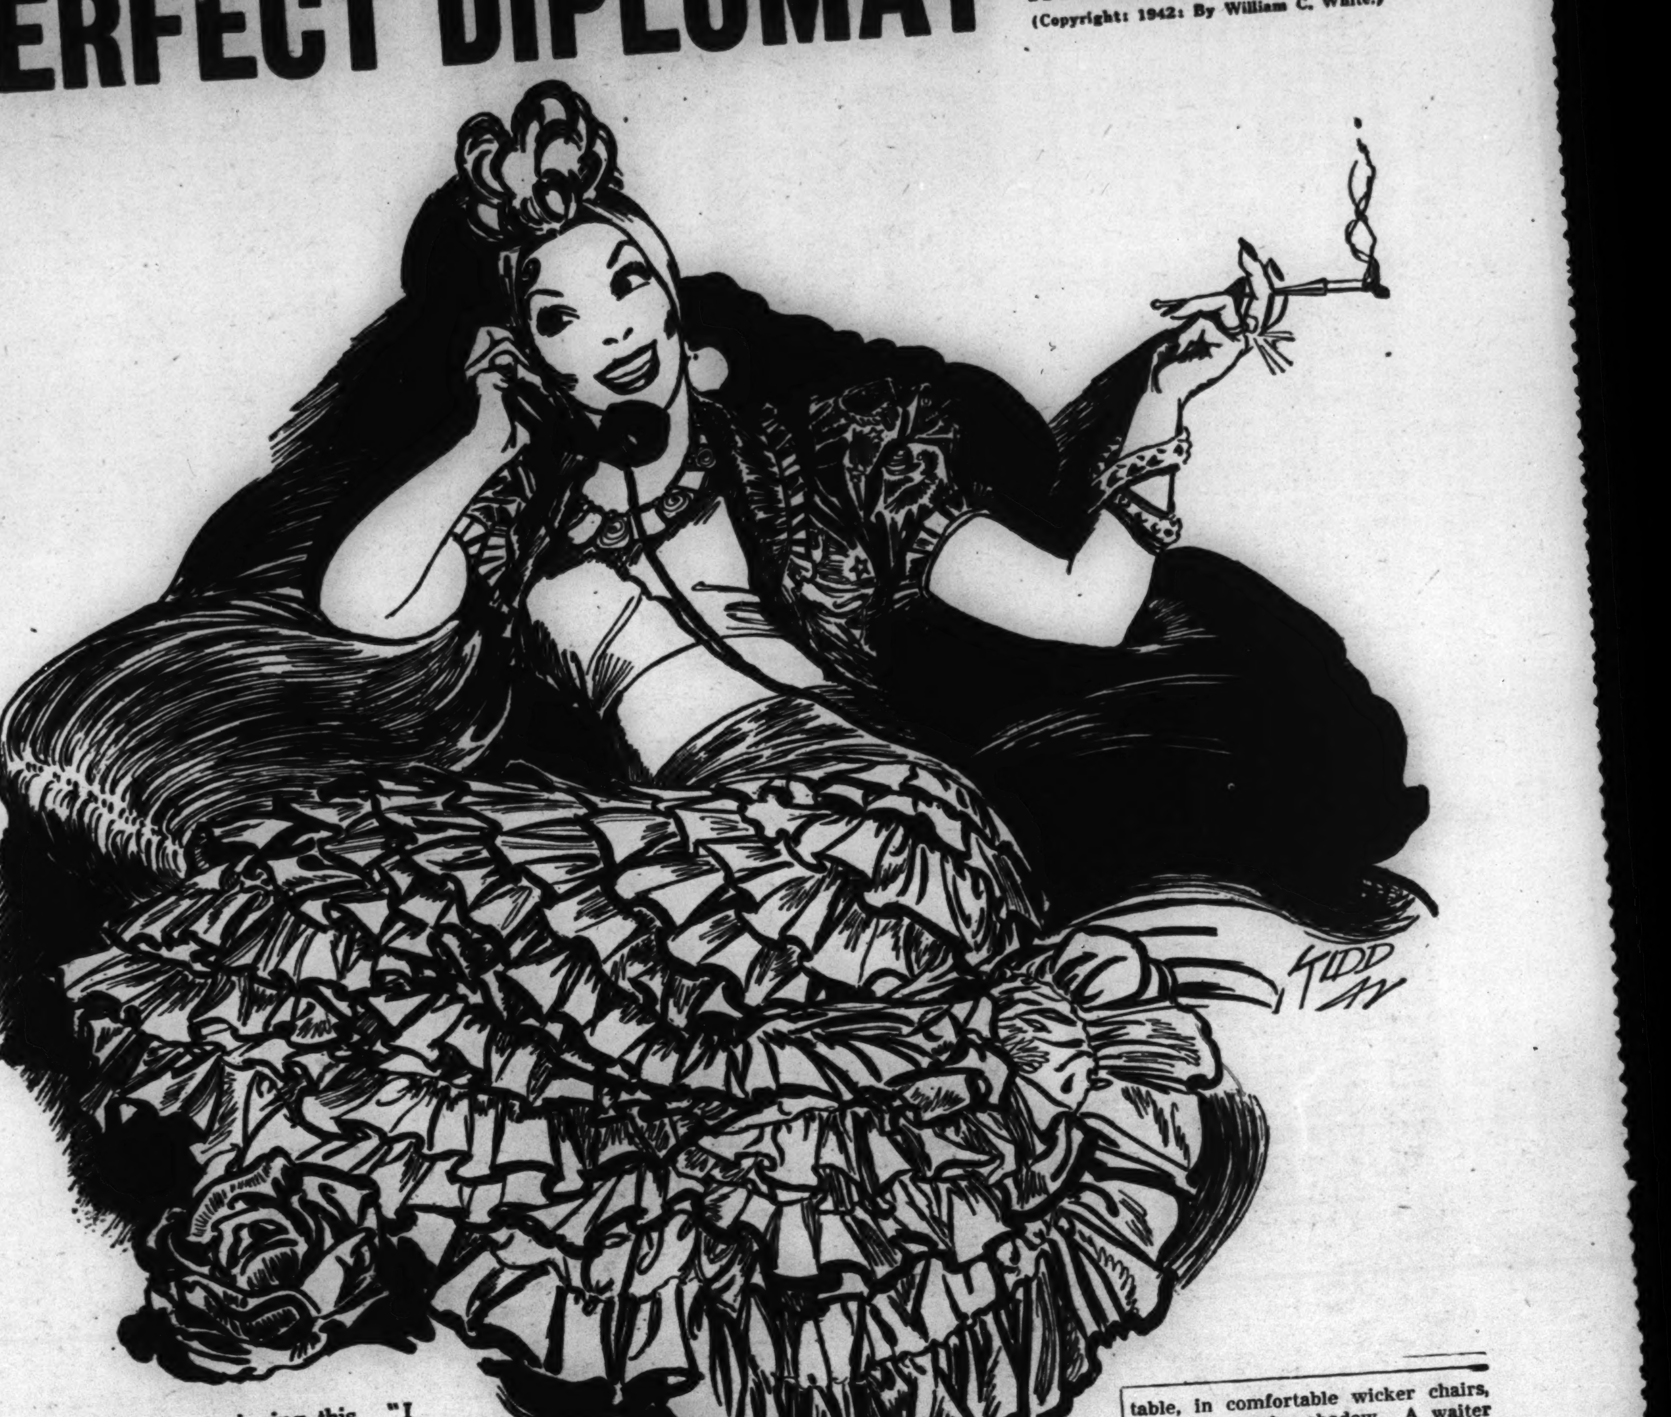
THE IMPERFECT DIPLOMAT

By
WILLIAM C. WHITE

(Copyright: 1942: By William C. White.)



Doria was enjoying this. "I shall make the biggest scandal in Rio since the arrival of the mad Queen Maria. That's all I tell now."

What Has Gone Before

Steve Cunningham, young attache at the American embassy in Brazil, is about to ask Ellen Corning to marry him when he discovers she is not the harmless free lance writer she has pretended to be, but is a reporter sent to unearth a dangerous story of international intrigue in industrial diamonds that will play havoc with American-Brazilian diplomacy. Steve does not know that Brintell, an American, secretly pro-Nazi, and Schultz, a German agent, are plotting to use Ellen or Theo, Brintell's wife, to blackmail him into giving confidential information about embassy secrets. Megly Milder, a shady character, offers Ellen information about a local firm selling diamonds to Germans for war materials. Steve upbraids Ellen about her deceit and doubts Milder's story. To prove their points about Milder, Ellen and Steve call on Van Hooten, a Brazilian diamond merchant, who admits he sold diamonds to the Nazis because he had been told they were holding his son in Rotterdam, but as he had just received a cable that his son had been dead some time, he was now determined to deal with the betrayer. He admits his betrayer is a prominent man in Brazil but refuses to give them his name until he has had time to get his revenge. At a party at the Brintells', Doria, a Brazilian singer, tells Steve she has to break a Hollywood contract and is afraid of being fined. Steve senses Brintell is inspiring Doria to break the contract. While Steve is at the party, Ellen decides to go back to Van Hooten and see if she can learn the name of his betrayer. She learns that Van Hooten has died during the night. Ellen is still determined to get the diamond story, but when she is blocked by Steve in an attempt to get information from Van Hooten's butler she is spurred into accompanying Milder on a dangerous interview. With Milder she goes to see the German commercial attache, Grunow, and witnesses Milder sell him industrial diamonds. But she also notices Milder switch the stones during the sale. While there the maid spills coffee on Ellen's purse and Grunow insists the maid take the purse and clean it before giving it back to Ellen. Outside the Grunow home the police halt Milder and Ellen. Grunow has switched stones, giving Milder counterfeit bills, and planted stolen Brazilian state papers in Ellen's purse, then notified the police. In the meantime Theo compromises Steve, while Brintell walks in on them and threatens to ruin Steve's career.

INSTALMENT VIII.

ELLEN saw telephones on the desk in the corner and she decided to ask for permission to call.

"If I can get out," Milder was saying, "I'll find out the truth about Brintell fast enough. We can get out if you'll call your friend Cunningham at the embassy. He'll have us out quickly."

Something in Milder's assurance annoyed Ellen. "You place great emphasis on my friend Cunningham."

"He is your friend. You really don't have to worry."

Ellen turned around slowly and faced Milder. Something seemed very clear. "Did you by any chance pick me for a witness because he was my friend?"

"Miss Corning!" Milder was shocked.

"You said you noticed us together. Then you came and forced yourself on me." Ellen was sure she was right. "You decided that if you could get me into your scheme, Cunningham would get you and me out if it should misfire."

"It was not exactly that," Milder protested.

"I ought to go and beat my head against the wall." She meant it. "And I was fool enough to fall for that!" Then, with her lips a thin white line and her eyes on fire, she said: "You have one more surprise coming today, Mr. Milder. I'm not calling Cunningham."

Milder's shocked face convinced Ellen that she was right. "You must call," he stammered. "If I call, the embassy won't pay any attention to me."

"I wish I hadn't."

"They'll put us in basement cells."

"That should be renewing an old experience for you."

"Brazilian jails are hot."

"If it's as hot for you as for me, that's all right!"

Milder looked really worried. "If you'd only call!"

"Call your backer, Brintell. Let him get you out!"

Milder shook his head wearily. "How does one know who to trust?"

Ellen snorted, "Are you asking me that?"

Cunningham Unable to Concentrate on Work

Steve slept from fatigue that night. He woke after 9 o'clock and he jumped to the telephone. A hotel clerk said, "Miss Corning does not answer. I do not think she has been in since yesterday."

He dressed in a daze, not daring to follow any one of a hundred worries to its end. Last night he had troubles of his own, with Brintell; now, nothing mattered but Ellen. He took a cab to the embassy and waited impatiently for Cord. He tried to read the morning papers, he considered the pile of work on his desk, but any concentration was impossible.

The telephone rang. He took it eagerly. It was Cord, asking him to come to his office.

Capt. Arnan stood by Cord's desk, his face expressionless. Cord said, "We have some news for you, Steve."

Arnan nodded. "I just heard that the Brazilian secret police arrested the Corning girl last night."

"Arrested her?" As from a distance he heard himself ask faintly, "For what?"

"For espionage, along with Milder."

Steve asked slowly. "Have they called the embassy?"

"They were held incommunicado until this morning."

That aroused Steve. "The whole thing's ridiculous. Espionage!" He glanced at Cord for some assent but Cord looked serious and concerned.

"It beats me," Arnan said, almost to himself, "how a girl like that would let herself get mixed up in such a mess."

"It may be very trivial," Cord answered but the tone of his voice implied something else. Then he looked at Steve sympathetically. "Why don't you go to the police headquarters and see what you can do?"

Steve went and he went in a hurry. He arrived breathless, his tie mussed, his black hair wind blown.

The Brazilian officers were polite, especially a Capt. Menezes, a young attractive man with the deepest of black eyes and coal black hair. He spoke fluent English. But, he explained, this was an important arrest and he could do nothing.

"At least you can let me see the prisoners," Steve insisted.

"I'm not sure of that," Capt. Menezes said.

He was called to answer a telephone, while Steve stood boiling at the whole situation. Somewhere in this building was Ellen. Police stations smelled the same, the world over.

Capt. Menezes returned. "I don't know what I can do."

"There's a dreadful mistake here," Steve said. "I'm sure that Miss Corning is not consciously mixed up in espionage." On an impulse, he added. "You see, she's my fiancée."

That interested the captain. "I don't think she's involved either, but some people here insist there are unique political overtones in her case. That's what makes it serious."

Steve wanted to know what that meant but Menezes did not explain.

The captain continued: "I think it is possible to free Miss Corning in your custody, on condition that she is available for further questioning at any time and that she is not to leave Rio. Do you agree to that?"

"Of course."

"We cannot free the man," Menezes added.

"Milder? For all I care you can send him to a rubber plantation up the Amazon."

"We probably will."

Five minutes passed. A door opened and several officials in uniform emerged. Behind them came Ellen, smiling but looking as if she had been tossed about in a musty horse blanket. Her blue dress was rumpled. Her little white bolero looked wrinkled and slept in. Two toned oxfords were dirt striped. Only her broad white hat looked fresh. She blinked for a moment, then saw Steve. She almost stumbled as she ran to him. Steve forgot room and officials. All that mattered was that he had Ellen in his arms.

"Let's get out of here at once," he said to her gently.

"Can we really go?" Ellen asked, unbelieving.

"You're free in my custody," Steve said. He thanked Menezes as they left.

In the sunshine on the street, Ellen stopped for a moment, holding tightly to Steve's arm. "After a night like that you realize what a luxury air is."

"Did they treat you all right?"

She nodded. "Brazilians are my favorite jailers. It wasn't their fault that I was uncomfortable. They even brought me a large breakfast." She smiled as she smoothed her black hair. "There's one advantage in being in a Brazilian jail—the coffee's good. Now I want to go to my hotel."

"Not yet," Steve said. "Let's go to a café. I want to hear the whole story."

"But I look so dreadful!" She smoothed her little bolero jacket.

"You couldn't look lovelier in a wedding dress!"

"I wouldn't wear a wedding dress I'd slept in."

As they settled back in a cab Ellen said, "I was such a fool not to take your advice."

Steve looked at her as if he did not believe what he was hearing.

"I meant it," she said, almost ashamed. "I thought about it last night."

"No story really matters?"

"Maybe not." Then she looked upset. "But I can't go back on the Clipper tomorrow!"

Steve grinned. "I wouldn't let you go, now, even if the police agreed." He knew he was grinning like an idiot. He pulled her close and kissed her. Brusquely, he asked, "Why didn't you telephone me when they arrested you?"

"O, Steve!" Ellen said helplessly. He understood.

They were soon seated at a café table, in comfortable wicker chairs, under cool palm shadow. A waiter brought coffee at once. Steve said, "Start from the beginning."

Ellen told her story and Steve listened without interruption until she mentioned Milder's suspicion of Brintell.

"What's that?" Steve asked quickly. "Tell me that again!"

She repeated it. "You look so strange when I mention that name, Brintell."

"He's an important man here," Steve answered, trying to be casual. This was not time to bring up his own problems.

Ellen looked at him happily. "I was never so glad to see any one as you this morning, Steve," she said gently. "You looked so calm the way you do now, so untroubled."

Steve Begs Ellen to Marry Him at Once

Troubles? Steve smiled gallantly. "My only trouble is how to make you marry me at once." She looked at him as he remembered she had once looked at him, in that long, long ago last week. "I should have picked you up last week——"

"And spanked me?"

"And married you. Then you would have lost all interest in diamonds or anything else, except your husband."

She smiled and held his hand tightly. "I'm in an awful mess now, Steve. How can I get out of this? They did find those papers in my handbag."

"Where Grunow's maid put them." Steve did not want to mention Menezes' remark about political overtones.

"She denies it. There'll be a trial and my story will sound silly." Her voice broke.

"No matter what happens, there's a way to avoid everything," Steve said with authority. "Marry me at once." He looked at Ellen, but he saw no answering smile on her face. He wanted to make her smile. "Think of it, Ellen, 11 o'clock in the morning and a love scene. I never thought 11 o'clock could be so beautiful. I thought one felt this way only on moonlight nights. From now on, I hold out for 11 a. m."

Ellen smiled at that but it was a thin pastel copy of a smile.

Critic Praises 2 Exhibits by Photographers

By Eleanor Jewett.

Photographers, amateur and professional, will find a great deal to interest them in two exhibitions which opened last Monday. The smaller of the shows is that of work by Eliot Porter at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue. It will continue until March 14. Mr. Porter, tho he lives in Hubbard Woods, has never shown his photographs in Chicago before. He has had a one man snow at the New York gallery, "An American Place," and at present is working on a Guggenheim Fellowship for the express purpose of photographing birds, at which delicate enterprise he excels. His work is remarkably beautiful; technically it is practically perfect.

As one looks thru the exhibit, in which there are many pictures of birds, one is reminded of two other Chicagoans who have found bird life interesting. One is Karl Plath, whose paintings of birds make his name nationally known, and the other is Emerson Tutle, whose etchings of birds [particularly owls] were for many seasons the highlight of the annual Chicago Society of Etchers' show. Eliot Porter ranks in excellent ornithological company when his work can stand beside theirs. Mr. Porter, by the way, is a doctor of medicine by profession but has given it up in order to devote his entire time to photography.

The second must exhibition for the professional and amateur photographer to see is the stunning An Exhibition of Modern American Photography at the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street, to May 15. There is work here in black and white and color. Over two hundred prints make up the show and the subject matter includes almost any and everything. There is a portrait of a frog, extremely dignified, by Howard W. Borvig; a crowded beach scene by Torkel Korling; a beautiful mountain solitude, snow draped, in the Yosemite, and "Ansel Adams' Darkroom," by Edward Weston [famous for his studies of vegetables and gigantic toadstools and mushrooms]. There are portraits, landscapes, still life, children, animals, action, industry—an endless stream of captivating subject material all apparently projected into perfect picture form by the man behind the lens. It is a glorious show.

An exhibition of water colors, chiefly landscapes of Illinois, by Charles Schucker is at the Roullier galleries, 410 South Michigan avenue, until Friday. Mr. Schucker is a young American artist who acquired much of his art training in Baltimore. He has absorbed a great deal from the modern French. We found it infinitely easier to map his landscapes on the far side of the Atlantic than on this. Mr. Schucker paints with a full brush and a fluid line. He is impressionistic and pleasantly theatrical. One of his most amusing compositions is the suggestion of soldiers on parade; there is the making of a good poster in its swinging movement. For authentic details about Illinois one must search out a Richard Richard or Charles Sheeler; for a camouflaged Illinois, page Charles Schucker.

The Bohemian Arts club of Chicago opened its 30th anniversary exhibit in the galleries of the Club Women's bureau, Mandel Brothers, Feb. 21, to continue thru March 14. The exhibit is of professional caliber. There are a number of beautiful landscapes by Rudolph Ingerle, a feature not to be overlooked, and these pass one along pleasantly to the striking work of Frank J. Gavencky, the decorative paintings of Jerome K. Klapka, the delightful water colors and oils of Anthony Buchta and the impressive works by Antonin Sterba, whose etchings are particularly fine.

Joseph Tomanek has a group of four figure paintings, nudes, of which "Reminiscing" is one of the most attractive with its good drawing, stunning flesh tones, and rich, warm detail. The girl and guitar, "Thoughts of the Future," is another beautiful canvas. Tomanek is probably the ablest painter of the nude that Chicago has today. There is nothing of Rubens in his manner of painting; rather is he on the cool, classical side of Ingres or Bougereau.

Charles Wilimovski shows several spirited and graceful etchings and a number of gay block prints, thoroly intriguing. Albin Polasek, sculptor, shows his tender "Aspiration," a girl being gently kissed by a cherub's winged head, and P. K. Kufrin has a splendid sculpture, the portrait bust of Cardinal Mundelein. The water colors by J. C. Svoboda are decorative in color and composition. They give one a spirited glimpse into the beauties and oddities of New Mexico.

A portrait of John F. Stacey by J. Allen St. John is on exhibit in the foyer of the American Academy of Art, 25 East Jackson boulevard. Mr. and Mrs. Stacey, well known Chicago artists, moved to California several years ago and this portrait was made just before they moved. Mr. Stacey died last winter in Pasadena. Mrs. Stacey [Anna Lee Stacey] is continuing to paint, and we usually see a brilliant canvas by her at the Arts club or the Chicago Galleries association each year. Their going to California lost Chicago two of the finest painters in the Tree Studio group; the death of Pauline Palmer and the removal to California of Gerald Frank lost two others.

The annual Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition opens March 12 in the east wing galleries of the Art institute.

The 21st International Water Color exhibition will open at the Art institute on May 14 to run thru Aug. 23. Prize money totalling $1,100 will be given. The jury of selection for this show is made up of William Gropper, Malcolm Hackett, and Frederic Taubes.

"The Pier on Sunday" by James Lechay, winner of the Norman Wait Harris bronze medal and $300 at the American Painting and Sculpture exhibition last fall at the Art institute, has been bought and given to the institute by the Society for Contemporary American Art.

One of the wartime activities undertaken by the American Film Center of New York, in connection with the division of education of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, is a series of sound films called "Rediscovering America." The films will be shown in Fullerton hall, Art institute, on Saturday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock, from March 7 to June 6, and from Sept. 26 to Dec. 19.

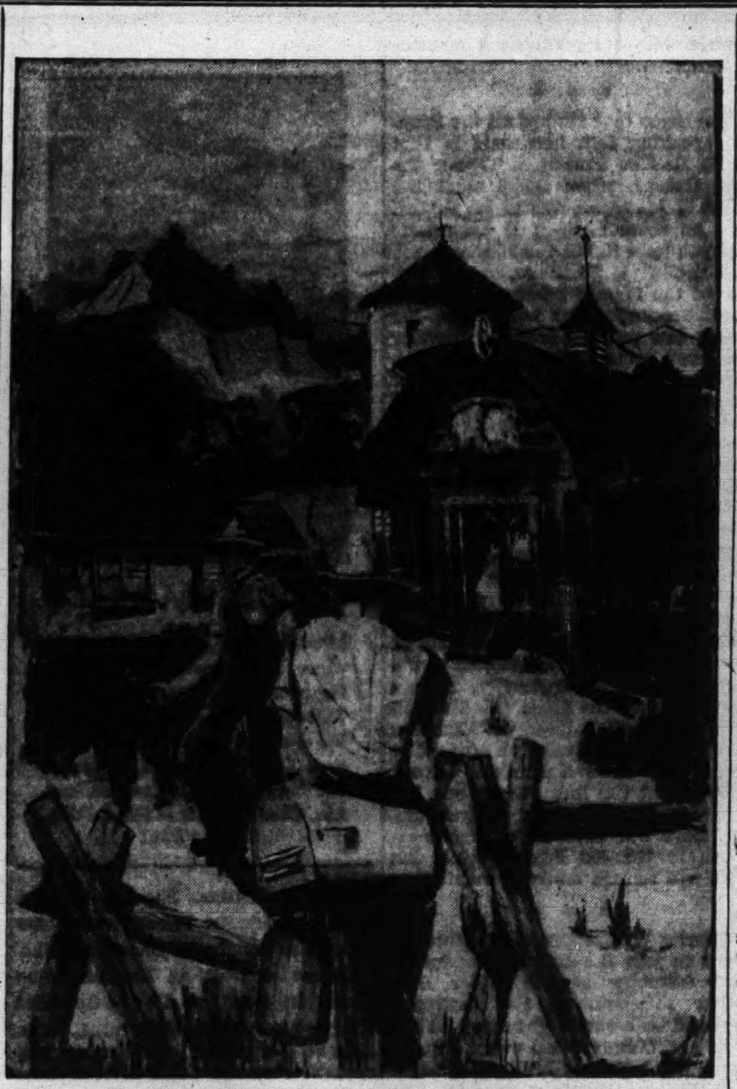
Beginning next Wednesday at 12:30 p. m., the Art institute will give a series of half hour concerts in Fullerton hall. There is no admission charge and visitors to the museum [Wednesday is a "free day"] are cordially invited to listen to the music. The concerts will be given by the WPA Symphony ensemble under the direction of Izler Solomon. They will continue thru May 6.



"DOWN ON THE FARM."

Sol Baskin, advanced art student at Marshall High school, contributes this painting to the National High School Art exhibit, which opens tomorrow to run to March 14 at the Tub. The exhibit includes a multitude of art expressions and accents the original thinking of the modern young person.

ENGAGEMENTS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family, must bear the address and telephone number of the signer, and all names must be printed in full. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

Pearl Frances Luftig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Luftig, Oak Park, to Harold H. Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Polk, Chicago.

Vivianne Laura Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson, Irving Park road, to Edward G. Doruff, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Doruff, North Hamlin avenue. Private Doruff is stationed at a southern army post.

Adelaide Lewis, daughter of Mrs. David Lewis, Dorset hotel, to Leon Goldstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Goldstein, North Avers avenue.

Anne Louise McLain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. McLain Jr., Woodlawn avenue, formerly of Evanston, to Harold R. Neely Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Neely, La Grange.

Ethel Evans, daughter of Mrs. W. F. McCarthy, South Princeton avenue, to Frank J. Zaviska.

Geraldine Siefert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Siefert, South Washtenaw avenue, to Lieut. Bernard John Ploshay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ploshay, South Kedvale avenue.

Two Sororities Are to Observe Anniversaries

Thursday will find Chicagoland members of two national sororities gathering at table at the dinner hour in observance of their respective anniversaries. Chicago Alumnae chapter of Phi Mu, recalling the founding of the society 90 years ago, will celebrate at the Cordon club, 410 South Michigan avenue. Chicago area members of Phi Omega Pi will hold their 32d founders' day party at the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Robert Bruce Stewart, wife of the controller of Purdue university, is coming from West Lafayette, Ind., to be the special guest and speaker at the Phi Mu dinner, and Mrs. Zenobia W. Keller of Evanston, executive secretary of the Phi Mu national council, also will speak. The ceremonies will begin at 6 o'clock with a memorial service. Mrs. Cecil F. Dawson is the chapter president.

The Phi Omega Pi dinner is to be at 6:15 o'clock, and Mrs. Marian Conrad, 422 North Kensington avenue, La Grange, is the chairman on arrangements.

Miss Nancy Miller Is Engaged to Lester Dean

The engagement of Miss Nancy Miller to Lester B. Dean of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., is being announced at a tea today by her mother, Mrs. William Miller of Kimbark avenue. Miss Miller, daughter of the late Dr. William Miller, attended Arlington Hall in Arlington, Va., and now is a student at the University of Chicago. Mr. Dean was graduated from the Hotchkiss school and will receive his degree in June from the University of Chicago. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sherman W. Dean of Briarcliff Manor. The wedding is planned for the early summer.

Jerome Kerwin Will Address B'nai B'rith

Mrs. Benjamin Samuels. [Bloom Photo.]

Looking toward postwar planning, Jerome Kerwin, professor of political science and dean of students at the University of Chicago, will speak at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Chicago council headquarters of B'nai B'rith lodge, 130 North Wells street. Prof. Kerwin is an executive board member of the Chicago Round Table of the Christians and Jews.

His talk is the fourth in an educational series presented by the women's district grand lodge. Mrs. Benjamin Samuels, president, has issued an invitation to attend to all B'nai B'rith members and their friends.

A general club program and tea will bring Sigmund Spaeth, the "tune detective" and president of the National Association of American Composers and Conductors, as guest speaker to the Chicago Woman's Aid Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Spaeth will discuss American music and its present trends, demonstrating at the piano.

The aid has a book hour planned for 11 o'clock Friday, when Mrs. Abram D. Davis will give a talk on Daphne Du Maurier's "Frenchman's Creek," and Mrs. Edgar L. Schnadig will review "Men Around Churchill," by Rene Kraus. Dr. Abram Sachar is to speak at the weekly Friday noon breakfast on "Idealism That Pays Dividends."

• • •

Wednesday afternoon will find the Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women at a dessert luncheon in the North Shore Congregation Israel community house in Glencoe. Plans for the day are under the direction of a committee headed by Mrs. Harry L. Canmann. Helen Jacquard will give a program reviewing current New York plays. Special programs bulletined at Chicago headquarters are a Jewish current events review by Mrs. Felix Levy at 10:45 o'clock Friday morning, and a book talk at 2 that afternoon by Mrs. Aaron Kanter.

The study group of the National Council of Jewish Juniors is meeting this afternoon at the home of Miss Regina Hirsh, 5326 Hyde Park boulevard, to hear Rabbi Essrig, director of the Hillel Foundation at the University of Chicago, on "The Place of the Jew in a Wartorn World."

A. L. Sachar auxiliary members of the B'nai B'rith lodge will close a membership drive with a victory tea at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Hamilton hotel. Carl Lyle Steiner, Shakespearean scholar, is to give "Macbeth" in recital, and there will be a musical.

Saturday is the day for the spring distribution of clothing at the Jewish Big Sisters' headquarters, 203 North Wabash avenue. Members planning to contribute to this charity are requested by the clothing chairmen, Mrs. J. J. Katzin and Mrs. J. B. Anixter, to bring their bundles in by Wednesday. There is urgent need for generous donations, members are reminded, since great quantities of the clothing which ordinarily would have to be given for local distribution to the poor have been sent to alleviate the needs of war victims in Europe.

Mrs. J. R. Klein, 2231 East 67th street, has organized a "motor squad" to collect the bundles of those who find it impossible to bring their donations to headquarters themselves. The clothing committee will meet Thursday to prepare for the Saturday distribution.

Women in War Work

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Ruth Volkmann, Senior Service Scout.

This is a young war. Youth is fighting it and youth will do the postwar reconstruction. Perhaps more than in the last war the young women of America realize that it is an all-out struggle, that they have just as much a place in it as their brothers and the boys they "date."

Even kid sister knows that she must do her part—do more than just be a good girl and help mother around the house. The Girl Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, the Girl Reserves, and their baby sisters have worked out defense programs of their own and are following them as devotedly as their mothers are following theirs. In each group the ideas have come from the girls themselves. They're young ideas; they're fun ideas; they're ideas that express the America of tomorrow. The older generation might do well to take a tip or two from the "small fry."

Soon 495 Chicago Senior Girl Scouts and Mariner Scouts will be wearing the round triple S emblem and dark green kepi which signify they are Senior Service Scouts, ready to assist in the national emergency. The Senior Service Scout program was set up by the national headquarters of the Girl Scouts in New York last year and was presented to Chicago Scouts at a meeting 10 days ago. Miss Elizabeth Sands is in charge of the program here.

Only senior scouts [15 to 18 years of age] may apply for the service rating and it is hoped that whole troops of senior scouts will take part in the program. Training will be given in the troops and in a few outside agencies such as the Red Cross. Requirements cover the fields of child care, food, transportation and communication, shelter, clothing, and recreation.

The training is designed to equip the girls to take a major responsibility in times of emergency. The Red Cross home nursing and nutrition courses are suggested as basic preparations.

Under emergency conditions the Senior Service Scout will be prepared to assist in the evacuation of children and old people; assist in making evacuees happy and comfortable in temporary quarters; prepare meals with whatever food is at hand; assist in feeding evacuees; help in canteens, and preserve and can foods. She will be able to act as a messenger in her own community; transport evacuees; relay messages in code, assist in jobs requiring mechanical ability; assist in distribution of clothing and with housing problems; and act as junior air raid shelter warden.

Numerous opportunities for actual experience have been suggested as training. The senior scout may help with back yard playgrounds in summer and indoor playrooms in winter; provide entertainment on call, and operate a toy loan library. She may join traffic, boating, radio, and air clubs and take courses in mechanical skills; help manage a budget shop and provide recreation for adults and children in crowded temporary housing units.

After meeting the requirements, the senior scout must take a pledge of service before she is awarded her triple S emblem and kepi. This pledge differs only slightly from the regular Girl Scout pledge and says, "I will do my best at all times and under all circumstances to deserve the name of Senior Service Scout. I shall try to be dependable, self-reliant, and unselfish. I want to be useful to my community and to my country, the United States of America."

New emphasis on already existent phases of the YWCA Girl Reserve department constitutes this young group's war effort. The Interclub council of representatives of 20 Girl Reserve clubs thruout the metropolitan area has chosen the projects to be stressed. Among these are a cookie baking drive, a "strength thru health" project, home nursing and first aid classes, knitting, and speakers and discussions on nutrition, waste conservation, the issues of the war and what peace will mean to the world.

Almost all of the eight points in the war service program adopted by the Chicago YWCA are being pursued by the Girl Reserves. Included in these are physical fitness, nutrition, consumer education, work with women in defense industries, coöperation with the USO and the Red Cross, hospitality to service men, and sale of defense stamps.

• • •

Cakes, cookies, candies, and magazines are being received regularly by the army air corps men at Chanute field from the Camp Fire Girls of Chicago. In their individual groups the girls are raising money by running errands, giving entertainments, and selling subscriptions. Already they have donated a dozen layettes to the Red Cross chapter at the Women's Athletic club, and filled Christmas stockings for sailors. They still are collecting books for service libraries. Mrs. William T. Grable, executive secretary of the Camp Fire Girls in Chicago, is in charge of this war work. Capt. M. F. Ranney, public relations officer at Chanute field, is in charge of distribution of the gifts. The Camp Fire Girls will celebrate their 30th birthday next month.

AAUW Votes Against U. Degree Plan

Questioning the merit of President Robert M. Hutchins' plan for granting a balchelor's degree at the end of the sophomore year at the University of Chicago to mark the completion of the period of general education, the national board of directors of the American Association of University Women makes public announcement today that it is "in favor of reserving the term bachelor's degree, for the completion of that education which meets standards for which the degree has been given in the past."

• • •

There are members who hold that the Chicago university plan would cause confusion in academic terms and debase the value of the degree. One, Mrs. Malbone Graham, regional vice president of the South Pacific section of the association, who is strongly opposed to general adoption of the plan, stoutly declares that "it is a Pearl Harbor attack on the bachelor's degree."

The AAUW has required as basis for membership a standard degree from a college accredited by the Association of American Universities, with added requirements in general education, and has a committee on membership and maintaining standards to sustain the established level.

• • •

Simultaneously with the opinion on the University of Chicago plan, the association announces its dropping of the University of Georgia from its approved list.

This action follows the ouster of the university, with other Georgia institutions, by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Association of American Universities, because of "political interference" in management. Widespread publicity attended the dismissal of the university from membership by the two associations when last summer the board of regents dismissed Dean Walter D. Cocking of the university, Dr. Marvin Pittman, president of the Georgia Teachers college, and eight other educators on Gov. Eugene Talmadge's charge that they advocated racial co-education.

The AAUW's board action takes effect immediately, but graduates of the university will be admitted to membership in the association until July 1. It will not affect alumnae of the university who are members.

Ann Patricia Cheevers Marries William Lusson

Mr. and Mrs. John Cheevers of Cregier avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Ann Patricia, to Sergt. William Lusson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lusson of Woodlawn avenue. The wedding took place on Feb. 21 in Our Lady of Peace church and was followed by a breakfast at the Chicago Beach hotel. The former Miss Cheevers was graduated from St. Xavier's college. Sergt. Lusson, a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, is stationed at a southern post.

Winter Season at Palm Springs in Full Swing

The winter season at Palm Springs is in full swing with Chicagoans everywhere in this bright little desert resort. The Clarence B. Mitchells and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swigart of the Drake, are staying at the Desert inn. Mrs. Kendrick E. Morgan and her son, Alden K. Morgan, who have been traveling in warmer climates most of the winter, are here right now, where they often are to be seen watching the fun at the El Mirador's beautiful swimming pool.

Charles D. McWilliams Jr., who is one of Chicago's popular extra men altho his home is in Dwight, is at the Smoke Tree ranch. Also at the Smoke Tree is Mrs. Owen West, and soon to arrive at the resort are Mrs. George M. Silverthorne Jr. and her children, who have taken a house in Palm Springs for six weeks or so while Mr. Silverthorne attends a training course for the A. V. S. Mrs. Silverthorne will start west tomorrow.

Mark A. Brown and Conrad Poppenheusen recently were guests of the Walter D. Monroes at luncheon at the Tennis club. The Monroes are staying at the Desert inn, where Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Allbright of Milwaukee and their son-in-law and daughter, the Edward S. Tallmadges, all well known in Chicago, also are staying. Other guests at the Desert inn are the William D. Deans. Mrs. John Burnham, formerly of Chicago, is an all-winter resident of Palm Springs.

Over at Deep Well ranch interest is running high in the race for queen of the Palm Springs circus week. Last year's queen, Miss Joan Monroe, just has arrived at the Desert inn accompanied by her brother, Jack, to join their parents. Miss Edith Bush, attractive niece of the Frank Bennetts, owners of the Deep Well, is in the lead for this year's queen. The decision will rest on which of the eight girls in the race for the title sells the most United States defense bonds. The Charles A. Days of the Edgewater Beach hotel have returned to the Desert inn for their second visit this season. Others at the Smoke Tree are Mrs. Frank T. O'Brien and her cute little daughters, Wendy and Carol.

Patricia Tuller and Charles Moreau Married

The marriage of Miss Patricia Tuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tuller of Beverly Hills, to Charles Moreau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Moreau of Winnetka, took place on Jan. 9.

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting

New York, N. Y., Feb. 28. "Navy Enlistment Here" might as well be the sign in smart fashion windows these days! Navy suits, navy dresses, navy jack-slacks seem to form the very backbone of the first view of Spring fashions. Of course, that dark, rich blue is a perennial Springtime favorite,—but this year there's an added inducement for us to "enroll" ourselves in its ranks because it's equally practical and glamorous . . . a "duty" costume to serve inconspicuously and steadfastly for wartime services, and a chic "dress up" fashion! Just consider the palette of colors that almost seem to cry for a navy background . . . prettier and more vivid because of the clean richness of Navy Blue . . .

Red-White-Blue to show your spirit!

Mimosa and "wheaty" golds!

Exotic, sun-rich South American "friendship colors"!

Pastels are varied as Spring blossoms!

And white . . . the very essence of feminine daintiness for Spring!

Many of you ask me if I favor "switching" lipsticks now and then. Well, it's fun to vary shades . . . but in LOUIS PHILIPPE I've found THE lipstick that's utterly dependable, PLUS a six-way color range! I find this 49c Angelus lipstick easy to apply without leaving a greasy, caked look! And because it's the "stay put for hours" kind when properly applied,—with a "special" cream base to prevent cracking, peeling, and smearing,—I "stick" to my LOUIS PHILIPPE! Try "Patriot Red", "Formal Red", or the other four shades,—see if you don't agree with me.

Phoenix Hotel Does Its Bit for 'Our Boys'

PHOENIX, ARIZ. It is a well known fact that any organization reflects the spirit of it's owner. Therefore, it is not surprising that the Arizona Biltmore, reflecting the loyalty and generosity of Mrs. William Wrigley Jr., is taking an outstanding part in providing hospitality and entertainment for the boys from the various flying fields in the vicinity of Phoenix. Not only does Mrs. Wrigley entertain the boys in her own home atop the hill overlooking the hotel and the entire valley, but all the recreational facilities of the hotel are open at all times to any boy in uniform. On Saturday there must have been 60 boys in the pool practicing for the Red Cross swimming pageant sponsored by Mrs. Edward Manville, to be given Wednesday. Every afternoon cocoa and sandwiches are served to the soldiers.

The Chicago boys especially have made the Biltmore their playground and it is Mrs. Wrigley's desire that they do so. The Biltmore is also sponsoring Red Cross and first aid classes which meet daily at the pool. These classes are both for the hotel guests and every one living in the vicinity. Quantities of socks, sweaters, caps, and so forth are being turned out for the Red Cross by the guests in their leisure moments at the pool.

• • •

Despite the war work the Biltmore is far from dull these days. Saturday night's party was one of those purely spontaneous affairs. It began with Bing Crosby singing informally and Dorothy Lamour at the microphone amusing the guests with her wit and humor. Bing sang any and every song asked of him even going back to the old, old days. When he paused for breath Tiny Purdy gave two Hawaiian dances and then Harriet Lipphardt, the granddaughter of the Edward Ravenscrofts gave a most artistic interpretative medley of modern dances. The climax of the evening came when Madame Sonia Sharnova, contralto of the Chicago Civic Opera company sang two numbers.

The cutting of a six tier birthday cake three feet high decorated with scenes depicting the conquest of the southwest marked the 13th anniversary of the hotel. Miss Nora Carney and Miss Mary Louise Anderson have been at the hotel every one of the 13 years, so it was really a guest anniversary. Corsages and boutonnieres were given to the guests during the dinner-dance. The high point of the birthday ball was at midnight when Madame Sharnova sang the Star Spangled Banner. Gradually the guests joined in the singing until the ballroom rang with the thrilling strain. Among the Chicago guests who entertained or were at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foresman, Mrs. Warren Lamson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. David Gann, Mr. and Mrs. "Pat" Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith, Judge and Mrs. George Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McMahon, Mr. and Mrs. Addison Thomas, Miss Mary Louise Anderson, Miss Nora Carney, Miss Marion McCarthy, Miss Gertrude Walker, Mrs. Chester Chapin and her daughter, Annette.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ravenscroft entertained at a small dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spurgeon and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scheidenhelm. The Charles B. Goodspeeds have returned to Castle Hot Springs and as usual celebrated Mr. Goodspeed's birthday with a picnic on Sunday in Buckhorn canyon. Mrs. Joseph Bowen Jr. comes over to Castle Hot Springs every few days to bring her little granddaughter, Wendy, for a swim. Wendy's mother is the former Gwendolyn Bowen, now Mrs. Jefferson Currier. Mrs. Bowen has her own cattle ranch—the Three Canyon ranch—nearby.

Others of the "old gang" to return are the Sterling Mortons, who never miss a day riding and exploring the arroyas and mesas. Mr. and Mrs. Ferre Watkins are vacationing at Castle Hot Springs. Recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott and Harry Duncan. Mr. Scott is an avid photographer and made many interesting colored slides of the desert, which is particularly thrilling now that the various cacti are beginning to bloom. Mrs. Charles Foley and her daughter arrive tomorrow for several weeks' visit. Saturday night was Western night with a cowboy orchestra and square dances and the various old west gambling games.

Recently guests at the Wigwam went on a moonlight ride and supper. It was on a hilltop, called Sunset Point, overlooking the country for many miles. It is a question whether it was more adventuresome to go by horseback, as did Tony and Herbert Mills and the Garth Gilpins, or to travel the road by stage coach, which carried Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heaney, Thomas Cannon, and Judge and Mrs. Michael McKinley. The stage coach was once, and still is, a magnificent equipage with "Sagadahock House" faintly visible on its doors.

This is the week of the big putting tournament at Camelback Inn. The finals begin today and will continue thruout the week. The prizes will be awarded Saturday night at the Gold Diggers' ball when the inn will be transformed into the "Slippery Gulch barroom and dance floor." The Chicago entrants in the putting tournament are Mrs. Clyde Carr, Alice Hausler, who has returned for her sixth season, Mr. and Mrs. George Harriss, Mrs. Henry Kennedy, Mrs. John Smith, the Frank Lays, the George Plamondons, the Thomas Roberts, the Clyde Shoreys, the Percy Wilsons, the Walter Wares, and, of course, Miss Peggy Ware, who seems to be running off with all the various prizes offered by the inn, and the Arthur Andersons. Next week will see the return of the Frederick Corleys who will be joined by their daughter, Mary Louise, now Mrs. Joseph Sampsell of Seattle, Wash.

Chicago Girls Choose Arizona for Weddings

TUCSON, ARIZ. Everything is twice as good out here as it is back in Chicago. Take this matter of getting married. Last week two handsome sisters, Beth Jeannie and Marjorie Ann Elmes, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Elmes of Chicago, married two Tucson brothers, Ernest W. and James A. Kennedy. Respectively, and simultaneously. Mrs. Blanche B. Peterson of Chicago, the brides' grandmother, and Dr. Helen Elgroth of Chicago, their aunt, were present. And, of course, Mrs. Elmes was on hand alternately to rejoice and weep, as is a mother's wont.

Of course, if you are against this doubling up business, we do it one at a time out here just as well. Robert L. Cooke of Kenilworth took unto himself Miss Doris Margaret Biggs the other day out at St. Philips in the hills. Present were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Grant Cooke of Kenilworth, who have been taking a two week holiday in the old Pueblo, with headquarters at the Santa Rita. Bob Cooke, who will shortly settle down and be a banker in Beverly Hills, is a sort of demi-Tucsonian from way back, being a graduate of Capt. Fairgrieve's Southern Arizona School for Boys. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke Sr. checked out of the Santa Rita on Thursday for a brief sojourn in Los Angeles before returning home.

Two guest ranches on the Tanque Verde road which have been hosts to Chicagoans of late are the Desert Willow and Diamond W. The ranches are across the street from one another, as it were, something less than a mile apart. Dr. and Mrs. James Wallin of Chicago, with their son, James, have been enjoying the hearty western fare and simple outdoor life at the Willow, this year under the management of the Perrines. Dr. Wallin has recently returned to Chicago, but his wife and son will stay until April. Mr. and Mrs. Herbig Younge of Peoria also were recent guests at the ranch. Mr. Younge returned home last week, but his wife is anticipating another two months' sojourn in the sun country.

From the stately hacienda of the Diamond W., Dr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Jordan ride out across the desert daily. They claim it's good exercise for the horses. On Wednesday evening they went on a steak fry on the old prison road. Other recent arrivals at the Diamond W. include Mrs. Waldo Bolen and son, Dicky, from Morris, who are planning a month's vacation.

The name that stumps all the Spanish speaking folk herabouts is that of El Rancho Emanono. Owner Ernest Greene, when asked what the name of his ranch was to be, replied "O, no name." Spell it backwards and you have it, but the Mexicans are still mystified. Emanono, on the border of the Papago reservation, has a great reputation for hospitality. No weary cow poke or ordinary traveler has ever come within shouting distance of the ranch house without being invited in to sample some of the inexhaustible supply of wheat cakes, bacon, and good coffee. Chicago guests currently at the ranch are Mr. and Mrs. M. Lee Alberts. Mrs. Alberts is the president of the Chicago Drama league.

Homer Lininger's lodge on the desert has the longest pillows, the largest towels, and the juciest steaks this side of any place. It also has a grand swimming pool and the best vista of the Catalina mountains known to the Catalina admiring fraternity. Among those now at the lodge are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Koch of Winnetka whose daughter, Ruth, is a student at the nearby Arizona Sunshine school. Arriving at the lodge, today are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Bays of Evanston. Mr. Bays will make a fortnight's sojourn in the old Pueblo, while his wife will remain on for a month.

Charles W. Gregory of Rockford arrived to join the Chicago dominated golf foursome at the Silver Bell. Other members of the foursome, which does a round at nearby El Rio Golf and Country club every day, include Dr. J. Donald Milligan of Elgin and William K. Otis of Chicago. The fourth member, according to Otis, doesn't count, because he is from Cincinnati.

Mrs. John B. Batten III., the former Kay Vernet of Oak Park, arrived in Tucson this week with her two sons, Peter Edmund Smith II., and two year old Michael Batten. This is Mrs. Batten's first return to Tucson since her graduation from the University of Arizona. She has taken a house on Linden street, where she expects to remain for several months.

Recent arrivals at Rancho Loma Verde in Coolidge include Miss Evelyn Van Cura of Berwyn. Mrs. Eugene Englehard of Chicago, who recently returned home after a three weeks' stay, left her son, Eugene, at the ranch to spend the remainder of the season.

ENGAGED

Miss Evelyn Silverstein, whose engagement to Harold Hurvitz is announced by her mother, Mrs. Rose Silverstein of Drexel avenue. Mr. Hurvitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hurvitz of Drexel avenue, is a student at the Illinois Institute of Technology, Armour College of Engineering.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Dorothea Anne Hermann, whose engagement to Densmer Hepburn Snyder was announced in Philadelphia, Pa., recently. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carl Hermann of Maywood. Mr. Snyder's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder of Philadelphia.

Tip for Patients.

Avoid bedroom slippers for general wear when recovering from any illness, because weakened muscles put a strain on the ligaments and may cause flat feet.

Art Institute Is Offering Films About Americas

The Art institute offers Chicago a motion picture survey of the Americas in a series of 27 free Saturday afternoon programs, opening Saturday. "Rediscovering America" is the title under which the series will be presented. The films, all carrying sound tracks, have been arranged by the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the American Film center in New York.

Subjects for one or more programs will run to the following schedule: "The Democratic Way: The Basis of American Life," "The American Scene: Portrait of a People," "Public Welfare: In the Interest of All," "Public Works: Electric Power for Man," "Conservation of Natural Resources: The Heritage of Man," "Industrial America: Production of Prosperity," "National Defense: Production for Protection," "United States Possessions and Outposts," "Canada: At Peace and War," "Mexico: Our Neighbor to the South," "Central America: The Connecting Link," "South America: Our Neighbor Continent," "Americas All; the Common Interests."

Continuing thru Dec. 19, the programs will be given at 2:30 o'clock each Saturday in Fullerton hall of the institute.

Miss Esther Kritzer Is Bride of Milton Epstein

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Kritzer of Dorchester avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Esther, to Milton Epstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Epstein of West Wilcox street. The wedding took place on Feb. 22, with a reception following in the ballroom of the Windermere East hotel. Mr. Epstein, a graduate of De Paul university, took his bride on a southern wedding trip.
